The bank was organized in February, 1872. There were 19 stockholders who signed the organization papers, only one of whom is now living, namely, Henry Wells of Riegalsville, Pa. The bank opened for business on April 18, 1872 and on Tuesday, April 18th, 1922, the bank observed its fiftieth anniversary by keeping open house to all its friends and acquaintances and by asking them to call at the bank during the day. All were given a very cordial welcome.

In its fifty years of existence the bank has had five presidents, A. C. Downey who was active in the organization of the bank, Samuel Seaver, John F. Pate, Simon Seymour and J. N. Perkins.

Mr. Perkins was elected cashier at the organization of the bank and has been an active officer since.

The bank has had a successful term of life, paying its stockholders fairly good dividends for the entire time, has paid its full share of taxes, making the large sum of $168,468 and has paid interest to its depositors to the amount of $89,449.00.

At the present time there are 82 stockholders in the bank.

President J. N. Perkins resided in Burlington before he went to Rising Sun, and his Boone county friends congratulate him on his successful guidance of the National Bank of Rising Sun, and hope his success will be continued until his labor among us is at an end.

WILD ONIONS CAUSING TROUBLE FOR DAIRYMEN.

Lexington, Ky. — Wild onions again are causing many Kentucky dairymen trouble in the form of tainted milk, according to inquiries being received at the College of Agriculture. The only known way to handle the problem is to take cows out of pastures infested with the weed several hours before milking time. J. J. Hooper, head of the college dairy department says:

"We have found that much of the trouble can be eliminated by turning the cows into the infested pastures immediately after they have been milked and then taking them out in three or four hours and placing them in a barn lot or clean pasture until they are milked. It is well also to pour the milk over a cooler as this helps to get rid of some of the onion odor and flavor."

RICHWOOD.

Wm. Dobbins, of Covington, spent the week-end with D. B. Dobbins.

Miss Clara May Grubbs and Arth. Gilpin and Deane Strubel, of Covington, spent Easter Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge Carpenter.

Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Hunter and Mr. Grubbs spent Easter with Mr. Walter Grubbs.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carpenter and Mrs. Sarah Robinson spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Carpenter and enjoyed a fried chicken dinner.

Albert Tanner and family spent Easter Sunday with B. L. Rich near Big Bone.

A severe wind hit our town Monday morning and tore down the Bell Mutual and Consolidated telephone wires.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Powers were shopping in Covington Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Dobbins spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Carpenter.

Wayne Hearne is home after a visit to his parents at Latonia.

Tonsey, little son of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Porter, has been quite ill the past few days.

SCHOOL NOTES.

In 1920 our Legislature passed a bill forbidding any graded school board to elect any teacher to their school who is known to any trustee on the board. If the board should elect such a teacher the act itself automatically vacates the office of the trustee concerned.

A similar law (1922) goes into effect next June. It forbids any member of a graded school board to act as treasurer of his board. At the beginning of the new scholastic year, July 1st, the treasurer of any graded school board must not be a member of said school board. Any trustee holding this dual position on June 30th must either resign as trustee or give up the trusteeship.

Any graded school board may employ either a layman or the sheriff, as heretofore.

The late Legislature passed some unexpected legislation, especially in the reclassification of all of our public schools.

Our schools are now divided into six classes, those of cities of the first class (100,000), second class (20,000), third class (8,000), fourth class (3,000), rural schools and all little independent graded schools.

The larger city schools are given more privileges of a general nature, such as the levying of higher taxes and the condemning of real estate for school purposes, etc. The privileges of the smaller city schools seem to be somewhat curtailed, with the exception of the new 75 minimum for their census.

All special school charters in our State are abolished, those granted by special acts of the legislature, before our graded school law became operative. This new school law goes into effect on the 13th of next June. In May, 1923, every independent graded school in Kentucky must elect a full board of trustees and reorganize. So all public schools are now equal before the law.

PETERSBURG.

The prayers of prayerful people of Petersburg are being answered.

Our three churches are realizing a great awakening in their Sabbath schools. Each school having a good attendance. Last Sunday, there was much enthusiasm and interest shown by the children and all was done by our Supt., and teachers to impress the minds of the young with the resurrection of our Lord.

There was a program at the Christian church under the supervision of Miss Laura May Mathews, also some choice musical selections by the young ladies. "Our Risen Lord" a vocal selection, by Miss Maude Berkshire, was especially good. Miss Agnes Carver being accompanist for these selections.

There was an excellent program at the Baptist school by the small children, consisting of songs and recitations on Easter.

A very impressive dialogue by Master Perry Connor and Geo. Burton Yates. "Why every boy can be a Christian." All numbers were well given. The last being especially good.

Twenty little children, beautifully dressed, wearing crowns bearing crosses, were led up the aisle by two five year old little girls carrying a cross, the song, "Must Jesus bear the Cross Alone," was played softly by the organist, while the children sang. Many expressions of gratitude were tendered Miss Lee Etta Myers, for so carefully training these little ones.

There was also a good program at the Methodist school, under the supervision of Mrs. Hugh Arnold.

Out of a population of three hundred and fifty people, two hundred and forty-two attended Sabbath school Easter Sunday.

Rev. R. H. Carter delivered a very able discourse at the Christian church Sunday a. m. There were three additions to the church.

The Ladies of the C. W. B. M., had a very interesting meeting at 2:30 Sunday afternoon.

BASE BALL.

Petersburg opened the 1922 base ball season by defeating the Florence club after ten innings by a score of nine to eight. The features of the game were: A triple play by Kopp and F. Berkshire, home runs by Finn and Mathews and the playing of Sayre Petersburg used her port side, Stephens for three innings and although wild, he shows he has the makings of a pitcher with proper coaching. Be it said of the Florence Club: They are much stronger than in several seasons with the exception of their pitching staff.

Next Sunday afternoon Taylorsport ball club will play the strong American Legion team of Cincinnati. Ben Black, the speed demon of Big Bone, will be in the box for Taylorsport, and a good game is expected.

STATE NEWS.

A PROLIFIC EWE

(Harrodsburg Democrat)
W. R. Dunn, State Pike, has a 3-year-old ewe that has given birth to seven lambs. He wants to know if any other sheep man can beat it.

HOG WEIGHS HALF TON

(Monticello Outlook)
J. P. Molen of Bud reports that he killed a Big Type Poland China hog which weighed 1,000 pounds. The hog was 3 years old. He made five stands of lard and the hams and middlings weighed about 100 pounds each.

REMARKABLE COW

(Russellville Messenger)
A Jersey calf that was born February 28, 1921, is owned by Welborn Bros. gave birth on March 1, 1922, to a line calf. She is said to be the youngest mother ever known among cows.

EYESIGHT PERFECT AT 97

(Mt. Vernon Signal)
Colonel Allison has returned from a visit to his mother and sister in Nebraska. He reports his mother, who is 97 years old, to be " hale and hearty" and able to read without glasses.

PROLIFIC COW

(Lebanon Enterprise)
Baker E. Terhune, well-known farmer, owns a Jersey cow with a record that is, in at least one respect, hard to beat. About a year ago the cow gave birth to twin calves both of which lived. A few days ago the cow again gave birth to twin calves. Both are heifers, and are healthy and give promise of developing into good cows.

TUMOR WEIGHED 70 POUNDS.

(Paris News.)
The condition of Mrs. Davis Stephens of Paris, who recently underwent an operation at a Lexington hospital for removal of tumor, is reported as being satisfactory. The operation was performed by Drs. Anderson of Paris and Barrow of Lexington. A tumor weighing seventy pounds was removed from the patient.

DIFFERENT NOW

(Cynthiana Democrat)
D. T. VanHook of Kenton town delivered 2,710 pounds of tobacco at the receiving house of the Co-operative Marketing Association in Cynthiana and received $436.15 as first payment, an average of more than 16 cents a pound. Mr. VanHook stated that last year he had a crop of 2,750 pounds, and after the expense of the crop was paid he had realized only $2.10 from the entire crop.

REMARKABLE MAN AT 93

(Elizabethtown News)
In the congregation at the Baptist church Sunday was Robt. Bush, who at the age of 93 is a most remarkable man. Mr. Bush resides with his daughter, Mrs. H. L. Igleheart, and although he happened to ride to town Sunday he frequently walks the distance of a mile. A year and a half ago he succumbed a broken hip, but after a period of confinement he has regained his normal activities.

PRIZE RAT TALE

(Mt. Sterling Sentinel-Democrat)
Mr. Sid Calk last week tore down an old stable, and when the lumber was moved a veritable swarm of rats ran from the building to an old crib nearby. Mr. Calk came to town and borrowed "Toots" the fox terrier belonging to Mr. Dan Hollearn, the general keeper of the engine house, and took her home with him. The crib was surrounded and she killed 125 grown rats and Mr. Calk and the young men on his place killed 81 young rats. We believe "Toots" is the champion rat killer of the State.

A FOOLISH IDEA

We heard a young man remark last week that "the world owes me a living." It is hoped for that young man's good that he'll get the notion out of his head. It's a mistake, a grave mistake. He never entered into a foolish idea nor one which will bring him a smaller measure of respect. The world owes the young man nothing; but instead he owes the world and society an active, noble manhood, a steady, honest energy which will enable him to associate with decent men and women in a true manliness of character that will make his friendship valuable and his presence and companionship desired. The truly intelligent activity, and this young man should contribute to society's happiness and welfare the grace which comes thru study, toil and honest thought.

Herbert Kirkpatrick is spending most of his time these days on Gunpowder creek fishing. He has had very little luck.

The court sustained a demurrer to the petition of Gallatin county seeking to compel Boone county to build a bridge across South Fork creek. Gallatin county will appeal from the decision of the Circuit Court.

Quite a crowd of local fishermen visited Gunpowder creek last Sunday. No luck.

There have been very few attending court this week.

Rev. Tomlin preached at the M. E. church Sunday morning and evening.

Mrs. R. H. Walker and children spent the week-end with relatives in the city.

Dr. M. A. Yelton accompanied by Russell Smith, went to Williams-town last Sunday.

A number of Burlington fans attended the game of ball at the Cincinnati park, last Sunday.

J. W. Conley, county surveyor, of Beaver neighborhood, was in Burlington on business Monday.

Circuit Clerk R. E. Berkshire and family spent Saturday night and Sunday with relatives at Petersburg.

W. R. Rogers and sisters, Misses Sallie and Elizabeth, spent Saturday night and Sunday with relatives in Walton.

L. C. Beemon has bought of W. Lee Cropper his house and lot in the east end of Burlington. Price not known.

Mrs. Eliza Poston returned home Sunday after a visit of several days with Mr. and Mrs. John Poston, in Hebron.

Members of the Farm Bureau and Milk Producers Association held an interesting meeting at Florence, last Saturday night.

There will be preaching at the Burlington Baptist church next Sunday morning and evening by the Rev. W. W. Adams.

Mrs. O. R. Porter and little son, Toussie, spent last Thursday with Mrs. Emily Berkshire at her home out on the Bellevue pike.

Miss Ruth Kelly, who is teaching in the Dry Ridge, Ky., High School, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kelly.

Burlington Masonic Lodge held an interesting meeting last Saturday night. Two candidates were initiated as Entered Apprentices.

Mrs. Lorena Kirtley, of Bullittsville neighborhood, spent several days the latter part of last week with Mr. and Mrs. W. Lee Cropper.

Al Rogers, of Bellevue, shipped to the Cincinnati market last Monday morning by Gaines' truck twenty-five head of nice 200 pound hogs.

Dr. John B. Grant, who several years ago treated several of our citizens for asthma and hay fever, died at his home in Gallatin county, one day last week, at the age of seventy-five years.

Martin Williamson after spending the winter in Burlington, has gone to the country where he can get plenty of fresh air and hear the whippoorwill sing. He will help Ransom Ryle farm this season.

Grover Snyder and wife, of North Madison, Indiana, and Cleveland Snyder and wife, of Cincinnati, spent Easter Sunday with their mother, Mrs. Alice Snyder, and other relatives in and near Burlington.

Marriage license were issued at the clerk's office last Saturday afternoon to a couple from Cincinnati. There being no one in town to perform the marriage ceremony, they left on the hunt of a preacher.

John Richards and family, of Covington, were in Burlington Sunday afternoon. While driving from Lawrenceburg, Ind., to Florence, Mrs. Richards' pocketbook fell from the machine, and as soon as she had discovered the loss they drove to Burlington, and shortly after arriving here the pocketbook was located as it had been found by Arthur Edson Blyth, who had been with his father and mother to Cincinnati, and the pocketbook was found on the pike just east of Limaburg.

There was no disappointment in the weather Sunday, it was a bright, sunny day, the air was just crisp enough to cause one to walk briskly, and gave everyone an opportunity to show their Easter toggery, and wear a smile and a look that seemed to say farewell to winter and a welcome to spring, which caused them to lay aside the burdens of gloom and discontent of the many changing elements of a long draw-out winter, and view the wondrous beauties of nature with that "grand and glorious feeling" that one feels at the approach of spring.

MONEY SPENT IS NIL.

There is no denying the truthfulness of the following declaration of the Falmouth Outlook in its issue of last week, it says:

The Legislature could vote $21,000 of the people's hard-earned money for the purpose of invading the privacy of the home through the agency of old maids who will try to teach the married women how to rear their children, but not a cent was voted to keep the imbeciles in the feeble-minded institute, who have been in the wards of the state for years. After the first of July these poor unfortunate people will have to be turned back on the counties from which they came and on families not able to support them, and they will finally land in the county poor house, a place not provided or intended for the feeble-minded. The lobby of the medical trust does not care a continental damn for the wards of the state if they can grab all the appropriations for special trains to carry the members of the Legislature to lighted banquets and compel the Fiscal Court of every county in the state to pay the expenses of the member of the State Health Board and to have a good time at the expense of the taxpayers. Practice economy on poor idiots to give the biggest trust in the state all the money it wants to furnish a lot of down-outers with a job to keep the people from being humbugged is ridiculous. The benefit the people derive from all the money spent is nil!

In the beginning of this republic it was not built from the top down, but commenced from the will of the people, who believed in local self government. But by degrees the power of the people to rule themselves has been gradually taken away from them and unless they assert their authority it will not be long until the government at Washington, in connection with the states will step in and tell the people how many times they must breathe and have their family affairs inspected by some paid government official. Down with centralization and back to the individual who has made this country great.

LOW EGG PRICE USHERS IN PRESERVING SEASON

Lexington, Ky.—Thousands of dozens of Kentucky eggs will be placed in water glass during the coming few months while eggs are cheap for use next winter when prices for this product soar, according to poultrymen at the College of Agriculture. Use of the water glass method of preserving makes it possible to have winter eggs at about one-half of what fresh ones would cost, the poultrymen say.

Eggs can be kept fresh as long as a year by the following method, according to J. R. Smyth, extension poultryman: "Only absolutely fresh eggs should be preserved, candling being advisable if there is any doubt as to their freshness. Dirty eggs or eggs that have been washed should not be used. Washed eggs will not keep because the protective covering has been removed while dirty eggs will become tainted in flavor. Infertile eggs should be used whenever it is possible to obtain them.

"A clean stone jar has been found to be the most suitable container, one eight-gallon jar being sufficient for 15 dozen eggs. One quart of the water glass and nine of water will preserve this quantity. The eggs are placed in the solution so that those at the top are covered by at least two inches of liquid after which the jar should be covered to prevent evaporation. The jar needs to be stored in a cool place where it will be undisturbed.

"The housekeeper who wants to save steps need not go to the jar every time she wishes an egg, but may take enough out of the solution to last several days, providing she has a cool place to keep them. Eggs may be added to the solution from time to time without danger of spoiling those already in it."

During the heavy rain last Friday a large part of the hillside along the Woolper pike near Ed. Botts' gate, slipped across the pike and obstructed travel. W. C. Hughes, carrier on rural route one, in attempting to get around the huge pile of rock and dirt upset his auto, but, fortunately no damage was done. Saturday afternoon Road Engineer O. R. Porter, after being informed of the condition of the road went out and moved enough of the obstruction to permit travel.

A sand deposit containing zirconium and titanium has been discovered in Florida. Titanium is a white pigment used in certain paints. Zirconium silicate is a refractory substance which is exceptionally well adapted for laboratory apparatus, electric porcelain, spark plugs, and so on. It does not shrink or expand in cold or heat and is not affected by acids and alkalis.

LOOK FACTS IN THE FACE

When a merchant sells an article he makes a certain profit over and above the wholesale cost of the goods the transportation, and the cost of handling. This rule applies the world over.

Suppose the people of this community have $500,000 to spend within a given length of time.

Is it better to keep the profits at home and in circulation among us, or is it wiser to send it all away?

For purpose of illustration, we will say the dealer's profit is 15 per cent, or $75,000.

If the people send away for this money they will stay away.

If, on the other hand, the people buy those goods from local dealers the only money to be sent away will be the wholesale cost of the goods and the transportation charges.

The 15 per cent profit will remain at home, as will as the overhead expenses, such as clerical hire, insurance, heat, light, and various other items.

Keeping that money at home does two important things. It increases the money in circulation at home, and it gives employment to local people.

People who are in the habit of patronizing their home merchants invariably have a better and more prosperous community than those who have the catalogue habit.

These are facts worth looking in the face.

AN EASTER THOUGHT

"If a man die shall he live again?" This most searching question of human experience was propounded 2500 years ago by the scriptural poet and man has been asking it ever since.

The radiant morn of Easter brings an answer to this question. Up to the time of Jesus, humanity had little conviction upon this question. The more advanced philosophers held hopeful views of the persistence of man's spirit, but among many races the condition of those who have passed away was regarded as not desirable in any way, a wandering and unhappy state.

Multitudes of bereaved people whose heart lies in a closed grave, ask where their loved ones are now, and if it all be possible ever to meet and recognize them again.

When Jesus brought to earth this noble and uplifting precepts of living, he also implanted in the human heart the seed of a new faith in immortality. His philosophy made God no mere heartless creator, but a loving father who must of necessity prepare many mansions for his children. The advance of the race was tremendously promoted by the growth of the conviction that he created.

If death ends all, the effect is to cultivate a tendency toward irresponsibility. "Let us eat and drink for to-morrow we die," is the natural feeling. But if there is to be another life, in which the human personality can reap the fruit of its efforts and sacrifices and achievements, the result must be to stimulate tremendously a person's desire to make a good record and be worthy of the heavenly mansions to which God's true children are invited.

The Easter feeling of confidence in immortality then, has not merely given comfort to millions of sorrowing hearts, but it has had a tremendous effect to their men and women on to do good work in this world and to incite them to strive for better character and service.

If the coal strikers do not go back to work within a reasonable time, they may have an opportunity to become permanent gentlemen of leisure.

ADVERTISING A CITY.

An interesting attempt to attract travel has recently been made by the city of Vancouver in British Columbia. In order to appeal to automobile tourists and others, it has been advertising the attractions of the city and he region in the newspapers of many American cities, as well as distributing a good deal of printed literature.

Many of these advertisements were planned to meet special occasions, like Fourth of July and other holidays. Following each publication of copy in American newspapers, a careful count was made of American cars crossing the border on the way to Vancouver. The results repeatedly indicated that a considerable number of people were following the advertised suggestions.

Although 1921 was considered a depressed year in business, yet more automobiles crossed the border on the way to Vancouver in the first six months of 1921, than during the entire year of 1920. The advertising must have done it. Such an experience not merely suggests how a community can be advertised, but it shows what a tremendous force publicity and how people are influenced by it.

Advertising is a great and mighty force which any community or business can make of to promote its growth or its products. The man who uses the force of publicity is like one who sets sail on a river. Not merely is his progress promoted by his work at the oars, but if he follows the current, a great and mighty energy sweeps him along to his destination.

Advertising is such a mighty force, a tremendous current of human interest, that sweeps into its power the desires, the ambitions, the needs of the people. Those that trust themselves to this current and appeal effectively to these popular needs, are carried on to a greater success than could seem possible.

FOR SALE.

On the famous Dixie Highway 362 acres, 10 miles from Erlanger, Ky., as fine land as there is in Boone county. This farm is well fenced, and all in grass, good ponds and springs; fronting one half mile on Dixie Highway, which will soon be concrete road; electric light, bus passes this place, in sight of 2 railroads; 3 miles from graded school, churches of all denominations; 1/2 hours drive to Covington. This farm has good 8-room house, 5 large barns all in good shape; one tenant house; 300 acres of this land will grow tobacco, and barn room for 75 acres, good orchard and out-buildings, and everything in first-class order. I am offering this farm at the low price of $117 per acre. See Little defects grow into big ones in time if not corrected.

The correction of a small defect in its early stages costs but little.

When left until it grows into serious proportions its correction runs into money.

That is what makes the maintenance of a car so expensive to many people—neglecting the little things until they grow into big ones.

The better—the safer—the more economical way is to see the garage man at the first warning of trouble.

Today is always a good time to have it done.

LEGION NOTES

Emporia, Kansas.—So confident are the ex-service men of Emporia, Kan., that the adjusted compensation measure will be passed by the Senate that the American Legion members of that place have pledged $3000 of the expected money to be used as the nucleus of a fund to erect a suitable community club house.

Indianapolis, Indiana.—In Korea, where Ford cost $1,012.50, former members of the A. E. F. have banded themselves together under the leadership of M. L. Swineheart treasurer of the Southern Presbyterian mission of the Hermit Kingdom, and formed a post of the American Legion. About a dozen ex-fighters, most of them missionaries, make up the post membership.

Omaha, Neb.—Former Navy radio operators and members of the Army signal corps have organized under the auspices of the American Legion in Nebraska and are broadcasting market reports, weather forecasts and weekly musical concerts to the rapidly growing legion of wireless telephone users.

Boston, Mass.—The aid of Mayor Curley of Boston, Mass., other city officials, the American Legion and the American consul at Sidney, N. S., was required before an ex-service man, "stranded" with his family in Nova Scotia, could be brought back to his Boston home. The Legion paid the bills the man had incurred and the officials unwound the necessary red tape.

Chicago, Ill.—The superstition that all army top sergeants are "hard boiled" took wing when an investigator unearthed one ex-top pick in Chicago who is spending his time trying to locate jobs for ex-service men as his part of the American Legion's campaign to find work for world war veterans.

Detroit, Michigan.—A Legion commander for the first time made use of the radio telephone in broadcasting a message to the ex-service men of America when Hanford MacNider stood in Detroit, Mich., and from station WWJ sent an Easter greeting that was heard in all middle states and as far south as the Gulf.

Columbus, Ohio.—The fine points of bravery are not known to Gov. Harry L. Davis of Ohio but when he was asked to pick the bravest ex-soldier in Ohio to represent the Buckeye population at a national assembly in San Francisco, Cal., he declined the large responsibility. At his request the American Legion undertook the selection.

Cheyenne, Wyo.—Poison gas which A. M. Thompson, Cheyenne, Wyo., policeman, inhaled in France during the war four years ago, had just caused him to lose 26 teeth, according to a report made by the American Legion. The policeman recovered from a long illness after the teeth had been removed.

New York.—Smarting red eyes among Brooklyn, N. Y., school children caused several shop owners to be haled into court. It was found that merchants were selling a wartime device for purifying water consumed by soldiers as "toy bombs," which threw off poison fumes upon exploding.

A community playground will be erected by the American Legion at Nashville, Tenn., the ex-soldiers bearing the expense of apparatus and upkeep.

Memphis, Tenn.—When two desperate criminals broke jail at Springfield, Tenn., and took refuge in the woods, the chief of police called on the American Legion after his own force had failed in its efforts to capture his former guests. The ex-service men formed a battle line and the two fugitives were landed back in the calaboose.

Detroit, Mich.—Judge Harry S. Keldan of Detroit, Michigan, opening his court for business, found that the entire jury panel had been snatched up by other jurists. His Honor asked the American Legion to further the cause of justice with a result that a new set of ten talemans, all jobless ex-service men, was empaneled.

Little Rock, Ark.—A thorough canvass of the ex-service men of Stuttgart, Ark., failed to bring to light a single unemployed veteran. The unemployment committee of the American Legion was formed to function so it dug up two jobs for men already employed which were better than the ones they had.

Paris, France.—Hanging in the room which Marshal Foch of France has reserved in his home for the thousands of presents he received while touring the United States under the auspices of the American Legion are the keys to eleven of America's largest cities. All the gifts which America bestowed on the Marshal are in his "American room" except the famous Montana bob cat which now paces a cage in the Paris Zoological Gardens.

The report by states shows that Pennsylvania ex-service men have formed the Legion in greater numbers than all others. Not far behind however, is New York, which in turn is followed by Illinois, Ohio, Iowa, Massachusetts and Minnesota. These Legion "blue ribbon" states have runners-up in Missouri, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan and Kansas.

One of the outposts is at Guam. Here a solitary member of the A. E. F. has established himself since the war. He is and has a regular branch of the organization of ex-service men and all the paraphernalia that similar organizations in the U. S. have.

Seattle, Wash.—Michael J. Nolan, forty-three year old veteran of the Spanish and World wars, former prospector for gold and lumber-jack, who recently attended educators throughout the country with his capacity for knowledge, is in urgent need of money for the completion of his studies at the University of Washington. In order that Nolan may finish his course at the university, friends have appealed to the American Legion in the hope that these funds may be obtained. Legion officials, state, however, that the organization has no money available for Nolan's use.

Though he had but a common school education, Nolan qualified within a month as a freshman at the place of learning here. He is enrolled in the school of engineering but is taking in addition higher mathematics, astronomy, bacteriology and the related sciences. In these his marks have been nearly perfect but he still lacks a few credits necessary for him to be granted a degree, university authorities state.

During the time he has been an undergraduate Nolan has partly paid his own way and part has been taken over by the Veterans' Bureau. He wound during the war Nolan is ineligible to receive vocational training as he did his fighting with the Canadians. The existing law puts Nolan in "irregular classification," the Bureau states. Although at one time it had a separate fund to take care of men in this class, these funds are now exhausted.

In enumerating the needs of the man who won high educational honors over the professors of many college and universities, Henry A. Wise, adjutant of the Legion in Washington, states that $750 $1,000 is necessary before Nolan can complete his studies. Since the payments from the Veterans' Bureau stopped Nolan has spent all the money he had and has put a heavy strain on his credit. During this time he has lived most economically, on $45 a month, officials at the university say.

THE FARM LABORER

There are many people today living in cities, dependent upon fluctuations in business, out of work more or less, who ought to be living in little homes in the country. Yet a regular farm would cost so much that it seems beyond their power to acquire it. One obstacle that deters many of these people from going back into the country, is the fact that there may be no work on the farms during the winter.

Other countries are doing much to induce their folks to settle in the rural districts, by helping them acquire little homes. Australia for instance, two acre homes for farm laborers are dotted over a large area of irrigated settlements. The government builds small houses and lets farm workers buy them on long term payments.

The laborer getting his home under this plan can keep a cow and pigs and poultry and run a garden. He usually works out a good part of the year, but with his little home enterprises he gets along comfortably.

In this country there would be much opposition to the government embarking in such an enterprise. It is felt that such undertakings are carried on most effectively by private business organizations. But the same idea can be worked out in other ways. Many farmers could well do something of this kind for a good helper, selling him a little piece of land and putting up a house for him, and taking their pay in work for a term of years. Farmers may prefer to rent a home to a farm hand rather than sell it to him, but it attaches a man to the soil if he can own his own little place.

There are too many renting farms, and too few owning them. Tenants should be encouraged to buy up little tracts or long term payments, and some interest ought to be ready to lend them money to build little homes. The man who settles down in a home of his own is a better citizen and a more efficient worker.

On account of the heavy rains last Friday it is claimed that the creeks were higher than ever known before, and the ground in many sec-washed. On account of the continuous wet weather very little plowing for crops has been done.

WHAT AGE IS A SCHOOL CHILD, POINT IN ISSUE

When Should He Go to School? Educators Give Diverse Views On This Important Subject.

Educators of the Capital City are not at all in sympathy with the recent declaration of Luther Burbank, the plant wizard, who declared his conviction that no child except the city child should be permitted inside the school rooms until ten years of age. They point out that plants and animals, the former group of living things, those with which Mr. Burbank has had the greatest experience, have only one age, which is that of their physical substance, whereas children are so many years old in body, but have minds which vary largely in "mental age" from that of the body.

Dr. Agnes L. Rogers, of Goucher College (Baltimore), has recently drawn attention to the need of mental rather than physical grading of children. In so doing she related the results of mental tests which revealed that in a group of first grade children their mentality ranged from that of four to nine years of age. "Children can acquire best the things proper to their learning point at a particular age," Dr. Rogers said. She explained the division by the tests of children into three groups; unusually bright children, the large average group, comprising 60 per cent, and the under-average children, who are slow to learn. The first and third groups include 20 per cent each of children tested. The new classification prevents retardation, while arbitrarily holding children of physical age of ten years from school increases it.

90 PER CENT OF CHICKS RAISED ON STATION FARM.

Lexington, Ky.—Prevention of chick disease, along with recommended methods of feeding and management make it possible to raise 90 out of every 100 chicks that are hatched on the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station farm, it is said. On some farms in the State, not more than one-half the chicks that hatch are raised while in several cases, the loss of all chicks has been reported, the station poultrymen say. A large percentage of the heaviest losses is due to some of the common chick ailments which could have been prevented, according to J. R. Smyth, extension poultryman.

"The most common of these is white diarrhea which is found in two forms. Bacillary white diarrhea, which is contagious and is transmitted from chick through the egg, is not common in Kentucky.
Most cases of this disease found in the State are the common white diarrhea caused by chilling, overheating the chicks, feeding them too soon or overfeeding them. Buttermilk or sour milk will aid in curing and controlling this trouble.

"Gapes" also is responsible for many chick losses, this trouble being caused by carp worms getting in the windpipe. These worms live in the ground and come up on the grass blades when the dew is on them. Putting the chicks on ground where chicks have never been raised before and plowing up the old runs and seeding them with a crop is a preventative measure for this trouble.
If this cannot be done, it will help to keep the chicks off the grass in the morning until the dew is gone. Three drops of creolin added to each pint of the chicks drinking water also is helpful.

"A few cases of leg weakness have been reported from various parts of the State this year. Feeding milk or a ration containing bone meal helps to control this trouble. Getting the chicks out on the ground as soon as possible is an important point in controlling leg weakness. If the weather is unfavorable, a piece of sod turned bottom side up may be placed in the house. Feeding the grain in a litter to induce exercise also is an important point."

Many a fellow puts a diamond ring on a girl's finger during courtship and a washbub in front of her after

Red headed girls of the country are up in arms because a Boston critic claims they all have crooked legs. We're from Missouri.

Regardless of the fact that we have a republican form of government, we are the most democratic nation on the face of the globe.

The most remarkable thing about an election is the rapidity with which we forget the rottenness that crops out.

The most exciting moment in climbing the ladder of fortune is when it begins to break.

If the joke is on you the other fellows won't do half the laughing if you tell it yourself.

Another disappointment. Skirts are getting into the price class and are coming down.

Life is full of joy to those who are willing to forget their sorrows.

Reputable people everywhere, especially in our cities, are at a loss to know how to reduce the crime wave that is engulfing this country.
The sea of perplexity in which we find ourselves reminds us of the woman who had a baby tiger for a pet.
It was little, and cute, and harmless in its infancy. But in time it grew strong, and one day it decided that its mistress would make a good meal—and she did.

When crime was at a low ebb we looked upon it as a matter of course, and neglected the precautionary measures necessary to prevent its spread.

Right under our noses it has grown to enormous proportions, and now we are apparently helpless in its grasp.

The tiger is no more dangerous than the criminal with his gun. Both should be rendered harmless before they get beyond control.

Live merchants advertise because they want the people to know of the goods they have to sell, especially when more than ordinary values are offered.

People read the ads because they want to know where they can buy to best advantage, and this can only be determined by knowing what the merchants have to offer.

The local paper is the medium between seller and buyer.

The one should use it, and the other should read it.

Funny, isn't it? Yet it doesn't seem to raise a laugh.

Political factions will accuse each other of every conceivable crime during an election, and then forget all about it after the votes are counted. They will even take a long swig from the same bottle.

If they were convicted of one-tenth of the crimes charged against them there wouldn't be jails enough in the country to hold them.

But it seems to be the way of human nature.

And most of us are human.

When a movement is undertaken for the benefit of this town every citizen has a right to his own opinion, and there can be no valid objection to according him such right.
The opposition, however, should come out in the open and make their objections known, in order that weak points may be given due consideration. It is only by such means that objectionable features can be corrected or eliminated.

The man who opposes in secret and works under cover does more harm than good, both to himself and to the community.

A noted American preacher says our American women are so bad they will cause the destruction of this country within fifty years.

We thank the reverend gentleman for postponing our exit for fifty years. Our eyes are still good and we can take in a lot of sights in that length of time.

It may be true, as he says, that the women of today are bad—at least some of them are. But realizing the enormity of our own masculine sins, we are not throwing any stones at the fair sex—not even at the flappers.

Then again, fifty years is a long time to wait for the blowup, or kickoff, or whatever way we are to be snuffed out.

They may be bad—we don't know —but we like 'em all, even in their badness.

We'll continue to take 'em as they come, and crowd in as many of those fifty years, as we can.

Three hearties for the women!

Who cares to listen to a sky-pilot who likes to hear his head rattled, anyway.

The Standard of Achievement

A certain lazy habit has crept into modern industry, and there are millions of people who drift through their day's work without any definite aim of accomplishment.

In former years it used to be customary to give boys a certain "stint" of labor. The boy who had a woodpile to saw, was given so many days to do it in, and held up to ridicule or deprived of reward if he failed to complete it in that time.

Old fashioned farm and shop hands used to chalk up on the walls of their buildings the number of swaths of hay they had mowed in a day, or the number of shoes they had soled. They had a pride of accomplishment, as they set certain standards for themselves and resolved to achieve them and they did so. That produced a habit of accomplishment.

If one is to acquire efficiency in these times, there must be something of this setting a standard of achievement and determination to produce a satisfactory and commendable volume of work.

This radio stuff is great stuff, anyway. It is only a question of time when we will be able to pick up our receiver and hear the president order his soft boiled eggs for breakfast.
And we might, per chance even hear him cuss the chef when they are overdone.

Raise ALL Your Chicks

After the trouble and expense of hatching good chicks, you want to raise them all—into heavy layers and husky breeders. It's a lot cheaper to raise them than to replace them even if you had the time. So take no chances—give them the start that will make them sturdy and keep them growing—feed them the original, dependable
"baby food for baby chicks"—

Pratts Buttermilk Baby Chick Food

Should be fed for the critical first three to six weeks, because it contains exactly what the delicate little bodies need, for building bone, muscle and feather. Start with the first meal and count on it for results in husky, well-developed youngsters that will continue to grow to profitable maturity.

Used every season by thousands of successful chick raisers, because it raises the chicks, relieves you of danger, worry and loss. Depend upon it for your chicks—try it at our risk.

THE DOLLAR.

Just a dollar on a mission bent, makes a lot of people glad each time the coin is spent. You pay it to the butcher for the meat to give you strength, he takes it to the grocer from whom it goes at length, some pretty lace or cloth his better half to buy, or help to get her summer hat to make her rivals sigh. The dry goods man sent on the coin to pay the market bill, and though the coin is often spent it stays a dollar still, and every time 'tis spent at home, some act of good is done; in booming local industries it's bound to make them run.

But if you take the shining coin and break the local chain, the chances are that from afar 'twill not return again. If once it passes out of town the butcher and baker, the grocer and the dry goods man, the furniture man and carpenter, the wagon man and blacksmith, the shoe man and the printer, every one will lose the chance to touch the coin ere the setting of the sun.

Just keep the little coin at home just keep it moving well, and every time it changes hands somebody's goods 'twill sell. That single little dollar has thus a wondrous power to make somebody happy a dozen times an hour. It pays the bill and wards off ill and ne'er its power relaxes, to soothe the doctor, buy the coal and pay for clothes and taxes.

Mrs. C. J. Hensley was called to Muncie, Indiana, Ind., last week to see her daughter who is quite ill.

Bernard Seebree, Leas Seebree and family, visited Herman Rucio and wife on Wilson creek, Ind., Sunday.

Mr. Chas. Beechum and wife, of Addyston, Ohio, and John Burns and wife, visited Wm. Burns and mother, Sunday.

C. L. Voshell and wife, of Sparta, Indiana, visited Ed. Botts and sister Pearl, F. M. Voshell and J. W. White, last week.

A Civil Service examination will be held at Covington May 13, 1922, for applicants to fill the vacancy of Postmaster at Burlington, Ky. The salary paid at this office is $1,300.

Mr. E. L. Hickman a temporary postmaster and he will take the examination, and no doubt will receive the permanent appointment.

Do the right thing and you won't go wrong.

THE SATISFACTIONS OF COUNTRY LIFE

There is homely wisdom in the old saying that "you may go further but fare worse." Many people have wandered over the wide world in search of happiness, and returned more restless than when they started. If they had cultivated the resources of life around their own door they would have achieved more of the real ends of life.

One of the blessings of country life is the chance for the development of ordinary talent, and for full participation in the activities of the community. In a city one has to acquire great superiority in any pursuit or pastime in order to attain recognition. The people do not care to rear musicians nor actors unless such performers have devoted many years to training themselves in those lines and have acquired professional skill.

So the city people who are interested in music or acting or any other activity, but have never devoted a great deal of time to developing their talent, never get a chance to cultivate their abilities. They must just sit around listening to others, when they would rather develop their own powers.

In the country town there is an opening for ordinary talent, or if you can take part in a play or do, anything well, you can find a ready chance to practice these gifts without having to acquire professional skill. Thus multitudes of country people have found that country life was more broadening and developing than residence in a city. It has given them a chance to work up their own powers, acquire skill in some art or sport or pastime, give infinite pleasure to themselves, create a resource that shall enrich life. In the cities that ability would die down neglected.

The best satisfactions come from developing and enlarging one's own abilities and powers. The life of a town like Burlington is just that kind of place where you can do it best.

SEASONAL TIPS

FOR GARDENERS

By May 1, it is safe to plant string beans, cantaloupes, sweet corn and cucumbers. The second planting of such crops as peas, lettuce and radishes also may be made about that time.

Cucumbers are best planted in hills about four feet apart each way, specialists at the College of Agriculture say. The soil in these hills should be thoroughly prepared to a depth of from eight to 12 inches and a fork full of well rotted manure placed in each hill and covered with about two inches of soil. From eight to ten seeds usually are placed in each hill. White Spine or Davis Perfect are good varieties.

Planting six to 12 hills of cantaloupes extends usefulness of the garden. Rocky Ford, Netted Gem and Tip Top are good varieties. They should be planted in hill much the same as cucumbers.

Although much ordinary field corn is used for table purposes, a great many people say there is no comparison between the former and the true varieties of sweet corn when flavor is considered. Golden Bantam, Adams Early, Country Gentleman and Stowell's Evergreen are said to be good varieties.

Pepper and tomato plants for early fruit should be ready to place in the garden about May 1. Both are set from 18 to 24 inches apart in rows that are 24 to 30 inches apart.

If you teach your child to fear you in time it will learn to hate you, and its disposition will be warped in future years.

The lone Legionnaire on the little island in the South Pacific plans a real July Fourth celebration. To aid him, brother ex-service men who comprise the Legion of Minnesota are going to hold a correspondence course on how Independence Day should be observed in foreign climes. Parades and the other features of a July Fourth fete are included in the list of things which form part of the exercises.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The American Legion now has branches in practically every part of the known world, according to a report made public at national headquarters of the organization here. Ex-service men in Denmark and others in New Zealand are the latest to band themselves together into a Legion outfit, the report shows. These two brought the total number of Legion posts scattered throughout the world, to 11,018.

WILL HONOR HEROES

Commonwealth of Kentucky To Raise Funds For Memorial Building at Lexington

Commemoration of no sacrifice of Kentucky heroes in the World War will be the object of thousands of men, women and children of the State during the week of April 23-29 when they set out to raise $300,000 for a memorial building.

Names of the 3,036 who died will be placed on the bronze tablets in the building which will be used daily as a chapel and union by thousands of young people from every section of Kentucky attending the State University at Lexington. Records of Kentucky's part in the war, work of private citizens and of those in the military service, will be kept there in addition to war trophies.

An army of 150,000 school children will start out Monday, April 24, to raise one dollar each. The plan was endorsed by State Superintendent George Colvin and the Kentucky Educational Association at its annual meeting in Louisville. Superintendents, principals and teachers have been requested to assume direction of the school children's soliciting, acting as treasurer and either turning in the funds to the woman County Chairman or sending them to State Headquarters, 210 Fifth Street, Louisville.

Governor Morrow's proclamation follows: "Those who have not forgotten the courage of the living and the glorious sacrifice of the dead; those who remember the soldiers of the great war who offered and gave themselves for us, will during the week of April 23-29 conduct throughout Kentucky a campaign to raise $300,000 for the purpose of erecting at the University of Kentucky a memorial chapel to perpetuate the lives and deeds and services of the American soldiers of the great war."

"The University of the Commonwealth is linked with the young manhood of Kentucky, and it is therefore fitting that on such a spot there should stand a memorial to the courageous youth of our State. No real monument or other memorial has been erected in Kentucky for this purpose thus far. I am, therefore, confident that this appeal will reach the heart and the eyes of patriotic citizens of the State. We honor ourselves when we honor those who died for us. We make certain that the spirit of yesterday will live throughout our tomorrow if we honor courage and nobility and sacrifice."

At 10 o'clock, set aside the week of April 23-29 as War Memorial Week, and call upon the men and women of Kentucky, the sons and daughters of the Republic, those who inherit and hold all for which the dead have died to lend their hearts and hands to the success of this campaign. The living offered and the dead gave their lives. We can give out of that which God has given to us that the memory of their deeds shall abide forever with us."

James C. Wilson, of Louisville, who was one of the most successful directors of Liberty Loan campaigns in the South, has been appointed State Chairman for this campaign. The following poem, dedicating the Kentucky Memorial Building to the fallen heroes, winner of a state-wide contest, was written by Mrs. Eleanor Duncan Wood, of Mayfield:

Dear Motherland, Kentucky, here we bring
The names of these thy sons who nobly died.
Who for Thy sake and Freedom's put aside
Young Love, and Lusty Life, and Call of Spring,
And strode down Death's dark ways adventuring.

We cannot bring them back; we can not give
To their young eyes the joy of sunrise, nor To eager ears that call they harkened for
The cardinal among the hills of home.
They live
But in our hearts—and these are fugitive.

We shall go down to dust even as they.
So to Thy Heart, Kentucky, bring we now
These deathless names. A coronet for thy brow Best-loved, and Beautiful. And thou shalt pay Unending honor till Time's latest day.

And it shall be throughout the coming years
Young hearts shall proudly read these hero-names
And feel within their own the sacred flames,
"We'll live for what they died for—
So faith shall spring once more from blood and tears."

Keep safe these names: Thy sons who would not save Themselves at price of Liberty and The "Old Kentucky Home" shall hallowed be Throughout the ages by the blood they gave;
Keep them then safe, Thy Beautiful and Brave.

This poem will be on marble or bronze and placed in the Memorial Building.

MOST ANYTHING.

We make rapid strides in this country, and as soon as one stride is completed we start on another.

A year or two ago the aeroplane was the whole thing. Now it is but an incident in our daily life. It has ceased to thrill.

The all absorbing topic today is the radiophone, the latest wireless invention.

You know all about it—how you place an instrument in the house, stick a receiver up in the top of a tree, and then sit back and listen to market reports or a concert being given a thousand miles away. You may even dance to the latest popular pieces if you desire, or you can listen to a sermon instead of going to church.

Even the officials of the University of Wisconsin have got the bug, and are arranging to educate the public by wireless.

It's a great stunt. What will the next one be?

A banker sued his wife for divorce because she spent $3,500 a year for cosmetics.

If she hadn't used the cosmetics to make herself beautiful he probably would have tired of her sooner than he did. In any event it is generally the woman who loses when marital troubles creep in.

When a man becomes bald headed and dignified he can discard his aging wig and go out and pick up a "chicken," one who does not require cosmetics to put the bloom on her rounded cheeks.

But not so with the woman. When age overtakes her she must travel along with others who have passed the meridian of life. There are no young bucks available for the woman who has lost her charm.

Some people mean well, but never do well.

They are always intending to do something that never gets done.

Instead of taking a just pride in accomplishment, they are continually humiliated by the inadequacy of their excuses.

They do not even drift with the tide of humanity, but are simply switched into the eddies of life.

For them there is a beginning, and an end, but nothing in between. They have either true friends or bitter enemies, because they do nothing to inspire either friendship or enmity.

They are nameless, because no one is sufficiently interested to name them.

They live—but only the Lord knows why.

We often wonder why candidates can't act like normal human beings, or at least just as they behave before they acquire an itch for office.

A man pursuing his daily avocations will pass you a thousand times with but a friendly nod or a cheerful smile—and sometimes with a frown.

But the minute he gets the "itch" he falls all over himself in his eagerness to pump your paw and impress you with his great love and mankind in general and yourself in particular.

Of course, we must concede that candidates are human, but when the itch begins to work they overdo the part.

$$$

REAPING AS WE SOW.

As a people we Americans are too indifferent to matters of national concern.

We are indifferent because we do not enter into the discussing and shaping of such affairs. We have no time to devote to the national welfare because we are engaged almost exclusively in the accumulation of money for our necessities and pleasures.

This trait is not found only in the republican party, or in the democratic party, or among any certain class of people. We are all tarred with the same brush, and the tar is thick and black, all sticks.

If things don't go to suit us in Washington we roar chestily for a day or two, and then forget all about it. We don't follow up the roars with definite action.

Because of this weakness we suffer from appalling waste and extravagance in our national life. We see officials vacillating in their weakness and indecision when they should be firm and aggressive in their action. And, above everything else, we see crime rampant throughout the country, and taxation scraping the lining of the skies.

We reap as we sow, and the yield is no more than we sow.

EASY ON THE BRAIN

Occasionally we hear of a brainy man who reads action stories in order to divert his mind from the strenuousness of his career. He finds relaxation, and it is good for him.

Stories founded upon the wild and woolly days of the early west appeal to him. The heroes are genuine "he men," with oceans of red blood in their veins, and he thrills as he reads of their marvelous exploits.

But he misses the best of all action stories.

He should read the Bible.

No writer of modern or other fiction has ever been able to duplicate the wonders that are told in that book.

No human mind has ever been able to fully grasp the import of the deeds recorded therein.

It is the only book that has ever been written that holds its own against the lapse of an eternity of time.

Even brainy men may find rest and relaxation in reading of the glories that are told in the Book of Books. Try it.

The government is said to place the blame for the latest coal strike on the shoulders of the operators of western Pennsylvania.

Some one is guilty. Some one is responsible for this great strike which may cause endless distress to an entire nation of people.

If the government is satisfied that certain parties are to blame, then those parties, regardless of who they may be, should be punished.

Operators are entitled to a fair profit, and miners are entitled to a reasonable wage. Neither side has a right to "hog it all."

Route the culprits out and give 'em hell.

A FITTING END.

Some people loaf themselves to death.

They are chronically lazy, lacking in ambition and without sufficient energy to take the daily exercise that nature requires in order to keep the body functioning in normal condition.

Their intellects become dulled, their minds become clogged, their joints become stiff, and the red blood of youth turns to the mater of premature old age.

They just drift, and sink, and are promptly forgotten.

A fitting end to a worthless career.

COMPARATIVE SELLING BOOM BRINGS OUT DANGER SIGNALS

Lexington, Ky.—Cooperative marketing is experiencing such a rapid growth in many states at the present time that failure may result in some instances if certain principles of successful organization are overlooked, marketing specialists at the College of Agriculture are pointing out. There must be a real need for the cooperative marketing association before it is formed after which its success will depend upon the organization and the business methods followed, they say.

"Sufficient business must be obtained so that the association may effect economies in the handling of products," D. G. Gars, one of the specialists said. "This volume of business is now commonly insured thru written contracts in which the producer agrees to deliver his products to the association."

"Adequate capital for the transaction of business is necessary. This usually is furnished by a membership fee, by the sale of capital stock or by securing loans from banks or private individuals."

"Effective organization is the third chief requirement. The organization should be one which will hold its members together command attention in the trade and bring about desired results."

"Capable and efficient management is one of the important points to be considered. The business manager should be selected for his business ability, his knowledge of the enterprise and his belief in cooperative effort as well as for his honesty."

"Good business methods are essential if the association is to succeed. The organization will be competing with private business enterprises and unless it can effect greater savings or perform its services as well or better than the privately owned firms, it has no place in the marketing system."

"A loyal membership that will give the association its patronage is another requisite for success. A cooperative marketing association is organized for the benefit of its members and the greater the patronage, the greater will be the benefits."

Meditations Of a Scrub Bull

They call me a scrub bull; yet I have a pedigree. I was sired by a scrub, dam'd by a scrub, and I sometimes think that I am owned by a scrub. My tribe outnumbered pure-bred bulls four to one. Just why I should exist is a mystery even to me. Yet, I am not responsible for it. I was brought into the world without my consent and I shall probably leave it against my will. In the meantime I am getting the most vicious publicity, principally through the farm press. They say I am a renegade and an abomination, and should be exterminated. Dairy men passing my owner's farm look at me with contempt; even the cows show me no respect. My own daughters seem to hold a grudge against me, saying that I am responsible for their low production. I cannot argue the point, for it is true. But what can I do? My owner must think a lot of me personally, or he would not continue to support me, knowing that I can never improve the quality of his herd or be a source of profit to him. These cow testing associations are certainly showing me up, and I can see the handwriting on the wall. My tribe is doomed.

Under the keen competition and low prices of good pure-bred bulls there will soon be no place on the farm for me. So, goodbye, I may be gone but not forgotten, for I have retarded the development of the dairy industry for many years.—J. E. Dorman in the Nebraska Agricultural College extension notes.

True Detective Stories MASTER CRIMINAL

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

SHORTLY after Allan Pinkerton founded the detective agency which was destined to be feared by so many criminals, a number of banks and financial institutions throughout the country were made the victims of a particularly clever gang of crooks headed by Walter Eastman Sheridan, the man whom Pinkerton in his memoirs declares was the cleverest criminal he ever tracked.

The operations of the Sheridan organization were marked by a simplicity which was almost startling. Their favorite trick was to plant one of their members in a line leading to the window of the revolving teller of a prominent bank shortly before the closing hour. The man so planted would take up a position behind someone who held in his hands a large roll of bills, and would wait until the depositor had almost reached the window. Then he would tap him on the shoulder, call his attention to a bill which "he had dropped on the floor," and the man would naturally stoop to pick it up. In nine cases out of ten placing his money on the teller's shelf as he bent over. The criminal would then snatch the money and make off.

While the hauls secured in this manner were, of course, of varying sizes, Sheridan and his men picked up $75,000 as the result of less than five minutes' work at a Baltimore bank.

After several other coups of a similar nature, Sheridan tried the same game at the First National bank of Springfield, Ill., but was arrested. He promptly skipped his bail, however, and the next that Pinkerton heard of him was when he assisted at the robbery of a Cleveland bank which netted the gang some $40,000. This was followed by a raid upon the Mechanics' bank of Scranton, Pa., where Sheridan and one of his men got away with $30,000 worth of negotiable bonds. His next exploit—one which took more than four months of careful planning—was the looting of the Falls City Tobacco bank in Louisville, Ky., when upwards of $300,000 was secured.

As a result of these operations, together with the shrewd manner in which he had invested his money, Sheridan was worth fully $250,000.

Feeling certain that his past exploits had left no clue to his connection with the robberies, and having obtained his acquittal of the only charge on which he had been arrested, Sheridan joined in a series of the most gigantic frauds ever known in the history of insurance companies, and porting to be worth more than $500,000. These forgeries were so cleverly executed as to deceive even the officers of the companies involved, and the discovery of the swindle ruined scores of Wall street brokers and private investors.

On the eve of the day on which the bubble burst, Sheridan quietly cashed all his assets, closed his office at No. 60 Broadway, and sailed for Belgium, which at that time provided a safe refuge from extradition. Had he remained there, he would have died a free man. But he could not resist the lure of gambling with the law, and he slipped back into America under the name of William A. Stewart, establishing himself in business in Denver, and finally opening a bank of his own in Rosita, Colo.

Even up to this time Pinkerton had no idea that the master criminal had returned to the states. Pinkerton, however, showed no such business which carried him into the mining districts of Colorado, and it was on the streets of Denver that he came face to face with the man whom he was certain was Sheridan.

Investigation developed the fact that "Stewart" had been leading an apparently upright and honest life, and beyond his arrival in Denver shortly after Sheridan had left Brussels, there was nothing to connect him with the bank robber and bond forger.

Realizing that identification under the circumstances would be extremely difficult, Pinkerton determined to resort to a ruse which would serve a double purpose—that of proving whether Stewart and Sheridan were one and the same man, and at the same time implicating him, if guilty, in the planning of a new crime. Accordingly, Pinkerton sent two of his best men to Colorado with instructions to make the acquaintance of the bank president at Rosita, and finally to lay before him the details of a huge swindle which they were supposed to be planning.

"If Stewart is really honest," argued the detective, "he will not listen to such a proposal. But if he is the man I think he is, he will not be able to resist the bait, and will come to New York to participate in the fraud."

The plan worked out precisely as Pinkerton had figured. "Stewart" not only agreed to handle some of the more difficult details of the proposed bond forger, but suggested improvements identical with those which had previously proved successful. He balked on coming east, but his "associates" finally persuaded him to do so, with the result that he was arrested the moment he stepped off the ferry at New York.

In spite of the fact that the grand jury returned no less than 32 indictments against him, Sheridan escaped with a five-year sentence in Sing Sing, but he died before the expiration of his term.

COATS RESEMBLE CAPES

One must look twice at many a spring wrap to determine whether it is a cape, pure and simple, or a more complex wrap. The more like a cape it looks the better its chances of winning approval from the fashionables. The cape has always stood women in good stead, nevertheless it will not hold her allegiance season after season without modifications, and we have them in the cape-wrap.

For general wear the spring offers, among others, the graceful wrap shown here. It is made of tricot and has a large collar trimmed with applied loops of silk braid. At the back, loose, pendant panels of the cloth are finished with silk cords ending in slender tassels. Something between a sleeve and a slit at each side of the front allows freedom for the hands and arms. Altogether this is a smart and practical wrap for general wear and is developed in several colorings and colors.

Ce-re-a-lia Sweets

It Pays To Please Your Cows

The best feed in the world won't produce milk if your cows turn their nose away from it. Cows munch the last morsel of Ce-re-a-lia Sweets, not because of its "high protein" or its "guaranteed analysis," but because it tastes good. We could make up a ration with exactly the same percentages of protein, carbohydrates and fat without such a large pleasing variety of ingredients, without including appetizing molasses, but your cows would digest less, tire of its sameness, give less milk. Ce-re-a-lia won't lump or cake. Easy to handle. If you're feeding home-grown ground corn this year, feed Ce-re-a-lia Sweets along with it. Use the usual roughage.

Four Weeks' Trial At Our Risk

Feed one cow 4 weeks on Ce-re-a-lia Sweets, and make us prove these two points: First, that you will get more milk or better milk. Second, that your actual profit will be greater. If Ce-re-a-lia costs more than you're paying now, the improvement in flow or test must more than make it up. Money back if either test fails. Ask us for details.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

Thanks to the good Providence our fruit crop has escaped the cold snaps of the past week without damage to fruit buds, except in the case of cherries and apricots, and with these the loss is only partial.

If you would have sound fruit, free from worms and fruit of quality, you should use the summer sprays. The most important spray of the year for apples should be given just now. It is called the calyx spray and should be done just as the petals of blooms are falling. The spray is one gallon of lime-sulphur solution, 1 1/2 pounds of powdered arsenate of lead (or 3 pounds of paste) to 50 gallons of water. There are only 7 or 8 days time in which this can be given. During this period of time the calyx or blossom end of the apple is open, by spraying the arsenate of lead into this cavity, which closes immediately, every crawling moth or worm is poisoned, for they enter the apple thru the calyx. This spray is inexpensive and quick to apply. It is to be hoped that every one will make the small effort required for this spray. I am sorry to confess that I have known a man to stroke his beard, look wise, and announce that he was a practical man and didn't have time for this new fangled spraying. I will leave you to be the judge if it is any more practical to buy high priced trees, grow them to bearing, lose use of land, then allow disease and insect pests destroy your fruit, than it would be to prepare a seed bed and plant a field of corn then neglect it, saying he couldn't afford to cultivate it.

I shall be glad to furnish anyone spray charts and directions for spraying all their fruits. Remember that nobody likes a wormy, scabby, bitter rot apple.

I wonder if you knew that nutritive ratio of protein to carbohydrates and fats in your blue grass and rye at this season while they are young and tender is 1 to 5, while a little later when your blue grass and rye are beginning to head that the nutritive ratio of protein is 1 to 5, and still later when it has headed, the ratio is only 1 to 8. This means that a bushel of blue grass and rye at this time is worth dollars to you, i. e., the dairy cow should have a larger portion of her feed hominy meal or corn meal, which is high in fats and carbohydrates, to balance against the liberal amount of protein found in tender grasses. In clover or any of the legumes the loss in protein is not so great as the plant approaches maturity. Little or no cotton seed meal or feeds of high protein content are needed while cows are on young pasture grass. This is why beef steers gain so rapidly when fed nothing but corn when they are turned on spring pasture. Numerous comments have been made on the splendid gain made by a bunch of shoats when running on young rye and being fed corn alone. A month or so later these same men have complained that their shoats were not doing near so well, and they couldn't understand either, for the pasture was better than ever, and was growing faster than they could keep it down. It was simply this—the protein content in the rye or blue grass was becoming less day by day and the carbohydrates and fiber relatively more. Remedy—supplement the corn with skim milk or tankage and middlings.

Don't delay giving your order for fertilizer to the Farm Bureau promptly. You will soon be needing it, and must have at least short notice in which to make delivery. The Farm Bureau has done well in fertilizer prices. We, without question, have the best price to be found. It is below pre-war prices, both on 10 per cent phosphate and mixed goods. Call your Director or Headquarters at Burlington about your order.

ANIMALS WEEK

The week April 24 to 30th, designated as Kindness to Animals Week, is a favorable time for teachers to speak to their children about the faithful dumb beasts that toil for the human race. Also about pet dogs, cats, rabbits, etc., whose comfort depends a good deal upon the fidelity and kind feeling of the little folks. The average boy is thoughtless about animals. If left to himself he regards it as a good joke to tie a saucy cat to a cat's tail and see the harassed creature try to free itself. But children have generous natures. A little reasoning will show them how the abused cat feels, and therefore to become ardent defenders of unhappy creatures.

Meanwhile there are grown-ups whose thick skin need a sizable fine to help them see things from the point of view of a dumb beast. Kindness to Animals Week is an excellent time to remind up some of these fellows.

John Rogers, of Bellevue neighborhood, Joe Walton and Woodie Sullivan, of Commissary neighborhood, shipped some nice lambs to the Cincinnati market last Monday. They received 18 cents a pound for them. Some price.

THE BURLEY POOL.

President James C. Stone, of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association, announced Saturday that the re-dried tobacco of the association was ready for sale and that a schedule of prices had been fixed and the trade notified. Samples of this tobacco, Mr. Stone said, can be seen at the offices of the association.

Director of Warehouses Ralph M. Barker, who has been in the western part of the Burley district, returned Saturday. He reported the taking over of ten warehouses by the association, without the necessity or expense of resorting to arbitration as to the value. Two of these plants are at Glasgow and one each at Vine Grove, Elizabethtown, Hodgenville, Horse Cave, Munfordville, Burkesville, Campbellsville and Lebanon.

Ninety-seven growers of burley tobacco joined the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association the past week, according to reports made to Assistant Chief of the Field Service Division William Collins. These contracts represent about 240,000 pounds of tobacco.

Twenty-one of the ninety-seven contracts were sent in by Matt Winn from Rockcastle county and thirty-four by Albert T. Day from Boone, Kenton and Grant counties. There were sixteen from Green county, signed voluntarily by growers who remained out of the association last year.

Since the reopening of the books on March 6, the records show, 1,009 contracts have been signed by as many growers, pledging their tobacco for the next five years to the association, representing slightly more than 2,400,000 pounds of tobacco.

The campaign for signatures to contracts in the "black patch" the dark tobacco district of Kentucky and Tennessee is being pushed by Organization Manager Jos. Passonneau, who has been conducting a preliminary campaign in the dark district since March 4. The actual work of signing contracts starts with the coming week and the association has until Oct. 1 to sign up two-thirds of the crop, or until Nov. 1 if the organization committee extends the date to that time.

Director Barker said that in every county he had visited on his trip, which required almost the entire week, he found the growers not only satisfied and happy over the results this year but encouraged and confident of the future success of the cooperative marketing plan. The director has closed all the warehouses in the district for the season, but belated growers may deliver their crops by making arrangements by telephone, should there be any tobacco left undelivered, but Director Barker does not believe there are many, if any, such growers, and thinks that the crop pledged to the association has been practically all delivered.

SEASONAL TIPS

FOR GARDENERS

The first plantings of summer squash can be made about May 1st. Summer Crook Neck and White Bush are good varieties. The seeds are planted in hills about four feet apart each way.

Despite the fact that many attempts to grow a few watermelons in the home garden are unsuccessful, most farmers and gardeners feel that they would like to have the plant included. If the seeds are planted in hills eight feet apart each way and a shovelful of manure thoroughly mixed with the soil in each hill, the crop may be grown successfully, gardeners at the College of Agriculture say. Tim Watson and Kieckliff Sweets are good varieties.

The striped cucumber beetle is said to be one of the worst insects attacking cucumbers. A few squash seeds planted in each hill with the cucumbers will help hold down the amount of damage since the beetles prefer to feed on the squash.

If sweet corn and bush string beans are planted in rows, they may be followed by other crops later in the season. Sweet corn may be followed by fall turnips that are planted about August 1 and bush beans by fall beets planted about August 1st.

Since cantaloupes, summer squash and cucumbers occupy the ground all season, it is best to plant them to one side of the garden where they will not interfere with cultivation or be shaded by other crops.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC AND MY PATRONS.

Owing to the serious operation and illness of my wife, Mrs. Nettie Collins, I have had my place of business closed for the last three weeks, but will be at the shop hereafter to take care of my customers, as Mrs. Collins is now out of danger. If you have something in my line of work some one else cannot do, bring it to me. I will do the work. Rubber tiring—I will apply a first-class shoe at a reasonable price; three classes at a reasonable price, my work have come down in price, my work have been just a little better than some one else. Give me the work, I need the money. Thanking you for past favors, I remain yours,

UPLAND SOILS NEED LIME FOR BIGGER CROP YIELDS

Lexington, Ky.—Practically all the upland soils of Kentucky outside of the Bluegrass region, and some in that region, are acid to the extent where liming is needed and will give profitable returns in general farming, according to a new circular, No. 59, written by E. P. Karaker and published by the College of Agriculture extension division here for free distribution to farmers of the State.

The soils of the Bluegrass region have become slightly acid in many places through the removal of their limestone by drainage waters and in all these places need limestone for the successful growing of alfalfa and sweet clover and sometimes feed clover and other legumes, the circular states.

Most of the limestone soils of western Kentucky have become acid to the point where liming is needed, it continues. Outside the limestone regions of the State, all the upland soils are considerably acid, requiring usually from one-half to two tons of ground limestone an acre to neutralize the acidity in the surface foot of soil over an acre, the publication states. The well drained dark colored, better bottom soils are not acid to any harmful extent. The light colored, silty, bottom soils in all probability need liming and will respond profitably to treatment with it, it said.

The use of limestone and acid phosphate on the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station soil fertility fields located on the soils of the State has resulted in the crops of yield being increased 14.8 bushels, the wheat yield 7.6 bushels, that of soybean hay 1,387 pounds and that of clover hay 2,021 pounds, according to the circular. This fertilizer treatment has practically doubled the yields of these crops with a net profit of more than $2 for every dollar invested in limestone and phosphate, it concludes.

Resolutions of Respect.

Mrs. Emily Howlet died Saturday, March 25, 1922, in Cincinnati. She was a good woman, a devoted Christian and the following resolutions are offered:

Whereas, as it has pleased our most merciful and gracious Heavenly Father to take from our midst and our Aid Society one of our best members, Mrs. Emily Howlet, to be with Him Therefore be it resolved first that our Society has lost a true and loyal member, the community a good neighbor, her children a good mother.

Resolved second. May the God of all grace be with the children and sustain them in their dark and sad hour and may they submit to His will who doeth all things well.

Resolved third. That a copy be sent to the Boone County Recorder for publication and a copy be placed on manual of our society.

Mrs. N. H. Clements,

are thoroughly convinced of the value of the health of the farm family of convenient, ready-at-the-minute bath facilities.

Many farmers that have electricity consider the bath room the best service electricity has given them, but there are, of course, many other reasons for the increasing popularity of electricity on the farm. It gives the best of light in all parts of the house and barn, it does all such chores as pumping, milking, separating and sweeping, and in doing these things it lightens the labors of every member of the farm family.

State health departments have for many years urged the adoption on the farm of sanitary measures such as indoor toilets and sewage disposal systems and the same authorities

When water had to be pumped and carried by hand, when it had to be heated on the kitchen stove, and when tubs had to be gotten out especially, then getting ready for and taking a bath meant a lot of disturbance and fuss. But electricity has done away with all this. The Delco-Light and power plants now in use on so many farms all over the country furnish plenty of power for the operation of electric pumping systems. These systems have been developed to such a great extent in the last few years, that they are now almost entirely automatic. Once installed, the pump driven by an electric motor and controlled by a pressure switch keeps water under pressure at the faucets all over the house. The water service thus obtained is in result the same as that enjoyed in the city. There are very efficient heaters, too, which will keep plenty of water for a bath in a half hour or less, or which will keep the water hot all the time if desired. All this means that any member of the farm family can now have a hot bath in a real tub at the mere turn of the hot water faucet.

It is estimated that the wool clip of Boone county this year will bring in between $70,000 and $100,000. Buyers have been paying from 30 to 35 cents per lb. for the wool. Some has been sold as low as 25 cents. The poolers expect to get 35 cents.

A new machine digs a ditch 12 feet wide on top and seven feet deep while crawling steadily ahead like a prehistoric monster. A revolving wheel scoops out the earth and conveyor belt carries it 20 feet to the side to deposit. With a crew of five men the machine can drive a ditch ahead a quarter of a mile each working day.

There may have been an excuse for some of the tobacco growers refusing to join the Marketing Association last year. There is no excuse this year. The pooling plan, was proven a decided success. When the next distribution is made the poolers will have received a higher average than the non-poolers received and will have about one-third more coming.

TOBACCO BUGS INCREASE DURING PAST TWO YEARS

Lexington, Ky.—Tobacco flea beetles have been increasing rapidly in Kentucky during the past two years according to H. H. Jewett, entomologist at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. The amount of damage which they do this year will depend largely upon how they come through the winter in various sections of the State, he said. The insects are recognized as one of the worst pests that trouble tobacco growers.

"Spraying tobacco plants with arsenate of lead at the rate of one pound of paste to ten gallons of water or with the powder at the rate of one pound to 20 gallons of water has been found to be a successful method of destroying the insects. They also may be controlled by dusting the plants with a mixture of one pound of powdered arsenate of lead and four pounds of sifted wood ashes, care being taken to see that this mixture is properly prepared.

"An additional measure of protection to plants in the field may be obtained by dipping them at transplanting time in a solution of arsenate of lead made of one pound of paste or one-half pound of the powder and five gallons of water. The solution is stirred frequently with a paddle during the dipping. This method of control gives best results when the plants are arranged in small bunches and only the leaves dipped in the solution and then given a slight shake to remove excess moisture."

Adults of the beetle appear early in the spring and collect on plants in the beds until transplanting time when they move to plants set in the field. Injury by the insect is characterized by small round or irregular punctures scattered over the leaf surface and more or less complete destruction of the leaf. The adults feed principally on the under side of the leaf, preferring those near the ground, while the larvae feed on the fine rootlets and are capable of doing considerable damage.

The continued wet weather this spring has delayed the farmers with their spring plowing. The fair weather of the past week has put the ground in fair condition for plowing, and farmers are hoping that the good weather will continue. With less than a month left before corn planting time, and with the tobacco transplanting season only a few weeks off, farmers are beginning to worry over the possibility that they may be unprepared to begin work on these crops when the time comes due to the fact that the ground intended for them will not be ready. So far he farmers of Boone county have made very little progress in preparing their ground for coming crops.

BOYLE JUNIORS MAKE CALVES GAIN 50 POUNDS EACH MONTH.

Danville Ky. — Twenty Boyle county boys who are developing baby beef calves to be entered in the Junior agricultural club classes at the first annual Fat and Feeding Cattle Show to be held at Louisville Bourbon Stock Yards this fall are making marked progress in their efforts to win their share of the prizes, according to County Agent C. L. Taylor. The average gain for the 20 calves has been about 50 pounds of beef each month while one boy has put 232 pounds of gain on his steer in 78 days, it is reported. The 20 steers include 12 Angus, six Shorthorns and 2 Herefords.

THE GRANT ANNIVERSARY

The 100th anniversary of the birthday of Ulysses S. Grant, April 27, 1922, is being widely celebrated. Gen. Grant's career is full of suggestion to ambitious people, particularly to those who have met his couragements.

Gen. Grant was different from most geniuses in that such people usually show their power early in life. Grant, however, seemed to be a rather ordinary boy and took only mediocre rank at West Point. When he went into business he had poor success and was working for a small salary when the war broke out. A career like this should make one feel that he can't judge a man's possibilities by his early failures. Many quiet and obscure people could accomplish great things if they would grasp their situation in life with the implacable determination manifested by this renowned military leader.

Henry Seikman and wife spent Sunday with Chas. J. Craven and wife at Latonia.

Miss Sheba Roberts, of Walton, spent last week with relatives in Burlington.

Mrs. Woodie Sullivan, of the Commissary neighborhood, has been quite sick for several days.

Judge Sidney Gaines is holding court at Carrollton this week.

Four years ago we entered the Great War. But why remember and dwell on the fact? Surely it is not a pleasant or profitable pastime. Memory in a great many cases is harmful and at best it is unnecessary. The past is to forget. Lessons, it is true, can be drawn from the past, but they are profitable only when applied to the present and not when dwelt upon with sorrow and regret. Many people never cease to mourn their mistakes. Certainly mistakes are regrettable, but why give them more chance to harm by thinking of them and by constantly wasting time wishing they had never happened. Make each mistake a rung in the ladder which eventually leads to perfection. Quite often there are regrettable things in the past which are not mistakes but which were necessary. Perhaps the Great War might come under this classification. That depends upon the point of view. However, all will agree that whether necessary or not, dwelling on it is an unprofitable business from which we can hope to gain nothing. Glean from the lessons we learned during the war whatever good is possible and then drop it from memory. And each year when the anniversary for our entrance into the war rolls around, do not waste a day or two thinking how unnecessary it was, how much better it could have been managed, how much more you lost than other people and how much some people gained.—Pendletonian.

Anyone who wants to can get his name in the paper these days. All one has to do is to think up some new, utterly absurd, unreasonable or idiotic doctrine and propound it in public. A quarter column is the inevitable reward.

Thus we have a lady who makes an address before a school organization and who says that the trouble with America is too many can openers. We are suffering because our housewives don't cook enough food, but depend too much on the canner. Wonder if we talk too much over the phone and not enough face to face, or travel too much in a train and not enough on horseback, or read too much by electric light and not enough by candle light?

Come a Chicago lawyer before the country with much publicity because, arguing a case before the jury he contended that no man is really sane after he reaches fifty. Reminds one strangely of Dr. Osler and chloroform for all men over forty. Why fifty, Mr. Lawyer? And what makes men over fifty insane—too many lawyers?

The real thing the matter with this country, if there is anything the matter with it, is neither too many cans or can openers nor too many insane people of fifty, nor even too many lawyers; the real trouble with us all is too many open mouths saying nothing worth hearing.

No man or woman ever made a public address who had not a real opportunity to aid in the spread of knowledge, the increase of education. When speakers so misconceive their opportunities as to utter only newspaper publicity-getting remarks it is not only they who speak, but we who listen, who are to blame.

If you watch many people work, particularly beginners, they seem unable to complete all the details of a job. If they are shipping a bundle of goods to someone, and have to look up articles in different places in a store or a home, they may leave a ball of string in one place, some unused wrapping paper in another, and perhaps leave the shelves from which the articles were taken all disarranged.

Business men frequently complain about the work of their apprentices, that it is as much as they are worth to go around and pick up after them. It pays to be patient with such learners, remembering that everyone has to begin some time. But the scattering habit of doing things has to be overcome at the earliest possible moment, for it breaks up the efficiency of a working unit and creates confusion. The younger worker needs to acquire the habit of orderly finish, in which every last little detail in the smallest possible task shall be completely finished.

Extracting coal from the air is being attempted by the government at the New York assay office. Tests are being carried on by which the air and dust, which escape from the mines and carry away the wealth of the metal, can be caught so that none of the gold

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON

More than one editor has asked, seriously, "Is the National House of Representatives a joke?" And more than one national representative has bitterly resented the query. Admitting that there are many good and able men, clear thinkers, forceful workers, in the house, it is nevertheless inevitable that the house as a whole stands up under very biting criticism when it passes legislation up to the senate in the comfortable assurance that the senate will not make it into law.

There is but one reason for such action on the part of the house, and that is fear of the folks back home. But the folks "back home" are by no means the backwoods men and women of a generation ago. The public school, the movie, the trolley, the automobile, even the newspaper, afford the man far from the city as good a chance to know and to think as his urban brother.

Hence, when the house passes a bill to deport all aliens violating the Volstead law or the narcotic law, it says to the folks back home, "This will please you because you believe in anti-narcotic laws and prohibition laws."

But will it? Common-sense justice is inherent in most Americans. We all like to see fair play. Is it fair play to admit an alien and tell him, "We have one law for ourselves and another for you; if you take a drink we deport you; if we take a drink, we pay a fine; if you sell opium, we pay you go; if we sell opium, we pay a fine?"

How can we teach aliens American justice if our house passes a bill evidently unjust?

Let us pass all the antilaws we, as a people want. But let us make the penalty for their infraction the same for rich and poor, American and foreign, white and black.

The Senate Republicans are placing in the tariff bill a duty on hides, to fool the farmer. They will probably discover next November that the farmer is not easily fooled; he knows that a tariff on hides can not compel the packers' trust to pay more for the live steer by reason of the hide which covers it. The packers bid their price for the steer, considering him as so much beef and viewing the hide as a by-product obtained for practically nothing. It would take an ingenious Philadelphia lawyer to devise a method of getting around this situation and compelling the packers to pay a fair price for both the beef and the hide; then begins the problem of preventing such outrageous profiteering as compels the farmer to pay much more for a pair of shoes than he receives for an entire beef hide. The Republicans are not tackling these problems with a desire to satisfy the farmer and he can not be satisfied with bukm. The farmer would probably view with more approval a real breaking up of the packer trust.

Another case in which the farmers are being handed a prize package is in the proposal to add a dirt farmer to the Federal Reserve Board. The Wall Street Journal is intensely for Harding and all his works, but it is brutally frank at times. Of course, it is not read by farmers, but by financiers and speculators. It says: "It seems cruel to set farmers to chasing such a will-o-the-wisp as this, which so many of them have been made to believe would make money easier for them. The politician dares not tell them it would do nothing of the sort." What power would one dirt farmer have to change or modify the actions of the remainder of the Board, sitting around a long table voting down every change he might propose? Why doesn't Congress tackle the problem of straightening out the marketing and distributing systems? Would they be treading on the toes of too many campaign contributors? But back of the Federal Reserve Board is what? The united and interlocking power of the money kings of the country, led by J. P. Morgan & Co. Until the Federal Reserve Board is made up of representative citizens outside the banking clique there will be no real relief for the people and their financial problems. Call money for use in speculating on the New York Stock Exchange in unlimited quantities at 3 1/2 per cent, on collateral liable to shrink twenty per cent in a day, and it is loaned up to 80 per cent of the market value of the stock, but if a farmer wants a loan on his farm he has to pay more than twice this rate, together with a commission. The greatest difficulty obtaining a loan and then can not borrow in excess of fifty per cent of the value of the land. In New York City time loans on collateral are ranging from 4 to 4 1/2 per cent.

Weight Changes Every Hour. We are lightest when we rise in the morning. Breakfast puts on a pound or so but we lose some of this by lunch time. When we again add to our weight. After lunch back we go once more, though, as between breakfast and lunch, we retain part of the increase. Then comes dinner, which brings us up to our maximum. We have then gained, on the average, seven pounds during the day. Generally, therefore, the greatest variation during the 24 hours is seven pounds, the weight lost between dinner and breakfast.

The idea seems to prevail among some business girls that a style show is being held in their office.

In the spring the young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love. Better let it turn over some sod in the garden.

You have a splendid appetite, perfect digestion and sound, restful sleep by taking Tanlac. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

If the old saying, "April showers bring May flowers," be true, the crop of May flowers will be as abundant as were the blossoms on the fruit trees.

A number of the farmers have succeeded in getting their potatoes planted and oats sowed, but so far very little garden stuff has been planted.

Eliza Poston, who was operated on at Christ's Hospital, Cincinnati, about three weeks ago, for ulcer of the stomach, returned to his home last Thursday, and his many friends are glad to know that he is able to get around again.

Lloyd Weaver, one of the local fishermen, says in his rambles along the creeks this spring he has noticed an unusually large crop of snukes. He says they can be found on bushes and a number in a bunch. He never drinks anything, either.

We hear of some complaint that the ground that had been broken, had packed by the heavy rains, causing a crust to form, which makes progress difficult and many are congratulating themselves because they did not have more of their land plowed.

The largest sailing ship afloat is under the French flag, commanded by a Breton captain. The liner, La France, is a steel boat 418 ft. long, and 5,633 tons burden. It is a five-master, hoists 30 sails, carries a crew of 54 and its best fair weather run is 322 knots.

Tanlac is unquestionably the most widely talked of medicine in the world today and those who once use it invariably buy it over and over again and tell their friends of the splendid results they have derived from its use. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

Small grain of all kinds is looking good, and most of it is far in advance of the usual growth at this time of the year. The lamb crop is very promising both in the number that were saved and the prospects of the prices, although we have heard of no sales being made, but farmers in the Blue Grass section have been selling at prices ranging from 10 to 18 cents.

The Lawrenceburg, Ind., Register of last week carried the announcement of sixty-three candidates for county, district and township offices—seeking the nomination at the primary election to be held on May 2. A great many of these candidates who are now loving the voters will be causing them after the vote has been counted, but what does the fellows who have been successful care?

The last lap of the school year has begun, and the children should be encouraged to put in some "good ticks." Formerly these were in proportion to the good ticks administered by the teacher, but now we are beginning to realize that a child can be governed by reason as well as by fear and with far better results for his mental and moral nature. Incidentally, it is also better for the disposition of the teacher.

Real Estate Agent C. T. Claunch, of Erlanger, sold for Barker & Sanders, a seven-room house and seven and one-half acres, between Erlanger and Florence, Ky., to Glorach, of Fort Mitchell, for $7,500. He also sold for Raymond Johnson, a three room house in Elsmere, Ky., to Rogers, for $1,200, also sold for Groger, a five-room house in Elsmere, Ky., to Hoersting, of Covington, Ky., for $2,100, was also offered $9,000 per acre for 10 acres adjoining Erlanger, Ky., but the offer was declined.

JUST BE NEIGHBORLY.

"Just to be neighborly." That means so much more than we think sometimes. When everything you cook tastes flat, stale and unprofitable, when you seem to be serving the same dishes over and over again, until you wonder that the family does not howl with disgust. When you are huddled in a chair, trying to think of a dessert that will appeal to you, then there is a knock at the back door, and a cherry call: "I just baked a pie, and it is so good, and John doesn't like pie unless they are just baked, so I thought I would bring it over to you and let you try it." Half, but if you don't have company it will just do, and you won't have to bother with your dessert. I thought you looked rather tired this noon, and besides I wanted to bring you something that was nearly as good as those hot biscuits you brought over the other day. I made it according to that new recipe I told you about that you think it is better"—and so on. Sounds rather flighty and inconsequential, you say? Not at all, not at all, not in the least. It isn't that the pie is going to be unusually good, although it is sure to be thus. It is just that somebody thought to be kind; that somebody noticed that you were tired, and that somebody was glad to share a "housewife's" secret with you. There are always a lot more housekeeping affairs discussed in the mornings than people (meaning men) generally suppose. A conference that is put down to the credit of gossip usually is called to decide whether a fruit salad will be better to serve than a heavier one with the roast. And if my lady watches you with dancing eyes some night when you cautiously taste a new dish, after you have surveyed it with suspicion, and giggles with pleasure when you pronounce it very good indeed, then you may know that she is satisfied with her success. No, all housewives do not gossip in the morning—merely hold council of war, and plan new conquests.

THE BANKERS VIEW OF ADVERTISING

Guy Emerson of New York, vice president of the National Bank of Commerce of that city, contributed recently an article to Printers Ink on "What the banker thinks of advertising."

Mr. Emerson says in this discussion: "It is becoming more and more common for bankers to regard a radical cutting down of an advertising expenditure with close attention. The sharp reduction in the advertising of nationally distributed articles, the reputations of which were apparently so firmly established that nothing could affect them adversely, has been followed so regularly by a heavy falling off in sales, that the need of caution in such cases is widely recognized. The banker is coming to realize that public interest is not necessarily a permanent possession. It can be won only by skilful competition in a world where every device is mobilized to win the notice and stimulate the action of the average woman."

These remarks were aimed at concerns that distribute products by advertising all over the country. But if they apply in this field, they apply well in any local community.

The retail merchant in this community has to meet the competition of his own townpeople, the competition of small order houses, the competition of solicitors who go from door to door, and of those who solicit by circulars and mail.

The merchant who goes on past achievements, and expects to make his business grow in the face of this intense rivalry, is likely to be disappointed. To keep up with the race he needs to advertise, and take pains to tell the people about his goods. If he does not, or if he allows his advertising to fall off, his business is likely to fall off as the writer above quoted suggests.

INSTRUCTION IN AUTOMOBILE DRIVING

A multitude of people are loosed on the highway operating cars and trucks who are not familiar with some fundamental principles that should govern automobile driving. A lot of these folks have driven cars for years, and their methods are a menace to the public.

The Cleveland Safety Council, connected with the Chamber of Commerce of that city, has rendered a great public service, by offering the public a course of lectures on automobile driving and maintenance. This course last year was taken by 1400 people. This year a special section has been arranged for women drivers, in view of the great desert manifested by many of them for such instruction.

As a result of this instruction a great many business concerns have testified that their employees were driving trucks and cars with increased skill and many big concerns reported that their employees had had no accidents.

Such courses are given in many other cities, and it might well be wished that drivers who have acquired wrong operating habits could have the advantage of them.

It seems that Congress intends to continue its process of reduction until our army and navy consists of Gen. Pershing and Admiral Sims.

ONE VERSION OF SPRING

Spring, as interpreted in suits, finds charming expression in this beige-colored tricot model, of utmost refinement. It has a plain, straight skirt with a narrow separate belt of the material. The short coat falls open down the front, having only one fastening place at the collar. There is a slit seam down the back and a novel decoration of silk embroidery in self color, which finishes an exquisite example of the tailor's art.

MANY PORKERS STUNNED BY AVOIDING TROUBLE

Lexington, Ky.—Hundreds of young pigs in Kentucky have their growth retarded each year by infections and swellings which follow the castrating operation, according to swine men at the College of Agriculture. Under average farm conditions the animals are altered and then turned into a field containing a mud wallow, the idea being that the mud hastens healing. This would be true were it not for the causes of infection found in the average hog wallow, the swine men say.

"Six weeks has been found to be the best age at which to castrate pigs. A good disinfectant, such as a two and one-half per cent solution of crocin iodine or a five per cent solution of carbolic acid, is used to wash the hands of the operator, the instruments and the pig's scrotum after which the testicles are removed by making the incision below the middle of the curvature on the scrotum. This promotes good drainage. The wound will heal rapidly and cause little trouble if it is cleaned with the disinfectant following the operation and the animal turned into a clean pasture which does not contain a mud wallow."

New York officers found a bootlegger selling booze in chocolate drops. His customers can now truthfully say: "I'll never touch another drop."

An athletic Kansas minister offers to box any other preacher in the country, evidently overlooking the recent announcement that Jim Jeffries was entering the ministry.

THE SATISFACTIONS OF COUNTRY LIFE

One of the great satisfactions of country life is the superior chance it offers to raise families of children. People who live in cities are constantly complaining of the disadvantages of their locations and their long far country surroundings. Their children mingle with the gangs of the city streets, and they pick up more undesirable ideas in an hour than their parents can get out of their heads in a week.

The city children have usually no adequate space in which to play. If they play in the public streets, they are in danger of getting run over, and if they play on private land, somebody is indignant and orders them off.

In the country, how different. There is ample land where they can enjoy their games free from interference. They can run and yell and make all the noise they please, and no fussy neighbors are telephoning for them to be suppressed.

Country life is full of activities that the children enjoy. There are plenty of tasks of work that they can take hold of, and both make themselves useful and find their energies fully occupied. Instead of hanging around the house asking what they shall do next, they enjoy watching the men who are conducting the tasks of the town and the farms, and in assisting at those tasks.

They are out of doors more. If given good attention their bodies rapidly grow strong and hearty in the open air, instead of being cooped up in narrow tenements in cities. Their initiative is developed. They can have little enterprises of their own, gardens, poultry, farm animals that make them resourceful and teach them early to be little men and women. They do not acquire the precocious smartness of city life, but they learn real wisdom and power to do things. It is a profound satisfaction to watch their growth under these health giving conditions.

FAREWELL, WINTER.

(By Walt Mason.)

It has been a weary season, this cold winter that departs. Spring arrives, and with good reason we have gladness in our hearts. Always when the winter's aging we grow weary of its curves, weary of its futile raging, and its presence jars our nerves. When the wind, in nook and cranny, howls through dark and bitter hours, how we yearn for gentle Annie, with her apron full of flowers. When the winter first comes chasing, we pretend we like its play; "Ah, this cold," we say, "is bracing, it is good for any day; it is fit to face the blizzard, and it makes us young again; heat may suit the clammy lizard, cold is for the sons of men." For a week we smile and chortle as we jog thru drifted snow; but our mirth is frail and mortal, and a fortnight says it low. Oh, the night wind is uncanny, and has a ghostly sound, and we yearn for gentle Annie with a yearning most profound. Snow will do for crazed explorers who would find some sort of pole, but the spring winds are restorers of the weary human soul. And I sit here with my granny, arm in arm we twain abide, and we root for gentle Annie, gladly letting winter slide.

The Genoa conference may be a big thing, but it's hard to make people realize that it is as important as the meeting of the local base ball association.

While it's fine to go in for culture, many people must go in for agriculture in Kentucky if food prices are to come down.

The people who upset trade by going on strike, will soon be complaining because the business system does not work right.

EXTERMINATING VERMIN

The big crops of the last two years with the falling off in demand for the same, led to storage of large quantities of farm products. Much of these staples has been kept in makeshift buildings. A great deal of corn has been piled up on the ground, which forms a tremendous breeding place for rats and mice. Such pests not merely constitute a source of destruction, but they threaten the spread of disease among farm animals and people. It would seem especially necessary this spring to carry on a war of extermination against this vermin, as it is a source of peril to the community.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Sprague, while playing near the ball ground in Taylorsport, last Sunday, was hit by a foul ball and hurt quite badly.

The politicians are not specially fond of work, but anyway they are willing to sweep the country.

LOWER CONSTRUCTION COST SHOWN IN ROADWAY BIDS

Confirmation of the predicted low level of prices for road construction this year is found in the report on bid prices of 286 miles of Federal-aid roads received by the Bureau of Public Roads of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, during the week ending April 8.

The average cost per mile of some of the types of roadway, including the cost of grading and drainage, were: 78 miles of gravel at $9,150 a mile, 46 miles of concrete at $29,000 a mile, 47 miles of bituminous macadam at $25,200 a mile, and 23 miles of bituminous concrete at $25,000 a mile.

STEADY EMPLOYMENT.

One of the great blessings of country life is the regularity of employment. Industrial enterprises have their ups and downs and periods of stoppage. The factory workman knows when a dull time will come that will leave him idle for weeks and months.

The farmer can always find profitable ways of using all of his time. The farm worker can not always sell his labor during the winter, but if he owns or rents a little home, he can have his own enterprises around the place that will keep him busy.

The people who own or work in stores and other enterprises find their jobs going on about the same, through good and bad times. This stability of work gives security of income and freedom from worry.

The hill along the road near Edward Easton's on Woehler has slipped over the road for a considerable distance, making travel impossible.

COURTESY

It sticks in human relations like postage stamps on letters. The POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT expects it to be used by its postmasters and employees in dealing with the public.

Help them in its use beginning with POSTAL IMPROVEMENT WEEK, May 1-6, 1922.

THANK YOU

WITHOUT STREET ADDRESS YOUR MAIL IS DELAYED
AT OFFICE OF DELIVERY

THE DEAD LETTER OFFICE has been in existence ever since Ben Franklin started our postal service. Even then people addressed mail to Mr. Eschiel Smithers, "Atlantic Coast," and expected Ben to know just where Zeke lived.

Perhaps they had Zeke's address in letters up in the garret, maybe a chest full of 'em, but then it was easier to let Ben hunt Zeke. Today people are addressing letters to John Smith, New York, N. Y., or Chicago, Ill., thinking Uncle Sam can locate him; which is just as incomplete as was Zeke's address of yore. The Postoffice Department asks you to put the number and street in the address. It helps you.

Trinidad Col.

How do you expect the Postal Clerk to know whether you mean Trinidad, California, or Trinidad, Colorado? ALWAYS SPELL OUT THE NAME OF THE STATE IN FULL IN THE ADDRESS.

"MORE BUSINESS IN GOVERNMENT"

This apt phrase was used in President Harding's first message to Congress and applies particularly in postal management where postmasters are being impressed with the fact that they are managers of local branches of the biggest business in the world.

HERE COMES A STRANGER!

Let's make our post office look neat. Mr. Postmaster. Straighten up the rural letter box. Mr. Farmer. Tidy up some. Mr. Rural Carrier. First impressions are lasting. Maybe Mr. Stranger, taking notice of these improvements, will come back, bringing you benefits. Start these with "POSTAL IMPROVEMENT WEEK" May 1-6.

"There is no unimportant person or part of our service. It is a total of human units and their co-operation is the key to its success. In its last analysis, postal duties are accommodations performed for our neighbors and friends and should be so regarded, rather than as a hired service performed for an absentee employer." Postmaster General Hubert Work.

HUMANIZING THE POSTAL SERVICE

"There is no unimportant person or part of our service. It is a total of human units and their co-operation is the key to its success. In its last analysis, postal duties are accommodations performed for our neighbors and friends and should be so regarded, rather than as a hired service performed for an absentee employer." Postmaster General Hubert Work.

BETTER PRICES for TOBACCO

Better prices for Burley Tobacco have been paid on account of the organization of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association.

Men who remained outside the organization shared in the benefits accruing from the better prices due to the organization of the Association, there is mighty little doubt about that.

Your banker, your merchant, your professional men, all favor the plan on which this Association was organized. The growers who have delivered their crops are pleased with the result. Ask any of them.

There are now more than 58,000 growers of Burley Tobacco who have come to the definite conclusion to drop the old wasteful dumping system of selling their tobacco and to adopt the modern, sensible, business-like merchandise plan so successfully wherever it has been given a fair trial.

The only people who are asking you to stay out of the Association are those who would profit by your staying out. YOU will not profit, but THEY will, and they know it.

Come join your neighbors in this movement and let's make it unanimous. For information and contract write to

In last week's Florence news there appeared an item that stated Mrs. Russell Mitchell had been brought home from the Deaconess Hospital.

This was an error, as Mrs. Mitchell had not been in the hospital, but instead Mrs. Joe Baxter had been brought home from the hospital. In setting the news the error was made.

Grant Williamson and family spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Williamson, of Rabbit Hash neighborhood.

While preparing breakfast Tuesday morning a coal oil stove in the residence of Sheriff B. B. Hume, caught fire, and for a while caused considerable excitement in that end of town. The throwing of the stove out the door prevented another ugly fire for the town.

SHELBY RYLE DEAD.

Shelby Lee Ryle, youngest child of Filmore and Lucy Ann Ryle, was born Nov. 29, 1904 and departed this life April 20, 1922, being 17 years 4 months and 21 days of age. He leaves behind to mourn his departure, a grandfather, grandmother, father, mother, two brothers, Clarence G., of Georgetown, and Kenneth, of Burlington, and two sisters, Mrs. Alberta Clore and Mrs. Wilbur D. Kelly of this place, and numerous other friends and relatives.

Shelby, as he was familiarly known by his friends, among whom every one was glad to be counted, was a youth of sterling uprightness and kindness on all occasions, never willingly doing naught that would bring unhappiness on his playmates and companions.

His entire life, brief as it was, was one of fondness to his companions, and of fond memory to the relatives and friends left behind. If the life lived would be a criterion, Shelby would certainly be one who could say with the poet: "When thy summons come, to join that innumerable caravan that moves to that mysterious realm where each shall take his chamber in the silent halls of Death, go thou not as a quarry slave, scoured to his dungeon, but sustained and soothed by an unfaltering trust approach thy grave, as one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams."

A Friend.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to our friends and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy shown us during the illness and death of our beloved son and brother Shelby Lee Ryle. Not a thing was left undone by our friends that would have made his suffering easier, and when everything was done that loving hands could do, it was again our friends that followed us to the grave and shared our sorrow. We especially wish to thank Rev. Traynor for his consoling words, the organists and singers for the beautiful music, and Dr. I. E. Carlyle, who did everything that he could do, both as a physician and a friend. To those who made offers of assistance that were not needed, we are most grateful.

Filmore Ryle and Family.

GUNPOWDER

Mrs. H. F. Utz is on the sick list. P. J. Allen and wife broke bread with this writer last Sunday.

Robert Tanner is the first in our neighborhood to get done plowing for his corn crop.

Wallace Rouse has a contract for hauling logs and delivering them at Devon for an Indiana firm.

M. P. Barlow wife and daughter, Miss Rosa, were shopping in the city on Friday of last week.

A large congregation was present at Hopeful last Sunday, and quite a nice little sum was collected for the benefit of the sufferers in Armenia.

Lute Bradford has become quite popular as an auctioneer. He was called to Indiana last week to auctioneer a sale, and during the winter and up to this time he has officiated at 51 sales.

Ed Doty has given up farming and has gone back to Covington to work at his trade. He has charge of the painting department in Hartke's Carriage Shop, where he has been employed for several years.

Albert Robbins and Albert Scott did some good service for the public last week by hauling rock and fixing a very bad place on the Union pike, making it possible to get over without having a serious accident.

CONSTANCE.

Mr. Harry Klasermer attended services Sunday night at Pt. Pleasant.

Mr. J. H. Popham stepped on a nail one day last week, causing him much pain.

The Constance school made up over a crate of eggs and sent to the Louisville Orphans Home.

Several boys from Constance attended church at Point Pleasant, Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Kenyon had for Sunday guests Mr. and Mrs. Verner Tupman and family, and Mr. Wm. Tupman and family.

James Harrison sent Easter remembrances to little Lloyd Williams at the Orphans Home at Louisville, Ky., and received a nice letter of thanks from Mr. Hilton, Secretary of the Home.

Mrs. Emma Hemphing entertained with a dinner Easter Sunday in honor of her daughter Edna's birthday anniversary. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. G. Steidle, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. G. Steidle, Jr., of Hamilton, O., Mrs. and Mrs. E. B. Wensel, of Price Hill, Mr. and Mrs. John Hemphing and son, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hemphing, Charles White, of Riverside, Mr. Frank Fisher of Cleves, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Austin, Emma Huber Jean McDonald, of Westwood and Mr. Jack Ryan, of Chicago. All enjoyed a good dinner and wished Edna many happy returns.

Excessive rains have created an emergency which can be partly met with soybeans. This crop planted on clean ground June 1 will yield as much hay as late-sown oats and much more valuable as feed, according to the Missouri Experiment Station.

LEGION NOTES

Indianapolis, Ind.—Observance by the American Legion of the birth-days of both General Robert E. Lee and General U. S. Grant, rival leaders of the Civil War, is requested of all posts in the North and South by national headquarters of the service men's organization. The birthday of Gen. Grant to celebrate which the Legion will assist the G. A. R., will be observed today April 27. That of Gen. Lee will be observed January 19, 1923.

The national Legion's celebration of the birth of these great Americans will be "an effective argument that all sectionalism is buried and that the glory of the nation is the chief concern of every patriot citizen." Lemuel Bolles, Legion adjutant, declares.

New York, N. Y.—The Naval Aviation post of the American Legion New York City, composed principally of officers listed in the social register, has relinquished its charter because of the national organization's fight for adjusted compensation. "Cancellation of this post's charter reduces the total number of Legion posts from 11,022,021," National Commander MacNider said when told of the naval unit's action. "Fifty-six new posts have been chartered since April 1. The loss of the naval aviation unit, therefore, reduces our net increase for 13 days to only 55 posts."

Washington, D. C.—The practice of prohibition enforcement officials wearing the army uniform to trap violators of the liquor law caused the American Legion of Norfolk, Va., to register protest with the secretary of War Meeks, who took immediate action. The Legion alleged desecration of the insignia immortalized by American arms during the world war.

Cleveland, Ohio.—When the wife of wounded buddy was desperately ill, physicians appealed to noble service men in the American barracks, Cleveland, Ohio, for blood for a transfusion to save her life. The blood of the unemployed veterans was too thin, it was found, and volunteers had to be obtained from a Legion post of veterans who have jobs.

Kansas City, Mo.—Those who oppose the rights of men who fought in the world war are unpatriotic, Brig. Gen. Hanson Ely, commander of the War Department's service schools at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., declared in memorial exercises conducted by the American Legion. Gen. Ely pleaded for adequate care of the war disabled and adjusted compensation.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Cupid is making such war romance inroads in the membership of an American Legion post of Minneapolis, Minn., composed entirely of army and navy nurses, that a men's auxiliary, composed of husbands of the fair Legionnaires, is being planned.

Little Rock, Ark.—Fed up upon "wrong number," "line busy" and "line out of order," the American Legion post of Decatur, Ark., bought the city's telephone company and after overhauling the system will operate it.

St. Paul, Minn.—The Republican party of Minnesota, assembled in state convention unanimously voted resolutions in favor of the American Legion's adjusted compensation measure.

New York—Use of the stars and stripes to advertise a junk shop or a fish market now is forbidden in New York. Following in American Legion's issuance of instructions on how to respect the flag, the New York legislature passed a bill prohibiting reproductions of the flag on "business stationery."

Boston, Mass.—When Major Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, leader of the Yankee division in the world war, was asked a group of American Legion men at Holyoke, Mass., what type of adjusted compensation they would take, 85 per cent. elected the insurance feature, ten per cent. the farm and home aid and the rest declared for vocational training.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Starting simultaneously in every community in the United States, on April 30, the international association of Rotary clubs and the American Legion will combine to observe "Boys' Week" with exercises and programs of interest and help to young America.

Paris, France — The part that America played in the world war will be observed by a huge painting given by the American Legion and preserved by the French government in the world war exhibit in the Musée de l'Armée, Invalids, Paris, France. The museum, founded by Napoleon as a home for his soldiers, was visited by thousands of Yankee doughboys during the war.

Farmers gave a grove of 200 trees and the village gave a lot to the Elizabethtown, Ind., post of the American Legion when it wanted a community home. The ex-soldiers will erect a log clubhouse, doing all the work themselves.

New York—New York city is known as the clouded as Lieut. B. W. Maynard, former army chaplain, is flying over Manhattan with a group of girl singers. The airplane is equipped with a radio broadcasting device. The stunt was arranged to raise funds for an American Legion camp in the Adirondack mountains for sick and wounded service men.

PASTURES ARE PARCHED ANNUALLY IN KENTUCKY

Lexington, Ky.—Kentucky has a drouth practically every year, according to livestock men at the College of Agriculture here. In some seasons, the lack of rainfall is felt for a few weeks only while in other years, it continues for months. In practically all cases, the lack of rain during the summer is sufficient to parch pastures in the State, the most serious damage usually coming in August, it is said. Dairymen suffer most heavily from dry seasons, the parched pastures resulting in decreased milk and butterfat production, the livestock men say.

By means of a number of experiments which have been conducted, the college has found that Sudan grass makes a good crop to furnish green feed for dairy cows during the summer months, according to J. J. Hooper, head of the dairy department. Six acres of it will be seeded this spring, he said. From 20 to 30 pounds of seed an acre will be broadcasted in May or early June, the chief requirement being a well prepared seed bed of warm soil. The seed also may be drilled.

On the college farm, Sudan grass seeded in May has yielded as much as five tons of green feed an acre in early August while a second cutting is possible about the middle of September. The grass is cut with a mower and hauled to the cows, each animal receiving about 50 pounds of green grass daily.

Green corn also can be used for cow feed during the drouth seasons but a heavier yield of green feed will be secured at less cost and labor from the use of Sudan grass, the dairymen say.

Barley Used For Brewing

New Marketed For Hog Feed
Barley as a hog feed is coming on the markets in increasing amounts, probably for the reasons that its use for brewing purposes has fallen off and the hog industry has been moving into the barley-producing districts. The United States Department of Agriculture has taken up the problem of finding out the relative feeding value of light and heavy barley. There are no Federal standards for this grain, but light and heavy grades are recognized on the market.

During 1921 the Department made feeding tests of the two grades, and the results are available yet for definite conclusions as to the relative merits of the light and heavy grain, but the results have shown that high-class barley has a feeding value only slightly lower than good shelled corn. When these tests are completed the Department will have additional information on the methods of feeding barley, whether or not it should be fed whole, rolled, or dry soaked.

It is expected that barley will be used much more in the future as a hog feed, especially when there is a scarcity of corn and when barley is comparatively cheap.

FARM AND HOME NOTES

Purebred White Wyandottes are continuing to replace scrub and mongrel hens on Henderson farms, according to County Agent D. W. Martin. More than 750 settings of hatching eggs have been distributed this spring to farmers who wish to get a start with the purebreds. The work is in line with the poultry standardization campaign being conducted by the College of Agriculture extension division.

As a class gift, seniors at the Taylor county High School have completed plans to plant 35 shade trees on the 13 acres of ground surrounding the new $60,000 school building, according to County Agent J. L. Miller.

In line with their plans to improve the dairy herds of that section of the State, members of the Henderson county farmers' organization who are cooperating with County Agent D. W. Martin and the College of Agriculture have made the organization of a cooperative purebred sire association one of their major projects for development during the coming year.

In order to encourage the greatest production of corn on the smallest acreage, Leslie county farmers have organized a corn club, each member of which will give 2 bushels of grain to the farmer who produces the greatest yield of corn on an acre according to County Agent T. L. Britton.

New York people promise to provide free baths for people out of work. A new objection to unemployment for some folks.

At last reports too many people were singing "How dry I am," and not enough were singing "The old oaken bucket."

The women still claim to be the weaker sex, but you'd never guess it to watch the girls stow away ice cream.

MOST ANYTHING.

A school board recently expelled a girl student because she used talcum powder on her nose. A judge expressed the opinion that the school board was unjust, and regretted that the law did not allow him to interfere.

Wise judge. Foolish school board. Many men have greasy and unsightly noses, but women do not exclude them from their homes for that reason. They put up with the grease for the sake of the inner man.

Greasy noses are not pleasant to see, and women do not care to have them.

If talcum powder helps, why deprive them of its use? Dollars for fiction, but not a cent for truth!

That is the mental attitude of some people. They spend their time and their money in devouring blood and the tender novels, but never read a line in the Bible.

Judges and juries can tell you a lot about some of these birds.

A doctor held in his hand a glass containing bichloride of mercury, a slow but deadly poison. He sat it down and filled another glass with water to drink.

Just then his phone rang and he deposited the water glass by the side of the one containing the mercury.

Upon returning from the phone he took a drink—from the wrong glass. Six feet of ground.

When doctors become so thoughtful they kill themselves with their own poison, why complain of the carelessness of the common herd?

The speed maniac continues to pull off his periodical executions. Often the victim is a little child.

The reckless driver who kills a person is but little better than the gunman who blows off another's head.

If we prescribe the death penalty for the gunman, we should at least punish the speeder with a long term in prison.

When a person becomes a menace to the community the community should be rid of him.

Look at the people around you and size them up according to their deeds.

How many of them have a ghost of a chance of getting to heaven unless they make a radical change in their mode of living?

Very few, you think. Now look in a mirror and study the one you see?

What better chance has he? Don't consider yourself a mutt. There are a few people who know less than you do.

Self-confidence is half the battle of life. The man who believes in himself finds little difficulty in inducing others to think as he does.

Take a firm grip on yourself. It will aid you in gripping the confidence of others.

And you will go far. Think back over the past year. What have you done to improve conditions in the home community?

Now think again, and catalogue the numerous opportunities you have allowed to slide by because you "didn't feel like doing it."

Other years are yet to come. EARL WALTON, FLORIAN HOLTON

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The baccalaureate sermon and commencement exercises for the class of '22 will be held on the 14th and 22nd of May. The baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Rev. W. W. Adams.

The shot-put that the school purchased was lost while the teachers were at the K. E. A. Anyone finding it please return same to school.

Miss Grow will board with Miss Mattie Kreylich and Mr. Kiskey with Mr. Hickman the remainder of the school term, as Mrs. Walton has sold her home in Burlington and will move to the farm with her son.

Misses Kelly, Clore and Kreylich's rooms will be dismissed for the term Tuesday, April 25th. They gave a farewell program in Chapel Friday.

A list of books, which is composed mostly of high-class fiction, has been ordered for the library.

The Freshmen and Sophomores will move into the room now occupied by the 7th and 8th grades who will be dismissed for the summer.

The boys' and girls' basket ball teams journeyed to Union last Friday and found stiff opposition in the teams there. The Burlington boys lost to Union to the tune of 12 to 6 and the Burlington girls won 6 to 4. The girls on both teams played good basket ball but the boys were out of trim on both teams.

This game put Union on a tie with the Burlington boys and will be played off on the Burlington court in May.

The Northern Kentucky School Tournament will meet in Williamstown on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, May 17-18-19. The gathering will consist of students and teachers of the high schools from several of the most northern counties of the State, including Grant, Boone, Pendleton, Keeton, Campbell and Owen counties. Other counties than those named may also participate.

A number of talks delivered on the different kinds of nations to feed hens to increase egg production and showing the results obtained by the different nations were made.

"Trouble shooters" snowed out 20 miles out on the telephone right of way near Lammole, Nevada, to remove the carcass of a jack rabbit, burned to a crisp, which lay across two high-tension wires, causing a short circuit and demoralizing electric service. A hawk was seen circling the spot and it is presumed the bird carried the rabbit to the wires for a meal only to be repulsed by the powerful current.

Next Sunday will be Kentucky's Go-to-Sunday-School Day. Let everyone attend his Sunday school next Sunday. If you are not a member of a church and are not a regular attendant of some Sunday school you have a standing invitation from all the churches in the towns or country.

Fifty per cent more money was spent by the people of the United States for perfumes, face powder and cosmetics in 1920, than the total endowment of all the private colleges and universities in the country, according to Treasury Department statistics.

These nice spring days give the housewife the joyous desire to turn the house upside down so that her lord and master doesn't know in which room or in which corner of the room to find his bed, let alone such trifles as his razor or his pipe.

Frogs are used as barometers in many European countries. The green tree frog is placed in tall glass bottles with little wooden ladders, to the top of which they climb in fine weather, descending at the approach of bad weather.

This is the time of the year more than any other, when the work we have done on the roads is not appreciated. It is also the time of the year when, if he haven't done any work we are wishing we had been more far-sighted.

After a four days session of the Carroll county circuit court, Judge Gaines returned home last Friday morning. He reports that the grand jury examined 90 witnesses and returned forty indictments.

Under a law passed by the last session of the Kentucky Legislature all eggs bought or sold in the State between May 15 of each year and January 15 of the next year must be candled.

Since the cold weather and frosts of last week, we notice that a great deal of the fruit is falling from the trees—especially pears.

From present indications the increase in the tobacco crop of 1922 in this county will be slightly more than that of 1921.

John and Ed. Gross, of Constance neighborhood, were transacting business in Burlington, Thursday of last week.

Cleveland Baker, of Big Bone neighborhood, was a business visitor to Burlington, last Friday.

FARM BUREAU NOTES.

The Kentucky State Federation of the Farm Bureau has accomplished much and the National Federation has done an almost incredible number of things. But neither can continue in the brilliant way in which they have started unless we support them. It takes money to hire experts to handle all the different lines of work required. It takes money to have our cases properly presented to legislative bodies, it takes money to secure adequate publicity. Now the only place from which this money can come is from the farmers. $1.50 of each man's dues goes to the State and 50 cents to the national organization. Unless we continue to send in our dues in liberal measure the activities will tend to dry up. The State and National officials can not operate without funds. So in addition to the strength that a man adds to his county organization by joining it, he also helps to support the State and National organizations in all that they are doing. The simplest way for a farmer to help his cause now is to join the Farm Bureau.

The new Farm Bureau warehouse at Florence is progressing rapidly. The contractors promise to have it completed and ready for business in about 60 days. When completed this building will be a credit and a monument to the Boone Co. Farm Bureau, to the county as well as to the town of Florence. Situated as it is, this warehouse will be easily accessible to every precinct in the county or as nearly so as any point in the county. The Directors of the Farm Bureau are endeavoring to extend its services to every community and every individual possible. They believe the usefulness and success of the Farm Bureau depends on the service it is able to render.

The finances are being taken care of by voluntary loans from the membership. They are issued certificates of indebtedness, or partial payment notes, which are secured by the building and real estate. Loyal members are coming in from all sides and making loans. A loan can be made for $25.00, $50.00 or $100.00, as his circumstances permit. These notes bear 6 per cent interest. Already sums amounting to $2250.00 have been loaned by 53 different members. It is planned to raise $3,000.00 or more, which can be easily done, but the officers of the Farm Bureau are anxious to get a few more loans, either large or small, from representative members in all the precincts. To date some of these are behind with their quota. If you believe in farmer's cooperation and organization, if you believe the Farm Bureau Federation is fostering and promoting the farmers' interest; if you believe in the work it is doing; if you believe it serves as a "measuring stick" for wholesale prices for fertilizers, feeds and other raw materials, see your Director and make a loan, not necessarily a large one, but give this enterprise your financial as well as moral support. One of the four essentials of a good farmer is "Be of service to the community in which you live."

THE FRUIT CROP.

Two light frosts descended in this county last week. But from beet reports the "frost didn't get the peach crop."—Carrollton News.

With temperature a little above the danger mark, a heavy frost early yesterday is believed to have done only slight damage in Jefferson county's orchards and farms, according to a canvass last night.—C. J.

THE FOLLOWING DISPATCH TO THE COURIER-JOURNAL SAYS:

Frost destroyed prospects of the largest fruit crop in the mountains in years. For formed in most sections. Cherries, plums and other small fruits were half grown, and the damage was heavy. Early garden vegetables also were nipped.

JACK FROST PAID A VISITATION TO THIS SECTION SUNDAY MORNING, BUT FAILED TO DO ANY PARTICULAR DAMAGE. WHILE THE FROST WHITENED THE GROUND THE TEMPERATURE WAS NOT BELOW FREEZING AND ONLY THE TENDEREST OF VEGETATION SUFFERED. FRUIT IS SO FAR UNDAUNTED BY FROST AND PROMISES TO MAKE A BOUNTIFUL YIELD UNLESS ANOTHER FROST SHOULD COME LATER IN THE SEASON.—GRANT COUNTY NEWS.

TWO SPOTS.

The country people are being called hayseeds by many folks who need to wash the sleepiness out of their eyes.

Claimed that American farmers don't laugh enough, but the way of the city folks give them more amusement than is generally realized.

Every dollar spent reconstructing the roads of Boone county helps to draw in many dollars of trade.

The fellows who spend their energy embracing the girls at the petting parties, are not usually the ones who embrace their business opportunities.

NEW PROHIBITION LAW.

Under the Kentucky prohibition act the penalty for a plain drunk is a fine of from $10.00 to $100.00 or imprisonment in the county jail for not less than five nor more than 30 days or both fine and imprisonment. It is also made the duty of the courts and judges of the Commonwealth to enforce the provisions of the act. Any Sheriff, Deputy Sheriff or other peace officers of this Commonwealth failing to enforce any of the provisions of the laws after receiving information of a violation shall be subject to indictment for non-feasance or malfeasance and upon conviction, shall be fined from $100 to $1,000 and the office shall become vacant. No trick, device, subterfuge or pretense shall be allowed to evade or defeat the operation of the law. Other penalties for having a still, moonshine, or intoxicating liquors of any kind in your possession is also a violation of the law and a conviction carries with it a heavy fine and imprisonment.

MAY.

May, the month of promise is here at last. Spring has been shy and slow in coming this year. April, the sickle month of showers and sunshine, dragged wearily. The rain beat upon the windows of the village stores and shopkeepers watched day after day pass without the eager rush of spring buyers. The farmer idly beheld the sodden fields dry slowly only to be soaked again ere he could harness the team and get to work. The housewife anxious to be ready for spring housecleaning, was disappointed to find that morning after morning dawned chilly and gray and damp. Since the first of January, four long months, the weather has behaved most unseasonably and delay after delay has held back the plans of mortals. With many of us the heart has grown weary, waiting for May. Shut-out from the pleasures of the pleasant ramble over the hills and thru the woods. School children have been longing to escape from books and to romp barefooted in the dewy grass. The older folk with aching bones and chilled bodies, sat in easy chairs and gazed listlessly through the windows, wearily waiting for the sunbright mornings and moonlit nights, when they might leave the stuffy sitting room and rest upon the front porch and breathe deep of the blossom-scented air and be lulled to peaceful sleep by the drowsy insect songs. As we wait patiently, the wind and the rain have wrought the miracle, until they stand upon the grand threshold of the glad season. Once more the sunlight fills the trembling air and the old scarred earth has donned her beautiful garments. Our gracious mother, Earth, who waked us to life and will lull us all to rest, is mocking with her smile the wrinkled front of time. Again the plowman will rend her breast and she shall give us food. The wondrous pageant is moving and you would not be surprised if one of these sweet mornings a blue-eyed maid should tap upon your window and with a golden smile, say, "Awake ye sluggard, and behold me, I am May."

INSPECTING RURAL ROUTES.

Postmaster Hickman has made an inspection of the rural routes from Burlington and he finds that a number of the patrons of the routes have their mail boxes so mounted that it is almost impossible for the carriers to get to them without getting out of their conveyance. The postal regulations require the patron to so maintain their mail boxes that the carrier can deliver mail to the box from his conveyance, and if the box is not so maintained service is to be discontinued. Postmaster Hickman requests that all boxes on the routes be so mounted as to correspond with the postal regulations before he will file his report with the Postmaster General at Washington.

A HUSTLING COUNTY AGENA.

The county agricultural agent in Henry county Ohio, is carrying on a lot of activities that could well serve as a model. He held farmers' meetings in 12 townships last winter, instructing dairymen in scientific cattle raising.

He gave 74 demonstrations in poultry keeping last summer, to the owners of 16,000 hens, showing them how to mix their feeds, instructing every attendant on how to tell layers from non-layers, etc. It is not called a live stock county, yet 300 pure bred females were added to the herds of cattle after last year's fair. Activities like these must promote the production of any district. Our county agent W. D. Sutton, is also a hustler.

CLEAN-UP DAY.

May 20th has been appointed by Hebron Lutheran church as Clean-Up day for the cemetery, and the trustees ask all having loved ones buried there to see that their graves are cared for before the time, or come and on that day help to do the work.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Al Rogers, of Bellevue, met with a serious accident, last Wednesday, and had a narrow escape from being killed. He got into his auto to go to his farm just below McVillie, and in going around the curve in which the road crosses the river, he ran into a telephone wire that was hanging across the road belonging to the Farmers Telephone Co., tearing off the wire shield, then striking him in the face cutting an ugly gash across the upper lip, and cutting downward separating the lower lip from his teeth. Before the car was stopped the wire had pulled him backward causing him to slip over his head to the top of the auto was torn off completely. Dr. Duncan, who was called to dress the wounds, said if the wire had caught him across the neck it would have severed his head from the body.

A HERO OF BASE BALL.

The game of base ball has made many men popular heroes. Among all the good fellows who have been worthy of this admiration, none has deserved it better than Capt. Adrian C. Anson, who has just passed away. He saw the national game develop from the start, and had a large share in shaping it.

In spite of some abuses, base ball has on the whole developed as a marvelously clean sport. It takes men and boys out in to the open air, and gives them periods of keen enjoyment and life giving recreation, almost without demoralizing features. It promotes a love of clean sport and honest achievement in athletics. No one helped more to make base ball what it is on this high range of sport, than "Pop" Anson.

When he became manager of the Chicago base ball team in 1880, the game was in a formative state. It was at a parting of the ways. It could have become a tough kind of proposition, entailing the services of young men of loose habits, and conducted with gambling and intemperance.

Capt. Anson saw better possibilities in base ball than this. He believed in keeping it on a high level, so that it would appeal to clean fellows who would play a square gentleman's game. So he insisted on strict discipline and fair play. Any one who came under him could feel sure that his merits would be recognized and he would be given a chance to make good.

His influence and that of others who took similar views, placed a stamp of honest and sportsmanlike athletics on this great game, and helped it to become what it is today. All these who love clean sport and who admire the scientific development that this remarkable and fascinating pastime has reached, owe a great deal to Capt. Anson, who helped make base ball right when it was in its growing period.

HEBRON HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

(By Mrs. Myron Garnett)
An interesting program was rendered Tuesday evening April 25th, at Hebron Hall by the students of Hebron school in the way of readings, declamations and debate.

Miss Alice Graves carried the honors in the reading contest, thereby winning the gold medal given by Dr. Frank Crigler of Ludlow, Ky.

In the declamation contest Miss Georgia Hayes among the contestants won the gold medal given by Mr. Edmund Clayton, of Cincinnati. The debate "Resolved that immigration into the U. S. should be prohibited for two years" was decided in favor of Edwin Walton and Eugene Hetzel, presenting the negative side of the question. Jas. Beall and Joseph Bullock, declaring the affirmative. Mr. Joel C. Clure, of Cincinnati, presented the winners with a $2.50 gold piece, after which he gave an interesting address to the students.

Thursday evening at a mass meeting of the citizens of Hebron the consolidation of the Hebron, Bullittsville, Bullittsburg, Rucker and Limaburg schools were discussed thoroughly by Prof. J. C. Gordon, County Supt. of schools. Mr. Gordon showed the advancement in mail facilities, highways and other public improvements within the last 40 years and stressed the fact that our schools still remain as they did years ago. Although we wouldn't be willing to live otherwise as we have formerly. He showed how he could take a six teacher consolidated school in this district and do fair time the work now being done.

At the conclusion of his address he presented Mr. Geo. Colvin, State Supt. of Schools, who spoke very eloquently of the fight he is making for the country boy and girl. Said they were entitled to the same advantages of the city child.

The First Methodist church of El Paso, will operate a large skating rink on the basement of the church to offset the dancing craze. It is to be a community proposition and no charge will be made.

Grant Williamson has been busy the past few days plowing gardens.

DEATHS.

MRS. MARY GAINES.

Mrs. Mary Gaines, aged 78 years, widow of Milton Gaines, many years ago a prominent citizen and farmer of the Hebron neighborhood, died suddenly of heart trouble at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Laura Jasper, at Richmond, Ky., last Saturday morning.

She was a daughter of Peter and Sallie Cropper, and was the last surviving member of six children. She united with the Mt. Pleasant Baptist church at an early age, and was a true christian woman and remained firm in the faith until the end.

Mrs. Gaines was a woman loved and admired for her kindly disposition and fine womanly graces. She was ever true to her duties as a mother, and her passing away is not only mourned by her family, but by a large circle of relatives and friends in the county where she spent most of her life.

The remains were brought to Covington Monday morning and conveyed to Bullittsburg Baptist church, where at 10:30 o'clock funeral services were conducted by Rev. Campbell, after which all that was earthly of this good woman was laid to rest in Bullittsburg cemetery by the side of her husband who preceded her to the grave many years ago.

HELEN RYLE.

Death claimed another of Earth's flowers when on Friday morning, April 21st, Helen Ryle passed into the Great Beyond. Helen had been in failing health for several years, but her condition was not believed serious until several weeks ago, when she was advised that an immediate operation was necessary. She entered the Good Samaritan Hospital and the surgical operation was successful, but later complications developed, and her delicate constitution could not battle with the serious ailments, her sufferings were ended when she departed this life at the Hospital at 11 a. m., last Friday.

She was the daughter of Mr. J. W. and Mrs. Ida Rice Ryle and was born in Boone county, Ky., June 24, 1900. Four years before she united with the Christian church at Petersburg, Ky. After coming to Aurora she became a member of the Baptist Sunday School, where she was for a time a successful teacher. Helen was the type of girl who put her best effort in all the tasks she loved.

She was a merry dispositioned girl and everyone who knew her leaves many void and aching hearts among friends and a deep vacancy in the home that was always happy with her presence.

She leaves to mourn their loss, the father and mother, two half-sisters, Mrs. Kittle Baker, of Petersburg, Ky., and Mrs. L. R. Sullivan, of Union, Ky., an aged grandmother and many relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held Monday at the residence, Revs. Carter, of Petersburg, Ky., and Dickey of this city officiated. Burial at Riverview.—Aurora, (Ind.) Bulletin.

JOHN W. DYE.

John W. Dye was born Oct. 9th, 1853, near Hebron Boone county, Ky., and departed this life April 26, 1922, at the age of 68 years, six months and 17 days. He was united in marriage to Eliza Wilson Nov. 10, 1875. To this union three children were born, two daughters and one son, Mrs. Leslie Aylor, Mrs. Clifford Sprague and Mrs. James Dye. He leaves also nine grandchildren. He united with Hebron Lutheran church Sept. 24th, 1901.

A precious one from us has gone
A voice we loved is still Which naught on earth can fill.
The God of Wisdom called away
The boon his love had given;
While earth to earth we sadly lay
His soul is safe in heaven.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to our friends and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy shown during the lingering illness of our beloved father. We especially wish to thank Bro. Royer for his comforting words, the organist and choir for their beautiful music, and also Dr. S. B. Nunnally who did everything he could both as a physician and as a friend.

MRS. LUCY A. CARPENTER

Mrs. Lucy A. Carpenter, of near Richmond, who was operated on at Booth's hospital, Covington, last Thursday, died Sunday night. Her remains were taken to her home Monday by Undertaker C. Scott Chambers. She was a daughter of the late Louis Rice and was married twice, her first husband was John Carpenter and her second husband was Billy Carpenter. She is survived by several children, and many relatives, who have the sympathy of a host of friends throughout the county, in their hour of sorrow.

Any way the women smokers are getting well vented up so they do not need to buy any perfumes.

Mrs. Emily Catherine Presser.

Emily Catherine Riley was born Sept. 22, 1845. She was married to Henry C. Presser Dec. 22, 1863, who preceded her to the grave Oct., 1888. To this union was born three sons, John Lee, William Lafayette and Harry Clay. All of whom survive her. She united with the Big Bone Baptist church Oct. 8th, 1871. Leaving this church to help organize Union Baptist church in the year of 1887. Returned to Big Bone Baptist church in 1895. Being a devoted christian for fifty-one years at the time of her death, April 20th, 1922. Aged 76 years, 6 months and 28 days. Besides the three sons she also leaves ten grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. Lou Neal and Mrs. Alice Neal, with other relatives and a host of friends to mourn her loss. It may be truly said of her she lived a life of service for her Lord, for he has said "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

And this seemed the real keynote of her life—Loving service to others. Always ready to tenderly care for the sick, or lend a helping hand to those in need, never faltering in what she believed to be the path of duty. Her life was an inspiration for its dominating zeal and courage, with the overflowing undecaying love and helpfulness to those about her. A loving and devoted mother she passed down the shores of time and on to her reward. Several years previous to her death she became blind and yet, under that sad and painful affliction she was patient, cheerful and helpful in a marked degree to the very last. When the summons came loving hands did all in their power to alleviate her suffering and stay the hand of death, but she was willing and ready to go.

A busy life's labors are ended, her soul gone home to rest.

One who loved her.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our thanks to our friends and neighbors for the kindness shown us during the illness and death of our mother, also Mr. Chambers for the way he conducted the funeral, and Bro. Miller for his consoling words.

CHARLES LOUIS RIDDELL.

Charles Lewis Ridell, aged fourteen months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Ridell died Sunday evening, April 30th, 1922, from burns caused by a pot of coffee being turned over him at the home of Emmett Ridell's near Constance. The coffee pot was on the stove, and it is supposed that the little fellow pulled it off the stove, and the contents scalded him. It was not thought that the burn was serious and he was taken to his home Sunday afternoon in Ludlow, and died shortly after arriving there. The funeral was held at Hebron. Mr. and Mrs. Ridell have the sympathy of all in their loss of their little son, who was bringing their home so happy and bright.

ENTERED INTO PARREST

The brightest sheaf of garnered for the master in the harvest field for the year 1922, by the great reaper was James A. Hager. The name neighborhood where his birth was heralded 45 years ago last March, was where he heard and answered the knock in the stillness of the night of April 5th. He was an honest, upright, industrious man, devoted husband and loving father, his friends can not but miss him, he was kind hearted to all, thereby leaving a vacant place in their circle, a heart seat at his fireside, but in the hearts of his own loved ones is the greatest yet; vain would it be for friends to offer comfort and words insufficient to cheer, yet earth has no sorrows that heaven can not heal. Bandage your bleeding and wounded hearts dear ones with those as the only consolation.

We shall miss thee from dawn till evening grey, and never can forget thee until the midst is rolled away.

A Friend.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to our many friends and neighbors for their acts of kindness shown us during the illness and death of our beloved husband and father, James A. Hager. We also wish to express our appreciation for the beautiful flowers.

Wife and Daughter.

"SELLING" PROPERTY.

A. B. Renaker sold one day last week, for L. C. Beemon, the house and lot he bought of W. L. Cropper the week before. Ed. Hensley, of the Locust Grove neighborhood, being the purchaser. Price $2,500. This is one of the oldest houses in the town and one of the best selling pieces of property to be found—having changed hands at least a dozen times in the last few years, and each owner sells for a profit. Mr. Hensley and wife will not move from their farm until next fall. Mr. Beemon will occupy the property then.

There is never great when you have a good tire.

Lexington, Ky.—"Make the hens scratch for their feed and not for lice," has been suggested by poultrymen at the College of Agriculture as a good watchword for Kentucky farmers during the coming summer. At least 75 per cent of the flocks in the State are troubled with lice and mites each summer, this condition not only lowering the egg production of the hens but also weakening the vitality of the birds so that they are more apt to become infected with disease, it was pointed out.

This is a good time of the year to get ahead of many of the lice and mites, which multiply more rapidly in hot weather, by having a spring cleaning of the poultry house, the poultrymen say. Such cleanings have been found to be effective means of reducing the number of pests in the houses and on the hens.

HEBRON.

Miss Dorothy Hood was very sick with tonsillitis, last week.

Leslie Baker wife and daughters of Ludlow, and Mrs. Nan Baker, of near Limaburg, were guests of Edward Baker and family, last Sunday.

The graded school taught by Miss Elizabeth Kelly and Chester Goodridge, closed a very successful term last Monday with a nice entertainment.

SEASONAL TIPS

FOR GARDENERS

Early blight, which is highly destructive to early potatoes, may be controlled by spraying the plants with Bordeaux mixture when they are from six to eight inches high.

About May 1 is the time to sow the wrinkled-seeded varieties of peas. Planting them about two and one-half or three inches deep is said to prolong the bearing period.

In placing cabbage, tomato, egg plant or any other plants that are set in the garden, it is best to keep the ground level, according to gardeners at the College of Agriculture. This brings the roots of the plants nearer the water table and prevents excessive evaporation of moisture.

The Colorado potato beetle can be controlled by dusting the plants with Paris Green as soon as they come up. The dusting should be repeated as often as necessary.

This is the season of the year when it is necessary to keep the ground in good cultivation to prevent baking which often keeps many young plants from breaking through the soil. Much baking or crusting usually follows heavy rains.

In planting the large-growing varieties of peas, it is a good idea to plant two rows about eight to ten inches apart and then place the netting or sticks between the two. Economy in staking is thus made possible by making one row of netting serve two rows of peas.

A very small crowd attended county court last Monday. Four wills were probated as follows:
J. E. Connell, of Walton.
Isabelle Cason, of Bellevue.
J. H. Baker, of Limaburg.
Matilda Lane, of Union.

A Bath Room for the Farm

In no way is electricity serving the farm family better than in making possible a modern up-to-date bath room.

"Standard"

When water had to be pumped and carried by hand, when it had to be heated on the kitchen stove, and when tubs had to be gotten out especially, then getting ready for and taking a bath meant a lot of disturbance and fuss. But electricity has done away with all this. The Delco-Light and power plants now in use on so many farms all over the country furnish plenty of power for the operation of electric pumping systems. These systems have been developed to such a great extent in the last few years, that they are now almost entirely automatic. Once installed, the pump driven by an electric motor and controlled by a pressure switch keeps water under pressure at the faucets all over the house. The water service thus obtained is in result the same as that enjoyed in the city. There are very efficient heaters, too, which will heat plenty of water for a bath in a half hour or less, or which will keep the water hot all the time if desired. All this means that any member of the farm family can now have a hot bath in a real tub at the mere turn of the hot water faucet.

State health departments have for many years urged the adoption on the farm of sanitary measures such as indoor toilets and sewage disposal systems and the same authorities are thoroughly convinced of the value of the health of the farm family of convenient, ready-at-the-minute bath facilities.

Many farmers that have electricity consider the bath room the best service electricity has given them, but there are, of course, many other reasons for the increasing popularity of electricity on the farm. It gives the best of light in all parts of the house and barn, it does all such chores as pumping, milking, separating and sweeping, and in doing these things it lightens the labors of every member of the farm family.

$50,000.00 KENTUCKY DERBY

Will Be Run at Churchill Downs, Louisville, Saturday, May 13th

Morrich, the Champion of Last Season, and a Large Field of Other High Class Three Year Olds, Will Be Among the Starters For the Greatest Stake in America

The forty-eighth renewal of the Kentucky Derby, which will be run at Churchill Downs, Louisville, Saturday, May 13th, promises to be the most interesting in the long history of this famous race. This year the Kentucky Jockey Club has added $50,000, and a $7,000 gold service to the winner, making it in point of value the richest, as it always has been the most sought after three-year-old stake in America. There clusters around the Derby all the memories and the romance that make the turf so alluring and that enshrine Churchill Downs in the hearts of half a century of race lovers.

Beginning with Aristides, the first winner, and continuing through an immortal roster of thoroughbred Kings, public interest in the Derby has increased every year until today the names of the contenders are household words, and their respective merits are subject of arguments that will not cease until the number of the winner is hung out on May 13th. The outstanding favorite this year is Benjamin Block's Morrich, which finished his two-year-old career by winning every race in which he started, beating all his competitors with an ease that marks him as a colt of surpassing speed and quality, approaching if he does not equal, Man o' War. Morrich is training at the Jamaica race track, New York, where his trials are phenomenal. He will probably start in the opening handicap at Jamaica and will be shipped immediately thereafter to Churchill Downs where he will receive his final workout for the Derby.

The prowess of Morrich has not discouraged the owners of other Derby candidates and there will be a field of from twelve to fifteen horses to contest with the champion for the $50,000 stake and its accompanying $7,000 gold souvenir. Among the number are Harry Payne Whitney's Olympia, a recent winner at Havre de Grace, over older handicap horses, and at least one high-class colt from the same stable; Monfort Jones' Sorf Rider, the winner of six races last year, and Rockminster, a promising Prior Rock colt; John Finn, whose work at Lexington makes him a dangerous contender; the great fifty Starline, which might repeat the victory of Regret, the only filly to win the Derby; Washington from the same stable—is also showing improved form this Spring; E. R. Bradley has By Golly, Buzy American and Bet Moile, and he makes no secret of the claim that he expects to run one two in this year's Derby as he did last year with Behave Yourself and Big Servant; J. S. Coaden who already has one Derby winner to his credit in Paul Jones, believes he has an excellent chance to win with Good Times; Kai Sang, who ran second to Morrich several times last year, is eligible for the Derby; Gentility, the winner of the Lexington Futurity, has worked faster than any filly in the West. Unless some other filly goes in, Oakes, she will certainly go in the Derby. Lucky Hoar is the hope of the Simms' stable. He is already a winner this year, was second in the Pimlico Futurity last year, and is a horse of undoubted class. With Deadlock, Spanish Malice, Chatterton, My Play and several other dark horses to draw from, there is sure to be a large field of the best three-year-olds in America to face the starter at Churchill Downs on Saturday, May 13th.

The Downs is more beautiful than ever this year, accommodations for the public have been greatly increased, and every arrangement has been made for the reception of at least 75,000 people. The Kentucky Derby is the center of all attraction in the turf world and Churchill Downs will be the Mecca to which all lovers of high-class sport will turn on Saturday, May 13th, the opening day of the Spring meeting at Louisville, which will continue until June 3rd.

Rev. David Blythe, of Blue Ash, Ohio, has been the guest of relatives and friends in Burlington for several days. He occupied the pulpit in the Methodist church Sunday night in place of the regular pastor, Rev. Tomlin.

W. G. Kite, of Waterloo, received a young Jersey bull from Inderkill Farms, New York, whose sire is a % brother to Sybilla Gabbage, that sold for $65,000, out of an Imported Dam who has a R of M. Record class A-A 788.71 lbs., Butter, 13-392.7 lbs., milk.

Seventeen schools will be represented at the Northern Ky. School Tournament to be held at Williams-town, May 17, 18 and 19th. The schools to be represented are: Alexandria, Burlington, Crittenden, Dry Ridge, Crescent Springs, Corinth, Erlanger, Elamere, Florence, Glenoe, Independence, Piner, Verona, Walton, Mason, Sherman, Williamstown. The people of Williamstown are making arrangements to entertain the crowd in grand style, and a large attendance is expected from over the district.

BASE BALL

The strong Petersburg team journeyed to Hebron Saturday, April 29, and lost to that team by a score of 8 to 0. Leslie Shinkle, a youngster, started for Pete on the mound, but was released by Berkshire in the 2nd as the Hebron boys pounded him for six clean hits. Huey was on the mound for Hebron and was in fine form, for the Petersburg team could not get their eye on the sphere. Huey having the game sewed up in the 8th, retired in favor of Walton. All clubs have their off days, so Pete had theirs Saturday, look out for the rest.

Hits off Shinkle 1-2-3 innings, 6.
Hits off Berkshire 6-1-3 innings, 7.
Hits off Huey 7 innings, 3.
Hits off Walton 2 innings, 3.
Belleview will play at Petersburg Saturday, May 6th. Everybody turn out and see a good game, as Pete will be in better form, or at least it is hoped that they will by the local fans.

Lunlow defeated the Times Star team of Cincinnati, at Ludlow 5 to 3 Sunday afternoon at Ludlow.

Taylorsport defeated the Triumphs of Cincinnati, last Sunday by a score of 11 to 3. Black featured by having 17 strike-outs. Next Sunday they will play Petersburg. The proceeds from the first league game will go towards improving the road to Taylorsport for the benefit of the patrons.

Florence rang up two more victories on their register by defeating Walton Saturday by a score of 4 to 3, and the fast Champion Fire team of College Hill, Sunday 6 to 5. These games proved that our boys are worthy of the support of the community, and they feel that they will give the best teams of the county quite a tussle. The features of our team are the catching of Boyce, a youngster who has been overlooked by others, but manager Sayre's keen observation caused him to be brought into action. House who is playing 3rd base deserves special credit for his fast and accurate fielding and rapid judgment in executing plays. The pep that Simpson our first baseman puts into the game by his clever work, and Rollinutter's accuracy in fielding the short field, are another reason we feel we have a team.

Sayre pulls some of the best hand plays around second base that can be seen anywhere. Then take a look at our outfielders, beginning at right field which is occupied by Koop and center by Eddins and left by Carpenter, who are all on their toes at all times, and no play they pull is unexpected, as they are everywhere all the time.

Hebron will play Florence at Hebron next Saturday afternoon. Come out and see the game.

FISHING AND HUMAN NATURE.

The spring time sees a great company of men getting out into the brooks and lakes to try their scientific angling against the keen instinct of fish. Many localities once teaming with edible and gamey swimmers, are now practically fished out. But the automobile extends the scope of the fisherman, and they go many miles to reach some favorite haunt.

Fishing has been a beneficial pastime, since it cultivates a quality of philosophic patience that the majority of men need. Some fellows of a loafing and vagrant type already have too much of that trait, and they need something more inciting to action. But the average business man and mechanic driven by toil and effort, gains in poise and self control from this quiet and reflective pastime.

No man brings home a good story unless he can hide his time and exercise patience, and these qualities also help one attain success in the larger struggles of life.

IF THE COUNTRY CHURCH LAGS

The complaint comes from some places that the country church is losing its hold. The trouble some times is that the minister, excellent man though he may be, does not make his work broad enough.

The country church today needs to fill up many gaps. Thoughtful sermons on Sunday are a fine thing, but the minister and officers need to be social leaders as well. If they are organizing the boys and girls into useful organizations like the Scouts if they are giving the young people outlet for their energies thru musical and dramatic and literary clubs and athletics, if they are helping the grown ups by pleasant social life and community organizations, the town is going to turn out Sunday to see what that church has to say about religion.

DR. GORDON F. McKIM

Dr. Gordon F. McKim, President of the Cincinnati Academy of Medicine, and widely known Cincinnati surgeon, opened the sixty-sixth annual meeting of the Ohio State Medical Association Tuesday morning at the Hotel Gibson, Cincinnati. Dr. McKim welcomed the delegates on behalf of the medical profession of Cincinnati, and Mayor George P. Carlin extended the official greetings of the city of Cincinnati. Dr. McKim was born and reared in Burlington and is a son of W. F. McKim, many years ago a merchant of Burlington.

The politicians are now about ready to announce that for the sake of the public good they are willing to accept an office.

The widespread dissatisfaction with the banks suggests that a large number of people have not been able to borrow money enough to buy an automobile.

Police are using spyglasses to see numbers of speeding automobiles. The speeders will now have to run still faster so the cops can't get their numbers.

Formerly the newspapers showed the women by publishing making up receipts, but now they have to show bridge directions.

...the materials and performing processes, he could think about his sports and pastimes and outside interests.

People who knew that fellow said he worked along many years and never seemed to get anywhere. He failed to concentrate his mind on his task and he is a type of many who never attain any efficiency. Their attention wanders. They may have excellent mentality and a good deal of industry. But their thought is so scattered over a wide field of interest, that they do not acquire superiority in any line of action.

If one wants a man who is especially competent to take charge of a certain job, they would never look to that type of fellow. They would seek one who had a little less brain, but to put all his energy into doing one thing well.

Can a government interfere with the law of supply and demand by legal enactment and "get away with it?"

The question is to be answered by experience. The United States government, acting as a city council for the Capital City, has extended the Ball Act, by which rents are regulated and the relations of tenant and landlord fixed by law for a further period of two years. Originally enacted as a war measure to prevent profiteering in Washington, rental property during the period when enormous demand sent rents skyward, the act is now to be continued as an experiment in peace time regulation of commercial relations.

The individual renter is not as jubilant over the passage of the act as might be expected. Real estate men are frankly pessimistic over legislation, which they say, prevents investment in new rental properties. Those not actively interested either as renters or as landlords look with somewhat dubious eyes upon the law, the equity of which is continually called in question.

If the government can fix a "fair rental" for property and forbid one to ask another to pay a higher price, what can be urged against the government also fixing what is a "fair price" for coal, or a "fair wage" for a day's work? In what, fundamentally, does the difference consist between the price at which a dwelling may be rented, the price at which it may be sold, the price at which it may be built, the price at which it may be heated or lighted?

In time of war any legislation which furthers a nation's cause is justified. In time of peace it is at least a question whether legislation regulating any class of people or property or thing may not hold more potentiality for harm, in its undermining of United States principles, than of good in the temporary relief it affords. Washington's experiment will be eagerly, if anxiously, watched by the whole country.

"Be it enacted by the City Council of Some City that it shall hereafter be a misdemeanor, punishable by fine and imprisonment, for any man, woman, or child to have a fever."

If any city council did pass such an ordinance, the country would laugh. Forbidding symptoms and leaving the cause untouched would be considered foolish to the point of insanity.

Yet what shall be said of the action of a southern city council which has passed an ordinance barring "jazz" from the stage, public dances, and perhaps from all homes?

If reports can be believed, the authorities are now somewhat puzzled to know where ordinary music leaves off and jazz begins. Is jazz caused by cymbals and drums? Wagnerian music would come under the ban. Is it caused by piccolo notes, high and shrill? Church organs would be heavy offenders! Is it jazz when a saxophone moans? Never a band in the country that hasn't a saxophone choir among its instrumentation!

However, what is and what is not jazz may be determined by some referee; the question is not so much what is decided to be jazz and therefore prohibited, but why prohibit the symptom and leave the cause untouched?

This particular instance will probably afford more amusement than anything else, and the chorus of fun spoken at this city council by the daily press is already swelling. But considered as a symptom, such action may well cause serious thought; America is founded on law, order, and respect for government, on freedom of thought, religion and action as long as we interfere not with our neighbor's rights.

Passage of ridiculous (and not enforceable) law tends to make all law ridiculous. Make contempt for law universal, and the United States must become as Rome was and Rome is.

Statographers in the service of the United States Government lose $6,000,000 worth of the government's money each year rousing their cheeks red, according to efficiency experts of the Treasury Department. It is figured on a basis of 40,000 men in the government payroll are inefficient and typists receiving $10 a year and upward.

Public Road Engineer Omer R. ... is a busy man these days.

There are many indications that the low point in the prices of farm products has been reached and that a substantial upward movement has begun. There was a time last fall when corn brought only from twenty to thirty cents at the elevators. As we write, it is already approaching fifty cents and is likely to rise rather than to fall. There is a good market for hogs, and it is estimated that corn fed to swine brings the farmer the equivalent of at least eighty cents a bushel. The market for sheep and cattle, for wool and hides, is better and apparently on a sound basis. Grain and cotton are moving freely and at prices that, although they are not high, nevertheless show marked improvement. All of those things are the result of a natural rise from a point unduly low and also of a world supply of farm products somewhat smaller than last fall seemed probable. It is unfortunately true that some farmers felt obliged to sell when the market was low and are not now in a position to take advantage of the rising prices; but by no means all of them are in a position. The general situation is decidedly healthy, and since planting is likely to be restricted to meet the probable demand, the farmers can fairly expect a year of moderately good prices and a steadily improving financial condition. That in turn cannot but encourage the recovery of commerce, industry and transportation, all of which depend so largely on the prosperity and the purchasing power of the farmer.

It is the fact, we believe, that Eastern farmers, who generally engage in mixed or dairy farming, have not suffered the discouragement that has affected the staple farmers of the West and South. For the same reason the strengthening of the grain and livestock markets has not affected the Eastern farmers so much. But the outlook for them too is brightened by the general recovery of farm prices.

The director of the War Finance Corporation reports that the cooperative marketing organizations of the cotton growers have proved to be successful from the business point of view and a strong influence for stability in the cotton market. It is fair to expect that the grain growers' cooperatives will be conducted with equal intelligence and success.

That Pennsylvania minister arrested for setting fire to a house must be the man who put the arson in parson.

Mr. Wilson is starting late, but if he keeps on he will soon have a pretty good-sized little Anninias club of his own.

Mr. Jack Dempsey is going to France to fight, but there are lots of young fellows who can tell you that Jack is just about four years late.

All the Shipping Board ships are to be re-named for Presidents of the United States. The eternal fitness of things demands that the Leviathan, the biggest of them all, be named for Mr. Taft.

In these modern days the old saying about whisky has been revised—there is no such thing as good whisky, but some kinds of whisky are worse than others.

A. Conan Doyle says that the spirits in heaven wear clothes and hats. If father is going to have to continue paying clothing and hat bills in Heaven he probably would just as soon go to the other place.

Mr. Will Hays has barred Fatty Arbuckle from the screen. Wouldn't it be dreadful if Fatty had to go to work?

Mr. Cox speaks of the late Presidential election as "the madness of 1920." But probably nobody in the country was mad as he was when he got the returns.

The coal strike seems to be of absorbing interest to everybody except the miners.

We can't believe that Mr. Babe Ruth is suffering any great anguish over his enforced vacation. His salary goes on just the same.

It is believed the striking students will favor the closed shop proposition as applied to their school.

IT LOOKS GOOD.

Watch the bond market and you will get a fair indication of what the near future will bring us.

For some time past the market has been strong. Buying has been heavy and prices have been kept well up.

This means but one thing. People who have money are regaining confidence and are seeking means of investing it. The fellow with a few hundred or thousands is taking it from its hiding place and is buying bonds. He is no longer pessimistic of the future. He sees increased commercial activity and consequent prosperity ahead, and he is right.

Every bond issue that is floated means more work for idle people. It means an expansion in business, an increased volume of trade, more money in circulation, and that money passing from hand to hand. Prosperity is the natural result.

If you have any savings stowed away you are quite safe in bringing them out and putting them to work. The time for action is here.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Lloyd Weaver made a business trip to Cincinnati, last Friday.

W. L. Kirkpatrick unloaded a car load of cement last week.

R. H. Walker was doing some painting for Mrs. W. L. Ridwell, last week.

A hiking club from Cincinnati took dinner at the Boone House last Sunday.

The work of installing toilet rooms toilet in the court house was begun last week.

Work of digging the basement for Miss Nell Martin's new residence is in progress.

One more thing this country needs is fewer sleeping powders and more alarm clocks.

The men who try to debate with the women students will get all they want of that later in life.

On account of the farmers being so busy there was a small crowd in attendance at court, Monday.

People are being asked to subscribe to fresh air funds, but a good many seem to prefer hot air.

The people who have lost their minds through the use of moonshine probably did not lose a great deal.

If a fellow is going to train with the modern flapper, he finds he has to spend something besides the even-

The politicians can't seem to pass the legislation the people want, but anyway they are getting the offices distributed.

So far the women's college debaters have proved able to keep talking as long as the judges would listen to them.

Formerly political orators were said to shake their manes like a lion, now they shake their bobbed hair like a flapper.

Some of the girls loaf around

German statistics.

The United States consumed 10-
548,451,000 pounds of sugar in 1921.
This represents 28.4 per cent of the world production.

No wonder that more boys don't go through school and college as at that age they usually know more than their parents.

their automobiles out of the mud.

Inasmuch as there are some 110-000,000 American citizens who have not been provided with any public office, there is much political unrest.

The man who can hardly speak above a whisper at a public meeting may almost be able to yell the roof off the grand stand at the ball game.

The time has gone by when you could please the girls with a five they look tolerantly on a $2.00 box

The speeding motorista can't understand why people will cross the streets and get hurt when they would be perfectly safe if they stayed on the sidewalks.

TAKE THE $ MARK AWAY

(Dearborn Independent)

The coming of springtime is heralded again by the extravagant press agenting of the vast industry of base ball.

From one end of the country to the other, the leading newspapers are giving columns of free space to the publication of articles designed to lull the suspicious and arouse the interest of the baseball public, so the private pocketbooks of owners of baseball teams may be lined again.
Persons acquainted with the operation of the press would never accuse newspapers of being eleemosynary institutions; yet every year the great newspapers give free millions of dollars worth of advertising space to professional baseball, while the amateur games, in which boys and men play on the sand-lots after school and work, receives a scant line or no attention at all.

Professional baseball is a cold, hard business, in which the players are workmen, compelled to labor, daily at a routine employment, bound by fast rules, enforced by hard taskmasters, and hired by men who cast aside aged young men with a ruthlessness no other private employer would dare to exercise.

School and sand-lot baseball, on the other hand, has the right to be known as America's national game.
It is inspired by youth's natural impulsion and energy and dedicated to health and sportsmanship.

Athletic sports have had their highest development in America.

But here, too, they have been capitalized in the most vicious manner.
It is time to take the dollar sign off.

HORSE SHORTAGE FOLLOWS
BIG DECLINE IN BREEDING.

Lexington, Ky.—The breeding of farm mares has decreased about 75 per cent since 1915, according to
W. S. Anderson, a member of the College of Agriculture animal husbandry department here. This fact is seen as one of the most important causes for a shortage of good draft horses and mules which already exists and which may become more serious during the next few years. There are plenty of nondescript and poor types of horses and mules but the small supply of better type animals indicates an opportunity for the farmer to increase his profits by breeding mares for the production of colts that can fill the demand, he said.

A decided increase in the number of horses and mules that are used under certain conditions for hauling and delivery work has contributed toward bringing about the shortage which should be increased with the foreign demand that will come as soon as international commerce assumes a more normal state, it is said. This reduction in the cost of horses and mules together with a drop in the price of feeds are economic factors that also will tend to make the shortage more acute.

At the present time the wagon horse standing about 16 hands high and weighing from 1,400 to 1,600 pounds, is most in demand, bringing a price of from $150 to $225 a head.
Draft horses standing between 16 and 17 hands high and weighing from 1,700 to 2,000 pounds are bringing slightly higher prices largely because there are fewer of them.

Under existing conditions, indications are that horse and mule breeders have a brighter day coming and it is expected that the breeding of farm and grade mares will increase rapidly as farmers see the opportunity for profit, Mr. Anderson said.

FIND THE WAY.

The incessant war between capital and labor is one of the greatest obstructions to the prosperity of this country. It is ever present, and seems to have no end.

Every strike that occurs costs thousands of dollars. Often it runs into millions, and the whole country suffers because of a disagreement between a small proportion of the population.

Labor must be protected or it will be crushed by unscrupulous capitalists.

Capital must be protected or it will perish at the hands of unscrupulous labor leaders and radical element of their following.

One cannot exist without the other, and the country can not survive without both.

Under existing conditions neither side can be trusted to give the other a square deal all around. They have fought so long the Golden Rule appears to have passed from their memories.

And since the Golden Rule will not exist, government rule should take its place.

There is a way to adjust these differences on a basis that would be fair and just to all, but we do not appear to have the man available who possesses the brains necessary to discover that way and enforce it.
Find the man who can find the way, and clothe him with power to act.

Order your winter's coal early and avoid the rush.

Many whirlwind campaigns are planned for this fall. The last syl-able will probably apply to them anyway.

Statement that a candidate is in the hands of his friends, often means that the friends must put their hands in their pockets.

FOR THE 'TEENS

It is not difficult to solve the problem of dress for little girls in these days of specialising. Resourceful designers devote their time to putting materials into styles that are appropriate for the little miss and pleasing to her as well. They craftily take their cues from the "grown-up" modes, modifying them to suit the younger generation, as in the case of the pretty cape-wrap shown here.

This wrap for girls in their "teens" is a cape to which sleeves have been gracefully added. It is made of lightweight velours and has a full ripple back with a decoration of stitching in two rows around it. It has a large collar which is ingeniously arranged to draw up around the neck by means of a heavy silk cord that is threaded through large eyelets worked in silk like that of the stitching. The cord and eyelets are very decorative.

SHORT ITEMS FOR BUSY PEOPLE

Look out for the next war. Also keep out.

A chronic critic seldom hears any thing but criticism of himself.

Anyway, life is just one thing after another that we can't have.

Always look twice before crossing a street, lest a bicyclist ram you into eternity.

It's a fact that some women are like houses. Paint improves their appearance.

Every man who walks on two legs is a stockman. At least he has a pair of calves.

Some people are mighty sorry they ever undertook to make the other fellow sorry.

A woman with a pretty leg can disperse a mob quicker than a squad of police—if she walks away.

Don't scold your wife and daughter for having their hair bobbed. It requires less soap to wash it.

Some women never appreciate their husbands until other women come along and take them away.

And still we can not hardly blame some people for not telling the truth.
Jail life is anything but comfortable.

Not a bit of it! Charity doesn't always begin at home. The bootlegger often gets the first crack at it.

An inquirer wants to know if dates are good for the health. Not if they are prolonged after midnight.

Cheer-up! There's plenty of work ahead for those who hate to see their wives do the hoeing in the garden.

A lot of people are driving automobiles who would never be trusted in any family to propel the baby carriage.

Wisdom is particular as to the head in which it abides, but foolishness creeps in wherever there is a vacancy.

Some people complain that they never get their just deserts, and yet if they did they would howl like the devil.

The more we editors write of short skirts the shorter they seem to get. But perhaps that is the reason we write.

Much is being said about the hard lot of the white collar man, but at last accounts there were plenty of overalls for sale.

Never tell another man how to manage his business. He will suspect that you don't know how to attend to your own.

A local wit says it doesn't make any difference whether a woman has anything in her head, provided the husband has plenty in his pocket.

If it is true that we can talk with departed spirits why not ask them how it is down there? It might induce us to change our mode of living.

Judging from press reports, the radio has made wonderful strides in the last few months. In an hour or so we ought to be receiving election returns from Mars.

Garden seeds cost a few cents.
Bringing them to maturity requires a little effort. Eating the product gives a lot of satisfaction. And yet some people never bust a clod.

When a high financier steals a million and gives a nickel to charity he thinks he has paved the way to heaven and is entitled to a soft seat at the right hand of the Almighty.

Many foresighted thinkers believe that the great war just closed is only a prelude to a greater one yet to come. Unfortunately, however, the Lord doesn't tell all that he knows.

You Can Prevent
Most Chick Losses

The too-frequent heavy death rate among chicks during the critical brooding period is one of the heaviest drains on poultry profits. Baby chicks are expensive—every one that dies is a real loss that can't be made up.
It's better to raise the chicks you have than to replace them with others.

There is no reason why you should not grow to maturity practically every good chick you hatch or buy. The secret lies in feeding from the first meal the original "baby food for baby chicks."

Pratts Buttermilk
Baby Chick Food

It completely nourishes the chicks, resulting in quick, even, healthy growth and development; carries them safely over the dangerous first few weeks.

Chicks eat so little during the first six weeks that the slight extra cost of the perfect chick food—the original "Pratts"—is next to nothing. It is made up many times by the value of the extra chicks saved, and the extra value of every chick raised.

Let your chicks prove the truth of these statements. Feed them Pratts Buttermilk Baby Chick Food. If it doesn't please you—your money back.

Pratts Poultry Regulator

is needed by laying and breeding hens now, when they are laying heavily. Its tonic and invigorating effects help to overcome the strain of continuous laying and they lay eggs that are fertile and hatch husky chicks.

The genuine Pratts Poultry Regulator has been a big aid to successful poultry keepers for nearly fifty years. Why not test it? You are sure to benefit—you can't lose.

"Your Money Back If YOU Are Not Satisfied."

There is a cabbage disease which causes great damage to the cabbage. This disease is known as cabbage yellows. After the cabbage gets to be of considerable size, sometimes just ready to head, the leaves turn yellow and fall off. When attacked by this disease, it is worthless. The disease is carried in the soil and there is nothing that one can do except to select a new place for the cabbage next year.

WHY WE EAT HEN'S EGGS

George Cohan, the greatest electric sign advertiser in the theatrical world, in discussing advertising recently said: "When a duck lays an egg she just waddles off as if nothing had happened. When a hen lays an egg there is a whole of a noise; hence the demand for hens' eggs. Moral: It pays to advertise."

Brainless people are fortunate. They are never troubled with brainstorms.

Ce-re-a-lia Sweets

Who Says Dairying Doesn't Pay?

You can produce milk at a good profit. Ask any dairyman who feeds Ce-re-a-lia Sweets. They make money. They have more or better milk to sell. Their feeding costs are far less than yours compared to the size of the milk checks. Their cows keep in better physical state than yours.

If you're buying feed because it's "cheap", you're cheating yourself—wasting milk as truly as if you poured it away. Ce-re-a-lia Sweets, rich in milk-making ingredients, isn't cheap to buy, but is most economical to use. It's all nutritious cereal stuffs with just enough molasses added to give it special relish. Cows do not tire of it. Ce-re-a-lia is flaky, clean and easy to handle—never cakes or lumps.

If you are using your home-grown ground corn this season, feed Ce-re-a-lia Sweets with it. It will double the flow of milk and keep the cows in good condition. Before you get in your next "big supply" of feed,

Try Ce-re-a-lia Sweets Four Weeks At Our Risk.

Feed Ce-re-a-lia Sweets to any cow for 4 weeks. She must give more or better milk, and she must show a bigger profit than she is giving you now, or you get every cent back. You'll need about three sacks to make the trial. Call on us for chart and details.

A WEEK'S NEWS.

The Grant County News of last week says:

"The Northern Kentucky School Tournament which meets at Williamstown May 17, 18 and 19, promises to be the largest in the history of the association. So many entries have been received that it has become necessary to add an extra day. Instead of beginning Wednesday night, as was previously planned, it will be necessary to begin early on Wednesday morning in order to finish in three days. The people of the Williamstown District are showing remarkable loyalty and interest in the way they are offering their homes to the delegates. Many homes are taking as many as six or more delegates. Practically all who have been canvassed are taking at least two. Here is another instance where the people of the Williamstown District are showing their wonderful magnanimity and generosity by the way they are putting over this worthy project. Let it be remembered that not only the people in town but those beyond the city limits as well are responding in this same loyal manner."

As Federal aid in the construction of highways since 1916 the Government has appropriated $850,000,000. The mileage of roads constructed in each State with this fund in conjunction with other funds is shown by a report of the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture dated March 31. For Kentucky the figures are as follows: Miles completed 188.7; mileage for which funds have been allotted 260.1; Total mileage 448.8; Funds available for new projects $1,655,484.

Officials of the bureau point out that different conditions have required varying width, thickness and type of surface so that the mileage constructed is not always an exact measure of what has been accomplished.

The completed Sheriff's settlement is published in this issue of the Recorder. This settlement shows to whom the money you paid in taxes has been paid, and the receipts in the County Clerk's office show for what service each dollar was paid. Read the settlement carefully, and if you find any errors or discrepancies call your magistrates attention to them, and he will have an investigation made. Your fiscal court wants Boone county to receive 100 cents in value for each $1.00 they spend of the county's funds. If anyone who has received county funds has not given the county full value your fiscal court should know, and our citizens should not hesitate to inform their magistrate if they know of any such case.

The prospective peach and apple crops of Boone county have been very little affected by the recent chilly weather, according to reports from farmers from different parts of the county. Some say that cherries have been hit hard, and so have grapes in low sections, the grapes on high ground are in good condition, and some varieties of pears have escaped the frosts and chilly weather, and from present indications there will be an abundance of fruit in the county this season.

Wet weather is the general complaint, because it is delaying farm work. There certainly has been a generous fall of moisture which has soaked the whole country. Well, it is better to have too much rain at this time of the year than too little. On the whole the crop outlook is good. And these crops have been produced at lower costs than last year, and will bring rather better prices. The buying power of farmers promises to continue all through the year.

Beats all how the pleasures of youth lose their charm in later years. We old birds don't crave the luxuries. We are satisfied with the creature comforts—just a comfortable apartment, four or five suits of clothes, a box of good cigars, a limousine, opera tickets every week, a chateau by the sea, a motorboat, a good library, a few old masters and a little poker game with a few friends every night or so—that's all. Ho-hum!—Lexington Herald.

To edit a country newspaper during dull times like these is a hard job—farmers all busy with their farm work, no weddings, no fights, nothing stirring but a cool breeze, it is a big job to find enough local stuff to keep busy the man who ticks the ivory keys on the Linotype. It's a big job when there is nothing doing.

Dr. J. N. McCormack, 76, one of the county's foremost physicians, died at his home in Louisville, last Thursday. It is claimed that Dr. McCormack did more toward bettering the sanitary conditions of Kentucky than any other person.

Did you know that the iron fence was put around the court house yard 29 years ago today?

POOL WILL PAY $9,000,000 TO ITS MEMBERS MAY 20

Directors Are Assured Growers in Organization Will Not More Than "Outdoors" After Paying All Expenses.

Meyer Is Invited Here To Address Big Meeting.

Bingham Appointed to Have War Finance Chairman in Kentucky.

Lexington, Ky., May 4.—Growers of tobacco in Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio, who are members of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, will receive May 20 another payment of approximately $9,000,000 on their crops which they delivered to receiving plants of the association, the second payment to be of the same amount as the first, according to the decision of the board of directors of the association, in session at the offices here Wednesday.

The manner of delivery of the checks to the growers is left to the director in each district, to whom all the checks for growers in his district will be sent.

It is expected to make Saturday, May 20, a day of jollification in the district, with speeches at public meetings in most cases, followed by the delivery of the checks to the growers.

These details, however, are left to the discretion of the director in each district and no uniform method of delivery has yet been agreed upon. Each director will announce to the county papers the time and method of distribution to be followed in his district.

Outlook Is Bright.

After thorough discussion of the outlook, with a review of sales, already made and some others in immediate prospect, the directors were told that they could assure their constituents that those who had joined the association would receive more net money per pound for their tobacco than those who refused to join, besides paying expenses, and the payments on the warehouse which are to be decided to the association by June 15.

It is expected that the drive for new members will be started on the day of the second distribution and kept up for the following week, with the idea of signing up the organized in the short government reports part of the burley district 100 per cent strong. Clifton Rhodes reported favorable results in West Virginia, and Tennessee also is to be visited.

THIRD PAYMENT TO BE MADE TO GROWERS

Final Settlement Will Follow Sale of the Redried Holdings—Drive Will Follow Distribution.

Lexington, Ky., May 7.—The payment to be made to the Burley tobacco growers May 20th will be followed by a third payment when the entire holdings of the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association are sold. Just when this will be said to be problematical but President James C. Stone has pointed out the fact that the crop of 1921 is the shortest since the cut-out of 1908 and the government reports required of manufacturers show that their holdings are less than they were a year ago. President Stone has had many inquiries for the redried leaf held by the association and has sold some of it as far away as Denmark, representing a Copenhagen tobacco concern having called at the office of the association the past week.

SPRING IT

If you have a new idea, spring it. This country has become great because its citizens have had the brains to produce ideas and the courage to work them out to fruition.

But don't expect to revolutionize the world with one blast. The world is older than we are. It will be here after we are gone, but other brains will be producing ideas that are a hundred times better than ours.

Every big thing has a little beginning. Because the idea is good it grows and thrives and expands until it becomes great and of lasting benefit to many people.

It may be so with your idea, but it will not be so as long as you keep it bottled up.

Spring it.

Will Dedicate New Building.

The dedication of the new building of the colored Baptist church at Walton, will be held Sunday, May 21st, when an all day meeting will be held with a basket dinner on the ground.

Some are in honor of unworthy causes.

The Burlington and Union boys basketball teams met on the High School ground at Burlington, last Friday and Burlington girls' basketball team also took part. The Florence and Burlington girls' basketball teams also took part. The final score was 2 to 2 tie.

The students of B. H. S. purchased a new bookcase last week. Our library is growing steadily and improving every year. Our library now has three large bookcases and one small bookcase.

LASSINGS WIN GOLF LAURELS

Mrs. Lassing Duplicate, Fast of Bob By Winning Women's Title.

The following is taken from the St. Petersburg, Fla., Independent:

Bob Lassing won undisputed claim to the city championship yesterday afternoon in the final 18 holes of his 36 hole match with Howard Frazee, defeating the Coffee Pot club champion by 8 and 7. Lassing displayed his superiority over Frazee on both the Coffee Pot and the Country club courses.

The match started Saturday afternoon at the Coffee Pot course which Lassing had never played before. He won 5 holes, halved 11 and lost 2 at the Coffee Pot course which left him 3 up at the end of the 10 holes. His medal score was 82 which was better than Col. Bogey which is 84 at the Coffee Pot links.

The match at the Country Club links yesterday afternoon was followed by a gallery of golf enthusiasts. Lassing went even better on the Country Club links turning in a medal score of 76 for the 18 holes. The pace was too fast for the Coffee Pot club champion and the match came to an abrupt close at the 12th hole with Lassing 8 up and 7 to play. Lassing also defeated Col. Bogey on this 18 finishing 8 strokes under the bogey score for the course.

No check could be made of Frazee's medal score as he picked up at the twelfth hole.

In the 30 holes of golf played by the club champions Frazee won but 4 holes from the Country Club champion, Lassing won 12 and 14 holes were halved.

Frazee was a trifle off his game at the Country Club course and if playing in top form would have carried the match much further. It is rather doubtful however whether the outcome would have been any different as playing a 76 over the Country club links is a much higher brand of golf than the Coffee Pot champion has been accustomed to playing.

Mrs. R. B. Lassing won the women's championship at the Country club course yesterday afternoon by defeating Miss Helen Brownback 3 and 1 in the final round. Mrs. Lassing played the same high brand of golf that carried her through in the semi-final round with Mrs. W. S. Shull and turned a medal score of 107 for the 18 holes.

Miss Brownback was 2 down at the turn and was unable to cut down the lead of her opponent, who maintained the same advantage to the 16th hole and won the match by winning the 17th.

The women's championship matches this year were the closest ever played at the Country club. Three matches were carried to the nineteenth hole and the semi-final match to the 18th hole. Mrs. Lassing played consistent golf throughout and displayed better golf in each match she played.

The winning of the women's championship by Mrs. Lassing gives the Lassing family a corner on the golfing honors in the Sunshine City as Bob Lassing upheld the honor of the other half of the family by defeating Howard Frazee Sunday for the city championship.

DON'T FORGET IT

Don't forget the ball game at Taylorport next Sunday afternoon. See adv. in another column. There will be a band of music and John Spinnaker will deliver an address. The proceeds of the game will be used to repair the road from the Dry Creek pike to Taylorport. Game called at 2 o'clock; (fast time).

JERSEY LOVE FEAST

To Be Held at Burlington by Boone County Breeders Wednesday, May 17, at 7:30 P. M.

The breeders and lovers of Jerseys in Boone county have a real treat ahead of them for Wednesday night, May 17th, at the Motion picture theatre, Burlington, Ky., when the Boone County Jersey Cattle Club will show "Hearts in Jerseys," a 5-reel picture, brimful of romance, love and excitement, as well as beautiful scenery and imposing country estates, all lending to a modest exposition of achievements of Jerseys. This picture has made a hit wherever shown, and the officers of the local club are proud to present it to the lovers of Jerseys in Boone county.

A rollicking good program has been arranged for the evenings entertainment, which may be enumerated as follows:

Music—Five piece orchestra.

Pictures—Hearts in Jerseys.

Address—Prof. J. J. Hooper, Head Dairy Department, College of Agriculture, Lexington, Ky.

Round Table Discussion—Boone County's Development, lead by W. G. Kite, President.

Refreshments—Buffet Luncheon, featuring dairy products.

Boone is coming into prominence as a Jersey county, ranking second only to Christian county in the State. The quality of our Jerseys are proven by the records being made by our official test, and on the show circuit. Enquiries for Jerseys are continually coming to O. C. Hafter, secretary, and County Agent Sutton. It behooves every breeder in the county to be present on this occasion, and rub elbows and swap ideas with the other breeders who are doing things in Jerseys.

Complete arrangements will be made at this meeting for taking care of the Boys' and Girls' Jersey Club this year.

An auction sale of young registered Jersey bulls will be held on Jersey day, when the Jersey heifers will be distributed to the boys and girls. An opportunity will be given you at this meeting to consign bulls to this Jersey Day Sale.

The management has made the "Sky the Limit" in attempting to offer you an evening of real entertainment and profit, and will accept no excuse for absence from a breeder or lover of Jerseys.

Everybody invited—no admission fee.

BURLEY POOL TO PUBLISH MAGAZINE

Porter Will Be Editor of New Monthly Devoted to Interests of Co-operative Marketing of Leaf Tobacco.

Lexington, Ky.—The Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association will begin this month the publication of a monthly magazine, to be devoted to the news of the burley co-operative marketing movement. The first issue of the new magazine, which will be the official organ of the association, will be published about May 15. It will accept advertising not of a character to conflict with the interests of local newspapers, banks merchants or any of those who aided in putting the co-operative association over in the burley district.

J. Sherman Porter, who managed the burley campaign of the Burley association through its formative period, has been elected editor and manager of the new publication. Mr. Porter has had long experience in newspaper work and for the past six years has been actively engaged in publicity work.

The office of the magazine will be in Lexington. It will be called the Burley Tobacco Grower.

T. R. Kirk, prominent member of the R. J. Reynolds organization, negotiated the purchase of the redried leaf sold Friday by the association to the Reynolds company.

FARM LABOR.

Two years ago at this time of the year, "with city wages tempting thousands of workers away from the soil," there were only sixty-eight men available for every 100 jobs on the farm.

April 1, 1921, there were 108 men after every 100 farm jobs, and on April 1 of this year the proportion has risen to 111.

This unquestionably indicates a very substantial drift back to the farms. It is true that the farms are not operating at "full capacity." Some crops have been restricted, and it is estimated that the farmers are using only 89.3 per cent. of the normal number of hands.

Formerly "hands across the sea" was considered a sign of friendly relations, but it is taking hands out across the sea to save millions of those starving folks now.

LAMBS ON EARLY MARKET BRING BIGGEST RETURNS

Lexington, Ky.—Thousands of Kentucky lambs that are being prepared for the market at this season of the year will bring greater returns if given a little extra feed and care to put them in marketable condition at the earliest possible date, according to L. J. Horlacher, in charge of the College of Agriculture sheep work. In addition to bringing a higher price, the early lamb is less apt to be troubled with the parasites and summer heat affecting those that are held for a later market, it was pointed out.

In 1921, the average price paid for choice lambs on the Louisville market was $13.40 a hundred in May, $12.20 in June and July $10.80, according to figures cited to show the greater value of lambs that go to market early.

Parasites which often cause heavy and disastrous summer losses ordinarily do not give lambs much trouble until about the middle of June. Getting the lambs off to an early market therefore avoids much trouble from this source, it was added.

In connection with the effect of summer heat on spring lambs, figures derived from monthly weights kept on a flock of registered sheep under good care show that gains are made more slowly and consequently at greater expense after hot weather comes. The average monthly gain for each of 91 lambs, during the seasons of 1917, 1918 and 1920 was 16.1 pounds in May, 13.3 pounds in June and 4.2 pounds in July.

A mixture of equal parts by weight of shelled corn, oats and bran makes a good feed for lambs that are being prepared for the market. Each animal should be given from one-eighth to one-quarter of a pound of this mixture each day.

SCHOOL DAYS ABOUT OVER

The next few days will prove days of more than passing interest to the patrons and friends of the Boone County High School. A glance at the schedule of Commencement Week published in another column of this issue indicates the dates and kind of attractions that will be offered to the public. The Boone County High School ranks as one among the best schools in the State, and the people of Burlington and the school patrons from elsewhere should be proud of her school.

On Monday night at 7:30 o'clock the Baccalaureate Sermon will be delivered at the Baptist church by Rev. W. W. Adams.

The Class Play—"Emeralda," will be given on Tuesday night, May 16th, at 8:00 o'clock.

At the Commencement Exercises which will be held on Tuesday night, May 22nd, the class address will be made by Rev. H. C. Runyan, of Latonia.

Due to escape from any epidemic of disease, the present term of school has been a very successful one, both as to the number of pupils enrolled and the splendid results obtained by the student body.

The faculty was composed of F. S. Kinsey, Supt., ably assisted by Misses Elizabeth Turner, Hazel Grow, Mattie Kreylich, Alberta Kelly and Virginia Clore.

STATE REGISTRATION COST MAY REACH $125,000

Kentucky's first general registration next July will cost upward of $100,000, probably $125,000, it is estimated, most of which will be borne by the counties. The printing bill will amount to approximately $80,000 and the precinct registration officers pay will be $28,000 or $30,000.

The printing contract includes a registration book and duplicate for each of the 3,500 precincts.

There also will be a transfer book for each County Clerk, and there are transfer certificates and four forms of various kinds of notes, the clerk makes out as occasion requires.

AMERICAN LEGION MEETING.

A special meeting of Boone Post No. 4, American Legion, to be held at the court house, Burlington, Ky., May 16th, 1922. All members are urged to be present. Important business.

R. C. McGLASSON, Post Commander.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY

The Senior Class of Union High School will present "The Arrival of Kitty" a comedy in three acts on Wednesday evening, May 17th at School Auditorium, 8:00 p. m. ## BOYS' AND GIRLS' CLUB

Will Meet Saturday to Complete Arrangements for This Year's Contest.

The boy and girl club members of the Rabbit Hash local will meet at Maple Hill School house, near Rabbit Hash, Saturday afternoon, at 1:30 o'clock to complete arrangements to start this year's contest which begins on or about May 20th. It is expected that this local club will have more than twice as many members this year as last. The four breeders promoting and financing this local, namely, J. Colin Kelly, Benj. Stephens, Jr., Hubert Ryle and son and E. B. Ryle, at a recent meeting voted to include boys and girls, desiring to enter from Bellevue and Hamilton as well as Carlton precinct.

One feature of this local is that the breeders backing it each have a different breed—Hampshire, Duree Jersey, Chesterwhite and Poland China, so that any club member may have the breed of his choice. These men have a committee including County Agent Sutton to select the best pigs in their herds for the boys and girls. Additional ribbons and money will be given at the local show this fall. Any boy or girl in the three precincts who is not already a member is invited to join at this meeting.

These men are to be congratulated on the good work they are doing. Aside from promoting purebred livestock, they are developing trained, progressive, farm-loving citizens, which are the greatest asset that a farming community can have. It is to be remembered that a success last year's show, with more than 500 present at the local show held at J. Colin Kelly's farm, and better still, every pig in the club was there in the show ring. The grand champion of the show won the ribbon at the Ky. State Fair.

THE FINISHING TOUCH.

The people who put brains into their work consider the smallest task from the viewpoint of the person who is to get the advantage of it. If they are making a shoe for instance, they consider the comfort of the wearer, and every thread, every nail, every piece of leather, is so handled that it will not chafe a tender foot.

The newspaper office furnishes an illustration of the finishing touch, in the way the exchanges come in. Some are roller up any old way, so would never lie flat. They are so twisted around that if piled in a living room table, they get awkward and look disorderly.

Others come in so neatly folded that they can be smoothed out and lie flat on a table. Not merely do readers enjoy them better, but such papers will be kept on the table longer, the advertising will be read more carefully, and space in such newspapers is worth more to advertisers. The Recorder has always made it a point to fold its issues for mailing in this way, and it considers it one of the finishing touches that promote efficiency.

STEPHENS-KELLY

Albert L. Stephens, of Covington, and Miss Alberta Kelly, of Burlington, gave their friends a surprise last Saturday afternoon when the announcement was given out that they were married. The ceremony took place at the home of Rev. DeMoisey at Walton that afternoon.

The bride is the attractive daughter of Mrs. E. E. Kelly, and was one of the teachers at the Boone-High School the past season, and has a host of friends in Burlington and other parts of the county.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Stephens, of Paducah, and is a young man of sterling qualities. The Recorder united with their many friends in congratulations.

BRYANT'S BROW BOAT

Will present "UNDER THE HARVEST MOON"

Constance, Ky., Monday May 15th, Petersburg, Ky., Tuesday May 16th. General Admission 25 cents.

NOTICE.

As usual on Mother's Day, Mother will put up a mighty good stroke of work getting up an extra fine dinner.

The women are wearing highly colored stuff this spring, but you can get smoked glasses at any optician's.

J. B. Arrin and family, of Commissary neighborhood, spent Sunday with relatives in the Idelwild neighborhood.

The man who is beating the rug should not make so much noise as to drown out the girl who is taking piano lessons.

Formerly the men lined up before the bar, but what is needed now is for a lot of them to be lined up behind the bars.

The country did not buy as many shoes as usual last year, but the leather was all needed to make automobile tops.

Judge Sidney Gaines sold, one day last week, his house and lot on Galatin street in Burlington, to Mrs. Lorena Cropper.

The country roads are not as fine as the paved streets of the cities but you can cross them without having to run for your life.

Judge Sidney Gaines was called to Owenton last Saturday in a case seeking to prohibit Owen county from issuing bonds.

Wood is being used up four times as fast as it is grown. Not many houses being built, but it takes an awful lot for baseball bats.

If the girls wear their hair long, they are slammed for their big buffs, but if they cut it short, they are slammed for its bushy appearance.

The good weather of the past ten days has about cleaned up all the mud holes in the roads, but there still remains many bumps and ruts.

Miss Margarette Hughes, who is employed in the Postoffice in Cincinnati, spent Saturday night and Sunday with relatives and friends in Burlington.

All they want down in the cities is higher wages and shorter hours for producers of manufacturer and lower prices on the food products raised in the country.

Some of the farmers of Boone county are showing progressiveness in buying tractors for farm work. It is wonderful to see the different variety of work that can be done with the tractor. In breaking land the farmer can do more in a day and get better results than he can with two or three teams.

Edgar Berkshire, one of the best fruit growers in this part of the county, reported to this office Monday morning that on account of the cold weather and frosts, there would be about half an apple crop; one-third of a cherry crop; peaches would make a full crop, and that the pears and strawberries had been injured to such an extent that there would be about one-half of a crop of these.

BASE BALL.

Florence journeyed to Hebron Saturday afternoon and administered a defeat to them by a score of 8 to 7 in a very interesting game, which was always in danger of going either way. Even though Florence made more errors than in any previous game, they still maintained a great deal of courage and hit Huey for 10 well placed hits, while Hebron collected but 4 from Florence twirlers. Florence kept up their winning streak and took their seventh consecutive game by an easy victory over Erlanger Sunday by the score of 11 to 4. Everybody come out to see Florence play Petersburg Saturday afternoon and Covington Colts Sunday afternoon, both games at home. We are assuring the public that a fast game will be played against Petersburg.

Petersburg journeyed to Taylorsport last Sunday and were defeated 12 to 0. Black was in good form struck out 21 of the Petersburg sluggers and allowed only one hit. Next Sunday the Taylorsport boys will have as their opponents Miami-town. This is the opening game of the Down the River League of which Taylorsport is one of the clubs. This will be a good game and the boys are expecting a record breaking attendance on that day. The proceeds of this game will go to repairing the road leading to the ball park from the Dry Creek pike. John Spinney of Cincinnati will make an address just before the game and the Cleves, Ohio, brass band will make music.

POULTRY MEETING.

What promises to one of the biggest poultry meetings ever held in the county will be given under the auspices of the Boone County Poultry Association at the Burlington Moving Picture Theater, Thursday evening at 7:30 May 11th.

Mr. J. R. Smith, of the Poultry Department, Lexington, Ky., who needs no introduction to the poultry raisers of the county, will be the principal speaker of the evening.

"Layers and Liars" a three reel comedy and Tragedy will be shown.

Another two reel picture illustrating profitable poultry management that should be employed by Kentucky poultrymen will be presented. General discussion led by J. W. Huey, President to determine plans of conducting a systematic poultry culling campaign in all parts of the county this fall. It is hoped that this campaign can be so conducted that every poultry raiser in the county will learn how to cull out the poor layer or boarder.

Every Boy or Girl Poultry Club member are requested to come and bring their parents.

W. D. SUTTON, County Agent.
P. S.—This meeting is not meant for members of the Poultry Association alone, for they are anxious that every farmer, and especially his wife, attend. That part of Mr. Smith's discussion pertaining to poultry diseases coming at this season, may be well worth the trip.

IRWIN LORENZO UTZ.

Irwin Lorenzo Utz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Corey Utz, of Erlanger, Ky., passed away May 8th, 1922, aged 18 years, 4 months and 5 days. He is survived by a mother, father and two sisters. He was a good, kind and obedient son, and was kind to his neighbors and always had a kind word and pleasant smile for everyone. He was not only fond of his family, but was especially fond of his mother. The weather was never too severe for him to go to his dear old grandmother every Friday after school, so that she would have some one to care for her. As death drew near he kissed his mother and then threw a sweet kiss out into the room and said, "mother dear, tell everyone good-bye, and tell them that I am all right."

A Friend.

NEIGHBORHOOD CLUB SPIRIT.

In many county towns there is a friendly spirit, but the people do not know each other intimately. They pass pleasant words when they meet, they often talk about their neighbors with some freedom, but on the whole live very good humoredly but not intimately.

In other towns, the people feel a desire to be all of one family. They realize their neighbors are mighty fine people, and want to know them better and be on terms of the closest friendship. When they get to that point they usually form some form of neighborhood clubs for constant association. As they talk business, play games, and get up supper together, they form closer ties. A town filled with that spirit will work as a unit for any community cause and it is sure to go ahead.

New York.—The whole East coast heard the bride promise to "love honor and obey" when Miss Sarah Cock-faire, nurse, and A. P. Schlafke, both of Brooklyn, were married in an airplane flying over New York. The plane was equipped with a radio broad-caster. The couple then flew to the American Legion's mountain resort at Lake Tupper for their honeymoon.

SEASONAL TIPS*FOR GARDENERS

By May 15 it usually is safe to plant lima and string beans, summer lettuce and radishes, sweet potato plants and eggplant, the latter having been started in the hot house or hot bed. Stringless Green Pod, Refugee, Bountiful and Burpee's Kidney Wax are good varieties of bush string beans while Kentucky Wonder and Lazy Wife are recommended varieties of pole string beans. Good varieties of bush limas are Henderson's Bush Lima and Fordhook Bush Lima. Nancy Hall and Yellow Jersey are good varieties of sweet potatoes. Small seeded lima beans will yield better in poor, damp ground than large seeded varieties, according to gardeners at the College of Agriculture. All lima beans do best in good warm soil, they say.

Anthracnose, one of the serious attacking beans spreads rapidly from plant to plant if they are cultivated while wet. The disease causes sunken dark red spots with well defined margins on the stems, pods, leaves and seeds.

Best results are obtained with lettuce if the crop makes a quick growth. Growth may be stimulated by covering the plants with tobacco canvases propped up so that it does not rest on the plants. It may be removed after the plants have obtained sufficient size.

Early lettuce can be followed by radishes, some of the best varieties of which are White Vienna and Chariot. These are the long type that do not get pithy as soon as the olive shaped ones.

Little defects grow into big ones in time if not corrected.

The correction of a small defect in its early stages costs but little. When left until it grows into serious proportions its correction runs into money.

That is what makes the maintenance of a car so expensive to many people—neglecting the little things until they grow into big ones.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Penn were shopping in the city, last Thursday.

A great deal of corn has been planted during the past week.

Remember Senior Class play at Burlington May 16th, 8:00 p. m.

Last heard from, the dove of peace was inquiring the price of steel spurs.

Misses Alberta Kelly and Evelyn Rouse spent last Thursday in the city shopping.

The building of the Farmer's Union Warehouse at Florence is progressing nicely.

Judge Sidney Gaines is presiding in the Breckinridge circuit court at Hardinsburg this week.

Mrs. Fred Morris spent the latter part of last week with her mother, Mrs. Bierman, at Latonia.

A. B. Renaker left last Saturday for Amorilla, Texas, where he will spend the week on business.

No complaint is made of lack of squirrel food, as the country is abundantly supplied with nuts.

The Farm Bureau unloaded a car load of fertilizer at Erlanger, last Thursday for Boone county farmers.

Many people who are looking for a soft spot find it in the ditch as the result of speeding their automobiles.

Miss Maud Hume, of Covington, spent last Thursday night with her parents, Sheriff B. B. Hume and wife.

Quite a number of the Erlanger boys spent Saturday night and Sunday down at their camp on Gunpowder creek.

It used to be said there is always room at the top, but now the upper air is all jammed with conflicting radio broadcasting.

The man whose hip pocket is disdressed by a flask, may find that his vest pocket is amply sufficient to hold his thin purse.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Shearer, of Newport, were Saturday night and Sunday guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Marce Riddell who attended the funeral of Mrs. W. T. Riddell at Dayton, Ohio, last week, returned home, last Thursday evening.

Mrs. Eugenia Blythe, who spent the winter months in Clearwater, Florida, with her sister, Mrs. S. P. Tilley, returned home last Thursday.

The Boone County Farm Bureau delivered to its members in this section of the county, last week, 30 tons of fertilizer, at a great saving in price.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Brohn, who have made their home at Walton for some time, have moved to Bellevue, where Mr. Brown will farm the coming season.

Miss Mary Roberts, of Cincinnati, spent Saturday night and Sunday with her uncle and aunt, W. R. Rogers and sisters, Misses Sallie and Elizabeth.

The bridge near E. H. Blankenbaker's on the Florence and Union pike, that has been in bad condition for some time, has been repaired with new abutments.

"I would not take $1,000 for what that wonderful Tanlac medicine has done for me," said Mrs. Mattie Lutes of Lexington, Ky. Sold by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

At the present rate of Tanlac sales, it is estimated the grand total will reach 24,000,000 bottles at the end of the present year. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

It is said that the administration at Washington did not like the new "Beverage" furnished them by the voters of Indiana, at the primary elections held in that State, last week.

The Grant county fiscal court is advertising $250,000 8 per cent road and bridge bonds for sale. The Board of Trustees of the Williams-town Graded School District is offering $20,000 worth of bonds for sale.

BROADCAST CULTIVATION HAS MARKED ADVANTAGES.

Lexington, Ky.—Advantages of broadcast cultivation indicate that many Kentucky farmers could use this method more extensively than they have in the past, according to E. J. Kenney, a member of the College of Agriculture agronomy department. Both the spike tooth harrow and the weeder long have been recognized by good farmers as excellent implements for giving corn and other cultivated crops the first cultivation, he said. There is no better way of reducing production costs than by the use of these two tools, it was pointed out.

With a wide harrow, 15 to 20 acres can be cultivated in a day, or about three times as much as can be cultivated with a two-horse cultivator. This means that the average crop of corn can be cultivated in about two days. Furthermore, the work can be done several days before the shovel cultivator can be used. In a rainy season this is an advantage in keeping down weeds. When the seedbed is free from trash and clods the character of work done by the harrow is better than that done by the cultivator because all the ground is stirred. This kills weeds around the hills and in the rows as well as in the middle.

"Unless care is taken to bury all trash when the land is plowed and the surface leveled and pulverized well, the harrow cannot be used satisfactorily. This also is true of the weeder, but this tool is so light that it can be kept free from trash more easily than the harrow. It also can be used with less damage to the small plants than can the harrow."

"Very little corn will be destroyed if the man doing the harrowing is careful to keep the harrow from clogging with trash and keep the horses or mules off the rows of corn."

"Broadcast cultivation is particularly useful for cultivating potatoes and if thoroughly done, will eliminate much hand weeding. Soybeans also can be harrowed without damage if the harrow is run across the rows. The young beans are rather brittle early in the morning and the harrow or weeder should not be started until about the middle of the forenoon."

Blaming the woman has been a favorite indoor sport since the days of Adam. If one cannot blame a woman under any other pretext, put the fault upon her for having a son who does something he shouldn't.

Apparently so reason those doubtless well-intentioned but short-sighted occupants of pulpits who see in the economic and political rise of women from a dependent to an independent state the cause of all the ills to which modern civilization is heir.

A well-known revivalist declares that "the next war" is to be caused by the "flapper." He adds that all wars have been caused by "the depravity of women."

A noted woman worker in social hygiene advocates more women in politics and more laws as a cure for vice and the activities of vicious women.

A notional legislator wants marriage laws so amended that from ten days to two weeks must elapse between issuance of license and marriage, as a cure for diporice, the divorced women being one of the great evils of the country!

It would be a dull world if we all thought alike. Yet one is reminded that a fundamental of the government of what we revere as the land of the free is tolerance; willingness to concede to the other fellow the right to his opinion, even as we hold inalienable the right to our own.

No good American has any objection to anyone thinking that flappers cause wars, that women are evil creatures, that hasty marriages undermine the American home, or that vice can be cured by "don't do it" laws. But there is great objection of evangelists, educators and legislators stating as facts which they wish to be the basis of legal action which are, after all, only personal opinions, the truth of which it is difficult to substantiate by any evidence.

One does wonder, at times whether these reformers who decry women really had mothers, or if, like Topsy, they "just grewed!"

According to veteran prognosticators there will be a bumper crop of corn this season. The locust trees are blooming and the bloom on the trees is so thick no foliage can be seen. A heavy locust bloom indicates a good crop.

The Senior Class of the Boone County High School will stage a comedy at the Universalist church next Tuesday night, May 16th, that promises to be one of the best home talent entertainments that has been pulled off by the Boone Hi School.

Dr. Henry D. Adams in subscribing for the Recorder, writes: "It is a delight to renew my acquaintance with the old home town. I do not want to lose touch with it, and my subscription is inclosed. My sincerest wishes to you and my Boone county friends."

Although a powerful reconstructive tonic, Tanlac contains no harmful ingredients, minerals or opiates, which are so often found in other medicines. It was therefore taken by delicate children with splendid results. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

POPULAR SWEATERS

In the bright lexicon of youth is written the sweater, and a sweaterless wardrobe is not to be imagined—either for young or old. The tuxedo or sweater coat is deservedly the most popular style, made of wool or of silk yarn like that one pictured here. It is shown in many colors and in black or white. Collar and cuff sets of checked silk or plaid linen are fashionable with the quieter colors.

The people of Boone county are glad to know that the J. R. Watkins Co., has secured a man who will make regular trips with a full line of the well known Watkins remedies, extracts, stock and poultry tonics, &c. 15sept-tf.

WEED DESTRUCTION IN MAY IS EASIER THAN IN AUGUST

Lexington, Ky.—It is easier to kill a thousand young weeds in May than a dozen old ones in August, soils and crops specialists at the College of Agriculture say. Immediate steps, therefore, will be helpful in preventing these robbers from stealing much moisture and plant food from crops later in the season, it is said.

"A ton of weeds growing on an acre will deprive a profitable crop of about 450 pounds of water during the growing season," according to R. E. Stephenson, one of the specialists. "This amount of moisture is required by a ton of average farm crops but weeds take an equal amount. In addition, weeds of ten make the difference between success and failure in getting good yields largely because the crop has been robbed of plant food."

"Successful weed control depends upon beginning early before the plants get a start. On cultivated land, early breaking is desirable. This gives time for many weed seeds to be germinated and destroyed before the crop is seeded. A harrow used when weeds are just sprouting will do more effective work than plowing after they get a start."

"Constant tillage is essential in controlling weeds that grow from underground stems. Two years of clean cultivation will destroy most of the stems of such weeds. Many weeds reproduce from both the stems and seeds, in the latter case the seeds being especially abundant in most cases. A single plant of rag feed has been found to produce more than 19,000 seeds, pigeon grass more than 140,000, lambs quarters more than 800,000, barnyard grass more than 1,000,000 and tumble weed more than 6,000,000. When seeds are produced so abundantly, only a few plants are required to seed a large acreage."

"This makes it important to prevent weeds from seeding. Few of them decay in less than three years, the seeds of some weeds having produced plants after being buried for more than 10 years."

In the town of Pisa, where stands the leaning tower, one Galileo, demonstrated to an amazed world that at the same rate of speed. He also perfected, if he did not invent, the first telescope, first turned it upon the moon, first discovered the moons of Jupiter. And he first defended before the church the Copernican theory, that the earth was round, when all respectable citizens, including the priests, knew perfectly well it was flat!

For these and other high crimes, the Catholic Church punished Galileo severely, who saved his life by recanting publicly his doctrine that the earth moved. Tradition has it that, after he had done so, he muttered into his beard, "And yet it does move!"

However that may be, Cardinal Maffi, of Pisa, a scientist, is behind the movement to erect in the public square of Pisa a great monument to the man all the world today acclaims as one of the great thinkers and great leaders of all time in science and clear thinking.

Galileo lived 1564-1642. This is 1922. It took Pisa in general and the church in particular quite a time to recognize that even churches err! Better late than never!

Woodruff charges that the Attorney General permits the big fellows who control bootlegging operations to live prosperously in perfect freedom, while throwing the little fellows in jail. Woodruff and Johnson are both ex-convicts. They are making war on the venality of the nation's officials, and are taking their own party, and some of its own leaders, with them.

BIBLE CLASS BANQUET

On Thursday evening April 27th, at 8 o'clock, the Men's Bible Class of Union Baptist church held their annual banquet. It was the biggest and most enjoyable event, so far, in the history of the class. Forty-five including members and guests, were present, and all were in real banquet humor, consequently the good fellowship for which the class stands high. The table, which extended almost through the entire length of our class room was beautifully decorated with cut flowers, and a most delicious four-course menu was served. After dinner speeches were delivered by Rev. J. A. Miller, Messrs. J. L. Frazier, J. A. Huey, J. W. Conner, L. H. Voshell, Philip Taliaferro, Dr. O. E. Senour, and Rev. J. H. Garber.

The banquet was a big success in every way, and the class looks forward to many more such delightful occasions. Mr. J. H. Ludwig is president of the class and the social committee in charge of the banquet was composed of Messrs. H. W. Riley, J. G. Huey and Harvey Hicks.

Union basket ball team went over to Burlington to play Friday afternoon. In fact it ought to have been played on a neutral court, but we supposed that Burlington thought we had them bested. So we went over and showed them some scientific pass-work and good goal shooting and walked away with the victory 12 to 10.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Holtzworth had as their guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. M. Holtzworth, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Semur, Mr. and Mrs. W. Senour and Mr. and Mrs. A. Gadd.

REPUBLICAN PRESS CONDEMNNS SENATE TARIFF BILL.

Here are some additional editorial opinions on the Fordney-McCumber Tariff Bill from leading Republican papers:

The St. Louis Globe Democrat, the leading Republican organ of the Southwest, says: "The bill seems to have applied the principle of protection to everything, without regard to present world conditions and with out regard to our altered position in relation to the world's trade. If our tariff does not permit fair competition with other countries how are we to maintain the world trade that is now so essential to our prosperity?"

The Boston Transcript, the grand-mother of the New England Republican press, expresses the opinion that party guidance is thrown to the winds with respect to the tariff and says this is undoubtedly due to the prevalent chaotic conditions of interest and of views. It then adds:

"There may be some consolation in the fact that it will take a long time to strain out all these scraps of views and that the delay will give an opportunity to get rid of some of the injustices involved in the Senate bill. But in the meantime, the manufacturers of the country are carrying all or most of the expenses involved by the war without the market which the war created and are consequently pretty nearly paralyzed. In this situation they are to some extent prepared to regard strikes as a blessing and are content to let the tariff repose at the switch."

Judging the other fellow seems to be a very popular human failing. We all indulge in it to a greater or less degree, usually greater. The queer thing about it is that we do not judge from our own standard of experience, but some standard of perfection that we have concocted out of the past. His own mistakes, to each individual, seems to sneak upon him unawares. He can not tell how it happened. He usually says it was the force of circumstances or some such reason and in most cases he is sincere. He believes he is right.

Sometimes he is. Or when the other fellow slips it is always his fault. We never seem to realize that he may have been the victim of similar circumstances. We do not seem to realize that to him as well as to ourselves, the thing in the beginning did not look wrong. The next time you hear of some one making a serious mistake, before you censure him too strongly, try and remember how it happened and give the other fellow an equal chance. If you haven't made the mistake, don't be sanctimonious about it, but think how close you have come to it and if you missed it the chances are the miss was due to circumstances beyond your control.

There is no man who is in a position to judge his fellow men. We all make mistakes and they are more or less the same kind. They vary in degree according to environment and circumstances beyond the individual's control, so no one has any occasion to pat himself on the shoulder. We know it is true that a cloudy sky makes the most beautiful sunset and it seems that this same thing is true of life. The man or woman who has met many trials and misfortunes in life, if they are not embittering, is the one who has the most beautiful old age.—Reformer.

Washington, D. C.—Senator Borah (Rep.) Idaho, was accused of posing as a "novel hero" and of uttering a "willful and deliberate falsehood" by Representative Hamilton Fish, (Rep.) N. Y., in a meeting of an American Legion post in Washington, Rep. Fish referred, in aid, to Mr. Borah's statement that members of the Senate and Congress were attempting to purchase their election by voting for adjusted compensation.

A WEEK'S NEWS.

Man was made by the creator an out door animal, and it is contrary to nature that he spends so much of his time in tightly closed buildings. It is interesting to see how as spring advances, the activities carried on indoors have to be suspended, owing to the difficulty of getting people out of the open air.

Concerts, theatricals, lectures, society events, a wide range of activities carried on in halls and homes, flourish in winter. But when spring and summer comes, people prefer to live out doors and these activities decline. Where previously it was possible to rally a good attendance, now folks are driving around in automobiles or playing out door games, or working in gardens.

It is one of the penalties of life in a temperate zone, that so much of the time must be spent in study buildings. Human welfare should persuade people to live out in spring and summer as much as possible, and enjoy pure air while they may.

May with all its pleasantness is here. Every living thing is moving in the way and manner that nature has decreed it should. The earth has on its gayest hue of myriad coloring, the birds, bees and domestic fowls have begun their great work of multiplication. One of the greatest signs of the happy days are sounds of saws, hammers and trowels in the hands of those who build and the switching of the paintbrush in the hands of the painters as they beautify the homes and lawns for the benefit of all humankind.

The defeat of Senator New, the administration candidate for re-nomination in Indiana, by former Senator Beveridge, is only another reason why President Harding should continue to prefer the convention system to the direct primary. If the nomination had been made by a small group of bloated men in a smoke filled room at 2 a. m., New undoubtedly would have won.

Undertaker Philip Taliaferro, of Erlanger, has sent the Recorder a number of high-class advertising articles, a different one of which will appear in the Recorder each week. Mr. Taliaferro is certainly a very progressive young man and believes in having everything up-to-date in every respect.

Thousands of Chicago families plan to move "under canvas" May 19. In an effort to meet the rent problem, tents will be pitched on vacant lots and forest preserves, according to the Chicago Tenants' League. Tent manufacturing concerns have agreed to supply tents at wholesale prices.

A black-headed albatross followed a steamship across the North Pacific for 3,000 miles without once furling its wings. It started from a small island near Japan and when the ship was 1,900 miles from the nearest Alaskan port, it turned abruptly and flew toward the west.

At the residence of Mrs. Minnie Smith, a number of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Stephens, gave them a house-warming last Thursday evening. A number of useful presents were received by Mr. and Mrs. Stephens.

Fraternities of Chicago societies obtain more than 1,000,000 members annually, according to the secretary of the National Fraternal Congress of America, which has a membership of nearly 10,000,000 persons, and embraces 93 organizations.

Many of the country people can't go to church Sunday because they have to take their automobiles and go into the cities, and many city people can't attend because they have to take their cars out in the country.

The school boys that can't sing loud enough so they can be heard from the teacher's desk may be the same ones who wake up the whole town when they yell at the ball games.

The city people complain bitterly about the country roads of Kentucky, but their indignation rarely rises to the point where they volunteer to pay higher taxes to rebuild them.

Truck patches are being worked by many of the 165,000 idle anthracite workers of Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania. Cabbage and potatoes are the favorite crops.

The city people will develop an intense desire to renew friendship with their country cousins, about the time the vegetables and fruits are ripe.

A baby man-eating shark, hungry and vicious, was found as a stow-away in the bilge of a ship put in drydock in New York for repairs.

Attys. O. M. Rogers and Jno. T. Murphy, of Covington, were in Burlington, last Thursday on business.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Spring Naturally Brings A Brighter Outlook.

Business is still moving in the right direction despite recent developments of an unfavorable nature. Spring naturally brings a brighter outlook. Seasonal activity is helping. In addition to this, people believe business is growing better, and though the coal strike and other disorders throughout the country have slowed up some of our basic industries, they have not permitted this to displace long-range vision. The confidence is another vital cornerstone in the foundation of business prosperity.

The coal strike, unprecedented in its magnitude as well as potentially disastrous to business, became effective throughout the country when more than a half million miners ceased work on the last day of March. Government reports show that nearly two-thirds of the bituminous tonnage of the country has been closed by the strike. Whether this great walk-out will seriously retard or actually arrest the apparent movement toward business recovery is still problematical. It is estimated by government statisticians that, at the prevailing rate of consumption, consumers' stocks of soft coal on hand should last approximately 2 months. If the strike should be prolonged beyond that period, the nation would inevitably experience a fuel famine.

For this district, perhaps the most reliable indices of business prosperity are the monthly tonnage figures for pig iron and steel ingot production. The output of both pig iron and steel ingots was substantially greater in March than in February, the increase being due mainly to the heavy orders of certain railroads for new cars and other equipment. It is estimated that the railroads alone take, in normal times, almost one-fourth of the total steel tonnage. Several steel companies in this district have recently received large orders from the railroads. The U. S. Steel Corporation's March statement of unfilled orders shows the largest monthly increase recorded since April, 1920.

Latest reports from the Pittsburgh and Youngstown districts indicate that iron and steel plants are even now beginning to feel the effects of an actual or anticipated fuel shortage. A number of blast furnaces have been banked and some mills are curtailing or suspending operations in the interest of fuel conservation. As a result, the industry is still able to operate at about 75 per cent of capacity.

According to reliable trade sources, practically all of the large manufacturers of passenger cars and trucks turned out more vehicles during March than in any other month since August, 1920. Passenger car and truck output for the first quarter of this year far exceeded that for the corresponding period of 1921. One large producer of motor trucks in this district reported that March orders were considerably larger than in any month since May, 1920, and that deliveries exceeded those recorded for any month since September, 1920. It is confidently predicted that automobile and auto parts manufacturers will have a much larger volume of business this year than they had in 1921.

As would naturally be expected, the rubber tire industry is sharing with the automotive industry the increasing prosperity of the latter. Tire factories in Akron, Ohio, are reported to be operating at about 85 per cent of capacity. A recent advance in the price of crude rubber, however, has caused a slight curtailment in the part of tire manufacturers.

While an increase in building operations in spring is, of course, a seasonal phenomenon, there is no doubt but that the country is now experiencing a real boom in this field. The valuation of building contracts awarded during March in the northeastern districts increased 65 per cent over the February figure. The valuation of building permits issued by the principal cities in the Fourth Federal Reserve District during March was nearly double that reported for February, and about one-fourth more than the valuation of such permits issued in March, 1921.

No young man starting out for himself, however, dependent upon his own exertions can afford unnecessary expenses. He must deny himself extras or always remain poor. Even a five cent cigar each day will amount to $18.25 in one year; and one who saves that sum will be much ahead of the one who spends it. And the habit of saving will be worth everything. It saves $18.25 each year, only putting it at six per cent simple interest, it in twenty years amounts to $570. So much for one little trifle of indulgence. He who would in a few years be independent, and not envy the "capitalist" must start right.

The Obstacle to Progress.

Everything seems to be favorable for a rapid advance of country life, if it were not for one thing, the condition of the roads existing in many sections. Complaints from places where the highways have been saturated or washed out by spring rains, are more bitter than ever before.

Automobile and truck travel have given these roads more of a strain than formerly, so that road conditions may be worse than they were years ago.

If the country people in these sections would appoint volunteer work days and all turn out and help, some of the worst roads could be greatly improved. Meanwhile a careful study needs to be made of the best methods of maintaining country roads. In many places money enough has been spent, but it was not judiciously used.

Planting the School Yard.

In colleges and schools it is customary for classes to plant ivy or some other vine or a tree. This vine or other growth is cherished as the symbol of that class. In course of years the grounds about that institution are beautified by many such living souvenirs.

Every class in a country town school ought to leave some growing thing behind as a reminder of its life in school. These youngsters have received great benefits now let them turn around and make a little return, by doing something to beautify the school that gave them their start in life.

POULTRY SHOW

Greatly Enjoyed By Crowd In Attendance Last Thursday Night.

Notwithstanding the short time in which it was advertised, a fair sized crowd attended the meeting given under the auspices of the Boone County Poultry Association at the Moving Picture Theater at Burlington, last Thursday night, the house, lights and other amenities being furnished by R. E. Berkshire, who is ever ready and willing to assist in promoting a Boone county enterprise.

The pictures consisting of a one reel comedy on "Layers and Liars" were splendid—illustrating the difference of a well kept flock and a poor flock, were very much enjoyed by all those present.

County Agent Sutton, in a short talk introduced Mr. J. R. Smith, of the Poultry Department, State University, Lexington, Ky., who needed no introduction to the poultry raisers of the county, as he has spent much time among them in assisting them in culling the "Layers from the Liars". Mr. Smith's talk was very entertaining and instructive to the members of the association present, as well as the large number of others from different parts of the county.

J. W. Huey, of Union, President of the association, made a short talk urging a systematic culling campaign in all parts of the county, so contended that the poultry raising industry in the county could learn to cull out the "layers" from their flocks.

It is very much regretted that there were not more members of the association present, at the show last Thursday night, as it was one of the best meetings ever held in the county.

That part of Mr. Smith's talk pertaining to poultry diseases coming at this season of the year, was well worth the trip to Burlington.

LADY ASTOR'S ADVICE.

Lady Astor, the famous member of the English House of Commons who has just visited the United States, should be an inspiration to every woman who has ambitions for a wider career and would like to do something for her country.

Lady Astor says that women are needed in politics, and that just as the man who lacks the care of some woman will show it in his appearance, so the country needs the kind of effort and care that women put into home life.

If women will put into their political relations the same thoughtfulness and unselfish devotion they give to their children, they will constitute a great force for good. They will not necessarily have to neglect their home cares, any more than a man need let his business go to pieces when he enters politics.

J. A. White, a well-known Kentucky farmer, said he could beat his hands chucked corn after taking Tanlac. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick Burlington, Ky.

The people who are tired of the deathly quiet in the country towns, might go over to Ireland where there is something doing every minute.

The man who economizes on paint for his buildings, often finds that the purchaser of his property can economize on the price he has to pay for it.

CROP CONDITIONS

Farmers Behind in Work--Tobacco Transplanting Season Upon Them.

The rain of the latter part of last week resulted in further delay in corn planting in Boone county and also held up preparation of ground for later crops. A big per cent of the acreage intended for corn still remains unplanted and prospects are that corn will be late in getting started. Tobacco plants are growing fast and will be ready in plenty of time for transplanting season. They are looking good and growers are expecting the food quality of the plants to prove a big factor in growing a good crop this year. The showers of the last week were helpful not only to the plants but also to garden and pastures. Early vegetables are growing fast after getting a late start.

Although the frost of two weeks ago cut heavily into the fruit prospects, indications are that this crop will be far better than the average in Boone. Fruit on low ground suffered heavily from the cold snap, but orchards on higher ground escaped with far less damage. The strawberry yield also will be reduced from early season indications but will still be far greater than that of a year ago.

Although the warm rains of the latter part of the week were helpful to tobacco beds, gardens, pastures and small grain, which in some cases were beginning to need more moisture, the bad weather came as an unwelcome visitor to farmers who are already behind with their spring plowing and planting. A good deal of progress was made in corn planting and ground turning during the early part of the week, but many acres are still untouched and indications are that, unless continued fair weather arrives soon, farmers will be far behind with their work before the tobacco transplanting season arrives.

Wheat and rye are in good condition. Oats and potatoes are generally late. A large proportion of both crops have been planted but a short time. Early oats are looking well, as well as early potatoes in well drained soil. Planting of a full acreage of these crops has been prevented by the continued rains.

Meadows, pastures, clover and alfalfa continue in luxuriant condition.

Not much has been done in preparing tobacco land. The character of the weather during the next two or three weeks will be of the utmost importance to both the corn and tobacco crops.

YEGGEMEN LOOT

The H. & S. Pogue Store, Cincinnati, of $25,000--Vault Blown With Nitroglycerin

In one of the biggest and most daring robberies of its kind ever attempted in Cincinnati, six expert cracksmen, after hindering and making prisoner two aged watchmen, Sunday night, drilled one large vault in the basement and with several charges of nitroglycerin blew open another vault in the offices on the sixth floor of the H. & S. Pogue Company's store, Fourth and Race street, one of Cincinnati's largest and most exclusive mercantile establishments, obtaining loot estimated at more than $25,000, most of which was in bank notes and currency of small denominations.

In addition to the loot obtained, which represents part of Saturday's receipts for the store, the yeggmen, in blowing the large office safe on the sixth floor, wherein, in addition to the large amount of cash, were also all of the important records and documents of the establishment, caused damage to these records and to the safe, office equipment and goods on display on the floor estimated at an additional $15,000.

Although definite estimates as to the amount of the loot have not been known until a complete checkup is made of the deposits in the vaults by the different cashiers in the store, Robert W. Pogue, President of the prisoner two aged watchmen, Sun-levied the loot may exceed his first estimate of $25,000.

HAS SET TOBACCO.

Robert Popham, of the Gunpowder neighborhood, one of the best tobacco growers of the county, set considerable of his crop last week.

MADE A GOOD RECORD.

Aubrey Finn, who has pitched ball for the Bellevue team the past few seasons, pitched a try-out game for Cleveo, Ohio, last Sunday week.

Some people charge so much for their labor that no one can afford to hire them, but anyway they get an excuse for sitting around idle.

HABIT OF SYSTEM.

Watch different business men handle their morning mail. The unsystematic kind leave their letters all in a heap. The disorder of their desks creates a desperate and strained feeling that prevents clear thinking. They plunge anxiously from one thing to another and grow hurried and ineffective.

The systematic kind will manage somehow to classify those letters, so as to work in an orderly way. Some matters require further investigation. Those are placed in one neat pile and attended to at one time. Others require orders to subordinates. Those are kept together. Others can be answered at once, and these are done at one time.

The human mind can accomplish more work in a given time, when it works along one thing until it completes that process, instead of constantly shifting from one thing to another. Also the systematic man's orderly habits make him feel mastery over his desk, and he works calmly and efficiently.

WEIGHT CHANGES EVERY HOUR.

We are lightest when we rise in the morning. Breakfast puts on a pound or so, but we lose some of this by lunch time, when we again add to our weight. After lunch back we go once more, though, as between breakfast and lunch, we retain part of the increase. Then comes dinner, which brings us up to our maximum. We are ten gained, on the average, seven pounds during the day. Generally, therefore, the greatest variation during the 24 hours is seven pounds, the weight lost between dinner and breakfast.

BACCALAUREATE

Services at Baptist Church--Seating Capacity Filled To The Limit.

The programme for the Baccalaureate services as appeared in the Recorder of last week, was faithfully and delightfully carried out at the Burlington Baptist church, Sunday evening last. Long before the hour set for beginning, the services, parents and admiring friends of the seniors, graduates, in whose honor the service was held, began to fill the seats of the spacious church building—eager fathers, gallant young men, devoted mothers, pretty spring hats covering prettier young girl faces—all blending in harmonious accord with beautiful flowers that decorated the pulpit, soon radiated upon a church, filled to its seating capacity, presenting a scene that spoke louder than words of the high esteem in which the people of Burlington and elsewhere, hold the Boone County High School.

Rev. W. W. Adams, pastor of the Burlington Baptist church, who delivered the Baccalaureate sermon, prefaced his address in commending the faculty and Board of Education for the splendid and satisfactory manner in which the school has been conducted, and then after reading a chapter of The Acts of the Apostles followed by prayer by Rev. Tomlin, pastor of the Methodist church, he then took for his subject of address, "I appeal Unto Caesar."

Rev. Adams was in his happiest mood, and with an emphasis of feeling so characteristic of his nature, he delighted his audience with one of the most appropriate and interesting addresses it has been our pleasure to hear upon occasion of this kind.

The large crowd was favored with a solo "Just For Today" by Mrs. Floeste-Campbell, Martin, with organ accompaniment by Mrs. M. A. Yelton. After singing by the audience "My Country 'Tis of Thee" and the pronouncing of the benediction by Rev. Adams, closed a delightful evening's entertainment.

Following are the names of the graduates of the class of 1922: Misses Isabelle Duncan, George Kirkpatrick, Gladys Wilson, Elmore Eggleston, Messrs. Owen Acra, Edwin Crigler and John Birkle.

On Tuesday evening, May 16, the Cales Play, "Esmeralda," was greeted by a crowded house at the Movie Picture Theatre, which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

Next Monday evening, May 22, at 8:00 o'clock, another big treat is in store for the people of Boone county, when the class address will be delivered at the Baptist church by Rev. H. C. Runyan, of Latonia, who needs no introduction to the people of Boone county. This will complete one of the most delightful entertainments ever given in connection with the Boone County High School.

BAD REPAIR.

County Road Engineer Porter and a force of hands have been spreading stone on the Dry creek pike the past few days. The hill leading to Constance on that pike was in very bad repair.

CONSIDERABLE HAIL.

During the first of last week there was considerable hail in the Gunpowder neighborhood and land was washed badly.

TOBACCO POOLERS

Come to Burlington Next Saturday, May 20th, and Get Check for Your Tobacco.

Come to Burlington next Saturday and get check for your tobacco. Every grower that has delivered tobacco to the pool we earnestly request to be there. Every precinct worker must be there. Check to be given out at Burlington will be for tobacco grown in Boone county, and will be for practically the same that was advanced on delivery. Checks not called for will be returned to Lexington and mailed to the growers last known address. Those who cannot come and wish to have some one get check for them may do so by designating some one to sign for them or notify precinct worker.

C. O. HEMPLING,
County Chairman.

HONORING THE MOTHERS

Most of our public observances are based on events or ideas that date back many years or centuries. But Mother's Day, observed the 2nd Sunday in May, is a comparatively recent development. It seemed as if the human family had gone on for years accepting thoughtlessly all the devotion and service offered by the mothers, without feeling it necessary to express thanks therefor in any public way. Mothers have gone uncelebrated too long, and they should be given the enthusiastic words of appreciation and tenderness that they so richly deserve.

Most men and women fail to express this sentiment as they should. They allow their mothers to pass out of this life without ever telling them how much gratitude they feel.

A great deal of this mother love is given without full return. The mother devotes her whole life to a son. Then when he becomes of age, he falls in love with some girl and gives her his first affection, though she has never relatively little for him compared with the lifelong service and sacrifice offered by his mother.

Our people owe their present advancement to the efforts of motherhood quite as much as to any other cause. It is the patient effort of mothers in all these millions of homes to bring up good and true sons and daughters, that is the hope of the nation. Although the world is full of demoralizing influences, yet at home the loving mother heart is always trying to make the coming generation better and happier than its predecessors.

Most people owe far more to the quiet guidance and toilsome efforts of their mothers than they can possibly realize. Mother's Day is an occasion when those fortunate enough to have living mothers can make some slight return by generous words of affection and recognition.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON

"The meanest man" story is forever being retold in the daily press. Washington, at the moment, is inclined to award the palm to those responsible for the threatened "picketing" of the White House by the wives and children of political prisoners, with the avowed end and aim of forcing President Harding to extend pardons to these offenders.

Without discussing the question of the rights and wrongs of the sentences given the one hundred, and forty to award the palm to those responsible for the threatened "picketing" of the White House by the wives and children of political prisoners, with the avowed end and aim of forcing President Harding to extend pardons to these offenders.

It may well be that pardons may be given some or all of them. But if such a course is pursued, it will be because, in the judgment of the Department of Justice, the ends of justice will thus be best served, and not because propagandists use women and children in an attempt to play upon the sympathies of the public. Recently the murderer, the absconder, the robber, the train-wrecker, the bandit, who cannot find some man to weep, and some child to cry after him; but they are no reasons why he should not suffer that society be protected.

The President has indicated very plainly that he is not to be moved by spectacular means of this kind; that every case must be decided upon its merits. He has the support of all right-thinking citizens in this stand. Meanwhile, Washington regards as likely candidates for the "meanest men" crowns those individuals who organize and use helpless children, and their child-love for the fathers in whom they loyally believe, to embarrass the President and attempt to force him to do for sentimental reasons that which his oath of office prevents his doing for any reason other than to serve the best interests of the country.

The biggest fish always get away, particularly when the party is well supplied with home brew.

RED CROSS MEETING

The time for next county meeting was set for May 22, at 2 p. m., at the Florence fair grounds. We do hope some interest will be shown, and we will come and help us work in our own county. Don't sit at home and knock because you don't understand the need of this aid. Come and push.
 The Executive Secretary of the Boone County Red Cross has been at work now for over a month. In this time seven ex-soldiers have been to her to help them. Two compensation cases have been arranged, three medical treatments given, one soldier sent to hospital, one vocational training arranged. Under Civilian Relief one man secured a loan to start in business.
 A letter from Lake Division manager states that there will be just one headquarters after May 10, and all directions will come from Washington, D. C., instead of Cleveland.
 Oard of Thanks—To all whose helpful ministrations were so generously given in the sorrowful days when sickness and death came into our home and took from us our dear mother, Mrs. Mary Howlett, I desire to express our grateful appreciation to Dr. O. E. Senour for unremitting service to save, to understander C. Scott Chambers for his consideration and impressive management of the funeral, and also to Bro. Baker for the beautiful tribute paid to my dear mother. Again I thank you all.
 Olive Pinnell.

The spring meeting of the W. M. U. of North Bend Association will be held at the Madison Ave. Baptist church Thursday May 25th, at 10 o'clock. A large attendance is earnestly desired.

 Supt. W. M. U. Work.

STRAWBERRY SOCIAL

TO BE GIVEN BY Ladies' Aid of Hopetown Church
 At the Church

Saturday Eve., May 27
 PUBLIC WELCOME

When the Federal District Court for Eastern Kentucky was in session at Richmond one day last week the last was brought out, incidental to a criminal hearing, that Judge Andrew M. J. Cochran, who presides over that tribunal, had not been reversed in a criminal case during the twenty years that he has adorned the Federal bench in our State.

AS THE EDITOR SEES IT.

A farmer can work ten hours a day on a piece of land and make a bare living.
 Another farmer can work eight hours a day on the same land and bank a good profit each year.
 There's a reason.
 The successful man studies conditions and analyzes suggestions and makes improvements as rapidly as it is possible for him to do so. His returns are in proportion to the activity of his brain.
 The other man is slow to change. He doesn't "take any stock in new fangled notions." What was good enough for his father is good enough for him. And that's all he gets.
 When put to practical use brains become a valuable asset.
 When merely carried around in a skull they are little better than a burden.
 Every time a notorious criminal goes to jail a lot of mushy mushies begin to coddle him.
 Excuses are sought, maulin sentiment is created, and in the end the culprit is often turned loose by a yellow or purchased jury.
 That is one reason why the country is debauched with crime.
 If we can't keep the criminals in jail, why not substitute the mushy mushies and corrupt jurors?
 That, at least, would be some consolation.

Russia may be a land of starvation and desolation, but the bolshevik leaders have combined with Germany and have plunged the old world into a frenzy of turmoil.
 Everybody knows what ought to be done, but nobody knows how to do it.
 Each nation has a pet suggestion of its own with which no other nation agrees.
 Two cats thrown over a line with their tails tied together will spill and scratch and make a lot of noise.
 The Genoa delegates may not be dangling over a line, but their actions are much the same.
 Keep the Atlantic between us.

THE SATISFACTIONS OF COUNTRY LIFE

The worst feature of city life is its lack of independence. The great majority of city people have to identify themselves with some business of considerable size, in which they must subordinate their own needs and welfare to the will of their employer or the needs of the concern.
 If a man needs an extended vacation under such conditions for the benefit of his health, it may be almost impossible for him to get it. Leaving his job would throw the whole system into confusion, and he may have to stick it out until he drops. He must turn up at his place of employment every day but holidays and a brief vacation period. Family exigencies do not count. If he wants a day off to attend to personal interests or welcome old friends, he can not possibly get it. He is a cog in a machine and must turn with the rest of the outfit.
 In country life men and women are far more independent. A large part of their own enterprises, and if there is a special reason why they need a little time off, they can take it and make up their work at some other time. Or if they are employed by others, relations are usually so personal and friendly that the needs of the individual are considered. A man is his own master. That is a wonderful blessing. No one realizes it until he has drilled along for years under the rule of others.

It is a great satisfaction for a man to work on his own business. He is not giving his time and strength to enrich another man, but his labor goes to create something for himself and his family. He feels a deep sense of pride in his farm in his store or his workshop.
 He has put the best of his life into them, and they create a protection on which he can depend in time of sickness or old age. This sense of independence and security that goes with a life of his own is a great many dollars, and it counts more than many brilliant business successes in a large city.

AN OLD JOKE.

(William Sanford in Judge.)
 I never believed in platonic friendship. I've heard a lot about it, but I claim it's a joke!
 But one summer I met a pretty girl who believed it. She told me that platonic friendship would have to be platonic nothing. She said we could be good chums and not get it all up by being sentimental. I didn't want to get married, so I readily agreed. As we both then knew that it would be perfectly safe, we started in at once with moonlight and so forth.
 That was ten years ago. Today we have seven fine children and my wife is very busy. So am I. Any woman who has ever had to take care of seven fine children knows how busy my wife is, and any man who has ever had to provide for that number knows how busy I am.
 I never believed in platonic friendship. I've heard a lot about it, but I claim it's a joke.

RIGHTY TAKE EXAMINATION.

INCREASED ACREAGE MARKS NEW INTEREST IN SOYBEAN AND CORN GROWN TOGETHER

Lexington, Ky.—Prospects are favorable for a 50-thousand-acre crop of soybeans in corn in Kentucky this year, according to Ralph Kenney, crops extension specialist of the College of Agriculture. Farmers in all parts of the State are showing increased interest in this combination which has proved to be an economical one for pork production when hogged off and valuable as a soil improver when the beans are allowed to rot on the land after the hogging off or the corn harvested.

Safe crackers in New York blasted a safe next door to the police station. Fortunately, however, none of the police were disturbed from their slumbers.

A German statesman proposes a tax of $100 on every Frenchman entering Germany. France, however, is collecting a considerably larger fee on the several hundred thousand Germans who entered France in 1914.
 Joe Tumulty is giving more trouble than any of our other ex-presidents.

IN THE RIGHT PLACE.

Nine hundred husky prisoners started a rough house in the county jail in Chicago the other night.
 If pandemonium were to break out in hell it would be a "quaker meeting" compared to the uproar raised by those iron barred birds.
 The night guards didn't know what to do. They summoned the new jailer—and he did know.
 He didn't preach a sermon, and neither did he give fatherly advice. He just took a squad of guards, waded into the den, yanked out the ring-leaders one by one, and administered to each a sound flogging where dad's slipper used to hit.
 It was effective.
 It is also worth remembering.

For one dollar a ton of freight can be carried by different methods, based on costs as furnished by Government records:
 By horse and wagon a little over four miles.
 By railroad 133 miles.
 On Erie Canal 353 miles.
 On European Canal 24 miles.
 On the lake 1,000 miles.
 By the Mississippi 2,000 miles.

Controlling Automobile Speeding.

In spite of all efforts to promote courtesy and care among automobile drivers, a certain element of them will continue to make life and limb unsafe on city streets and motor roads.
 The officers of Kentucky should realize that the public is growing more alarmed and indignant at the way some drivers tear around the streets and make the roads unsafe. The police can not wholly check this evil. But if they will maintain constant vigilance, if they will take the numbers and complain of offending drivers and haul them into court relentlessly, they will persuade this class of people that they will avoid bother, worry and expense. If they pay some decent regard to the law, Police forces can't be everywhere at once, and they can't see all the reckless and arrogant things that are done. But if they issue a complaint for every violation of law that they do observe, they will make the career of the speeder quite unpleasant.

Hon. W. B. Campbell and family, of Cincinnati, spent a few hours in Burlington, Sunday morning. It being Mother's Day he visited the old cemetery just north of town and placed flowers on the grave of his mother, who has been buried for nearly a half century.

How we would value a friend who was all goodness, all self sacrifice, all kindness, all forgiveness, always ready to help us and powerful enough to do it—the chap who stands by in the storm and who never deserts. If we threw down a pal of this kind I suppose we'd be pretty crazy, and yet—we go to church on Sunday; pretend to believe all these things about man's only lasting friend, the Great Creator, we put a quarter in the plate and then say, "see you next week."

MOTHER'S DAY.

Last Sunday was observed all over the nation as Mother's Day, May 14th. And well it should be for if there is one person that deserves a memorial day, it is a mother.

The strongest, holiest influence in this life is that of the mother. Religion, perhaps, holds second place in this respect. But motherhood and all that is best in any faith which seeks to lift mankind to nobler living practically are synonymous in purpose and symbolism.

The mother's influence—it is deathless. Jesus was the child of a woman—why? In order that the world might realize the sacredness of motherhood in the eyes of God.

Whose hand is it that guides our first wavering steps? Who teaches the first lifting prayers of baby-land? Whose love is it that never fails, no matter what the lapses of time; no matter how dark the record of our sins?

When we step aside from the path of decency, rectitude and honor whom do we most desire to spare the knowledge of our trespasses. Years may pass, but the memory of one face endures in every human heart. And that face wears the halo of eternal youth!

The wickedest as well as the best of men have loved and praised their mothers. Her place is above that of Princes, priests, potentates and Kings—the place of highest reverence in the consciousness of mortals.

It is impossible for any of us to realize in fullest measure the all that we owe to mother love. But fire nor flood, nor hope of heaven nor fear of hell can stay her when she hears the cry of her child in its hour of need. The world does well to bear in its heart of hearts constantly the sweet symphonies which consecrate its service and perpetuate its love for the mother, soul, whence springs all that is of worth in earth or heaven.

BASE BALL.

Before a very large crowd last Sunday afternoon Taylorsport was defeated by Miamitown, Ohio, 5 to 1. Black struck out 9 men and Moak the pitcher for Miamitown struck out 14. This is one of the fastest teams in the league and Taylorsport will have to brighten up their batting eye if they expect to hold their record with them. Moak had them at his mercy at all times during the game, and worked easy. Taylorsport will play Addyston at Addyston next Sunday.

Petersburg journeyed to Florence Saturday afternoon and succeeded in breaking the winning streak of the Florence boys, defeating them by a score of 8 to 5.

Florence plays Bellevue at Bellevue next Saturday afternoon.

Aubrey Finn won his game with Ceres last Sunday by a score of 3 to 2.

The checks for the second distribution to the growers from the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association will be distributed at Burlington next Saturday. It is reported that when this payment has been made then the growers who are in the pool will have received a higher average than was received by the growers who sold on the open market, and there remains 6,000,000 lbs. yet in the pool to be sold. This shows that those who advocated the co-operative movement knew the movement would be for the benefit of the grower. It is not necessary that every one come to Burlington to get their checks, but the checks will be delivered to any one to whom the grower may direct. The association has adopted this plan of distributing checks in order that every member will receive his check on the 20th inst.

DEATH OF MARY HOWLETT

Mrs. Mary Howlett, one of Boone county's most excellent old ladies, died at her home at Bly Bone Springs Monday night, May 8, from paralysis with which she had been stricken some time ago. She was about seventy-one years old and lived in Boone county all her life.

She had no children but was a good hearted lady and adopted a daughter, Mrs. Ollie Finnell, now living at Detroit, Mich. The funeral took place Thursday at 2 p. m., from her late home, Rev. J. M. Baker of the Big Bone Methodist church, preached a very appropriate funeral sermon over the remains after which they were laid to rest in the family cemetery.

According to some prognosticators a heavy locust bloom indicates a bountiful crop year. Others say it indicates the coming of a very hard winter and point to the fact that the year 1917, which was followed by the terrific winter, was preceded by a heavy locust bloom. Even at that, they say, the bloom on the locust trees was nothing like as heavy as this year. There is one thing the heavy locust bloom will have its effect on, and that is the honey crop. The busy little bee is finding plenty to work on this year.

The Cincinnati Hay & Grain Co., sued R. E. Moore, one day last week claiming a small amount due for corn and feed sold him. Mr. Moore said that he did not order the corn and feed nor was it delivered to him, and upon a trial the court decided the case in favor of Mr. Moore.

SEASONAL TIPS

FOR GARDENERS.

As soon as the cutting season is over for asparagus, cultivation should be started and continued as long as there is no danger of breaking off the tops. In the fall, the tops should be cut and burned.

In order to have plants for transplanting about the last of July, it is necessary to have late cabbage seed sown by June 1. Flat Dutch, Louisville Drumhead and Succession are good late varieties, according to gardeners at the College of Agriculture. Late plants should be set about two feet apart in rows that are from two to three feet apart depending upon the kind of cultivation that is to be practiced. Horse cultivation requires that the plants be set about three feet apart.

Sweet potatoes can be set in the field almost any time after May 15. The plants are set about 16 inches apart on ridges that are from three and one-half to four feet apart. This crop requires from 150 to 170 days in which to mature.

Failure to set the plants deep enough is a common mistake made in transplanting tomatoes to the field. It does no harm to pull off a few of the lower leaves and set the plants as much as five inches deep. This places the roots in soil containing more moisture than that found near the surface and thereby increases the bearing season of the plants.

By planting the seed about May 15 it is possible to have celery plants to set out about July 1. Since the seed is slow to germinate, it is best to plant it only on soil that is in good condition and barely cover it with soil. It is a good idea to cover the box with cheesecloth until after germination takes place, care being taken to see that the seeds have plenty of ventilation and water whenever needed.

M. E. Small, who writes for the Carrollton News, says in last week's issue:

"We seek for pleasure and wonder why we do not find happiness. The answer is simple. They do not mean the same thing. Pleasure, is, for the most part, born of a spirit of unrest, a desire for amusement. Happiness comes from the spirit of contentment. Pleasure depends almost wholly on material aids and conditions. Happiness comes from within, and can shed a transforming radiance over the most unfavorable surrounding. Pleasure may be good or bad, according to its purpose and effect. Happiness can only come from that which is good: Pleasure lasts but a moment and its passing leaves you more depressed than ever. True happiness dwells with you forever and brightens the entire pathway of life. Then why not be happy always, for we have a beautiful world, one in which we should be happy all the time, for, my friends, when you die you will be dead a long time. So while you live have all the fun you can, for who knows what your future. No one."

BLOAT THREATENS CATTLE AS CLOVER OPENS BLOOM

Lexington, Ky.—Clover bloat will be claiming the usual number of victims among Kentucky cattle in the near future, livestock men at the College of Agriculture say. The trouble is most prevalent during the spring of the year when alfalfa and clover, especially the red and white varieties are in bloom, it is said. Farmers in a number of sections already have reported the appearance of the bloat in their herds.

Preventative measures are said to be important in controlling the trouble. It has been recommended that farmers turn their animals on new pastures gradually and that they give them a full feed of hay before they have been confined and fed dry feeds all winter. It also is well to have some hay in a pasture containing white or red clover since the animals instinctively eat hay and relieve themselves when they begin to bloat.

In cases of acute bloating, it is recommended that the sick animals be given one quart of a one and one-half per cent solution of formalin followed by placing a wooden block in the animal's mouth and gentle exercise if the animal can be gotten up. Formalin, which can be purchased at any drug store, can be made into the proper solution for drenching by adding one-half ounce of it to one quart of water.

After the animal has been relieved, it is well to drench it with one pound of Epsom salts and one-half ounce of ground ginger in a pint of tepid water.

THE SATISFACTIONS OF COUNTRY LIFE

It is a commonplace of practical philosophy that physical health is the first essential of happiness. Many a millionaire suffers agonies from poor digestion or other disorders. He spends his money lavishly on specialists and surgeons, but he finds that his unwholesome life for many years has permanently affected his vital organs.

He looks with envy at the cheerful farm hand who swings along the road in perfect health. The latter may be penniless, but a strong and perfectly functioning body, under the animating stimulus of open air life, gives him courage and satisfaction.

The millionaire would give away all his possessions and make a new start if he could get that healthy body again.

City occupations, or at least the most desirable ones, are generally carried on in crowded and stuffy offices, stores and workshops. The daily life of the man or woman breathes with the poisonous air of the human hive in which he is condemned to live. He catches all the contagions, and his body fed on vitiated air, grows more susceptible to the attack of disease.

Country people can always get healthy conditions by a little effort. The farmer's life may seem laborious, but it is the ideal one for physical development. Even if country people labor indoors, they can have good air in their workrooms and homes. Their tasks are active and of a nature to provide needed exercise.

If you take 100 average country people and 100 average city people, dress them in the same clothes, you could still tell the country folks by their more robust appearance. The so-called pleasures of city life are mere show and tinsel compared with the solid satisfaction of health, which is so much easier to attain in country surroundings.

AND STILL WE KICK.

I am writing this in my living room, my home on a typewriter that weighs no more than a moderate sized book.

Light is provided by a lamp in which burn two incandescent bulbs. In an adjoining room is a telephone from which I can talk to any city on this continent.

Almost within arm's reach are several shelves of books filled with the most profound and beautifully expressed thoughts of the ages.

The floors of my home are cleaned with a suction sweeper, operated by electricity, while the clothes are put through an electric washer and ironed in an electrically driven mangle.

My children attend a school where they are given a better education than the sons of kings could command a century ago.

I enjoy all these things and yet I am just an ordinary citizen with an ordinary income, living in an ordinary way. Tens of thousands have as much as I and more.

And yet I kick and wonder what ails the world.

Were the good things of life ever so easily at the command of the ordinary man as they are today? Don't we all do a lot of weeping that we haven't any right to do? And if we are not careful isn't there a danger that we will upset the greatest civilization the world has ever known?

William Feather, in the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Some children disobey their parents and get away with it by smiling sweetly. The parents think it is cute.

As the years take them nearer to maturity they disobey with impunity and snarl at any attempt at correction. That isn't so cute.

They end as they start, and the start is up to the parents.

NOBODY WORRIES.

We have but recently passed thru a war that tried the souls of the universe and practically bankrupted half of the world.

But nobody worries—in this country.

We paid out billions of dollars in upholding our army and navy and stand to lose billions more that we loaned to our allies.

But nobody worries.

We are only beginning to emerge from a period of business stagnation that would have rocked any other nation to its foundation.

But nobody worries.

Hundreds of thousands of our citizens have had to be clothed and fed and housed by their friends or by charity because there was no employment for them.

But nobody worries.

Taxes are high and expenses are heavy and everywhere it is a constant drain upon the resources of the people.

But nobody worries.

We see war clouds constantly hovering over Europe, with apprehension rife in the breasts of the world lest the fires of hatred again break out and engulf the universe.

But nobody worries.

We see our army reduced to a bleached skeleton and our navy but a dot upon the waters.

But nobody worries.

We see the incessant and bitter fight between labor and capital raging with unabated fury, hampering construction, retarding progress, and raising periodical hell from one end of the country to the other.

But nobody worries.

We see political battles fought with a degree of ferocity that would shame a cage of Bengal tigers.

But nobody worries.

We see royalty dethroned and reduced to poverty, governments crumbling from decay, millions dying from starvation in other lands, and whole peoples gradually descending to the savagery of the beasts of prey.

But nobody worries.

And amidst all of this scrambling of the peoples and of the affairs of the world, why do the people of the United States possess the moral and physical courage to refrain from worry?

Because we are a God fearing and a God believing people.

Because we are a republic founded upon the tenets of justice and right, with a firm and abiding faith that in the end right will prevail and justice will be done.

Because we are a people who have unbounded confidence in the stability of our government, regardless of the political complexion of the party that may be in power from year to year.

Because we prefer to do the things that work for success and happiness and let other people do the worrying that saps the vitality of life.

Why worry, anyway?

WAITING FOR NOISES.

Many Americans are waiting to hear the guns roar on the other side of the Atlantic. There is profit in it for them.

Others are waiting to hear the roar of the blast furnace, and the sound of the hammer, and the hum of the saw, and the song of the man in the field. There is also peace, and happiness, and contentment.

We coined money during the last war, but we paid dearly for our riches in the end.

And there are those who are ready to coin it again under like conditions. The person who would see the ravages of another war for the sake of personal gain is a poor American. He is not an American at all. He is not even a man.

He should be invited to close the door softly behind him as he boards an outgoing ship, and forget to return.

The building in which the racers were quartered was valued at $15,000.

The bloom on the black locust trees for the past week was the heaviest ever seen in this section of the country. Every bush and every tree was laden with the fragrant blossoms. Traveling thru the country one could look in any direction and see the flowering blossoms and smell their sweet fragrance. One would hardly realize that there are so many locust trees in the county as there are.

AS THE MODE DICTATES

Scattered among many new acquaintances in spring suits we meet with pleasure some tried, old friends. In suits of navy point twill, trimmed with braid and buttons. Here is one of them, living up to the dictates of the mode as to silhouette, length of coat and skirt and gaining new interest by virtue of a novel trimming of loose straps made of the material. Bands of silk braid about the waist, pass under these straps and six ball buttons serve to fasten and adorn the coat.

AS THE EDITOR SEES IT.

We often express our disapproval of "holly" people, and justly so. But there are times when a little "holiness" on the part of every citizen would be of benefit to this town.

Right now is one of those times. We are in favor of everybody getting out and noising around town and joining in a general clean-up. The town needs it, and what the town needs we need.

People who are scrupulous in keeping their hands and faces and bodies clean should be just as careful to keep their surroundings in likt condition.

This town is not the dirtiest place on earth, and neither is it the cleanest. It is betwixt and between, a condition which admits of improvement.

If the rest of the good people in this town are willing and ready to join the editor in a cleanup campaign it will be done. The official pencil pusher of this paper is not a Samson in strength, but he will go his limit if others will keep the pace with him.

No lagging on the side lines—no standing by and bossing—no palming off sick until the job is done—no shirking of any kind—make it a case of everybody work, including father.

Let's make a glorious day of it. Close every business and professional house in town. Make it, so unanimous it will be a scramble to get in on the deal.

Then, when the fun is all over, we can go home and clean ourselves up and feel mighty proud of the good work we have done.

Who's game? Or is everybody game?

Though it be of the humblest, the home that is clean and tidy and tasty is attractive.

Wealth may add gorgeousness, but it can not supply taste, or tact, or happiness alone.

It is the mind and the heart that make or unmake the home.

There are many worse than yours.

PEOPLE WHO DON'T THINK

A fellow who walked along, the main street the other day reading a newspaper. Suddenly he tossed the paper into the street and continued his journey.

A housewife opened a can of tomatoes. The empty can found its way into the back alley.

A young couple wandered aimlessly along, engrossed in themselves and the candy they were eating. The box was dropped onto the sidewalk.

A farmer's horse cast a shoe in the street. A bystander picked it up and tossed it into a vacant lot.

A convivial spirit edged into a corner and downed his last swig, and down went the bottle.

And so it goes on from day to day and from year to year, and so it has been going since mankind learned to enjoy the luxuries of life.

A little thing tossed into the discard here—another there—something somewhere else—but always something that adds to the rubbish that clutters up a town and renders the landscape less attractive.

It is pure thoughtlessness, and nothing else. But continued thoughtlessness of this kind on the part of a majority of the population can soon make any town resemble a deserted junk heap.

Our town and our people deserve something better.

Will you do your part.

If Henry Ford had followed his original intention of going in the watch manufacturing business we might now have the great boon of a nickel-plated watch for a nickel.

CONTROL OF WEEDS BIG NEED FOR CULTIVATION.

Lexington, Ky.—Corn cultivation that destroys weeds most effectively is best, regardless of how deep it goes or how often it is practiced, according to results of the experiments conducted for ten years at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. Moisture conservation, once considered a chief reason for cultivation, is secondary in importance as long as the weeds are kept down, the tests showed.

To determine the need for cultivation, the weeds on one plot were kept down by being scraped off with a sharp hoe. Despite the fact that no other cultivation was given, this plot yielded 529 bushels of corn an acre, as an average for 10 years, or only three bushels less than the cultivated area. However, this method of weed control was not considered practical because of the labor and expense involved.

Over the ten-year period, the average yields for shallow and deep cultivation practiced six to eight times during the growing season have been 55.5 and 56.2 bushels respectively while the average yields for shallow and deep cultivation practiced three to four times during the season have been 55.8 and 56.1 bushels respectively.

"Observations on the Lexington field show that cultivation conserves moisture if droughts begin when the corn is small," E. E. Stephenson, soils specialist of the station, said in discussing the results. "However, after the corn is well started and is about knee-high, the feeding roots are able to take up most of the moisture that the crop can utilize before it has a chance to evaporate from the surface, even though there is no cultivation other than scraping weeds."

"The outstanding thing brought out by the experiments is not the fact that cultivation is not needed but that it should be given at such time and in such a manner as to most effectively destroy weeds."

SOYBEANS IN CORN KEEP DOWN CHINCHBUG TROUBLE

Lexington, Ky.—In addition to forming a good combination for the economical production of pork, soybeans and corn grown together have another advantage which is being pointed out to Kentucky farmers by crop specialists at the College of Agriculture. When grown together, these two crops help to control chinch bugs which in some years become a serious menace to the corn crop, they say.

Soybeans grown in the row with corn help make the field shady, thus discouraging the activities of the bug which prefers an open growth. Natural enemies of the chinch bug also like the large amount of moisture held by the damp bean leaves. In addition to these two points, the bugs do not feed upon the soybeans, the specialists say.

SAMUEL A. RALSTON—A SENATE ASSET

While Democrats naturally rejoice over the defeat of the administration's favorite Senator Harry S. New in the Indiana primaries, carrying with it a repudiation of the Harding administration by Indiana Republicans, the greatest cause for rejoicing by Democrats is found in the character of the Democratic nominee for Senate in that State, former Governor Samuel M. Ralston, as the opponent of former Senator Beveridge in the fall election.

Equally gratifying is the fact that the Democrats of Indiana were generally favorable to Gov. Ralston's candidacy, which is no reaction whatever upon his four competitors, who received altogether half as many votes as the Democratic nominee. The result simply shows that the Democratic party in Indiana, by a large majority wanted Governor Ralston to represent the state in the United States Senate.

BROODY HENS NOW WEIGHTY DRAG ON POULTRY PROFITS

Lexington, Ky.—With egg prices lower than they have been at any time this season and feed prices slowly but steadily climbing from the low level reached last summer, high egg production is important in obtaining poultry profits, according to poultrymen at the College of Agriculture. Unless they are promptly broken up and returned to the laying flock, thousands of hens that become broody at this season of the year can seriously reduce the possibilities of obtaining profits, the poultrymen say.

Hens that begin to show signs of broodiness should be confined in slat bottomed coops immediately and given proper care and feed in order that they may start laying as soon as possible. It is best to give the birds the same grain feed that is being fed to the laying hens and plenty of milk or a dry mash composed of equal parts by weight of bran, ground oats, shorts, corn meal and tankage.

It is now proposed to put a tax on "profits that have been allowed to accumulate." That's a brilliant idea—provided they can find any profits that have been allowed to accumulate.

A radical writer says the labor unions are above the law. Doesn't that put the law pretty low down?

SAY IT NOW.

Some one we know is going to die some time.

Their good deeds will appeal to us, and will be emphasized by the death that overtakes our friends.

Before the grass begins to grow over them we will have many kind words to say of them. Their sterling qualities will be extolled, and their faults will be overlooked or forgotten.

That is the way of the world. But it might be different. We might commend their good qualities while they are still here to reap the benefits of that commendation.

A kind word means much to those who are striving to do right. It encourages them to remain steadfast in their laudable undertakings, to persevere in the path of honor, and to extend a helping hand to others who need enlightenment.

Say it to them in life. They can't hear you when dead.

Don't kick over the traces until you know what is on the other side.

There are no shadows on the sunny side of life except those we make ourselves.

Indirect Benefits of Gardening. The people who cultivate gardens, and who own lawns and tend their own flower beds, get something besides the vegetables and flowers they raise. Also something more than the satisfaction that comes from a well tended place and the money saved in hiring help.

No better exercise for the human body was ever devised than these wholesome jobs about one's home. There is a tonic in Mother Earth, and if you do not believe it, look at the rugged bodies and wholesome ruddy faces of the farmers in Boone county.

In many places people pay fees for physical culture classes in gymnasiums or pay doctor bills, when if they would just push their own lawn mower or run a garden, they would gain the physical stimulus they need. The men who do this kind of work have a better appetite, they have a more cheerful view of life, and they stand the strain and confinement of indoor work better than others.

A loud tongue emphasizes an empty head.

THE CALL FOR THE FUNERAL DIRECTOR

pre-supposes a stricken home, and a call for sympathy as well as service.

Only one who responds in this spirit, has sensed the real dignity of his calling and the opportunity of helpfulness to his neighbors.

With this of course must be a thorough knowledge of his business, combined with wisdom in counsel and suggestion.

It is often stated that a man and woman never talk upon the same subject at the same time. This is not true however, upon some occasions, for while two men are off in a fence corner some where talking about the planting and cultivating of their corn, their wives will at the same time be talking about the harvesting of their large crops of corn.

HEBRON.

The mud roads are in a very bad condition in places.

Kentucky's Dead in Glory Live. Gone back to God. What tomb could hide

The martyr souls, the sacrificed? For us, that light forever dwell, For home, met Fate mid hideous hell

On land, in air, on waters wide, Where rolled the Teutons awful tide; That Christian nations might abide In love and peace—on duty fled— Gone back to God.

O Mother mine, thy heart has sighed In memory's shrine thy tear has dried; From starlit-land where anthems swell

An angel soldier's clear notes tell Of love and peace—thy son who died! Gone back to God.

PROSPECTS ARE STILL GOOD FOR DOUBLED BEAN ACREAGE.

Lexington, Ky.—With the Kentucky soybean season close at hand, indications still point to a doubled acreage of the crop in the State this year, according to Ralph Kenney, crops extension specialist of the College of Agriculture. More interest has been shown by farmers in the beans this year than in any previous one, he said.

"We have found that the use of one of the best varieties, a good seed bed, inoculation, planting on the proper date and at the proper depth are the five essentials for success with the crop in Kentucky," he pointed out.

"Results obtained by farmers indicate that the Mammoth soybean variety is superior for hay in all parts of the State while the Haberlandt, Lexington and Hollybrook have proved to be good ones for seed and hogging off purposes.

"No field crop requires a better seed bed than soybeans. Experience has shown that good results are obtained by giving the bed a thorough preparation similar to that for corn.

"The importance of inoculation cannot be overestimated in connection with the successful growing of the beans. The soil for the necessary inoculation may be obtained from any field that grew soybeans the previous year, one pint of it being sufficient for a bushel of beans. Farmers who have never grown soybeans on the land before should inoculate their seed.

"In most parts of Kentucky, May 15 to 25 is the best time for planting the beans. By this time the soil is warm and if it is thoroughly worked before the beans are planted, many weeds can be killed and considerable moisture saved.

"Perhaps the most common mistake made in planting soybeans is to plant them too deep. On most soils, one inch usually is deep enough. The soybean crop with their necks crooked like other beans and if planted too deep may be injured by the crust that forms before they come through the soil.

BLACKHEAD AND PARASITES KILL MANY YOUNG TURKEYS.

Lexington, Ky.—More young turkeys are killed in Kentucky each year by blackhead and parasites than by any two other troubles affecting these birds, according to J. Holmes Martin, in charge of poultry work at the College of Agriculture. Unless hatched and brooded artificially, young birds suffer heavily from parasites while many deaths often result from blackhead, which is a serious and infectious disease, it was pointed out. Control of these troubles represents an important problem in this State, which stands fifth among all states in turkey production, Mr. Martin said.

"Taking care of the mother hen before the eggs are hatched has been found to be a good way to keep the young birds free from lice. A good house powder, such as sodium fluoride, applied close to the skin below the vent and on the head, back and legs of the mother hen will rid her of lice. A small piece of blue ointment, about as big as a pea, placed on the skin under the vent, is effective in controlling the pests.

"As a preventive measure in the case of blackhead, it is well to disinfect carefully the utensils used for feeding the turkeys, as well as the sick birds, and then to keep the sick birds in a dry place which is well lighted and ventilated.

"Sick birds should be isolated at once. A 7.3-grain tablet of bichloride of mercury should be dissolved in each two gallons of drinking water and kept before the young poultry for two days. Nothing but clean crock or wooden vessels should be used.

"Further steps to prevent the spread of blackhead may be taken when turkey or chicken hens are used as mothers by housing them in colony houses about six feet square, each of which should be located in the center of four equal lots or runs. Keeping the poultry on fresh ground by means of changing them from one lot to another about every ten days will help keep down the spread of the disease. Green crops should be kept growing in the lots which also should be limed frequently."

Employment For Country Women.

Many country women feel a desire to take up little enterprises of money earning on their own account. Some do very well in making household knick-knacks, conveniences, and little art objects. If a person has artistic taste, she can find delightful occupation in such ways and often sell a good deal of material.

The woman or girl of more ordinary type can also earn money by raising some good product. A great many have made and sold jams and preserves and canned stuff.

Millions of women earn pocket money through chicken raising, farrowing, butter making, etc. Any country woman who wants to have her own enterprise can find a market if she will advertise and turn out a good product.

THE SATISFACTIONS OF COUNTRY LIFE

In cities people look at brick walls and paved streets and their hearts dry up from lack of beauty and variety. In the country the fields and flowers and woods, the trees and water courses and hills constitute a great pageant of beauty that inspires and elevates.

It is sometimes said that country people get tired of their beautiful scenes. That is sometimes true of folks who have allowed their minds to become filled with false ideals. They are anxious to join the movement of the crowd and see tawdry glitter of shows. If they satisfy this longing and give up their country homes and go to the cities, they soon find how empty these satisfactions are.

If they stay in the country, their sky is not shut off and darkened by tall buildings, nor is the landscape rendered ugly by sordid dwellings. Every natural object is as God made it and good to look at.

The country people are more attached to their lovely scenery than they realize. If they move away, their mind dwells on the sights they have left, which grow dearer as the result of absence.

Birds and flowers are a continual source of interest. It is more fascinating to watch the ways of the animate life of a country village or farm than to see the shows of the theaters or the possessions of the streets.

The action of a favorite dog or horse warms the heart, and is a comfort in days of effort and fatigue. Many people find constant interest and pleasure in watching the development of intelligence in animals and training by sordid dwellings. Every natural object is as God made it and good to look at.

It is also claimed that, figuring indirect expenses like traveling, motoring, etc., connected with golf playing, the total expenses related to golf will amount to $1,000,000,000.

From one point of view such an estimate is encouraging, indicating that the country is far more prosperous than many people claim. But from another, it shows disproportionate ideas of using money. Golf is a splendid and wholesome game, but at the majority of clubs it is played with too many superfluities. If people simply went in for the healthful indoor exercise, they could get all its benefits from a sum far below those named above.

Some people are always complaining of hard times, yet money is being spent for pleasures and luxuries very much as usual. The Golfer's magazine, for instance, figures that $319,000,000 will be spent this year for expenses directly connected with golf, including club houses and courses, balls and clubs.

It is also claimed that, figuring indirect expenses like traveling, motoring, etc., connected with golf playing, the total expenses related to golf will amount to $1,000,000,000.

PRISONERS USE CORNBREAD AND SUGAR TO MAKE BEER, WATER COOLER FERMENTER.

Pikeville — Starving themselves that they might utilize the cornbread served, and going without sugar in order that it might make the cornbread ferment and on a scant ration of water, in the jail here have operated a small brewery for more than a week. Detection came thru the uproarious joviality of the men. Disturbed by the mystery of their happiness, Jailor Rowe finally appealed to Sheriff Childers, and together they made another of numerous searches. They found a lard can, supposed to be a water cooler, was being used to ferment the beer. Rowe fed the remaining contents to his hogs and he said it made them break out of their pen.

STATE NEWS.

BOY WHO COULDN'T SWIM
RESCUES DROWNING BROTHER
THEN SLIPS BACK TO DEATH

Greenville—Forest Jernigan, 16, gave his life for his brother. With two other boys, they were bathing in a pond near the home of their father, Frank Jernigan. Neither of them could swim. Elbert Jernigan, 14, stepped into deep water, and was drowning. Forest unhesitatingly rushed to him. He did not know a stroke of swimming, but floundering as he choked, he pushed his brother back to where he had stepped off, there to be caught and taken safely to the shore by Clyde Jernigan, a cousin. Then the heroic youngster slipped back into the deep without a struggle to leave a ripple. He was a junior in the high school.

FAMOUS "GOSPEL NAG" WHICH HAD PULLED RAIL PARSON
THIRTY-SIX YEARS SUCCUMBS.

Lawrenceburg.—Known to thousands as the "Gospel Nag," and to her affectionate master simply as "Filly," the mare which for thirty-six years had drawn Rev. W. D. Moore in his ministerial work in Anderson and adjacent counties, succumbed to indigestion. She was more famous in this section than either Man o' War or Morvich. To the parson her death amounts to a profound bereavement.

LIGHTNING STRIPS ROOSTER OF EVERY FEATHER AS HE CROWS AND DIGS GRAVE.

Mayville.—On the farm of Mark Carrigan, near the mouth of Brush Creek, this county, a rooster in the front yard, which was in the act of crowing, according to witnesses, was struck by lightning. Every feather was removed from his body. The bolt upheaved a large hole where the fowl stood.

BOLT PIERCED BOARD AND KILLED HORSE IN STABLE.

Louisville.—A lightning bolt struck the barn of Fred Raderer near Jeffersontown, pierced the side of the building, leaving a tiny hole, and killed one of four horses quartered there. The sides of the hole through which the bolt passed were not scorched.

BLOCKHOUSE SET UP BY MOONSHINERS WHO ARE SURPRISED, CAPTURED.

Somerset.—A feudal blockhouse, with portholes and breastingworks, protected a still in the vicinity of Lovelless school house taken by a sheriff's posse. Several army rifles and two Winchester were within, the operators being so completely surprised that they could not get to their arms. The plant was well equipped, the still being a government affair of 80 gallons capacity. Four men have been arrested.

NEGROES SURRENDER FOR DOUBLE KILLING OF WHICH AUTHORITIES KNOW NOTHING.

Harlan—Geo. and Thos. Cooper, brothers, have come in from High Splint and, accusing themselves, surrendered on the charge of having killed two other negroes. They were lodged in jail. They do not know the names of the men killed, and officials have been unable to learn their identity in any facts about the tragedy. The negroes state that they were attacked and know that their assailants both were killed. George Cooper displays a bullet wound which parted his hair.

MAGISTRATE'S CALF EATS THIRTY-TWO CHICKS AFTER DEVOURING SADDLE, PAPERS.

Danville.—At the meeting of the fiscal court, Magistrate Joseph H. Bonta, of the Junction City district, told his colleagues of the most remarkable calf he has ever owned, making judicial declaration to the truth of what he related. The eccentricities of the calf first became manifest when he ate—masticated and swallowed—the squire's leather saddle. Shortly thereafter, the calf found and ate a pile of newspapers thrown out in the housecleaning—several dozen he said. The climax came when the magistrate found that the young bovine was eating chickens. A hasty count showed that he had devoured thirty-two of Mrs. Bonta's frying prospects. The calf is now in close confinement.

STRICKEN ENROUTE TO

IT'S TIME TO QUIT.

Statement of Congressman Arthur B. Rouse, Chairman of the National Democratic Congressional Committee.

The great millionaire Republican Ways & Means Committee of the House last Wednesday presented a bill providing for ten extra collection districts in the United States. This bill met with the unanimous opposition of the Democrats and so many Republican members opposed the legislation that the leadership saw if a vote were taken it would be badly defeated. That is now resting in the morgue.

The great millionaire Republican Ways & Means Committee yesterday presented a bill providing for a loan of $5,000,000 to Liberia, a Republic of Africa, which has 60,000 civilized and 2,000,000 uncivilized people. Every member of the Democratic minority voted against this bill as did 48 Republicans. With a larger majority in the House than the Democrats have votes, the millionaire Republican Committee managed to pass the bill by the small majority of nine votes. This bill would have been defeated but for the party lash which was directed from the White House.

The Republicans are fighting among themselves. Some of the cabinet officers are under fire and we now have one of the able and respectable Republican Congressmen threatening to file impeachment charges against the Cabinet officer who is the strong arm and close personal adviser of the President because he refuses to prosecute certain war contractors.

The Administration has had charge of the affairs of the Government for more than fourteen months and none of the promises have been redeemed with the exception of relieving the big corporations and large taxpayers of their obligation to the Government.

Is it not time for Congress to adjourn sine die?

A DEADLY MENACE.

A dope addict recently passed up his father's funeral in order to satisfy his craving for the drug that destroys.

The case is not unusual—only one of the many.

Dope is the great parasite upon the nation today. It is destroying the minds and bodies of hundreds of thousands of people. It is encircling the unwary with its tentacles at an appalling rate of speed. It is menacing the future of the republic.

The man or woman who peddles it is a criminal of the most depraved type, worse than the murderer who blows off the top of his victim's head.

The punishment provided by law is not adequate. It is not in proportion to the offense.

The person who deliberately takes life for personal gain, either by slow process or quickly, by drug or by gun should pay the penalty with his own. The welfare of the body politic is greater than that of any individual member thereof.

The dope peddler is a menace to society. He must go.

EVERY LITTLE HELPS.

One billion dollars saved!
One billion dollars that the people will not have to pay out in taxation!
One billion dollars that political barnacles will not be able to fatten upon!

That represents the amount that General Charles G. Dawes, director of the budget, has been able to save the government by insisting that useless waste be eliminated by placing the governmental departments on a business basis!

One billion dollars in one year!
It is a good beginning. Now let's trot Dawes out again and tell him to slash harder and prune deeper, until there isn't a single barnacle left clinging to the star spangled hide.

One billion dollars.
Not much—but every little helps.

ON WITH THE NEXT THRILL

It is about time for some one to work up another scare over bolsheviks in America. It is now some months since the last eruption, and scarce.

Regardless of our optimism, however, there is a certain nasty sting to the breed. Their bite may not cause national death, but the sore festers and becomes a troublesome nuisance.

There is, however, a means of eradicating even these little pests. Let every loyal American constitute himself a volunteer assistant to the legal authorities.

Whenever a treasonable utterance is heard, or a disloyal act is observed, report the facts to the prosecuting attorney and stay with the case until punishment is inflicted. Disloyalty is on guard now where loyalty is on guard.

SMALL FORTUNE FOUND IN CANS IN RECLUSE'S HOME.

Mayville — Secreted about the house, in baking powder cans and tobacco cans, George E. Schultz, administrator, found approximately two thousand dollars belonging to his uncle, George P. Anderson, 80, eccentric farmer who had lived alone across the river for many years. More than $800 is in bank notes, worthless because the banks have been out of business for nearly half a century. A number of them were issued by the Winchester, O., National Bank which suspended thirty years ago.

LEGION NOTES

Nashville, Tenn.—To combat the robbery of Franklin, Tenn., residences, members of the American Legion have formed a vigilance committee. They have captured three burglars thus far.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Commander Hanford McNider of the American Legion has received 700 invitations to date to speak in as many communities on Memorial Day. He will accept the invitation of the St. Paul Minn., Memorial Day Association.

St. Paul, Minn.—More than 21, ex-soldiers asked the American Legion of Minnesota to adjust their claims against the Government during 1921. Of these claims, 42 per cent were for disability, compensation, vocational aid, and medical treatment.

Indianapolis, Ind.—While a forest fire was sweeping down upon sick and wounded ex-soldiers confined in a Lakewood, N. J., hospital, American Legion men rescued their invalid comrades and parked them in an open field. Then they saved the hospital from destruction.

New York.—Following indorsement of the movement by an American Legion post at Schenectady, N. Y., which termed the ex-president a "disabled veteran of the world war," service men of the Empire State have contributed a large sum to the Woodrow Wilson foundation.

Phoenix, Ariz.—The U. S. Good Roads association and the Bankhead National Highway association, in convention assembled, have adopted resolutions introduced by the American Legion, providing preferential employment of ex-soldiers in federal, state and county highway construction.

Albany, N. Y.—An automobile run of 1,000 miles with a 25 cent repair bill is a record made by Nicholas Farnis who made the trip to Newburg, N. Y., to attend an American Legion meeting. His 25 cent repairs were made to his wooden leg, damaged when it slipped off the foot-brake.

Indianapolis, Ind.—While examining an ex-soldier to find out why he couldn't hear, an Indianapolis doctor found a wad of paper in the doughboy's right ear, he reported to the American Legion. The man declared he had inserted the wad while going overseas in 1917, to keep from getting sea-sick.

Indianapolis, Ind.—An ex-soldier living in Mississippi, becoming the proud father of triplets, all girls, asked the American Legion to suggest names for them. On his assertion that he was a "good hand at poker" and therefore willing to "take a chance on your pick," it was suggested that the "three queens" be named Annie, Maude and Kate.

San Francisco, Cal.—Eighteen Frenchmen were digging in a German cemetery this spring for ammunition concealed by Germans contrary to terms of the armistice. They found it unexpectedly, according to what Enrico Piana, Italian consul, told the American Legion at Los Angeles, Cal. Five are still alive.

Indianapolis, Ind.—A proposal that the American Legion be given the sacred trust of caring for graves of Confederate veterans in the South has been made to General Julius S. Carr, Durham, N. C., commander of the United Confederate Veterans. National headquarters of the Legion, sponsoring the move, has also made the same request of the Grand Army of the Republic. "We see your ranks growing very thin, and while there are a few of you yet with the living, the Legion has an ambition to preserve its fidelity to you all by accepting as a sacred trust the privilege of caring for and decorating all of the graves of America's heroic dead, who fought on both sides of that struggle resulting in the re-birth of our nation," the Legion's request reads. The Legion asks that it be allowed to assume its trust on the coming Memorial Day, and adds: "An exchange of our flags over the graves of our own dead and a similar decoration for each and all throughout America will be binding and indisputable evidence of the unity of our country forever."

HOLDING UP MOTORISTS.

In the past a great deal of kindly spirit has prevailed between people on the road, and those who were having any kind of motor or tire trouble could quickly get help by signaling other cars. In these times when crooks are holding up cars and demanding money at the loaded end of a revolver, many motorists hesitate to stop and pick up strangers who ask for rides or assistance. It is deplorable that these dirty gamblers take advantage of the finest sentiments of courtesy, and make money by gambling on people's kindness and good nature. It can be suggested that motorists need to exercise some care as to what people they stop for, but it is to be hoped that they will not cease from their friendly acts because here and there some miserable scoundrel makes them suffer for it.

Some women's motorists are like an eight day clock. They take a long time to run.

True Detective Stories

BOLAND, ALIAS GARDNER

Copyright by The Mcclure Syndicate, Inc.

WHEN Hyman and Hess, dealers in clocks and suits on State street, Albany, N. Y., sent a check for $88.77 to Rels and Binn, garment manufacturers in New York city, they didn't have the slightest idea that they were starting a chain of evidence which would land one of the cleverest crooks in America behind the bars.

A few days later, before the New York firm had had time to report the nonarrival of the check and thus permit Hyman and Hess to look into the matter, a young man came into the National Commercial Bank in Albany and presented a check for $380, made out to "Bearer." The date on the check, filled in with a rubber stamp, corresponded to the date on which it was presented, and the man who handed it to the paying teller mentioned casually that the check "was to cover an option" and that he had to hurry back to New York in order to complete the transaction. The paying teller, feeling certain that the signature was genuine, cashed the check, and the man who had presented it walked out of the bank with $380 in his pocket.

When Hyman and Hess had their account balanced they found that they were exactly $380 short—for the original check had never reached its New York destination, but had been lifted out of the mail box by one of a gang of clever criminals. The body of the check erased with an ink eraser, and the date and amount filled in on top of the original signature.

"Only one man in the country could have done that and gotten away with it," growled George A. Fuller, assistant superintendent of the Pinkerton Detective agency, when the bank called the details of the case to his attention. "It's Boland's work."

"Yes, Boland," replied Fuller. "Or Gardner, as he sometimes calls himself. He's got a regular organization for this sort of thing. Trains boys to loot the mail boxes, washes the checks with an acid preparation of his own invention, writes in a higher amount, makes them payable to 'Bearer,' and then another of his tools cashes them."

"If you know so much about the man," asked the amazed banker, "why hasn't he been arrested long before this?"

"It's easy enough to arrest a man," was Fuller's reply, "but it is sometimes very difficult to convict him. So far as the actual check-raising goes, Boland plays a lone hand. What's more, he pays his men well, and takes care of them if they happen to get caught. So far, none of 'em has turned state's evidence, and until they do—or until we catch Boland red-handed—there's nothing to do but be careful. We've got our eyes on him. He can't move without our knowing it."

Warned by Hyman and Hess check that the Boland outfit was once more conducting operations in New York state, the Pinkerton men kept close watch on all persons suspected of belonging to the organizations, with the result that three men were arrested and sentenced to terms in prison. But all of them steadfastly refused to implicate the "man higher up."

Finally Boland and three of his associates were arrested in Boston, after Fuller had shadowed a boy whom he suspected of robbing a mail box. Dano, the boy, and Devine, another of the organization, drew short terms for petty larceny, but Boland escaped on account of a technicality, and moved to New York where he tried to continue his operations. But the New York police and particularly Commissioner George S. Dougherty, made things so difficult, that he was soon reduced to the expedient of securing checks wherever he could—a necessity which led to the fatal slip which Fuller had predicted.

Out of the mail box of an up-town apartment house, one of Boland's apprentices secured a check for $50, made out to a real estate company, in payment of the rental for one of the apartments. It was child's play for Boland to wash off the original name and amount and to write in the words "Bearer" and "Two Hundred and Eleven Dollars." Once that was done, he had a perfectly good check (apparently) and he sent the men down to the bank on which the check was drawn, with minute instructions as to the cashing of it. But the cashier, being suspicious of a check of that size being made out to "Bearer"—particularly as he knew that the woman whose signature appeared upon it was never cashed in her financial dealings out of the bank—declined to cash it. Boland returned with a story of having been watched and therefore very fearful to approach the paying window.

Boland, in a spirit of bravado, again altered the check, this time making it out in the name of "William Hath" and set forth to cash the check himself, something which he had never before attempted. One glance at the old amount—$211—and the recollection that a check of similar size had been presented that morning, payable to "Bearer," was enough to convince the paying teller that something was wrong. The Pinkertons were immediately notified and Boland was caught, red-handed.

Fifteen minutes after his case came up in the County court in Brooklyn Boland was on his way to Sing Sing.

MODERN DESIGN FOR HOG HOUSE

Proper Housing Is Essential to Success With Live Stock.

HOGS NEED LIGHT AND AIR

No Type of Farm Building Is Given More Attention in the Agricultural Colleges Than Hog Houses—Good Plan Shown Here.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will advise you on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for he has been a member of the National Association of Farm Managers, Editor, Author and Manufacturer. He is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, 1110 N. 1st Street, Philadelphia, Pa., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Success in raising hogs depends on two things—well-bred stock, both sows and sires, and proper housing.

Well-bred stock is plentiful, and no farmer in these days of better farm live stock can afford to breed or raise "scrubs." In every community, especially in the so-called "corn belt" states, hogs are one of the principal farm products, and high-bred, if not registered purebred sires, are available. With a start of one or two well-bred sows and the service of a purebred boar, careful management will insure a good profit in hog raising.

The second essential—good houses—is just as available as good breeding stock. During the last ten or more years, architects who have made a careful study of the needs of farm animals have designed, and local contractors have erected, thousands of buildings—barns, hog houses, and chicken houses—that provide the live stock with houses where they can be kept at the highest state of productivity and in the best of health.

The product that farmers turn into cash with their hogs is flesh. Both can be obtained with "scrub" stock, but the cost is prohibitive. About the same amount of care will bring a well-bred young pig to marketable size in half the time required by a "scrub," and the amount of feed both consume per day is practically the same.

Before the days of efficient hog houses, a farmer considered himself lucky if half the litter was brought to maturity. Young pigs are subject to many diseases and have little stamina to withstand them. Pneumonia is one of them. The pigs that were littered in the early spring and were not housed in weather-proof, well-ventilated and warm quarters had and still have little chance of reaching maturity.

It was with these facts in mind that the modern hog house was designed. And in passing it might be said that no type of farm building has been given more attention in the agricultural colleges than hog houses.

The modern hog house is a well constructed building. It usually is set on a concrete foundation, with a concrete floor. The side walls are weather-tight, and the roof is designed so that a maximum of sunlight can reach the pens on both sides of the building. Also some system of ventilation, either through the roof or by the action ventilators that are used on every modern dairy barn, is provided. Half of the floors, whether they be of concrete or cinders, are covered with heavy boards, raised slightly above the ground. On this half floor there is placed plenty of bedding, so that the young pigs will be kept dry—with emphasis on "dry"—and warm.

When the farm has such a hog house, the sows farrow in early spring and again in the late fall, which is as nature intended. Let February pigs are kept in the warm, sunny house, and get the start that makes them healthy and strong when they are weaned and ready for the pasture in spring. They develop rapidly and are of marketable size when there is small supply and better prices.

One of the modern types of hog houses is shown in the accompanying illustration. It is of frame construction, set on a concrete foundation and will hold 14 sows and their litters. The dimensions are 48 by 20 feet. To get the most of the early spring sunlight, this house is run east and west, and has double sets of roof windows, one set to permit sunshine to filter into the pens on the south side of the building and the other into the pens on the north side.

Two action ventilators in the roof provide for a circulation of fresh air, without there being drafts near the floor, where the young pigs and their mothers are penned. Surrounding the building is a concrete feeding floor where the corn and dry feed is thrown for the hogs.

Accompanying the illustration is the floor plan of the building showing the dimensions of the pens and the feeding alley that extends through the center.

Too much emphasis cannot be laid on the need of fresh air, dry beds and sunshine in a hog house. These three essentials to healthy young pigs cost nothing and can be obtained in abundance by planning the house correctly and constructing it according to the modern knowledge of what is best for the animals.

By proper care in laying the concrete foundations and floor this hog house can be built at any season of the year. By heating the aggregates of the concrete and covering the foundation and floor so as to prevent freezing until the concrete has fully set, which, in cold weather, requires at least six days, the work can be done and the superstructure erected in time for the early spring litters.

CITY OF GHASTLY LEGENDS

All Sorts of Blood-Curdling Stories Current in the Mexican Metropolis, and Believed.

Mexico City is a city of legends, ghastly horrors, most of them established at least upon a basis of truth. One of them is about the deeds of Don Juan Mahmel who had the merry habit of stalking the streets in his cloak at night and asking the first man he met what time it was. Upon being answered, "It is eleven by the clock," he would reply, "You are very lucky, for you know the exact hour you die." Thereupon he would stab the chance-met stranger. He had a dearly loved nephew, and one night he met him in the dark, and not recognizing him followed his usual custom of homicide.

The next day, mad with grief Don Juan went to the priest, who ordered him to say his beads at midnight before a church and near the public gallows. He tried three times before he was able to do so, and then, the legend says, angels took him and hanged him. The basis of the story, lies in the fact that a man of the name of Juan Mahmel did stab at least one man, and his body was found hanging on the public gallows without any explanation ever being made as to how it got there.

Dice Gaming Ancient Sport.

Gaming with dice and cards has prevailed from the earliest times. We do not read of gambling houses in the classic literature of Greece, but there can be no doubt that the vice was very widely practiced in private houses. In Rome, under the emperors, gambling prevailed extensively. Augustus and most of the succeeding sovereigns were passionately fond of the dice, and the Emperor Claudius wrote a book on the subject. A Roman would transport to a gambling resort his whole fortune—coins, papers and chattels—and, after losing all, would even seize the cloaks of his slaves to stake on a change of luck.

Where Coffee Is Paired.

In Rio de Janeiro there are certain mills in which raw coffee beans are peeled and polished. South Africa buys about 200,000 bags a year of coffee tinted a bluish green; northern Brazil wants its coffee black. It is said that all the graphite, ochre, talcum powder and other materials are destroyed in the roasting, so that no one would know from drinking the coffee whether it had been painted or not.

A WEEK'S NEWS.

An hysterical, vain and silly girl in Maine made absurd charges against a minister, known far and wide for his services to the community and his good works. The girl was believed, the minister ostracized by the community to such an extent that he shot and killed himself. The girl then confessed her accusation was baseless and the man innocent, whereupon the community—it must be a nice place to live—condemns the girl!

If the community would condemn itself for tolerance, scandal-mongering and total failure of loyalty, it would be more to the point. Strange that a minister of the gospel, with his years of experience, could not realize that those condemned "without evidence were out of their own mouths condemned; that when people believe evil without proof, it is because, under similar circumstances, they would themselves have been evil!

Some farmers say that pooling their crops cannot be a success. The American Tobacco Co., The Beef Packers, The Coal producers, the cement manufacturers, have all made a success by pooling their products. The California Fruit Growers Association has made possible a profit for the fruit grower of California. Those growers were of the mercy of the commission men before the formation of the growers pool. The tobacco grower has been, and will continue to be the prey of the tobacco manufacturers of the country unless they pool their way to live and unless they protect their interest by a pool.

SENIOR CLASS OF BOONE HI SCHOOL

In "Emeralda" Greeted By Large Crowds at Burlington and Hebron.

The Seniors of Burlington High School in presenting their class play, "Emeralda," at the Universalist church on Tuesday night, May 16th, capably upheld the reputation of their predecessors in past years for professional skill and ease of action was predominant throughout the performance. A capacity audience was in attendance, and their enjoyment and appreciation was easily determined through observing their careful attention and frequent applause.

The plot of the play dealt with a farmer family of North Carolina consisting of father, mother and daughter, Emeralda. The mother is the "head" of the home and when an ore vein is struck on their little plot of ground the old lady decides to show her daughter some of the world, and in so doing forces her to renounce the love of a rustic sweetheart. The action shifts to Paris, France, and we find the aspiring old woman making a match for Emeralda with a supposed Marquis. Her former sweetheart, answering the call of true affection, follows her across the deep. Developments occur which reveal the ore vein on the farm has faded out and shows up in vast quantity on the neighboring place which belong to the young man whom "mother" has held in contempt. Suffice it to say everything ends happily with Emeralda safe in the arms of her loving David, for nothing can prevail against the decree of true love.

Space will not permit an extended delineation of all the fine points of the performance. Each and every one included in the cast undoubtedly gave of their best efforts as was evidenced in the meritorious character of the rendition. The local school has ever held a reputation of possessing pupils of no little histrionic ability, year after year, and no exception in that particular. However, it must be remembered, they are fortunate in having as an instructor, Miss Mattie Kreylich, whose ability along dramatic and elocutionary lines, coupled with the power of capably teaching the same, is too well-known for the writer to offer any eulogy.

On Friday night the play was presented to a large and appreciative audience at Hebron.

"JERSEY LOVE FEAST"

Enjoyed By Capacity Crowd—Visitors From Covington, Rising Sun and Aurora.

That Boone county is coming into prominence as a Jersey breeding county was evidenced by the largest crowd of farmers, their wives, sons and daughters in attendance at the "Jersey Love Feast" held at the Movie Picture Theatre in Burlington, last Wednesday night, under the auspices of the Boone County Jersey Club, when the five-reel picture "Hearts in Jersey," was shown on the canvas.

The pictures consisting of beautiful scenery, love and romance and imposing country estates were very much enjoyed by the large crowd and the members of the local club are to be congratulated upon their effort in having it presented to Boone county people.

Among those in attendance were visitors from Rising Sun, Aurora, Hebron, and Covington. Prof. J. J. Hooper, head of the Dairy Department, College of Agriculture, Lexington, Ky., was the main speaker of the evening, although short talks were made by Mr. Scranton, of Rising Sun, Ind., Harry Hartke, of Kenton county, and several others.

The music, consisting of a five piece orchestra composed of the Haffer family of Hebron, and Ludlow, was greatly enjoyed and helped to make the evening one of real entertainment.

One feature of the evening was the "Buffet Luncheon" consisting of sandwiches, coffee, Jersey cream, pickles and other splendid "eats" which brought to a close a most enjoyable and successful evening for the admirers of the Jersey.

The tractor may help the farmer cultivate his crops, but the boys have not found it satisfactory to take their best girls to ride in after supper.

Considering all the talking that is being done in Congress, it would seem as if many of our statesmen were in danger of getting throat trouble.

It is said that meadows will be good this year.

THE ATTRACTIVE COUNTRY HOME

Many country people whose children have gone away to cities have expressed the opinion that the lack of attractive homes was a principal reason why the young folks left. They realized afterward that their home life seemed terribly dull and drab. It was one long monotony of work, eat, sleep.

Every country home that wants to keep its young people should establish some features of cheer and brightness. A phonograph will do wonders. Let the boys and girls have their friends come in frequently and dance. Musical instruments help a lot. Give them a piece of land for a tennis court and croquet ground. With some such diversions going on, the restless spirit does not get started.

THE TELEPHONE SAYS

I am a telephone. When I am not broke, I am in the hands of a receiver. I have a mouthpiece, but unlike women, I never use it. Fellows use me to make dates with girls, and girls use me to break said dates. Husbands call up their wives over me, and wives call their husbands down over me. I never go anywhere, but sometimes the company comes and takes me out. I am not a bee, but I often buzz in your ear. I am the bell of the town, and while I do not wear jewelry, I often get rings. I hear a lot of things, but not a lot of people call me to the wall; and I like music but the only music I ever hear is chin music. I get all the popular air, and the most popular one is hot air.

INTIMATE FRIENDSHIP

A Good Friend Is Worth More Than Gold—Satisfactions Of Country Life.

Man in all ages has sought for certain aims. Money, power, pleasure, these are three of the great ends in life which have seemed the most rewarding to various natures. But there is one great aim which is better than all these, and that is friendship.

City life does not promote intimate friendships. You form superficial acquaintances. But people do not have time to cultivate them. They spend their leisure hours in aimless pursuits, and do not get close to their associates. They live on the surface of life. When you move away from a city home, you soon forget these superficial relations, and you leave scarce a memory behind you.

The people in a country town are thrown closely together. They have more leisure for friendly visiting. Instead of meeting thousands of different people and making friendships with any of them, they meet a few and come to know them deeply and intimately.

They mingle with them in scenes of joy and sorrow. They acquire a thousand interests in common. They are concerned about the same things, and the ties grow closer every year. If you live in that kind of a circle for a period of years, and then are called upon to move away from it, you have formed a resource of friendships that will be a cherished possession as long as you live. You will never forget them, nor they you. If you are in sorrow and trouble, and go back there, you will meet the friendly handclasp and the heart of sympathy. But if you go back and try to patch up old ties with the superficial friends of city life, you are likely to find they have forgotten you.

A good friend is worth more than any gold. Country life, with its cordial associations and community of interest, is the atmosphere in which this precious possession of friendship grows and becomes one of the best resources of life.

AIMING FOR SUPERIORITY.

The purpose of a great many people in life is to get it. If they can do their work just well enough so it will go and satisfy the minimum requirements, they are well pleased.

That point of view never made an efficient person. The one who desires to achieve real success must never be satisfied with just to turn out ordinary work that will be up to the average. He must constantly be using his brain to see how he can make his service or his product superior and more attractive.

Nothing stands still. If a man's service or his product remains just the same day after day, he will find that he is falling behind. Others have thought out new ideas and new methods that are better and they have gone ahead.

Almost any kind of work can be improved and made to fit the human requirements a good deal better. The efficient person is all the time studying the desires and needs of the public to see how he can do a little better work or give better satisfaction.

HALF MILLION LBS. ADDED TO POOL

Signing of 196 Contracts Past Week Brings Total Since March 1 Up to 1,431

Lexington, Ky.—Tobacco of the 1922 crop to the amount of half a million pounds was added to the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association's holdings when signed contracts, making a total of 1,431 growers who have signed since March 1 and a total addition of 3,900,000 pounds since that time to the pool, according to Assistant Chief of the Field Service Division William Collins.

Ninety-six of the 196 turned in the past week were turned in by Albert T. Day, of Mayville, one of the district graders of the Association who has been aiding in organization work since the close of the Association receiving plants.

This total, Mr. Collins said, does not include the contracts signed in West Virginia and the eastern Ohio counties, where Clifton Rodes, Mercer county farmer, is leading a campaign to sign up the growers to the Burley Association plan and where he is said to be meeting with a favorable reception.

The Burley Tobacco Grower, the Association publication, appeared the past week, under the editorship of J. Sherman Porter, of Lexington, veteran newspaper and publicity man. The size if the initial number had to be increased from the light pages planned to twelve pages on account of the advertising offered for the initial issue the day before press time. The paper has a lively editorial column and contains news of interest to the grower. It also has a first page boost of the rural press and urges every grower to take his home paper if he wants to keep up with what is going on in his county, declaring that the rural editors are the best friends the farmers, and particularly the tobacco growers, ever had.

KENTUCKY ORCHARDS

Should Return Their Owners Increased Profits With Care.

Lexington, Ky.—With decided reduction from 1910 to 1920 in the number of fruit trees in Kentucky, as well as the United States, better care of bearing orchards should return their owners increased profits while the planting of new orchards promises to be a sound investment, according to a new circular which has just come off the press at the College of Agriculture and which is being distributed free to interested farmers.

"This reduction has decreased the quantity of fruit produced and has resulted in relatively high prices," A. J. Olney and H. R. Niswonger, joint authors of the publication point out. "Extensive plantings probably will be made when the country is restored to normal conditions but several years will be required to bring the number of bearing trees back to that of 1910. It seems opportune, therefore, to stress the importance of fostering the orchards now of bearing age."

At best, an over-production of fruit could not take place until new plantings are made and brought into bearing, the authors point out. Possibilities for such a condition are made even more remote by the death each year of a certain number of young trees, limited area to which commercial fruit production is confined, increasing demands for fruit and the absence of sudden fluctuations in the industry, they continue.

Among the subjects discussed in the circular, which is well illustrated and detailed, are preparation for an orchard, the site and soil, nursery stock, planting, use of dynamite and flares, selection of varieties for home and commercial orchard, soil management, care of young orchards, clean culture with cover crops, intercropping care of bearing trees, the soil system, use of clovers, fertilizers for different kinds of orchards, pests, rodents, spraying fungicides, insecticides and grafting.

A copy of the circular, which is No. 118, may be obtained free by writing the Experiment Station, at Lexington.

SEASONAL TIPS FOR GARDENERS

Insects destructive to gardeners may be divided into two groups—those that destroy the plants by biting and chewing and those that suck the sap or juices of the plants. Effective control of any insect depends upon determining to which group it belongs and then applying the proper poison. Biting and chewing insects are controlled by arsenate of lead and Paris green. Sucking insects are controlled by tobacco poisons, kerosene emulsion and bordeaux mixture.

Late carrots are planted about June 1, the seed being sown thinly in a very shallow furrow. A few radish seeds sown along with the carrots help to mark the row. Or Heart and Chantenay are good late varieties.

Spraying tomato plants with Bordeaux mixture about June 1 helps to control leaf spot and early blight. If the leaves become spotted and yellow, the spraying should be repeated at intervals of about 10 days to two weeks.

Plant lice may cause serious damage on early peas and beans unless the plants are watched closely for the presence of these insects on the underside of the leaves. They are controlled by spraying with arsenate of lead.

Painting all sash that has been used to cover hot beds and cold frames and storing it away in a sheltered place before June 1 helps to prolong its usefulness, according to gardeners at the College of Agriculture. Exposure to the hot summer sun causes considerable damage to these.

LABOR'S SABBATH

One Day in Seven Needed For The Joys of Out-Door Sport and Recreation.

With the return of the bright Spring days and the promise of the coming Summer in the air, we may expect to again hear the discussion regarding Sunday sports and games. The automobile has to a considerable degree changed the old-time observance of the Sabbath and few homes remain in which the playing of the piano on Sunday is prohibited. Laboring men and women have neither the leisure nor the means to devote to week-day pleasures. The hand of necessity is on their shoulders. But for one day in seven, if they are not too deeply tired from the excess of the week's work, they may go out and see or participate in popular sports and games. And we believe they demand this privilege. Any other day for them is impossible. Hence they demand the right to get out where they can move and breathe and laugh and rejoice, even as do people of leisure. The laborer with the clean heart demands for himself the right to walk, to swim, to go to ball games, to visit the parks or the picture shows. Certainly laboring people are on the side of a well-observed Sabbath but the fact doesn't necessarily mean that they prefer to sit down and read "The Lives of the Saints," or "Fox's Book of Martyrs." They know that they can observe the Sabbath splendidly and religiously by filling their lungs with fresh air and their souls with the joy of out-of-doors. They know that by so doing they will find rest for both mind and body.

COUNTRY PEOPLE AND AUTOMOBILES

The automobile has become an essential for most country people, but a considerable number have failed to acquire one so far, owing to the expense of operation and rapid depreciation. The economical family can greatly reduce these expenses, if some member thereof can learn to do most repair jobs himself.

Also the life of a car can be doubled and repair and tire costs cut in two, by careful driving, particularly around corners and over rough roads. People should be ingenious and mechanical enough so they would not have to un a garage everytime some trifling thing goes wrong.

Why can't we have a "good fellowship" week in this town, with everyone making a special effort to be agreeable to everybody else?

It would create a wonderful spirit of comradeship—would bring the people together—would heal old sores—would clear up misunderstandings—would remove friction—would create a spirit of community co-operation.

It would do no harm, would not cost a penny, but would do an endless amount of good.

Why not.

The old fashioned night shirt is said to be coming back. They are a good loose and easy garment for Father to wear while kicking late callers out of the front door.

SECOND PAYMENT TO BURLEY GROWERS

$125,000 Paid Boone County Growers Last Saturday—Everybody Pleased.

Last Saturday tobacco growers from all parts of the county came to Burlington and received their second payment on the 1922 pool. The checks were delivered to the growers at the court house by a force of volunteer clerks who did not keep the waiting growers but a short time. About $125,000 was distributed and the growers were all satisfied, as they have now received as much in cash as their tobacco would have brought over the loose leaf floor, and when the final payment has been made the members of the pool will receive about 25 per cent more for their tobacco than the grower who sold his over the loose leaf floor.

The propaganda now being circulated against the pool originated from interests that have been making a large amount of money off the tobacco grower and they see the hand writing on the wall, as a successful pool puts an end to their business. In distributing the checks a few errors were discovered but they will be corrected.

The second distribution proves conclusively to the most skeptical that the marketing plan is a success. Growers have received for their crops a higher price than those who were not in the pool and will still have coming to them a considerable sum. It is expected that they will have received an average of at least 25 per cent more than the non-poolers received.

The marketing association was organized in all counties of the Burley district last summer, and therefore is not yet a year old. It followed, in line the work of other co-operative associations organized in various sections of the country. It has been the most successful in point of time and in volume of business of any of its kind yet organized.

The organization was perfected in only the Burley district last year. This year similar organizations are being formed in all tobacco growing districts and before the beginning of another marketing season it seems probable that the most of the tobacco grown in this section of the country will be signed to various marketing associations.

It is also expected that many of those who did not sign up with the Burley association last year will do so this year. In fact, many have already done so and more are coming in every day. There is hardly a doubt that many so-called independent houses which handled non-pooled tobacco last year will have to close down next season for lack of any tobacco to sell.

There will be another and a final distribution, but this will not come until all of the 1921 crop is sold and will be a final settlement. It is not expected that the last distribution will be as large as this one, as all expenses, including interest, insurance, warehouses, etc., will be deducted from the final distribution.

Over $9,000,000 was paid to the Burley Growers by the pool. Every tobacco grower who is not a member of the pool should send in his contract at once, and make it 100 per cent. Control the business, and do not let others control it and fix the price for your tobacco.

TO CORRECT A MALICIOUS LIE.

A story has been given wide circulation to the effect that Eric J. Rouse was burning his Bible when he received the burns that caused his death. The party who first told this knew there was not a word of truth in it. Eric did not own a Bible and the one he had in his house had been loaned him by me and was returned in perfect condition after his death. He did pour oil that contained gasoline on an smoldering fire and the 3-gallon can exploded in his hands.

Truthfully Yours,

AS THE EDITOR SEES IT

Wars are not over yet. Until humanity sprouts wings we will continue to fight.

We were unable to remain out of the last war, and the next one will draw us in, if it is on a world scale. For this reason this country should be maintained in a state of reasonable and common sense preparedness.

General Pershing, preparedness advocate and the American Legion want the regular army to remain at 150,000 enlisted men.

If you were called upon to defend yourself against an enemy armed with a modern high powered rifle how would you like to depend upon an old fashioned blunderbuss?

Much has been said in the daily press of late regarding the millions of dollars grafted from the public treasury on war contracts.

It has taken a long time to say it. The public demand is insistent that these rich grafters be ferreted out and properly punished, and their stolen wealth returned to the government.

It has taken a long time to work up the demand.

At the past and present rate of speed they will be convicted when they die and be punished when they get to hell.

Never in history has there been so much organized crime as is sweeping over the country today.

Never in history have the brains of criminal organizations—the higher ones—been so immune from prosecution.

And never in history has the law of the land come so near to utter collapse.

When reputable citizens learn to use their brains and perform their duty to society we will overcome this reign of the devil and his imps. Until then we must expect to go from bad to worse.

A crowd of 1500 people witnessed the game of ball at Addyston last Sunday afternoon between that team and Taylorsport. Two of Boone's speed kends opposed each other in this game—York for Addyston and Black for Taylorsport, and it was a pitcher's battle throughout—Black striking out 13 and York 14, while five hits were made by each team, the final score being 4 to 3 in favor of Taylorsport. Black was at his best Sunday and showed that he could hold his own with the best of amateur pitchers. York pitched good ball throughout the game and had plenty of speed at all times. Addyston hand furnished music during the game, which was greatly enjoyed by the large crowd. Woods, the catcher for Taylorsport, caught a great game, throwing every man out at second that tried to steal. It is predicted by those that have saw him perform behind the bat that it will not be long before he will be catching ball in the National League.

Wilson, preceded her to the grave about 11 years ago.

Mrs. Wilson was formerly of Hamilton, Ky., Boone county, but had been making her home here with her son, Joe Wilson for some time. She was a faithful member of the Methodist church at Big Bone, Ky. She was the mother of nine children of which six are living, three boys and three girls as follows—Sam and Joe of this city, Jeff of Louisville, Mrs. Lucy Grimley of Glencoe, Mrs. Kate Bonardant of Burlington, Ky., and Miss Rose Wilson of Washington, D. Hail Destroys Millions of Dollars of Tobacco

The loss of tobacco by hail in this and other tobacco states within the last five years has run up into millions of dollars with only a small part covered by insurance.

Yet, the amount of insurance received by growers who had the foresight thus to protect themselves against such loss, was enormous and should make every grower not only feel the necessity of insuring his tobacco crop against hail storms but to do that very thing and do it at once.

What Dr. Halley Says: Dr. Samuel H. Halley, of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association, upon congratulating an insurance company on lowering its rates on tobacco hail insurance, said: "Within the period that I have had hail insurance I have had four severe losses. The money I received exceeded considerably what I paid in, to say nothing of my peace of mind that I was fully protected in case of a storm. I have always advocated carrying hail insurance on tobacco without which every grower takes a chance to lose all. With it he can, in safety, go into the business of producing a crop which requires, as does tobacco, so much labor, time and money."

Now that the Burley Growers have gone into an organization to handle their business in a modern economic business-like way, I see no reason why all growers can not take out insurance on the reduced rates the companies are now quoting. Look up the insurance agent in your section now, and let him protect you against the loss of your tobacco. Policies effective July 10th, noon.

CLASS ADDRESS

A very large crowd attended the closing of the commencement exercises of the Boone County Hi School at the Baptist church Monday night, at which time to seven pupils were given diplomas, the presentation address made by County Supt., J. C. Gordon, who paid a high compliment to the faculty of the school, as well as to the graduates.

In well chosen words and in a very pleasing manner, Prof. Gordon presented Rev. H. C. Runyan, who made the address to the graduates, and perhaps no former class of the school listened to a finer address, intended for their special benefit. It was a masterly effort upon the part of Rev. Runyan, with the result that he was complimented and praised by every one who heard him.

With the pronouncement of the benediction by Rev. Runyan, brought to a close the entertainment and festivities in connection with another successful and satisfactory term of the Boone County High School, which was a delight and pleasure to admiring friends and relatives who had gathered, arrayed in their best bib and tuck, to do honor to the young men and young women just stepping out into the great world to fight life's battles.

The members of the graduating class were Misses Georgie Kirkpatrick, Isabelle Duncan, Elmore Eggleston, Gladys Wilson, Messrs. Owen Acra, John Birkie and Edwin Crigger. Music was furnished by an orchestra consisting of a violin and harp, which was of the highest order.

ACETYLENE LIGHT PLANT EXPLOSION

WORST CATASTROPHE IN HISTORY OF RIPLEY COUNTY

Three Persons Lose Their Lives and Three Others Are Injured, Two Very Seriously, When Dwelling Is Completely Wrecked.

The greatest calamity that ever befall our community occurred Saturday at 12:10 p. m., when the substantial four-room brick residence of William Connelley, two miles southwest of Versailles, was totally wrecked by a gas explosion which instantly killed the Geraldine Bovard, fatally injured her father, Edgar S. Bovard, and her grandfather, Mrs. Wm. Connelley, seriously injured her mother and her grandfather, William Connelley, and slightly injured Joe Kirtley.

Escaping gas from an acetylene light plant in the cellar under the residence is responsible for the terrible explosion, which was so tremendous that it is reported it was heard twenty miles distant.

Saturday noon when most of our citizens were eating their dinner, a report of an explosion was heard and all buildings were shaken. Most people thought that the disturbance was caused by blasting in a stone quarry southwest of town, where a new pipe is being constructed. However in a few moments all were horrified when word was received at the telephone exchange and quickly flashed over town that the report heard was the explosion of a Colt acetylene light plant at the residence of Wm Connelley and wife southwest of town and that Mr. and Mrs. Connelley, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Bovard and their little daughter were all caught under the ruins, which were on fire.

Everyone who had an automobile hurried to the scene of the explosion as quickly as possible, taking as many passengers as their car would accommodate. A number of neighbors who were first to reach the scene removed Mr. and Mrs. Bovard and Mr. and Mrs. Connelley from the ruins and were rushing them to the residence of Mrs. Kate Gordon nearby, when the Versailles folks began to arrive.

The body of Geraldine Bovard, aged 6 years, 5 months and 10 days, was the last to be removed. She had fallen into the cellar beside the light plant and when found her little body was head upward and it was charred beyond recognition. It is believed that she met her death so quickly that she experienced no suffering. A call was sent to Versailles, Osgood and Madison for physicians and in a short time several were present to administer aid to the family.

Joe Kirtley, who was in the perch on the north side of the building cleaning a gun, when the explosion occurred, was blown over against the garden fence. He received some very severe cuts and bruises but was able to walk to the Gordon residence, where he received medical attention. The only place other than in the cellar after the explosion, other than in the stove, was where little Geraldine fell into the cellar. The fire burned but a short time as the greater part of the frame portion of the building was blown away by the explosion.

When Mr. and Mrs. Bovard and Mr. and Mrs. Connelley were removed from the ruins of the building it was thought that Mr. Bovard had a good chance for recovery and but little hope was entertained for the recovery of the other three. However, about four o'clock that afternoon Mr. Bovard began to sink rapidly and at five o'clock suffering ceased and his spirit took its flight to the God who gave it. His age was 29 years, nine months and twenty-one days. Mr. Bovard's right leg was broken and crushed in three places, his hips were crushed and his left leg and instep were badly broken. He had inhaled more gas than the other injured persons and physicians said this was the cause of his death, as the gas is very poisonous.

Mrs. Valeria Connelley lived forty hours after the explosion. Her suffering was almost unbearable and she moaned constantly. Both her eyeballs were destroyed, her nose was disfigured, her face was mutilated beyond recognition and her chest was badly crushed. Death came to her as a great relief at 4 o'clock Monday morning. She was born Dec. 3, 1856, and her age was 65 years, two months and three days.

Physicians gave relatives and close friends no encouragement for the recovery of Mr. Connelley and his daughter, Mrs. Bovard, until Monday, when they both showed signs of improvement. Mr. Connelley sustained a broken nose, very severe cuts and burns on his face and head. He has a very ugly wound on the right side of his face and his face is swollen so badly he cannot see out of his right eye, but the sight of the eye is not impaired. He has been blind in his left eye for several months. His wrist is badly injured and he is cut and bruised from head to foot.

Mrs. Bovard received some very severe facial wounds, the worst being on her forehead just above the left eye. The bones of her right foot were crushed and her left arm is broken and she is in a very bad condition.

on the kitchen range when removed from the ruins. Her eyesight is said not to have been impaired.

The funeral of Mrs. Connelley was held at the Tanglewood Baptist church, of which she was a member, Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Bannister officiating. Interment was in the family lot beside her son Dallas, who died several years ago. The funeral services of Mr. Bovard and his daughter were held at the Tanglewood church this morning. Rev. J. Elvan Hughes officiating. Mr. Bovard was also a member of Tanglewood church. He was a member of Versailles lodge No. 7 F. & A. M., and Versailles K. of P. Lodge. The Masons had charge of the funeral. Interment was at Tanglewood.

It had been planned to hold all three funerals Tuesday afternoon but when word was received that Mr. Bovard's sister, Mrs. Emily Buck, of Racine, Ohio, would not arrive here until Tuesday evening, his funeral and that of his daughter were postponed until today.

Mr. Connelley has been a funeral director here for nearly a half century and his son-in-law, Mr. Bovard, has been associated with him for a number of years. During the past year Mr. Bovard purchased the Hyatt store property and residence in the southwest corner of the public square and engaged in the furniture business here.

The Connelley and Bovard families are two of Ripley county's finest families, and they have thousands of friends who are broken up over this great calamity.

FACTS ABOUT THE EXPLOSION

As told By Mr. Bovard Just Before He Died.

The charge of carbide in the acetylene plant was exhausted several days before the explosion and Mr. Bovard told his father-in-law to let it alone a day or two and he would come out an fill it so the plant was not used for about a week.

Saturday morning between 10 and 11 o'clock Mr. Bovard and his family drove to the Connelley home. Mr. Bovard put a charge of carbide in the plant a short while before dinner.

The plant did not act right and he worked with it while but when dinner was ready he came up from the cellar where the plant was located and ate dinner with the other members of the family.

The gas continued to escape from the plant and filled the building. Mr. Bovard escaped alarmed and went out into the yard and suggested that they all get out of the house as he was afraid that something might happen to the plant. She was assured by other members of the family that the plant was safe and she returned to the house and closed the door.

Mrs. Connelley became ill from inhaling the gas and went into a bedroom adjoining the kitchen to lie down.

Mr. Connelley repaired to the sitting room after he finished his meal and seated himself in a rocking chair. Mr. Bovard said he believed he could go down and see if he couldn't do something with the plant to stop it from throwing off so much gas. He worked with the plant a few minutes and became alarmed at it and started up the cellar stairs. When he was about half way up the steps the explosion occurred.

The cellar door had been open while he was in the cellar and the gas was allowed to pour into three rooms of the house. Mr. Bovard said he lighted no matches so it is presumed that the fire in the kitchen range or heating stove ignited the gas.

The parlor or southwest room was not as completely destroyed as the other three rooms because there was no fire in that room and the doors between it and the other rooms were closed thus preventing much gas getting into it.

Mrs. Bovard and her little daughter were in the dining room, which was directly over the cellar where the light plant was located when the explosion occurred.

Two or three persons were within a few hundred feet of the scene of the explosion and they saw portions of the building in the air. They say that in their judgment parts of the building were blown four or five hundred feet high.

A strip of carpet was blown high into the air and passed over several trees and lodged in the top of a locust tree some distance from the residence. The wind evidently was from the south and parts of the sheeting, floors and other woodwork were strewn over the field north of the house for a distance of two hundred feet.

Two dogs belonging to the family were in the house at the time of the explosion. One was killed. The other was pinned under some ruins but when he was released he shook himself and walked away and there was not a scratch on him.

Just before Mr. Bovard died he said: "I would like to live to see the man who invented that light plant that has bars in the penitentiary where he belongs."—Versailles Indiana, Republican, Feb. 8th. (Advertisement)

The Stimulus of Advertising. One of the finest examples of what advertising can do for a business is found in the raisin industry. This business back in 1913 was in a very discouraging condition. The growers held a meeting to see what could be done to revive the industry. They decided to try advertising, but only $200 could be raised for that purpose. But this was enough to give them a start.

The effect of this publicity was to interest many bakers in making raisin bread. The advertising produced such good results that the growers kept increasing it, until they created the habit of using raisin bread and made it an important food product all over the country. This could never have been done but for generous publicity. It created a wholly new and tremendously large market for raisins.

In the dull year of 1921 for various reasons, the raisin industry has had a lot of times for a period and another advertising campaign was arranged to sell this product. This project was largely based on the nutritive and tonic properties of this product, showing the quantity of iron contained by raisins.

Again the consumption of this product was greatly stimulated, so that this country had to buy largely of Italian raisins to make up the demand.

Instances like these show how the desires of the public can be influenced by solicitation. The producers of many products and the dealers who distribute them, do not all realize what sales could be made if their merchandise was properly pushed. Truthful advertising setting forth the real and substantial reasons why it is desirable to make use of some article, will always convince reasonable people and tend to divert them from spending money for foolish whims not based on rational grounds.

Indianapolis, Ind.—"For a year of devotion we have set aside a day of recognition. So long as men live, not by bread alone, so long shall this word Mother remain the strongest and sweetest word in any language," says Hanford MacNider, national commander of the American Legion, in his Mother's Day message to posts of the organization. "We of the American Legion are working away at the building of a high castle of patriotism on the rock of sacrifice," the message continues. "We offer and dedicate the work of our hands to the mothers of America." Mother's Day, May 14, will be observed nationally and locally by the 3,000 units of the American Legion Auxiliary, made up of wives, mothers, daughters and sisters of Legion men.

Gaines, and is one of the leading attorneys at the Atlanta, Ga., bar, in which city he has made his home for many years.

LEGION NOTES

National headquarters of the American Legion has suggested to posts of the organization that they commemorate in their Memorial Day exercises the first anniversary of the death of former Commander F. W. Galbraith, Jr. Mr. Galbraith was killed in Indianapolis, June 9, 1921, in an automobile accident. It is suggested that flags be flown at half mast, that a picture of Galbraith, draped with crepe, be hung in post clubrooms or that a wreath be placed on clubroom doors.

—New York City.

H. Nelson Jackson, Burlington, Vt., the first man to cross the United States in an automobile, sailed for London, England, on May 20th to represent the American Legion at the annual meeting of the British Legion, made up of world war service men of the British Isles. Mr. Jackson is one of the American Legion's national vice commanders.

The greetings which Mr. Jackson will present the British Legion in behalf of National Commander MacNider of the American Legion declare that: "No generation of our nations have been so closely bound together. Through the coming years it must be our mutual duty to strengthen and cement these ties that from this great understanding may come peace for all the world."

—Indianapolis, Ind.

To build their clubhouse over an oil well was the unique and valuable experience of American Legion men in Waplesburg, Tenn. Oil was noticed in a mud hole in the Legion's back yard. Drilling began at once and oil was struck at 200 feet. The Legionnaires plan to erect a fine community club from royalties.

—Nashville, Tenn.

The National Catholic Welfare Council has notified the American Legion that it will make Memorial Day this year an occasion for helping ex-soldiers get their just claims from the government. It is planned to direct public attention to the needs of the veterans.

—Washington, D. C.

WORK OR FIGHT

A prim proper young miss was much horrified on the street to find a small boy, apparently not over six years old, smoking a cigarette.

"Little boy," she commanded. "Throw down that horrid thing this minute."

"Go chase yourself lady," answered the infant disdainfully. "Hunt yer own."

"I found dis one meself,"—American Legion Weekly.

On Memorial Day the old wooden war memorials that glittered with painted carving in 1919 are to be burned in accordance with military regulations by various posts of the American Legion, according to reports received at Legion national headquarters. These memorials were built in the early days of the armistice, and bore on wooden panels the names of the local dead of the service. Of late they have fallen into decay, having been erected merely as temporary memorials. The Legionnaires, remembering Army regulations which provide that old American flags, too shabby for display are burned, so that the trophies may never be scattered or soiled, intend to apply the principle to the destruction of the old "honor rolls" to prevent their abuse by souvenir hunters.

—Indianapolis, Ind.

Charleston, S. C.—One of the saddest instances of the world war's aftermath has been reported here by the American Legion. The body of a soldier killed in France was returned to this city and no one appeared to claim it.

The body was that of Robert E. Linton, American soldier who died on German soil following wounds received in battle. Seven months after the body was exhumed and removed to an A. E. F. cemetery in France. Upon the request of Linton's parents to the Government, it is supposed, the body was shipped to the United States for reinterment. When the flag-draped casket arrived in Charleston no record accompanied it, as far as can be learned. It was rumored that Linton's parents once lived in the town of Malden, near here, and the Legion which took charge of the body when no one came to claim it, began a search for the relatives. None could be located however.

The Legion has given the unclaimed soldier a full military burial, with all the honors accorded a general of the army. Meanwhile the search will continue for the parents of the deceased hero.

The last of the American dead have been brought back from overseas, with the exception of those bodies which will rest forever in the cemeteries in France and England at the request of parents. This is the first instance reported, it is believed, in which a returned body has gone unclaimed.

AND THE OVERHEAD.

"Are you sure you have shown me all the principal parts of this car?" asked the fair prospective purchaser. "Yes, madam, all the main ones," returned the dealer.

"Well, then, where is the depreciation?" Tom told me that was one of the biggest things about a car."—American Legion Weekly.

DOMINANT STYLES

The tuxedo and the slip-on are the two dominating styles in sweaters, each of them made in many variations of color, weave and material. A handsome tuxedo, knitted of wool yarn, appears above in a sweater that reveals the effective use of a fancy weave in the body of the garment and the employment of contrasting color.

POCKETBOOK AND HUMANITY

Pocketbook is in the saddle, with humanity trudging along behind.

This is especially true with regard to the strife between labor and capital.

The men in control of our great industrial and commercial enterprises are fattening at the expense of the stockholders who have invested their wealth. They draw big salaries and pull out fat fees while the stockholders have to be content with modest dividends.

The same is true in the ranks of labor. The head men are rolling in comfort, draw large salaries, live high, and revel in their despotic power, while the rank and file of the unions toil and sweat and cough up or take a forced vacation.

The average stockholder in an industrial concern is essentially honest and does not look for any more than is fair and just. He is by no means sure of even that much.

The laboring man who performs the actual toil is in the same class. He would be content with just a wage and steady employment if the czars and the agitators would leave him alone. But they won't.

There is one great trouble with the leaders on both sides. The greed of pocketbook prevails over the cause of humanity. They see nothing except that which is pleasing to their own sight.

Hence the breach, and the bitterness, and the strikes, and the stagnation in business, and the idleness, and the privations and want.

Hence the endless turmoil where peace should reign.

EATING OURSELVES TO DEATH.

In the days of our forefathers men were keen of mind, active of body and rugged of honesty.

They ate simple food and not too much of it.

The generation of today is not to be compared with that of 100 years ago. We have not that fine sense of honor in business that our mothers and fathers bequeathed to us. Our bodies are not in the same pink of condition, and our minds are more or less indifferent except wherein the subject pertains to the profit or pleasure of self.

The reason is simple. Too much to eat, and too much of it too much. It is true that we have made wonderful forward strides in the past century. But they are no greater than the opportunities warrant. Then, too, he brains that produced these successes were in the heads of certain individuals, and those individuals were not gourmands.

The fact is, we are literally eating ourselves to death—slowly but surely. We eat as our fancy dictates, and we eat to excess of the wrong food.

If we really knew the proportion of the population that is afflicted with indigestion, or constipation, or both, the figures would be staggering. Correct eating in moderation does not produce either of these complaints.

The child that is stuffed and pampered from the time it leaves its mother's breast will not produce either a normal mind or body. The system can not properly assimilate the loads of stucc that are shoveled into its stomach. Mental efficiency and bodily ailments are the inevitable result.

We may eat ourselves to death, if we prefer. That is purely our own affair.

But we have no right to stuff a child beyond capacity with food that is injurious to a body not yet matured.

The child knows no better—but we do, or should.

WEATHER BUREAU TO FURNISH LECTURE COURSE TO AIRMEN

The Weather Bureau of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, upon request by the United States Air Service, has begun a course of lectures on meteorology to pilots at certain aviation fields in California. Such a course, it was felt, should be adaptable to the region in which pilots do most of their flying.

KENTUCKY WOOL IN DEMAND ON TWO DIFFERENT POINTS.

Lexington, Ky.—Kentucky wool is liked by wool dealers and manufacturers because of its light shrinkage and freedom from dirt and chaff, according to L. J. Horlacher, in charge of sheep work at the College of Agriculture. The majority of the State's wool crop, which totals more than two and one-half million lbs., is graded as quarter-blood and three-eighths blood, he said.

"The common mountain sheep produce very coarse, light fleeces grading as quarter-blood, low quarter blood and common. Last year, in some instances, this low quarter-blood and common wool sold for only two-thirds as much as the quarter-blood and three-eighths blood."

"The two latter grades are produced by the Hampshire, Shropshire, Oxford Cheviot and Southdown pure breeds and grades. A pure bred ram of one of these breeds when bred to a common ewe usually will improve the fleeces of the offspring sufficiently to raise it from low quarter-blood thereby increasing its value one-third to one-half on the basis of 1921 prices."

The world still contains a few really good people, but we are awful lonesome.

BEREAVED FRIENDS

DEVON

To the family of L. L. Childress the entire community extends its deepest sympathy in the death of their daughter, Susan. She was operated upon for appendicitis at 1 a. m., Saturday and passed away at 5 o'clock that evening at St. Elizabeth Hospital. She was 14 years of age and beloved by all, both young and old. She was a member of the Baptist church and Sunday school, where the funeral was held Sunday afternoon. The services were conducted by her friend, Rev. J. of the Christian church, he is the father of one of her dear friends and classmates. Interment in Highland cemetery.

A death angel visited in our midst and called home Eliza Rankin at 5 a. m. He passed away at home of his brother on Dixie street. To the family we extend our sympathy.

One of our readers has written to me that it will probably be some time before the Recorder is published.

Nation's Unknown Hero

The resting place of America's "Unknown Soldier" in Washington, which is destined in years to come to be one of the most famous spots in the United States.

Plan to Improve Arlington

Plans for the improvement of Arlington National cemetery have been submitted to Quartermaster General Rogers by the commission of fine arts. The quartermaster general approved them and transmitted them to the secretary of war, who referred them to the War Memorials council. This body also approved the plans, whereupon the secretary also gave his approval, and they are now to be made the basis for the development of that cemetery.

Arlington is a national shrine, sacred to the memory of the thousands of soldier dead, named and unnamed, who lie buried under the shade of its trees. This sacred character should be protected and fostered. Monument or treatment of a self-assertive or grotesque character should be rigidly excluded. Quiet, simplicity, reverence should prevail.

Of Historic Interest.
Arlington is also a historic place. Its builder, George Washington Parke Custis, was the adopted son of George Washington. His father gave his life for his country during the Revolution; and he himself was reared at Mount Vernon, where he lived until he completed Arlington house in 1804. At his death Arlington passed into the possession of his daughter, the wife of Robert E. Lee, and was occupied by General and Mrs. Lee until it came into possession of the government. Its historical importance should be considered in methods of treatment.

Arlington prospectively is a portion of the great central composition of Washington, extending from the capitol through the mall to the monument and on to the Lincoln memorial, whence the memorial bridge, already authorized by congress, will cross the Potomac to the newly created park area adjoining the Arlington estate.

Plans of Development.
Arlington has certain dominating features to be considered in the plan of development. Among them are: The mansion house will stand as the termination of the axis of the memorial bridge, leading from the Lincoln memorial to Arlington. The

The following verses to the "Unknown Soldier," written by Angela Morgan, were read at the services in Arlington cemetery by Ada Anne Du Puy, president of the League of American Pen Women:

He is known to the sun-white Majesties
Who stand at the gates of dawn;
He is known to the cloud-horse company
Whose souls but late have gone.
Like wind-blown stars through lattice bars,
They throng to greet their own,
With voice of flame they sound his name
Who died to us unknown.

He is hailed by the time-crowned brotherhood,
By the Dauntless of Marathon,
By Raymond, Godfrey and Lion Heart,
Whose dreams he carried on.
His name they call through the heavenly hall,
Unheard by earthly ear.
He is claimed by the famed in Arady
Who know no title here.

Oh, faint was the lamp of Sirius,
And dim was the Milky Way,
Oh, far was the floor of Paradise
From the soil where the soldier lay.
Oh, chill and stark was the crimson dark

Where huddled men lay deep;
His comrades all denied his call--
Long had they lain asleep.

Oh, strange how the lamp of Sirius
Drops low to the dazzled eyes;
Oh, strange how the steel-red battle fields
Are floors of Paradise.

Oh, strange how the ground with never a sound Swings open, tier on tier,
And standing there in the shining air
Are the friends he cherished here.

They are known to the sun-shed sentinels
Who circle the morning's dawn.
They are led by a cloud-bright company
Through paths unseen before.

Like blossoms blown their souls have flown
Past war and reeking sod.
In the book unbanned their names are found--
They are known in the courts of God!

—Angela Morgan.

wooded slopes in front of the mansion are among the most beautiful landscapes in Washington, and they should be kept free from disturbance of any kind. The plans for the mansion house aim to restore its original character as a distinctive house of its historic period. These plans, made in the depot quartermaster's office, should be carried out in the spirit in which they have been devised.

In the section devoted to burials of soldiers, the treatment represented by the uniform small headstones erected in regular formation and completely shaded by trees is the one that should prevail throughout the entire cemetery. It is these very tree-shaded areas that give Arlington its fine and characteristic quality. Today these shaded areas predominate; but with the burials of World-war soldiers in open fields Arlington is fast losing its present distinction. No effort should be spared to continue the planting over the present bare and shadeless areas.

More Trees Are Needed.
Both the World war and the Spanish war sections should be planted with trees that will produce shade to cover the entire area. In the World war section a planting scheme should be adopted in advance of the scheme for graves, or at least the two plans should be simultaneous.

This means the immediate selection and planting of thousands of trees in the now vacant spaces of Arlington. Today these treeless portions, so out of harmony with the general appearance of the cemetery, give one the idea that the graves of our latest heroes are being placed rather in a potter's field than in an honored location.

The rules made several years ago to regulate the character of monuments marking the graves of officers have had a quieting effect; but in the newer area set apart for officers there is need of trees. The regulations against mausoleums, portraits, and unusual designs should be enforced for the protection of the many against the self-assertion of the few. The officers whose careers need eulogy on a tombstone should not be accorded in Arlington the credit that history denies.

Roadway Should Be Improved.
The road in front of Arlington cemetery should be improved and developed along the entire frontage. The space should be leveled, the car tracks raised to the surface and relocated, and a boulevard treatment should replace the present neglected and uncared for conditions. The right way to deal with the situation is to have a comprehensive plan made for the entire development of Arlington.

Arlington roads need renewing. The mansion house needs new floors, woodwork and paint, and, especially, the present barn-like appearance of the rotunda devoted to the public should be changed for the better. Extensive planting of trees, preferably oaks, should begin at once, so that a quarter of a century hence the entire cemetery may come into the fine condition that the best portions now display. The roads leading to the cemetery should be made safe and adequate. So much the nation owes to the last resting place of those who have fought its battles, and to the relatives and friends who pay tribute to the memory of the heroes.

Talk meters are being installed on telephones and it is claimed they measure conversation after the same fashion that other meters in the house measure gas, electricity and water. The new instrument is known as the telechromometer and as fully 50 per cent of all telephone conversation is either unnecessarily long or frivolous, the new inventor claims.

The receiver is taken off the hook on a party line, the meter begins to operate. The eavesdropper will be charged as much as if he had made the call.

EDUCATING PUBLIC SENTIMENT

Business success is to a large extent dependent on public sentiment toward an enterprise or article of merchandise. Peculiar prejudices take root in the public mind, but people are easily accessible to reason, and such sentiments can be removed by sincere efforts to present facts as they are.

An interesting illustration is given in the remarkable change that has taken place in the popular feeling about prunes as an article of food. Formerly prunes were a subject for the humorists, who made jokes about this fruit as the staple diet which the landlady worked off on the boarders, and which they consumed unwillingly.

Today the feeling about prunes has entirely changed. The public sentiment toward a delicacy and the boarders' kick if they do not get them. They sell at a much higher price, far easier than formerly at a low price. How was it done?

A great improvement in the methods of growing, handling and grading them was largely responsible. But the big increase in consumption of this fruit could never have been achieved without a notable advertising campaign.

During the war prunes sold well and the production was greatly increased. After the war the European demand fell off, owing to poverty over there. To meet this situation 8,000 prune and apricot growers organized an association and spent $225,000 in advertising in 1919. In 1920 conditions looked blue for the trade, owing to business depression, and it was predicted that the crop would not sell. But a very active advertising campaign was carried on, and the crop was sold out in three months.

Any business that finds itself ignored or misconceived of by the public, can get a hearing for the merits of its proposition in the same way. Tell your story through the newspapers and the public will understand you better.

The number of left-over straw hats sadly discarded each spring is equalled only by the number of old straw hats hopefully put away each fall to be worn next spring.

One thousand cases of Danish eggs have been landed in New York. This immediately recalls to the mind the remark Mr. Shaken-peale made about there being something rotten in Denmark.

Peace hath her victories--and from abroad comes clarion note of one of them. The dreaded disease anthrax seems at last to have been conquered. Dr. Alfred Dinley, a well known bacteriologist of Liverpool, claims that the use of certain of the shorter wave lengths of light kills anthrax germs in hides and wool as no disinfectant can possibly kill them.

Here is where the peace victory arrives upon the scene! The apparatus which kills the anthrax germs, so powerful that its penetrating rays pass through bales of hides and wool eight feet thick, is a projection device which was designed originally for quite another sort of killing; a searchlight of death-dealing rays, something like X rays in their nature, but more murderous to human beings.

The world is sick of war between man and man. War between man and beast is nearly over, but war between man and disease, man and germs, man and the infinitely little, infinitely powerful organisms which destroy his own, is but begun. That a terrible weapon of war, untied on the battle field, but a potential killer of battalions, can find peaceful use in saving lives by destroying disease germs is a matter for congratulation to a world which is scrapping many an engine of war with no other result than increasing the size of the junk pile!

Theodore Knepper, a family of Latonia, were guests of Charles Birkle and family, last Sunday. At the noon hour a big spread was enjoyed by all, which was in honor of John M. Birkle, who is one of the graduates of the Boone County HI School. He received several nice presents from his relatives.

Bledsoe's pool room on the Dixie Highway, in Erlanger, was destroyed by fire Monday morning. Adjoining buildings were damaged, an only by heroic work was the Erlanger Department Store saved from the flames. The Covington Fire Department assisted the local company which threatened to spread to other buildings. The loss amounts to about $5,000. Cause of the fire unknown.

Attend the big auction sale of Nonpareil Park on Dixie Highway next Saturday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock. A lot will be given by Lancaster & Keen, the so agents.

FIRE BLIGHT ON APPLES ALARMING MANY GROWERS

Lexington, Ky.—Fire blight, a bacterial disease that is highly destructive to pear trees and one that some times becomes serious on apple trees, is alarming apple growers in many parts of the State by infecting their trees, according to reports being received by W. D. Valleu, plant pathologist at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. Little can be done to control it at the present time and the chances are that it will do small damage, he said.

"On apples the disease is present as a blossom blight although it also infects leafy twigs. A part of the blossom clusters thought to have been killed by the frost this spring probably have been destroyed by the blight bacteria.

"The blight that is most injurious lives over the winter in cankers that are found on large branches while that which usually is found on fruit spurs and small twigs dies out as soon as rapid growth stops and seldom lives over winter.

"If fruit spurs on large branches are infected with blight the disease may spread farther back on the branch, girdle it and finally kill it. Consequently, it is a good idea to cut such branches as far back as the disease has spread taking care to see that knives and other tools used in the operation are sterilized with a one-to-1,000 solution of bichloride of mercury.

"If apple growing is an important feature of the farming operations, it may be wise in some cases to eliminate pears from the farm or at least to plant them as far as practicable from the apple orchard since the disease may spread from heavily infested pear trees to apple trees.

"The only complete control of blight is obtained by community co-operation directed toward the task of eliminating it from the entire section."

CARE OF EGGS ON FARM GIVEN NEW IMPORTANCE.

Lexington, Ky.—In the future, good care of eggs on the farm before they are sent to market will be a more important factor in determining the profits which Kentucky farmers obtain from their poultry flocks now that the State has an egg candling law, poultrymen at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station are pointing out.

The portion of the law which instructs farmers provides that between May 15 of each year and January 15 of the next, no person, firm or corporation engaged in buying or selling eggs shall do so without candling them and that no payment either in cash or merchandise shall be made for those unfit for food.

The five main causes for eggs becoming unfit for food are roosters in the flock, keeping the eggs in warm places, damp dirty nests, leaving eggs in the nest too long, and holding them at home too long, according to J. H. Martin, in charge of the station poultry work.

"Losses in eggs unfit for food may be prevented if all roosters are confined, sold or killed, the eggs kept in a cool place, one good nest provided for every five hens, the eggs gathered twice daily and marketed when they are fresh, he said.

"During the summer, broken, shrunken and badly flavored eggs may be prevented by gathering them twice daily," he continued. "Deterioration is prevented if the eggs are kept in a cool, well ventilated room. If the eggs are kept in a cave, care should be taken not to place them near onions or any other objects that might cause the eggs to absorb odors. It is best to place them on a table or box to allow free circulation of air about them. Eggs will reach market in better condition if they are sent frequently instead of being held for a full case to accumulate."

3,000 NEW MEMBERS

Tremendous Gain Made By Co-operative on First Day of Drive which Continues all this Week.

Lexington, Ky., May 28.—Three thousand members it was estimated at the offices of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association here Saturday night, had been enrolled in the association as a result of meetings held in the sixty-nine counties of Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana, which are represented in the organization, in connection with the payment to members in those counties of an amount of money approximating $10,000,000, the second payment to be made to members of the organization, the first having been of an equal amount.

Reports from many counties showed large numbers of growers, who remained out of the association last fall, had joined the first day of the drive for new members, which began with the delivery of the checks to members. Thousands of non-members attended these meetings by invitation of the association workers. It is figured that between 9,000 and 12,000,000 lbs. more tobacco was added to the amount which will be marketed co-operatively by the Association this winter.

Now many touching appeals are being made to Father by the girls to get some new summer clothes.

NEW, BEVERIDGE AND INDIANA

The significance of the Indiana senatorial primary does not inhere so much in the selection of Albert J. Beveridge as in the defeat of Senator New. It becomes apparent from a review of the situation that Senator New would have been defeated by a candidate much more ordinary than is Mr. Beveridge, and that thus Mr. Beveridge's nomination is very far from ensuring his election.

The reported preparation of the Administration at Washington to receive Mr. Beveridge may prove to be prematurely confident. Mr. Beveridge has anything but an easy road before him in the election, not by reason of having particularly strong personal opposition in the Democratic candidate, but by reason of Mr. Beveridge's probable reluctance to prove to the satisfaction of the plain people of Indiana that, if sent to the Senate, he will not perpetuate certain conditions which Mr. New's vote, among others, has assisted to erect. Mr. Beveridge did not definitely repudiate the actions and elements for which the people of Indiana repudiated Mr. New. And it is scarcely possible that Mr. Beveridge will be allowed to progress very far in his campaign without being compelled to come out plainly on certain definite issues of the past, which are bound also to become issues in the future.

Until the campaign has reached that stage, and until Mr. Beveridge's frankness or evasion has given his final measure in his well-staged return to political activity, the situation can be summed up thus: Indiana has repudiated New, using Beveridge as the necessary instrument; but in so using Beveridge, Indiana has not committed herself, even by inference, to his election. # "Ye GENUS BOY"

(With apologies to K. C. B.)

Down at LaPorte, Indiana—right on Silver Lake—there is a wonderful level plain—walled in by wooded hills—and here is Camp Roosevelt—named after a great American—who loved boys—and men—and I think every red-blooded—American boy and his dad—should know about this camp—for I was there last year—and I saw boys—from everywhere in the U. S. A.—grow tanned and rugged and alert—under regular army officers—and picked high school teachers—for there is a summer school—as you should know—and crack athletic coaches—for the boys swim and fished—and sang and boxed and drilled—and studied French and algebra—and ate, Gosh, how they ate—and their proud parents came—and watched and praised—Major F. L. Beale—who is a big man—and knows the boys' game—and a human being—and this year 1922—the camp will be bigger—and it only costs a little bit—because Chicago's Board of Education is back of it all—and the camp's not run—to make any money—but to make true Americans—so I really think—every boy that you read—should know. Don't you?—you tell 'em!

Everybody damning the Tariff

The McCumber Tariff Bill, which is the Fordney bill with 2,057 amendments, drags its weary way in the Senate, daily arousing new opposition and antagonism from men of all shades of political opinion; from the Republican, Independent and the Democratic press, from business men including manufacturers and importers; from farmers, and almost every element possessing intelligence and with any understanding of economic principles.

The constitutionality of the provision delegating authority to the Executive to fix rates has been attacked by such great constitutional lawyers as Senator Welsh (Dem. Ohio) and by one of the foremost authorities on the tariff, Senator Underwood (Dem., Ala.), but the Senate has already shown its contempt for the Constitution by confirming Senator Smoot and Representative Burton as members of the War Debt Funding Commission.

There is scarcely a schedule in the bill that is not subject to attack in the nature of an exposure of special privileges granted to the big interests. The Packers' Trust is well provided for. The Payne-Aldrich bill put one and a half cents a pound on all fresh meat. In the pending bill it is three and a half cents a pound on beef and veal, with lamb at five cents a pound. Swine now on the free list, is given the rate of one-half cent a pound and fresh pork also is on the free list at three-quarter cents a pound. But there has been no change in the rate on cattle on the hoof which the packers import from South America, and frozen meats are barred from competition.

These are typical of the protection afforded the big interests.

BEAUTIFY THE FARM.

Make your rural home beautiful. Lay out spacious grounds around the farm house, plant shade trees, lay gravel roads and plant flowers. Don't lay up all your net earnings for the benefit of your heirs and lawyers, but spend some of it in beautifying your home. The farmer who always shuts his eyes to the aesthetic features of his life and screws himself down to the task of making money, loses a large portion, and the biggest portion too, of his existence. His home should be an attraction to himself, to his wife, and above all to his children. Unpleasant homes in too many instances drive the sons of farmers to the towns, to excitement and dissipation, and to wreck. Such sons do not generally leave pleasant and beautiful homes.

A WEEK'S NEWS.

Every farmer in the county has received financial benefits through the efforts of the Boone County Farm Bureau, also many of them do not realize it. The come back in the price of farm products and reduction in price of the things the farmer has to buy has been hastened by the Farm Bureau as it could not have been done in any other way. And the good work is still going on.

The principles of this organization are, to look ahead rather than to be short sighted, to get only justice for the farmer rather than to destroy institutions that are serving him, to be generous rather than selfish, and to live and let live.

It is up to every farmer to "let his conscience be his guide" and decide whether he will pay his fare or beat his ride on the great Farm Bureau train that is carrying all farmers to better times.

It is thus within reach of every farmer in the county to have a part in this great county, State and National movement to improve conditions for the farmer.

Grant county voted to issue $250,000 in bonds to be used in reconstructing the Dixie Highway thru the county, and also build and repair bridges. A large mileage of the roads in Grant county can not be repaired with the road fund, and the people of Grant will have to look to other means of keeping their roads in repair. But few counties in Kentucky can keep their roads in repairable conditions with the road fund and some other means will have to be adopted or our roads will soon become impassable. The road question is one of the most serious now before our citizens, who are demanding better roads. Better roads will require the expenditure of more money in their building, and roads and if we are to have improved system of highways we must contribute thereto in a substantial way.

The Pythian Sisters will be in line, they are going to make a splendid showing and display. The city will ring with shouts of Pythians on that night. It's going to be a wonderful affair.

MASONIC TEMPLE FOR BEAUTIFUL CAPITAL SITE

ORDER PLANS A MAGNIFICENT BUILDING ON A NINE-ACRE TRACT IN NORTHERN WASHINGTON.

Washington—In the very heart of the most exclusive and beautiful residential section of northwest Washington, D. C., lies the "Dean Tract" of land, nine acres in extent, covered with magnificent trees, and the most coveted and eagerly desired piece of land in all the District of Columbia. It was recently purchased by The Women's Foundation to preserve it from real estate aggression.

Now the tract has been sold to the Masonic fraternity of the District, which will erect upon it a temple to cost one or more million dollars. The land was purchased for a consideration understood to be $900,000, and is amply large enough to permit the erection of several temples should the need be found desirable.

Civic authorities are loud in their praise of The Women's Foundation, which declined to permit the beautiful park to be cut up into building lots or disposed of to anyone for any purpose whatsoever until a pledge was made to preserve for the city the majority of the magnificent trees which grow upon the land.

When the plans are made are realized, the Nation's Capital will have something seldom or never seen in fraternal buildings—a great temple adequately and completely surrounded by broad lawns and wooded areas. Some of the most magnificent buildings in the world are in America, it is pointed out, and among the most beautiful are several with no foreground or background, the wonderful Pennsylvania Railroad station in New York City, the Woolworth building, and the City Hall in Philadelphia being cases in point.

THE RUINED LIFE.

(By Walt Mason.)

The pencil falters in my hand as I proceed to tell of Abner Lushington, a fellow of my kind. I knew him from a younger days when he was blithe and gay, and joyous as a yoke of steers he caroled on his way. In paths obscure he plucked along, and gained a small reward, and life was all a grand sweet song without a minor chord. At last by chance he conquered fame, and great was his renown, and all the sniveling artists came from every part of town. They snapped him when he sat to eat his shredded bran repast, they shot his hat, they shot his feet and made him stand aghast. He couldn't cough or sneeze but snatched fans were there; they snapped the spavins on his knees, the sand-burs in his hair. He couldn't dodge the fatal lens, he got his every act, and madder than he got his every act, he felt his brain contract. The snap shot fends so stirred his wrath he tore his beard and wept; they got him coming from the bath, they got him when he slept. And then his mind gave way, 'twas clear, his shift to him on the blink; he had to shift to think. Ah, it would make one's bosom bleed to see him sunk so low, and still the snapshot fends proceed and picture as they go.

WAR FINANCE HEAD PRAISES BURLEY POOL

EUGENE MEYER, JR., SPENDS BUSY DAY IN LEXINGTON ON TOUR OF SOUTHERN MARKETING ASSOCIATIONS.

Lexington, Ky. — Eugene Meyer, Jr., managing director of the war finance corporation, spent yesterday in Lexington as the guest of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association, luncheon with the officers and directors of the association, purchased three Kentucky saddle horses from W. M. Jones of North Middletown, delivered an address on the aid given cooperative marketing associations in the United States to an audience in the wall room of the Phoenix hotel, conference with representatives of the war finance corporation in Kentucky and left for Chattanooga on a tour of the South, which will take him to Atlanta, and will include a number of conferences with representatives of cooperative marketing associations in several of the southern states.

Mr. Meyer declared before his speech at the Phoenix hotel that even if the war finance corporation had not had full confidence in the movement in Kentucky there, would have been no doubt on that score after he had met the splendid men among the leaders of the association and who compose its board of directors. President James C. Stone presided at the afternoon meeting at the Phoenix. He paid tribute to Judge Robert W. Bingham as the tobacco grower's friend. Judge Bingham was cheered for a minute before he could introduce Mr. Meyer, the audience rising.

Judge Bingham spoke.

Judge Bingham told of the meeting of the growers at Elizabethtown Monday. He said he had been told that similar conditions existed in all the other counties; that the growers are satisfied, and that they would not return to the old way of selling. He said that the war finance corporation had been of immense aid to the burley growers, not only in aiding in the financing of the second payment in part, but in the credit accruing to the association from the backing of such an institution as the war finance corporation in the orderly marketing of its crop.

Mr. Meyer, in his address, said it was probable that the war finance corporation would be continued for another year and said that recommendation had been made by the office, in connection with pending legislation, that would liberalize the attitude of government financing toward the agricultural producers.

Mr. Meyer was accompanied by G. C. Henderson of New York, general counsel for the finance corporation, and Floyd E. Harrison of Virginia, assistant to the managing director. He was met at the station by President Stone and Judge Bingham and spent the morning visiting places of historic interest in and about Lexington and seeing the famous race horse, Man o' War, at Hinata farm.

Approves Cooperative Plan.

"We have loaned million of dollars to cooperative marketing associations," said Mr. Meyer, "and our relations with them have been satisfactory in every way. The business requirements of the war finance corporation have been met by them like the best and oldest established corporations in the country."

"I believe that cooperative marketing has been the salvation of the southern cotton situation, and I hope it will do as well for the tobacco growers as it has for the cotton producers."

"There is no better collateral for loans than good American staples, when properly warehoused and properly inspected on a reasonable valuation. Not only are they good collateral for 90 days, in my opinion, but as long as may be necessary for purposes of orderly and gradual marketing."

WASHINGTON COMMENT.

That business should not profit at the expense of the health of little children is a universal belief. That child labor is expensive to the nation, an offense against decency, undesired by those who put the welfare of the race and their country above immediate monetary profit, is undeniable.

But there are worse things than child labor; things which could wreck these United States much quicker even than the exploiting of many little children.

One of these is the overthrowing of those foundations upon which this nation is built; let there be no foundation and the superstructure will crumble. Let there be no nation, and children here will be as the children of Russia—starved, helpless, dead by thousands.

The Supreme Court of the United States has just ruled that the 1913 child labor law was unconstitutional. Doubtless the exploiters of children rejoiced. But there are many who love children who have not criticized the decision, just as there have been many who are heart and soul for prohibition who believe the 18th amendment and the Volstead Act have done more harm than good. Admittedly, the 1913 child labor law would have stopped child labor. But it would also open the doors to the federal government taking over all rights not reserved to and by the states, a thing expressly forbidden in the fundamental law of our land.

Let us, by all means, do away with child labor. But let us do it by arousing public sentiment, by state legislation, by education, by willingness to follow him who would have little children suffered to come unto him, not by tampering with the strength of the country where children are most free, where children have most opportunity, where children have most opportunity, where children are best protected.

Let us thank God for a Supreme Court which can think of the country as a whole, even before it thinks of exploited children.

FARMERS AND CROPS

Farmers of County Making Fine Progress With Work and Their Crops.

After a little tour of different parts of the county last Saturday afternoon and Sunday, the writer found that the farmers have made more progress in the last two weeks in farming than any other two weeks this season as the weather has been almost ideal for work.

Nearly all the corn has been planted, and a good deal of corn is up and has been given its first plowing.

Farmers in practically every section of the county in their hardest week's work of the year to date during the past week. Aided by favorable weather, they caught up with much of the plowing and seeding that has been delayed by a late start this spring, and in some sections transplanting of tobacco was started.

As the real work of the burley crop of 1922 was launched, a well-crop present in the guise of $10,000,000 in checks, representing the second payment of the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association on the crop of 1921, went into the pockets of the pool members.

Farmers everywhere are optimistic over the prospects for the coming year. With practically all crops in good condition despite the unfavorable weather of the early spring, and the burley association, which handles the big money crop for the growers, a proved success, the belief prevails everywhere that prosperity has returned to the farmers.

A number of growers who are raising small crops already have completed the work of transplanting their tobacco. Plants everywhere are in unusually good condition and indicate that the crop will get a good start. A big percentage of the crop will be set out this week, and most of the growers will finish transplanting by the end of next week. Although most of the farmers now are using the mechanical method of setting, the weather has been favorable for transplanting by hand in most sections, the showers of the latter part of the week giving the ground a drizzling, woe iwo inoffensive ground a thorough drizzling.

Corn which was planted early is out of the ground and growing fast. In most sections it is looking good and it is believed that the late start will have little effect on the crop. Potatoes and oats also are growing fast, although unusually late, and the latter crop indicates a good stand. Farmers who were far behind with their planting got a big percentage of their corn into the ground during the past week, and much progress was made with plowing.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C.—When Senator Caraway rose in his place in the Senate on May 24 and charged that Attorney General Daugherty received a fee for helping C. W. Morse to make his getaway from the Atlanta penitentiary during Taft's administration, Senator "Jim" Watson of Indiana made haste to defend Daugherty and to deny the whole story. He did this on the word and authority of Daugherty, he said.

On May 20 Senator Caraway had printed in the Congressional Record a letter which Daugherty had written Morse demanding a balance of $25,000 due on contract. The Washington News on that day printed a photographic copy of the letter bearing Daugherty's signature, as well as a copy of the contract which Morse made with Thomas B. Felder of Atlanta, who brought Daugherty into the case because of his close relations with the President of the time—Taft. While the contract is dated by Felder, it proved for a retainer of $5,000 for Daugherty, and expenses, with an additional $25,000 in case of Morse's release being obtained.

Senator Caraway, who has done the people the service of exposing Daugherty's action in contracting with this man, who was a convicted felon, agreeing to relieve him from his very proper punishment through his influence with the President, stated that the only decent course left open to Daugherty was to resign. Of course the man who put this job over his head, and the president incumbent at the White House hasn't enough of the Roosevelt spirit to fire him, as he so richly deserves. Of course Morse did not pay the $25,000, but proceeded to organize new companies which sought and obtained Government contracts, and is again in the toils for alleged frauds on the government.

In the Ladies Home Journal of April, 1914, is published an article by President Taft in which he said: "One never knows until he has been in the Presidency the amount of pressure that is brought in one way and another to stay pro-convicts and to pardon criminals. I had two cases before me in which it was represented that both the convicts were near death. Examinations were made by the Army Medical Corps, watches were established and in the last stages of a fatal disease. One of them died soon after he was released. Another of them is apparently in excellent health and seeking to reestablish himself in the field in which he committed a penitentiary offense. This bill met with the unanimous position of the Democrats and many Republican members opposed the legislation that the leadership saw if a vote were taken it would be badly defeated. That bill is now resting in the morgue.

The great millionaire Republican Ways and Means Committee presented a bill providing for ten extra collection districts in the United States.

The great millionaire Republican Ways and Means Committee presented a bill providing for a loan of $5,000,000 to Liberia, a Republic of Africa, which has 60,000 civilized and 2,000 uncivilized people. Every member of the Democratic minority voted against this bill as did 43 Republicans. With a larger majority in the House than the Democrats have votes, the millionaire Republican Committee managed to pass the bill by the small majority of 9 votes. This bill would have been defeated but for the party lash which was directed from the White House.

The Republicans are fighting among themselves. Some of the cabinet officers are under fire and we now have one of the ablest and most respectable Republican Congressmen who is threatening to file impeachment charges against the Cabinet officer who is the strong arm and close personal adviser of the President because he refuses to prosecute certain war contractors.

How long would Abe Lincoln have kept a jack-leg lawyer in the cabinet?

SUSAN HAWES CHILDRESS

Death has invaded the family circle of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Childress, of Graves Ave., Erlanger, and taken a choice blossom from their "rose garden of girls." When the sad news came of the passing of Susan Hawes Childress the entire community was shocked and distressed beyond measure. The funeral services were held from the Commonwealth Ave., Baptist church of which she was a consistent member. The edifice was crowded to the walls and the floral tributes so numerous that many of them could not be brought into the church. The Rev. Calvin E. Ribble, a neighbor and close friend paid a glowing eulogy to her memory.

Susan was a favorite with all who knew her, which was shown by the immense assemblage at the service, and the floral pieces which completely filled the large automobile flower wagon. She is survived by her husband and three sisters, besides a host of relatives and friends. Interment will be in Highland cemetery. Undertaker Philip Taliaferro had charge of the funeral arrangements.

The pall-bearers were her classmates Misses Ethel Buckner, Willette Kirk, Dorothy Ribble, Ruth Sanders, Beulah Morris and Elizabeth Holladay. The interment was in Highland cemetery.

MRS. LOUISA J. LAWS, DEAD.

Mrs. Louisa J. Laws, aged seventy-one years, passed away Thursday afternoon, May 25, at the home of her brother-in-law, Wm. Bradford, on Dixie Highway, Elsmere, Ky. She had been an invalid for several years. Funeral services were held at the residence Saturday morning by Rev. Wilson, after which the remains were taken by undertaker Philip Taliaferro to Florence Cemetery for interment. Mrs. Laws is survived by four sisters and two brothers.

The old composer who wrote "There's Music in the Air" would consider himself considerable of a prophet if he could come back and hear a radio concert.

TROLLEY BUSES TO ERLANGER

BACKERS OF NEW TRANSPORTATION LINE ALSO PLAN SUBURBAN HOMES DEVELOPMENT, IS RUMOR.

Covington and Erlanger citizens are said to be backing a project to install a trolley motor bus line, which is to operate from the end of the Ft. Mitchell car line at Erlanger, Ky. Within the next few days, it is said, application for a franchise is to be made to the Kenton County Commissioners and the Town Trustees of Erlanger.

It is said that options have been obtained on several hundred acres of land along the Dixie Highway, extending from Dudley pike to Erlanger, on the western side upon which hundreds of homes are to be erected in a vast suburban development movement. At present there are more than 100 new homes in course of erection along the pike between Covington and Erlanger.

The new buses are to be equipped with rubber tires and propelled by electric motors, with a double trolley system, it is said, and the cars are to have a seating capacity of 30 persons.

Following several unsuccessful efforts on the part of Erlanger citizens to have the Ft. Mitchell car line extended to that town, a number of automobiles for several years have supplied the only transportation along the pike.

GAINES WINGATE, DEAD

Elmer Wingate, son of M. F. and Elmer Wingate, died at his home in Petersburg May 24. He had not been in good health for several years. The immediate cause of his death being a blood clot on the brain. His funeral was held Friday afternoon at 2 p. m., the service being conducted by Revs. Jeffries and Trayner, after which the remains were put in the vault to await burial. The floral offerings were beautiful and were slight tokens of the esteem in which he was held. He had spent the greater part of his life in Petersburg, and was well thought of by all who knew him, as was shown by the large crowd that attended his funeral, not only from his home community, but from Lawrenceburg and Aurora, Indiana. He is survived by his father, M. F. Wingate, brother Herman and sister Mrs. G. M. Terrill, to mourn his death. The sympathy of all is extended to the family. Undertaker C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, had charge of the funeral.

GROWERS' POOL CLOSES A BIG DEAL; MEYER VIEWS LEAF SECURITY ON U. S. LOANS.

Lexington, Ky.—An additional 1,000,000 pounds of the redried tobacco of the Burley Growers' Cooperative Association are imminent. It was said at the offices of the association Thursday. No information was given out as to the purchaser of the 1,000,000-hoghead lot or the prospective purchasers.

Many Contracts Signed. Contracts signed in the drive in this week are coming to the office of Assistant Chief Wm. Collins of the fire bureau division by hundreds. Many of them are from West Virginia and the counties in Ohio in which Clifton Rodes is conducting a campaign, but almost every county in the district is represented in the contracts received.

DECORATION DAY.

Tuesday was Decoration Day and was observed as a holiday by a great many, who visited the cemetery and decorated the graves of departed ones, while a great many bedecked the banks of the creeks trying their luck with the fishy tribe. Quite a number of people who live away from Burlington, came out from the city to place flowers on the graves of loved ones who have gone before. The observance of May 30th, is becoming more generally observed thruout this country, and is a very commendable tribute to the dead. We noticed that quite a number of the graves in the cemeteries near town were decorated with flags.

WHAT THE ROADS MUST STAND

Automobiles are supposed to have improved the condition of the country people but if the country roads are not rebuilt to meet the new strains created by automobile loads they grow worse.

It has been found that a five ton truck with solid rubber tires traveling 15 miles an hour, when striking a hollow one-fourth of an inch deep, will deliver a blow four times its weight. When you consider that the ground seems to tremble when a heavy truck passes by, one can see what a tremendous strain the modern road has to bear. The people living in cities should realize that unless they take hold and save the country roads which are deteriorating under the heavy strain, the cost of getting food products into the market must necessarily increase.

SHOOTING AT KENSINGTON

Frank Norman Seriously Wounded By J. G. Adkins—Adkins in Jail.

J. G. Adkins shot Frank Norman Tuesday morning about 5 o'clock. These men had been having some trouble, and the trouble was renewed when they met on the Dixie Highway near Richwood. Adkins drew his revolver and shot at Norman four times, two of the shots taking effect. Norman is in a serious condition. Immediately after the shooting Adkins boarded the commuter for Cincinnati. Sheriff Hume was called and went at once to the scene of the shooting and he found that Adkins had taken the commuter for Cincinnati and arrested him and brought him before the county judge who will hold an examining trial as soon as the extent of the injury to Norman is determined. Dr. Rankin was called and located one bullet but could not locate the bullet that struck Norman near the throat, and he took Norman to a hospital in Cincinnati to have an X-ray picture made in order to locate the bullet. This wound may prove serious, depending entirely on the course the bullet ranged through the neck and shoulder of Mr. Norman. These men had not been on the best of terms.

THANKS!

The Boone County Recorder, Burlington, Ky.,

Dear Sirs:

We had an advertisement in the Recorder of last week warning people to be cautious in purchasing a horse, as we believed ours was stolen. We got her back before the Recorder was out, but too late to withdraw the ad. We wish to give credit where it is due, and will say that we know it was due to our ad in the Recorder of week before last that we found her. Wish to say in this connection that we are well pleased with results of all the advertising we have done in the Recorder.

CONNER & KRAUS,
Florence, Ky.

THE HOME RADIO.

The RECORDER will publish a series of articles on the Home Radio, how to make and use it. No attempt is made in this series to enter into the intricacies or mechanical side of wireless but will give simple, dependable and practical information which will enable any one young or old, to make and use wireless telephone instruments. The making of the instrument tends to greatly increase fascination to the use of them. One or more of the articles will appear until all of the series have been published. They have been prepared by A. Hyatt Verrill, who is an expert on Radio.

The following is taken from Tarpon Springs, (Miss.): "In leader: Capt. B. Bradley died Saturday, May 13th, after twenty minutes illness of heart disease. Capt. Bradley, who was sixty-three years of age at the time of his death, was on a cruise with his wife and son, Fritz, on his boat off Tarasota. He lived many days at Tarpon, coming here when he retired from active life as a steamboat pilot on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

"Beff" Bradley was born and reared in Petersburg, and was a son of Dillon Bradley. His many friends in this county are sorry to hear of his death. His wife was a Miss McAroy, of Rising Sun, Indiana.

It is reported that the mail received in Burlington Sunday morning will be discontinued. We have understood that it was the policy to extend the postal service rather than curtail it and a discontinuance of the mail should not be considered. Over thirty years ago this service was established and has continued satisfactory to all through Republican and Democratic administrations. No change should now be made unless those in charge of the postal affairs desire to reduce the efficiency of the department and the service rendered. There is no reason why the change should be made.

Very little interest is being manifested in the State registration which comes off in July, yet those who do not register in their precincts will be deprived of voting unless they come to the county next and register. It is going to be a hard job to induce the average voter in the country districts to register in July. Many claim they never get what they vote for and are very indifferent.

In last week's issue Brown & Dunson of Florence, quoted granulated sugar at $5.28 per 100 lbs. when the correct price should have been $6.28.

Quite a number of the Erlanger boys went to their camp on Gunpowder creek last Saturday and remained until after Decoration Day.

Grant Williamson, who is an old tobacco raiser, says that tobacco plants this year are the best he ever saw.

W. R. Rogers and sisters, Misses Nellie and Elizabeth, spent Decoration Day with relatives in Walton.

GUNPOWDER

J. W. Rouse and wife spent Sunday with their son B. A. Rouse and Mrs. Rouse.

Mr. Starns and wife and son Rollo, spent Sunday with friends in Kenton county.

Wilson Quick, who reported as being on the sick list, has not improved any since our last report.

The sheep in this neck of the woods have about all been sheared, and the wool is now ready for market.

Mrs. Minta Utz visited Mrs. Doty, last Sunday who is seriously ill at the home of her son, Mr. Hal Doty and Mrs. Doty.

There were some splendid rains fell here last week and the tobacco grows took advantage of them and there was considerable of the weed pitched.

There was a large congregation attended church at Hopeful last Sunday, and those from a distance were a Mr. Gerhardt and family, of near Independence.

Perry Barlow met with quite an accident last Saturday evening. After driving from home about a mile, the axle on his Ford broke and he and his family had to return home and leave the machine.

The strawberry festival given by the ladies of Hopeful church last Saturday night was attended by a fairly good sized crowd, and the amount received was satisfactory.

Mr. Philip Taliaferro, undertaker, of Erlanger, and special friend of this writer, was present and contributed very generously toward making it a success, and the ladies extend their thanks to all who were present for their liberality in supporting a good cause.

PT. PLEASANT.

Miss Rachel Deas is visiting her sister, Mrs. Chas. Carpenter, at Mr. and Mrs. Chas. M. Carpenter spent last Friday with Mrs. George Darby.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Tanner entertained Bro. Omer and family, last Sunday.

Mrs. Jno. Moss and children called on Mr. Geo. Darby, last Saturday afternoon.

The Ladies Aid will give an ice cream and strawberry supper at the church next Friday night, June 2nd. Everybody welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Tanner gave a party Friday night in honor of Mr. Tom Bonar's cousins from the city. A large crowd attended and all had a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Tanner, Miss Sara E. Miss Eleanor Walton and Mr. Keene Souther and family, attended the birthday dinner at Mr. Sam Aylor's in Constance, last Sunday.

A surprise party was given May 27th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Groves in honor of their daughter Georgia Allen's birthday. Games and a general good time were enjoyed by the children topped off with ice cream strawberries and cake. Among those present were Laura Adelia and Norris Franklin Riddell, Mary Kathryn and Elmo Jergens, Phyllis Scroggins, George James and Robert Moore, Ollie and Herbert Hetzel, Sara Starcher and Eugene and George Hetzel.

ATTENDED DEDICATION.

Quite a large number of the colored people from this part of the county attended the dedication of the new church at Walton, last Sunday.

A warning from Berlin says that American tourists are being grossly overcharged. Maybe the hospitable Germans just want to make the visitors feel at home.

STATE NEWS.

WOMEN BANDITS IN MEN'S CLOTHES KILL FARMWIFE AND THEN BOTH SLAIN.

Bowling Green.—A report reached here that two women bandits were killed after they had slain a farmer's wife over in Clay county, Tenn. The women were dressed in men's clothes and had their faces blackened, the story says. The farmer had sold his place for $1,800 and was believed to have the money in the house. He had one fox hunting. When his wife refused to give up the money, the women cut her throat. A farm hand heard the commotion, and, believing the intruders were negro men, killed both. The section is so isolated that verification of the details has thus far been impossible.

MAN EIGHTY-TWO MARRIES WIDOW IN GRAVES COUNTY.

Mayfield.—Meek B. Mooney, 82, a farmer residing in the southern part of Graves county, and Mrs. Elizabeth Sarah Gibson, 62, secured a license and were married by the county judge.

DEATH WATCH OVER MAN AGAINST WHOSE PARDON DAUGHTER PROTESTED.

Harrisburg.—Miss Rose Donovan, 17, who lives with her grandmother, Mrs. John Rainey, on the Danville pike, has received information that her father, Wm. T. Donovan has been placed under death watch at LaPort, Ind., preliminary to his electrocution June 1 in the Michigan City prison, for the murder of his wife at Bloomington, Ind., last July. In a recent letter to Governor McCray, the girl wrote: "I want to say to you and the board, I don't want his sentence changed." She added that her father had killed her mother without cause, and that "the sentence given him is what he surely deserves."

LITTLE FOLKS SEE TRAIN AND MOVIES FIRST TIME.

Hazard.—Riding eighteen miles across the mountains from Courtland, ten children who attended the Presbyterian school there, were brought to Hazard by their teachers to see for the first time a railroad train and a picture show.

IN QUARREL OVER SCHOOL FARMER SEVERELY STABBED.

Cynthiana.—Grove Beckett, of Sunrise, sustained a seven-inch wound over the heart in a fight over school affairs in that district. Smith Arnold, his neighbor and a relative by marriage was arrested on a charge of wounding him. Beckett's condition is serious, but he may recover.

NEEDLE TAKEN FROM BACK OF BABE THOUGHT SWALLOWED.

Paintsville.—A needle two inches long was taken from the back of the year old baby girl of Mr. and Mrs. Montford Dixon. The baby had been in delicate health for some time, and what was thought to be a boil appeared on its back and a physician was called. It is believed she swallowed the needle.

THE PROFITEERS' TARIFF

Here are the latest utterances of leading Republican and Independent papers on the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill:

New York Herald (Rep.)—It is about a year since Congress passed the emergency tariff act to protect the American farmer from being undersold in his own home market by a flood of agricultural products from across the northern border. The results are roughly covered in the trade between the Dominion and the United States for the 12 months to April 1 last. They showed that while the emergency tariff has been in effect we have lost nearly $100,000,000 more in sales to Canada than Canada has lost in sales to us. And to that the existing emergency tariff is a gentle pat compared with the blow the Fordney and McCumber schedule could give to our whole foreign trade.

Indianapolis News (Ind.)—For the policy to which it is sought to commit the Republican party—the policy of price-raising—is very dangerous, and especially so in a year in which a congressional election is to be held. The question presented is difficult—whether to go through with a bad business, or to withdraw from it. The mistake was in turning the fortunes of the party over to Fordney, and men of his school. Probably not in the history of the country has there been a worse tariff bill than that reported to the Senate by Senator McCumber and his committee, unless it be the one prepared by Mr. Fordney's committee, and passed by the House of Representatives.

Brooklyn Eagle (Ind.)—If the Republican leaders of Congress cannot see what is visible to Republican newspapers of distinction all over this country they are in a sorry plight. Those newspapers protest against the tariff bill not because they wish to make trouble for the Republican party, but because they know that persistence in folly by the party itself will inevitably lead to disaster at the polls.

Chicago Tribune (Rep.)—Absolutely no appreciation of a change in international trade relations brought on by the war was displayed. The tariff makers, led by Fordney and McCumber, had learned nothing and forgotten nothing.... Special interests appeared before the committee as always, argued their points for protection of their own industries through a prohibitive tariff, and for the most part got what they wanted. Each interest say only as far as its own nose and disregard of all those around it.... The potash interest... obtained a high tariff to keep out importations of this commodity, thus raising the farm cost and reducing any probable advantage to be obtained from a high agricultural tariff. And the consumer pays the cost, while trade is destroyed.... The bill reeks with such errors and injustices. The public is disgusted. Only the many individual interests which have been taken care of are satisfied.

Lexington.—General plans for the Memorial to Kentuckians who died in the World War will be submitted to the architects about August 1, on the basis of subscriptions received to that date according to present plans, says Charles N. Manning, Chairman of the Executive Committee.

Competition open to the leading architects of other states as well as Kentucky has been suggested by contributors to the Memorial Fund and leaders in the state-wide campaign for funds. The building will be an auditorium and student activities headquarters for the 1,500 students from all sections of the State attending the University of Kentucky. The location was decided by the Kentucky Council of National Defense and other representative citizens at a meeting in Louisville in 1919.

Names of the 3,066 Kentuckians who made the supreme sacrifice in 1917-18 will be a prominent feature of the rotunda of the Memorial Building. War trophies and war records will be kept there.

The American Legion, War Mothers, American Legion Auxiliary, Daughters of the American Revolution, Daughters of the Confederacy and other patriotic societies have lent active support to the campaign for funds for the Memorial. Approximately $190,000 has been subscribed. Students of the University of Kentucky subscribed $4,000 on the first day of a drive on the campus this week. The campaign is being carried on largely thru the schools and local women's committees.

Congress is still debating the bonus.

Service men are still waiting. The people are still indifferent. The war is over.

This is 1922.

A political writer says that the Republican party organization seems to be cowed. The returns from Indiana and Pennsylvania make it appear that it is more Bull Moose than cowed.

Secretary Hughes says that Americans shouldn't ridicule foreign people or their governments. Well, what a fellow do in the cases of Russia and Mexico?

Hail Destroys Millions of Dollars of Tobacco

The loss of tobacco by hail in this and other tobacco states within the last five years has run up into millions of dollars with only a small part covered by insurance.

Yet, the amount of insurance received by growers who had the foresight thus to protect themselves against such loss, was enormous and should make every grower not only feel the necessity of insuring his tobacco crop against hail storms loss but to do that very thing and do it at once.

What Dr. Halley Says: Dr. Samuel H. Halley, of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association, upon congratulating an insurance company on lowering its rates on tobacco hail insurance, said: "Within the period that I have had hail insurance I have had four severe losses. The money I received exceeded considerably what I paid in, to say nothing of my peace of mind that I was fully protected in case of a storm. I have always advocated carrying hail insurance on tobacco without which every grower faces a chance to lose all. With it he can, in safety, go into the business of producing a crop which requires, as does tobacco, so much labor, time and money."

Now that the Burley Growers have gone into an organization to handle their business in a modern economic business-like way, I see no reason why all growers can not take out insurance on the reduced rates the companies are now quoting."

Look up the insurance agent in your section now, and let him protect you against the loss of your tobacco. Policies effective July 10th, noon.

THE POWER OF INITIATIVE

The world's workers are divided into two classes, those who do a job as they are told to do it, and who follow along in the same rut year after year, and those who do original thinking about it, and are always trying to form new plans for improving their performance.

There are manual workers and business people who will perform the same task over and over again for years, using motions and methods that waste time and energy, just because some one taught them the wrong way. If you suggest some better plan, they would reply, "It ain't never been done that way before."

Careful study of the conditions affecting any kind of work, will always show that some methods produce better results than others. Any man who wants to acquire the rewards of efficiency must always be giving this intensive study to the things he is doing, and planning and initiating improved systems for getting the largest amount of work done with the least time and effort.

The socially inclined telephone subscribers should permit their parties on the line to use the same at least a few minutes every day.

A NOBLE STORY

OF ACHIEVEMENT.

The American Red Cross will retire during June from its relief activities in Europe, having spent in eight years the enormous sum of $400,000,000. While a large portion of that must have been devoted to caring for American soldiers, yet the greater part of this expenditure represents an unselfish outpouring of American dollars to relieve the suffering of those countries.

It used to be said in Europe that Americans are selfish and think only of money. The superb demonstration of charity given through the Red Cross and other agencies should forever kill this slander.

Multitudes of families in Europe have been kept alive, made comfortable, healed from sickness, trained for better work, and restored to their usual occupations, as the result of these generous activities. It is an exhibition of broad minded munificence that could not have occurred in former years. But the heart of America is open wider than it used to be.

The fellow who knows it all has little knowledge to impart to others.

BASE BALL.*Down the River League.

A large crowd of base ball fans were out Sunday afternoon at Taylorsport to witness the game between Taylorsport and Delhi, and they witnessed a real game, as both teams played fast, snappy ball throughout the game. It was one of the best played games of the season, Delhi making the first run in the 3rd and Taylorsport making one in the 4th, making them one and one until the 7th, when Delhi succeeded in getting another run across the plate, making the score 2 to 1. Nothing more doing then by either team in run getting until the ninth. The first man up for Taylorsport was Black, and he fanned. Goodridge followed, and was given his base on balls, and stole second. Morehead followed Goodridge and hit safe to right field. Delhi's man in fielding the ball fell, injuring himself quite badly, letting two runs cross the plate, making the score 3 to 2 in favor of Taylorsport. The Delhi boys are a very fast team, and played nice clean ball and are a clever bunch of players. Taylorsport has been weak at the bat this season, but did much better Sunday in connecting with the pellet. Hits off Black 8, off Zeigler 8. Struck out by Black 9, by Zeigler 6.

Sandford did good batting Sunday, making a three, and a two base hit. Both the visiting and local batteries did nice work Sunday.

Two Boone county boys will face each other as pitchers in the game next Sunday, Finn for Cleves and Black for Taylorsport.

Hazel Walton, who plays second base for Taylorsport, is putting up a good article of ball. He is as good an amateur second baseman as you will find.

Hebron was taken into camp by Florence Saturday. Florence pounded Huey for 12 good hits, five of them coming in the fat sixth inning, in which Florence collected six runs, overcoming a four run lead. Berkshire pitched a good steady game at all times, but poor support during the first few innings caused Hebron to start in the lead. Berkshire allowed eight hits but kept them well scattered. Florence defeated the Summit Stars by the one sided score of 18 to 2 Sunday before a large crowd of enthusiastic admirers. Manager Eddins promises to engage teams of more ability in the future and expresses regret that they were so badly mistaken in the ability of the Summit Stars. Florence will play the fast St. Xavier team of Cincinnati, Saturday afternoon on the home grounds. Come one, come all.

The strong Anchor team of Cincinnati will play Florence on their ground next Sunday afternoon.

Cleves defeated North Bend 11 to 4 last Sunday.

Bellevue journeyed to Hebron Decoration day with a firm determination to take the scalps of the Hebron team, but they found a very rugged road, and for eight innings held to an even score, 2-2. In the 9th the Bellevue team thought they had Hebron's coon skin. When they put one man over the rubber, na, na, na for that Hebron team. They got on their toes and in a short time marched away with the victory by a score of 4 to 8. Some game, boys.

Games Decoration Day.

Florence 5, Big Bone 8.
Bellevue 3, Hebron 4.
Petersburg lost both games to Walton.

Postmaster Hickman and rural carriers Hughes, Stephens and Jones attended a meeting of the rural carriers of the district, in Covington, Decoration day.

FAYETTE POOLED WOOL

IS SOLD FOR 45 CENTS

Lexington, Ky.—Between 35,000 and 40,000 pounds of wool were sold here by the Fayette County Lamb and Wool Growers' Association for 46 cents a pound to a Louisville firm. Local buyers this year have not offered more than 41 1/4 cents. Between seventy-five and one hundred farmers and buyers attended the sale, which was held in a local tobacco warehouse.

STRAWBERRY FESTIVAL

The ladies of the Union Baptist Y. W. A. will give an ice cream and strawberry festival on the church lawn Saturday evening, June 3rd. Begin serving at 6 p. m. All cordially invited.

Mr. Stefanon says the Arctic offers great opportunities for meat producing. Maybe it would be possible up there to raise cold-storage beef on the hoof.

SORE EYELIDS.

There are several affections of the eyelid that may cause more or less distress, but, fortunately, most of them do not last long and are mild while they do last. The most familiar trouble is the sty, which is an inflammation of one of the glands of the skin at the margin of the eyelid. The disease is really a boil on the eyelid and, like boils elsewhere, may be either mild or severe. Sometimes there is merely a red swelling at the edge of the eyelid; it feels hard and may be tender to the touch, but disappears after two or three days. Sometimes the swelling increases, becomes angry-looking and is very painful; after several days, if it is treated, it comes to a head and opens.

Two things cause sties—a run-down condition and eyestrain. If the person who has a sty is run down, there will probably be one or more boils somewhere on his body; but the sty that appears on the eyelid when the sufferer is in good health is the result of eyestrain or of some uncorrected defect of vision or the result of reading or sewing in a poor light or in a bright glare.

The best way to treat a sty is to bathe the eyelids with water as hot as can be borne. It is not wise to put the eye, for that treatment is apt to excite a conjunctivitis, which would add to the patient's sufferings. When the sty has healed, the eyes should be examined to determine whether glasses are needed or, if they are already worn, whether they need changing. The general condition of the health must be attended to; a generous diet, tonics and exercise in the open air should be insisted upon. If there is rheumatism or gout, it should be treated.

A chalazion is a swelling that resembles a sty except that it is not inflammatory; it occurs when one of the glands at the edge of the eyelid retains secretion. Sometimes the secretion can be squeezed out after bathing the lids with hot water, but often it is necessary to make a minute incision in the gland behind the eyelashes.

Herpes, or fever sores, may come on the eyelids as well as on the lips. It is a disagreeable affection, but does not last long and can often be relieved by touching the sore spot repeatedly with a drop of spirit of camphor. Sometimes the edges of the lids become red and bumpy and itch and become covered with fatty scales, which are the dried secretion of the fat glands. That affection often means eyestrain and is relieved by proper glasses. Two or three applications at night of well diluted citrine ointment are helpful.

DEVON

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Hattell entertained Sunday the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Taylor, of Flax, and Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Rich and little daughter Alberta, of Morning View.

A MEMORIAL DAY PRAYER

(By E. A. Blackman, National Chaplain, American Legion.)

O Thou God of noble heroism, we pray today for our fallen comrades. Amidst the hurry and worry of things and the fading memories of war, we pause for a moment to remember their supreme sacrifice. A flood of recollections comes to our minds of the associations and experiences of camp and field as we gently place the flowers over their sacred beds and drop a tear of tender sympathy.

Consecrate these thoughts and hallow these memories, O God, but we pray Thee, banish from our hearts all hatred, prejudice and unholy pride and may we think only of the noble sacrifice and conscientious devotion to home and country that was their holy urge.

Bless the homes out of which these men went to dare and die, and consecrate their patriotism and their willingness to give their best for the cause of right.

May the spirits of those heroes who have fallen in other just wars for righteousness, be joined by the spirits of their heroes of today, and grant that this mighty host may live forever and be a perpetual challenge to us, the living of earth, to the end that we too may dedicate our lives to noble deeds and high purposes.

May love of country and devotion to peace be exalted this day to holy passion and may the spirits of those our beloved comrades, rest in peace with Thee.—Amen.

Who can blame Germany for warning France of the dangers of militarism. Germany knows what troubles it will lead to.

THEFT THROUGH FLATTERY.

The meanest kind of thief is the man who steals another's good judgment by flattering him. Some people are so susceptible to praise that, like stroked kittens, they just lie down and roll over whenever they are offered a compliment. The difference between the flatterer and a friend is that the former wants to buy something with pleasant words, and the latter wants to share his mind with you. There has been altogether too much dependence on "smooth talk" in business. If money had depreciated in value as much as words have, there would be very little business done. A man's word of praise ought to be as sound and as good as his word of promise, and that ought to be as good as his bond, says Dearborn Independent. The only thing that justifies a compliment these days is that it is detached from any form of self-seeking.

To live in too dry an atmosphere is unhealthy and adds to the doctor's bill. Statistics show that about one-third of all deaths in this country have been due to diseases of the throat and lungs. Fresh, clean, pure, humid air as found out of doors is the treatment generally prescribed for such ailments; and until people understand the need for the proper kind of air in the home, especially during the seasons when the doors and windows are kept closed, the recurrence of such discomforts are to be expected, says Farmers' Bulletin 1194, recently published by the United States Department of Agriculture.

No economic situation in which waste is a factor can be satisfactory or profitable. It makes no difference whether it is a waste of capital, as in the bad management, or in a waste of labor, as in a case of reducing the capacity of capable men to the capacity of the least capable. All such waste goes into the price of the produce and not only makes it high for popular consumption, but, remarks Springfield Union, in the case of manufactured products, handicaps their sale abroad in competition with others.

Only a rash person would undertake to prophesy regarding the outcome of the present revolt in Russia against Bolshevism, but it is safe to say that Mr. Lenin wishes he never had made peace with his outside enemies and so given discontent within a chance to come to a head.

A man in Delaware has got the better of the income tax. He has 23 children, and with the exemption of each one, with that allowed him as a married man, he figures out that the government owes him money. He ought to be put on exhibition in the National museum.

The United States army has gassed rats along important waterfronts, is gassing locusts in the Philippines, and is preparing to gas boll weevils in the South. It was an ill wind that carried the first gas wave across No Man's land in France, but it may have blown a little good.

The papers are saying "the crisis is past and business is on the upgrade." That's giving the situation a sort of "psychoanalytical treatment." But what the world needs is a good sweat superinduced by hard work. Then there will be no crises.

The strangest thing about reform is its failure to tackle the chewing gum habit. Isn't it liable to make us a prognathous nation. Or, by giving the jawbones constant employment, does it really encourage gabby people to be silent?

Our doughboys' hobnailed army shoes damaged the Hotel Crillon, Paris claims, but it should not be forgotten that they also trampled all over one Wilhelm Hohenzollern, who was threatening to use Paris as a door mat.

"You can trust a red-haired woman in everything save temper," says the Washington Post. Our notion is you can also implicitly trust her temper, says Houston Post. It is her throwing arm that is unreliable.

One reason for thinking that typhus fever will not get very far in this country is that the people of the United States are not, as a whole, inclined to be hospitable to the critter that carries it.

Little defects grow into big ones in time if not corrected.
The correction of a small defect in its early stages costs but little.
When left until it grows into serious proportions its correction runs into money.
That is what makes the maintenance of a car so expensive to many people—neglecting the little things until they grow into big ones.

AS THE EDITOR SEES IT

Jury service is one of the first duties of citizenship. It is one of the last duties the average citizen is willing to perform.

Men of character and ability who are possessed of the qualifications necessary to the rendering of fair and intelligent verdicts will go to great lengths in order to evade service on a jury. At the same time they will criticize the verdicts of those who are willing to serve.

The average man feels that he can not afford to neglect his business in order to spend two or three days or a week in a jury box at small pay. The financial sacrifice such service entails is a barrier between him and his duty to his community. He forsakes duty in his efforts to evade the sacrifice.

In too many cases this attitude fills the juries with men who are not fitted morally to perform their duties without fear or favor.

The result is spread broadcast over the country in the form of criminality that appears to be unchecked and constantly on the increase.

The law of nature requires that we reap as we sow, and even now the hum of the reaper is deafening in our ears.

Some people are perfectly willing to feed million of dollars to the birds—provided they are other people's dollars.

Europe never tires of importuning this country for great loans, while at the same time they are spending their own money on the maintenance of immense armies.

With Europe on the brink of another war, with industries torn and disrupted, with bolshevism brooding under the surface, with hatred and distrust everywhere, it is difficult to understand how adequate security can be offered for such loans.

International bankers and bond houses may advocate them, but such concerns do not as a rule invest their own money. The gullible public supplies the "dough" when it buys the bonds. And incidentally, Mr. International Banker slices off his full pound of flesh by underwriting the bond issue.

If we have any money to feed to the birds we can find plenty of the feathery tribe in our own yards.

Feeding, like charity, should begin at home.

For many years the women of this country have been demanding equal rights with men in the matter of voting and holding office.

Man, realizing the justice of their demands, has conferred the right of franchise upon them.

Is woman making the most of her newborn freedom and independence? She is not. The toy is becoming old, and rather troublesome. It does not appeal as strongly to her as it did when it was a forbidden article.

This is to be regretted, for men of character had hoped that the women would aid in driving the crooks out of public office.

Upright and honorable officials feel just as keenly on this subject as do the laymen who are disappointed in the dwindling feminine vote.

When the women are in strong force at the polls the crooks and the professional barnacles have a hard road to travel.

With women becoming indifferent and remaining at home on election days gang rule will become as firmly established as ever before.

Women, as well as men, owe a duty to their country.

That duty, having been assumed, should now be performed.

Do not spend too much time looking for soft berths in this life. It may unfit you for the hard one in the life to come.

AMERICANS WILL SYMPATHIZE.

Events have moved fast of late in sleepy old China. Americans will be generally pleased that Chang, the upstart general who played Japan's game all the time, has been defeated in his attempt to control the central government, and driven beyond the Chinese wall.

Meanwhile the unfortunate division between North and South China continues. This disorganization renders a prey for powers desiring to grab territory, which might start another war. The victorious General Wu, however, announces that he desires no office for himself, but merely seeks to harmonize and unify China. If he does that he will be worthy of emulation in more advanced countries, and some of our politicians might ponder his example with profit.

MORE FIRST CLASS BUTTER

There is still a demand for good dairy butter or first class country butter wherever it can be found. While common butter is a drag on the market and sells slowly at 15 cents a pound.

To make good butter takes care, work, a cool place and a cream separator. Cream cannot be successfully taken from milk by hand in hot weather without ice or keeping the milk cool.

The price of cream is too low and those who have facilities for handling cream and making good butter can get more out of the butter by making good butter and having a few engagements for its sale.

STEADILY IMPROVING

People who expected to see the United States resume its normal status following the war were disappointed.

Those who pinned their hopes to a slow but gradual readjustment are witnessing the vindication of their judgment.

Neither wages nor prices will ever go back to the prewar level. Men who have enjoyed a long taste of high wages and easy work will not willingly return to long hours and grueling toil and poor pay. Manufacturers and dealers who have revelled in sky profits will fight shy of the old system of slim pickings and few of them.

That is human nature, and nature makes all laws and regulates all things.

It was, however, manifestly impossible to maintain wages and profits at the sky peak of war days. Abnormality may prevail for a period, but in the end it must give way to rational thought and action.

Prices of necessities, and of even luxuries, have been steadily declining for a long time. The same is true of labor, and of all of the raw materials that go into the construction or production of articles of daily use.

The fall has been slow but gradual, and some time must still lapse before we reach that level which will insure the return of a full measure of prosperity to the country.

The situation, however, is fairly satisfactory and full of promise, and the future is bright to those who can see.

TOO MUCH SELF.

Over in the old world the war goes merrily on in their efforts to preserve peace.

To the careful observer on this side of the Atlantic, however, there appears to be one necessary element that is almost entirely lacking. The welfare of humanity is forgotten. It has been sidetracked in favor of self-interest and greed.

It is readily conceded that the nations desire lasting peace, but each wants that peace on terms that predominate in their own favor.

The league of nations is a failure for that reason. The Washington conference was time wasted for the same reason, and the Genoa confab was tarred with the same brush.

Now they are planning for a future meet to be held at The Hague, and unless history repeats itself the same road will be traveled there.

Nothing of a lasting nature can be accomplished in world adjustment until humanity triumphs over a selfish greed, and that day has yet to come.

This government should speak softly and keep its powder dry. There are no wings yet in sight.

REPUBLICANS "FOOL THE FARMER" BY FALSE PHILOSOPHY.

Those farmers who are being made to believe that they are going to benefit largely by high rates placed upon agricultural products in the pending tariff bill should give heed to the following statement by Senator Underwood, from whom there is no higher authority on tariff taxation in this country Senator Underwood said:

"The argument is used that because taxes have been levied on manufactured products, should be levied on agricultural products, and if you are going to penalize the American people by taxation for the benefit of the manufacturer, you should penalize them with taxation for the benefit of the farmer."

"If you were going into that false philosophy and going to use the taxing power for some purpose other than the revenues of the Government, I might very well concede that if you could you should throw the blanket of protection as far as possible, if it was beneficial. But I think where the fallacy of the argument comes is that under the guise of protection, under the guise of doing something to help the agricultural interest, you ask their support for a bill which means that for every dollar of benefit they may derive out of the bill they must pay $100 in taxes to benefit some one else, or for the 1 per cent of protection which they may get under the bill they must pay the 99 per cent of protection which is awarded to other people. I do not think there is any question about that proposition."

FIND THE WAY.

This is a day of rapid transit on country roads. The motorists move along at twenty-five miles an hour. The truck driver covers a lot of ground, and the farmer is no longer satisfied to jog along to market at his former slow speed.

Time is money, and must be conserved.

On many of the country roads hereabouts certain bad spots are to be found. Some would require a stranger adjective to describe.

These spots are annoying. They are time wasters and energy destroyers.

They should be repaired. If there is no available means of doing so, then a means should be found.

Men with brains can always find a way—and there are plenty of brains in this country.

Organizing the Building Trades

An effort to raise the standard of efficiency in the building business is being promoted through the organization of the American Construction Council, of which Franklin D. Roosevelt is to be chairman. A tremendous addition to the prosperity of the country can be made if this industry can be put on such a basis that the country will have confidence to go ahead and supply its construction needs.

The cost of upbuilding has not in most places, dropped as fast as other elements in the cost of living. Rent remains high. There is at present a building boom, but to have it fully supply the needs of the country, the industry needs organization so that construction costs can come down to a point comparing with other forms of production.

A PREDICTION

Nothing funnier has come out of Washington for many moons than the announcement that the President "is willing to accept the recently nominated Republicans into the party fold."

No doubt it will be news to Messrs. Pinchot and Beveridge that their acceptance into the party fold is dependent on the generosity of Mr. Harding. They have been under the impression that they were already in the party fold. In fact, they have pretty strong evidence that they are not in the party fold in Pennsylvania and Indiana, and that the party fold which Mr. Harding himself has been folded has been smashed.

And now that the matter has been suggested by Mr. Harding's expression of willingness to accept into the party fold the supporters of Pinchot and Beveridge, there is one prediction which it seems safe to make.

That is, that if the progressive elements of the Republicans continue to get control of the party throughout the country, as they have done in Pennsylvania and Indiana, by 1924 Warren G. Harding of the unhonored Old Guard himself will be seeking admission into the fold.—Courier-Journal.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Next Monday is county court.

Mrs. W. E. Carrell and son of Louisville, are visiting Mrs. Fannie Cropper.

Clean Up Day for a lot of the politicians is appointed for next November 7th.

Judge Sidney Gaines was sent to Pikeville, Pike county, last week, to hold a term of court.

The voters of Indiana are now asking candidate Beveridge what beverages he favors.

The unrest among the kid element is cured at any time when mother starts in to fry doughnuts.

Now the question is whether the radio in the parlor will entice the men away from the still in the cellar.

One trouble with the world is that it is wearing out the seats of its trousers much faster than the knees thereof.

Quite a number of Burlington people attended the funeral of Gaines Wingate at Petersburg, last Friday afternoon.

The traveling salesmen say that the white man's burden is having to pay the black man for brushing the dust off from his coat.

The city folks who growl so about the price of food products are unable to raise any vegetables themselves as they would blister their hands.

Don't read an advertisement in this paper unless you are willing to learn something worth knowing. The merchants do not spend their money merely for the sake of seeing their names in print.

Quite a lot of tobacco was set this past week by growers who had their ground and plants ready. There was a good season most all week. Usually very little tobacco is set in May, but this year the plants are ready much earlier.

The teachers at the Boone County High School which closed its 1921 and 1922 session, last week, left for their homes last Thursday. Prof. Kiskey to Franklin, Ind., Miss Turner to Hamilton, Ohio and Miss Grow to Colorado.

It looks as if the average farmer in this county should be fairly prosperous. Two hundred thousand dollars has just been turned loose for tobacco. Another $75,000 will be paid out during the week for wool. The lamb crop is going off at a high price and should bring in $200,000. Nearly half a million dollars coming in to a county at this season of the year ought to mean a lot.

With a favorable season Boone county will produce one of the earliest tobacco crops in her history. We venture that almost a half of the crop has been planted and with a season the coming week we will plant 90 per cent of this year's acreage. From all indications the acreage will be about normal, if the crop is planted as early as anticipated, we will no doubt run short in pounds but the quality should be such that it will make up for any shortage in pounds.

The Southern Baptist Convention in session at Jacksonville, Fla., last week, had a heated discussion over change in the constitution to admit women to membership on the executive committee and various other boards. Dr. J. W. Porter, of Louisville, who is well known in this city, vigorously opposed the change and create quite a stir in quoting the apostle Paul's adjuration of women speaking in the church. The passage he referred to is found in I Corinthians 14:34, and reads as follows: "Let your women keep silence in the churches; for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law." The text immediately following is likewise interesting: "And if they will learn anything, let them ask their husbands at home; for it is a shame for women to speak in the church. Let all things be done decently and in order." Dr. Porter stated further that we have started on the down grade, and the time will come when a woman will preside over this convention. Despite the eminent divine's strong opposition, the convention adopted an amendment to the constitution giving women equal rights with men in the governing body of the convention.—Falmouth Outlook.

LEGION NOTES

Seattle, Washington.—The oldest member of the American Legion is believed to be Col. F. A. Bouette of Seattle, Washington, who recently retired from the regular army after 60 years service. He is more than 80 years old.

Boston, Mass.—Scores of fire stations, school houses and other municipal buildings leased by the city to the American Legion and other veterans' organizations are to be refitted to meet the ex-soldiers' needs following an order passed by the Boston, Mass., city council.

Seattle, Wash.—After furnishing an average of 550 former service men a month with jobs from which it is estimated they received in pay more than $50,000, the American Legion employment bureau at Seattle, Washington, has been closed due to the improved working conditions.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Whether the crown of best all around athlete in military forces of the U. S. shall rest on the head of a soldier, marine or sailor will be decided when the men from the three branches of the service meet in competition at the third annual track and field meet of the Philadelphia American Legion, June 9 and 10.

Paris, France.—The last word in modern surgery is announced at Paris, France, where a French Army surgeon is inserting a steam line tongue in the mouth of Serg. Villa, a Verdun wounded veteran. A shell tore away Villa's jaw but skillful surgery has now made him able to talk, sing and whistle.

London, England.—When the S. S. New England was 150 miles at sea the bursting of a steam line wounded Boyd O'Neal, former Navy man, in seventeen places. His shipmates sewed O'Neal's abrasions with sail twine and three cornered sail needles, the rough sea surgery saving his life.

Trenton, N. J.—The $800,000 remaining expended following the payment of the New Jersey state bonus to former service men may be used by the American Legion to provide hospital accommodations for ex-soldiers who are or may become incapacitated.

NO CREDIT EXTENDED

The world owes us a living, We hold this truth to be, But nevertheless it always comes To us marked C. O. D.—American Legion Weekly.

Omaha, Neb.—Four years ago, the words "Over There" meant a boy away from home and loved ones, hardships, rain, mud, privations, fighting, wounds and perhaps death. In the "Flapper Dictionary" of today according to the American Legion of Omaha, Neb., "Over There" means a warning "that the girl lives too far to take a taxi!" The Legion is trying to do something about it.

Washington, D. C.—A second great vessel of the U. S. merchant marine now bears the name American Legion. In re-naming the so-called State boats after Presidents, the Shipping Board made an exception in the case of the steamship Badger State, which was given the name American Legion instead. The fastest boat of the Munson Line is named after the service men's organization. In re-naming the boats, the Shipping Board undertook to re-christen the Leviathan, greatest American troop ship, after President Harding, who directed however, that the giant liner retain to name she had during dough-boy days.

Toledo, Ohio.—A straw vote on the subject of enforcement of the Prohibition law conducted by "The Legionaire", official organ of the American Legion of Cuyahoga county, Ohio, showed that 62 per cent. of the ex-soldiers were in favor of a stricter enforcement of the dry law.

Judging by appearances farmers of this county are planning to put out a very large crop this year. There are an abundance of plants and they are fairly early. In some sections there are reports of damage to plants by rust, but this damage is not expected to be heavy enough to curtail the crop. Quite a little tobacco was set last week in the county, but not many growers had enough ground ready to transplant a considerable portion of their crops. There will be a big demand for tobacco seeders if a season comes within the next few days.

Washington.—"That liquor violators are the ones who are the backbone of the business is succumbing to the inevitable, is evidenced by the action of many offenders pleading guilty since the conviction last week at Cincinnati of a reputed ring leader and thirteen confederates, by the heavy penalties and sentences of courts and editorial comments of newspapers previously antagonistic to the 18th amendment," said Commissioner Hayden.

"When a noted Kentucky distillery, with 123,000 barrels of whiskey on hand, goes into voluntary bankruptcy, it is a significant sign of the times."

The folks who are looking for the dawn of a new day are frequently not awake enough to see the opportunities of the present one.

FOR ALL BACKGROUNDS

If Mary has a little coat made of light velours, no matter where our Mary goes the coat will be there sure. Anyway, it will fit in with any background, especially if it happens to be in a light color, as tan, gray, or beige and resembles the coat shown here. Note the ample lines in this model, its generous, flaring sleeve and large buttons. For ornament it has corded seams and silk-embroidered arrows and it is provided with a scarf-collar ending in a tassel.

ROOSTERS GIVEN BLAME FOR SUMMER EGG LOSSES

Lexington, Ky.—Roosters allowed to run with poultry flocks during the warm weather cause Kentucky poultrymen and farmers a loss of almost one million dollars each year in the form of fertile eggs that spoil on their way to the consumer, poultrymen at the College of Agriculture say. The production of infertile eggs and the prevention of a large part of this loss requires that owners of laying hens, sell, kill or confine all roosters as soon as the hatching season is over, they say. Hens without a rooster lay just as many eggs as those allowed to run with a rooster, it was pointed out.

"A fertile egg may become unfit for food in 24 hours of warm weather," J. H. Martin, in charge of the College poultry work, said. "An egg does not need to be incubated in order to spoil because warm weather will cause development of the germ. On the other hand, an infertile egg may be kept in an incubator at 103 degrees for seven days and still be good for cooking."

"Experimenters have shown that it does not pay to hatch chicks after the first of June," he said. "This being the case, there is no reason for keeping roosters with the flock during warm weather, since the hens will lay just as well without them. 'Old roosters should be sold or killed in June and the young roosters disposed of just as soon as they have reached frying size. Any cockerels kept for breeders should be confined. This not only will prevent the production of fertile eggs but also will enable the cockerels to grow more rapidly and to a greater size than would be the case if they were allowed to run with hens.'"

COUNTRY CHILDREN

Healthy young people naturally seek activity. A great deal of the mischief done by so-called bad boys is simply the expression of an energetic youth who lacks sufficient normal outlet. If you can take that youngster and interest him in some proposition for his good, you can entirely remove the mischief loving tendency, scolding or spanking does little good. The thing is to divert that energy into a useful channel.

Many children in village centers used to run wild simply because they had no outlet. The boys would hang around the curbstones and the girls would flirt with them. The wide awake village parent of today, induces the boy or girl to go into some form of club activity, and compete for prizes in gardening, poultry raising, domestic work, canning and preserving, etc. Young people who formerly were restless and discontented, get something to live and work for, and their point of view is transformed.

Many farmers are keeping their boys on the farm, just by starting them early on little enterprises of their own, a few chickens, or a calf or a pig. Formerly the farmer might call that stock to children's, but when they were sold he put the money into his own pocket. If the children claimed it was theirs, he said he was going to spend it on their clothes. But that did not satisfy them, as they knew they would get the clothes anyway.

The wide awake farmer lets his boys really own those chickens or pigs or calves. They take the responsibility for them, and get the profit they make from them. Some farmers give their boys a pony and let them experiment to see if they can plow with the little beast.

Thus they get interested in all kinds of farm work, and are constantly making a little money and getting a start. By the time they are of age, they may be ready to rent a piece of land and go it alone. No trouble about young people of that kind drifting off to the cities.

The people who scatter rubbish around in the streets are reminded that the primary schools are always open to persons of limited intelligence.

Siamese Twins of Trade.
(From a speech by Senator Underwood)

I saw a cartoon in the paper the other day which showed Siamese twins fastened together by nature for life, their bodies grown together, their hands tied behind their backs, marching to the block of the executioner, who stood there with his red gown and his mask on his face, preparing to execute the one called "Immortal," and some one rose in the audience and said, "These are Siamese twins. Kill one, and you kill the other."

So it is with our imports and our exports today; they are Siamese twins. We cannot export our goods to foreign countries unless we are paid for them, and we cannot receive any pay unless we allow some products from other countries to come in here. Therefore, when we seek by this bill to kill importation entirely on every competitive product, as you do, in the end you are going to kill exportation, because there will be nothing to pay for the exported material.

Latest fashion news is that as warm weather comes on, a lot of the men folk take off their coats and exhibit their red and yellow galls.

Boy Wanted

Somewhere in this town is one boy who is a "go-getter" spirit, full of grit and ambition, and absolutely honest. We want that boy. He will be the only boy again in this town for the famous MOVIE WEEKLY MAGAZINE. He will work after school and other spare time. His pay will be what he makes. It besides fine prizes and Free Movie Tickets. When he makes good, he will be promoted. If you are between 14 and 19 years old, determined to "make good" and truly think you are the boy for this job, then apply by letter to Mr. E. L. Gilbert, "Personal" 3rd floor, 118 West 40th St. New York City. Give full details of past selling experience; your age; parent's full name and business; your school grade and at least two references.

A DEAD ISSUE

From time to time, upholders of liquor traffic attempt to extract comfort from the results of elections held in various parts of the country. Recently a supreme attempt was made to interpret the result of a congressional by-election in New York State as indicating a pronounced swing toward legislative tempering of the prohibition enforcement law. In a Republican district, the Republican nominee was returned to Congress by a greatly reduced majority. It happened that in this instance the Democratic nominee had made opposition to the prohibition law a point in his platform. There were several other factors in the election, a reduced vote, disgust over congressional do-nothingness, the aftermath of financial depression, and the usual local group vote alignments.

But anti-prohibitionists ignored all other factors and loudly ascribed the reduced Republican majority to dissatisfaction with prohibition.

A few weeks later, however, the primary election in Indiana was held, and anti-prohibitionists remained discreetly silent over the election. Samuel M. Ralston was nominated for Senator by the Democrats by an overwhelming majority. One of the opponents had made the campaign solely on the anti-prohibition issue, and had been snowed under so badly that it was not worth while to count the votes. In several of the congressional nominations, other anti-prohibition aspirants had fared as badly.

The truth of the matter is that the public will not consider prohibition as a live issue. Even those persons who profess the belief that the prohibition measure was a mistake realize that it was nearly over its passage interfered with their 1925 digestion. Prohibition as a fundamental policy is settled, and the politician who tries to urge its repeal is arguing an issue as dead as slavery. —Dearborn Independent.

HONORING THE SOLDIERS

The American people desire to live in peace and harmony with all men. Unfortunately all men do not think alike, and out of the intensity of conviction and the ambitions great wars have been born.

The men who asked only to live their lives in useful industry have been compelled to leave the sweetness of home, bid farewell to wives and children, and suffer the horror of war. It is the greatest sacrifice human life is ever called on to make.

Recognizing the grandeur of this abnegation, the world pays its tribute of deep affection to those who have given their lives in their country's service. The U. S. sets apart its National Memorial day, as the time to honor all soldiers who have given their lives for their native soil. Originally created to honor the veterans of the Civil war, the day will now for many years be employed to pay tribute to the boys who fell in the latter conflicts.

Recognizing that a sincere sacrifice is entitled to honor, regardless of opinions as to the merits of the cause in which it is made, the nation today pays equal honor to the soldiers of the confederate army who fought for the ideal that seemed good to them. The old animosities have passed away, and true American hearts today have forgotten that any sectional line once divided the North from the South.

The first custom has been developed of sending the old soldiers around to the schools at this time, to talk to the children about lessons of war and patriotism. Few veterans of the Civil war are equal to that task now, but the privilege is handed on to the soldiers of later wars, who feel equally the same sentiment of love for country. Their words will inspire these young people with that love for country which they must have if America is to be worthy of its past.

ALL DAY MEETING.

There will be an all day meeting at Gunpowder Baptist church next Sunday, June 3rd. All are invited to spend the day at Gunpowder as they will have a Sunday school rally.

We often hear, in fact, we are constantly reminded to "sow the seed," which is a fine slogan to observe. Just at this time of year the logical slogan for the citizens everywhere in the county, to adopt is "Cut the Weeds."

America is rolling in wealth, but a lot of its citizens are not doing any of the rolling.

AT GRAVE OF HIS SOLDIER BROTHER IN FRANCE

A view of an American cemetery in France showing Corporal Harry McLaughlin of the One Hundred and Sixty-fifth infantry (old Sixty-ninth of New York) at the grave of his brother Daniel, who died of wounds received at Chateau Thierry. All the graves of our fallen heroes are marked with cards stating the name of the dead soldier, his regiment, and the date of his death.

BRAVE HEARTS THAT LIE IN THE BELLEAU WOOD

They sleep
But cannot die,
For now the world is all their own,
And, led by thoughts our brave have sown
Till Might has bowed nor could Withstand the force that stood
Secure and safe, God wrought,
Through stormy times they fought,
And now they lie
In sleep.

"Allez! Allez! Les Boches!" cried the French territorials streaming back through the Second division of the American army, which had just come forward in support and relief. "Fly! Fly! The Hun!" they shouted.

"Retreat, b—ll! We have just come. Let the Boche retreat!" called back an officer of the American forces as he and his men rushed forward.

It was May in France, 1918, records Clara Whitehead in the Philadelphia Ledger. The French line from Soissons to Reims paralleled in a general way the line of the ancient road, Chemin des Dames, and the French defenses were so strong that the war-worn gallant French armies were using middle-aged men known as territorials to hold this part of the line. Perhaps because of this, and also to make an effort to split the French and English armies, the Germans made a great attack on this sector at the end of May, and in five days had driven back the French to open country, following the great half circle of the Marne, which the Germans crossed at Dormans on the east side of the salient at Chateau Thierry and at Belleau.

There were no trenches and no fortifications so far back from the fighting front, and the war was again in the open. Foreseeing the purpose of the German army to enter a wedge between the allied armies, Marshal Foch selected American troops to stop this advance, which at Les Meses farm and at Chateau Thierry had reached the nearest point to Paris—37 miles—since the previous advance in 1914.

Harlem Commemorate.

The Second American division had just taken that part of the line in the neighborhood of Belleau, while at Dormans and Chateau Thierry the First and Third were holding back the Hun. Rocks and crags hid the enemy's machine guns, but in the early part of the engagement the French were virtually without artillery protection and were fighting a hand-to-hand action to stop the Germans until help could come. In the fighting of May and early June, 1918, the American troops were without supports and reserves, but the individual initiative was remarkable. Heroism was a commonplace of the American soldier in action.

"We need supplies, gas masks. Who'll volunteer?"

"I'll go!" promptly answered a young sergeant of the marines.

His offer was accepted. He had an almost uncanny sense of direction, and no one in the company possessed a better knowledge of wood lore. All his summers had been spent in the open, and these playtimes of earlier days had developed qualities that now stood him in good stead. The playtime of the child had become the opportunity of the man.

Creeping cautiously through the underbrush, he reached the shelter of the woods, only to find that he had stumbled on a quarry and a camp of more than sixty German soldiers. Trembling with excitement, he rushed forward. "Surrender!" he shouted. "The whole American army is behind me!" Surprised, bewildered, the men marched out, under cover of the hold-up, and were brought prisoners into the American line. One of the majors in the Second division wrote in June, 1918, of the death in action of this marine: "He was killed in the Bois de Belleau by a shell near where my command post was, shortly after bringing his captain out, who had been wounded in an attack we were making. The day before he went into a quarry and brought out 60 Germans as prisoners, single-handed. Such an act speaks for itself."

It was by this spirit these men fought, and because of this spirit these men won. It was a dearly bought victory, but it stopped the German objective, and the enemy never again won a victory or made another drive.

Many States Share Glory.

In the little cemetery on the western edge of Belleau wood, there is hardly a state in the Union not represented. There are 200 alone from Massachusetts. Belleau woods, just above the village of Belleau, where the Germans sheltered their guns, is now called the "Wood of the Marine Brigade," and what was once a lovely wooded hill is now a rocky devastation; its crown of nature's green now rows of "tooth-picks" standing naked to the sky.

In Washington, in June, 1921, the plan of the Belleau Wood Memorial association to rebuild the town of Belleau by popular subscription was launched. The Belleau Woods Memorial association thinks it better to rebuild

"a house that has schooled a baby's laugh and held up its stumbling feet,"

"home's loving wooden arms around a man and his wife,"

than to erect a shaft of marble cold to the sky in memory of our dead. The national committee hopes to raise $300,000 and with this money build the little town of Belleau shattered by our boys in their advance on Belleau wood.

The plan is to rebuild the village as it was, with the addition of a better church, school, and with an adequate water supply; the supervision will be in the hands of Col. Charles R. Forbes, director of the Veterans' bureau, who served in the A. E. F. and who is a noted engineer in civil life. Every cent raised will go into the rebuilding memorial, as the organizing expenses are being borne by a small group of contributors. The names and addresses of every contributor will be preserved in the archives of the rebuilt

"Marie," or city hall. Eighty-two stone buildings are to be restored, as well as a group of small farms on the hillside. The French government has promised to have all roads put into condition as their contribution, and it will be guarded by our boys who lie silent in the little green-and-white cemetery just across the way.

Homes Must Be Rebuilt.

In time nature will restore to France her trees and flowered loveliness, but neither time nor nature can rebuild shattered homes. Those of us who have not been intimately touched by the horrors of war or the cruelty of sudden overwhelming separation from those we love can only approximate the sadness in the lives of those about us who have not been so fortunate. Many a mother's heart is buried and her enthusiasm deadened. It is only through some practical memorial that her interests can be roused and reawakened.

The field of honor at Belleau will be the permanent Alsace-Marne cemetery, "where a shining forest of snow-white crosses will stand as sentinels over the mortal remains of 6,000 of our boys." The organization for this memorial to our dead has its headquarters in Washington, with Marshal Foch chairman for France, John W. Weeks, honorary president. The president is Mrs. James Carroll Fraser, vice president of the Navy League of the United States, and Vice President Coolidge as a member of the national committee. Mrs. Charles Lea is chairman for Pennsylvania; Mrs. Theodore W. Reath, acting chairman; Gen. W. T. Waller, executive secretary; Mrs. Helen Foster, secretary.

How Our Boys Went Into Action.

Mrs. Reath revisited France last summer and went over all the ground in the neighborhood of Belleau. At Les Meses farm she made the acquaintance of a young Frenchman who had been severely wounded at the Battle of the Marne. "He had witnessed the advance of the American troops," said Mrs. Reath, "and his account was so graphic and bore such testimony to the truthfulness of the American correspondents who had covered the advance of the American army in 1918 and described the troops in action at Belleau, that I feel I should tell it to you as he told it to me."

"Those men were magnificent, madame! They had taken off their coats and had planned to their shirts a poppy. As they rushed forward they yelled, and, madame, as they died—the Germans went hipity hop! hipity hop! This was the only English word that Frenchman knew, but it was the most expressive English word I have ever heard. It does seem incredible that our boys should have been so careless with their lives," continued Mrs. Reath, "but I have no reason to doubt the truth of the man's word, especially as it corroborated the account of our own correspondents at the time."

This memorial at Belleau is to be established to those boys—our boys; to their idealism; to their heroism that brooked no barrier. It is to be a memorial that will give to the people of this part of France a practical expression of the good-will of the American people as well as a national tribute to the men whose "souls shall be where the heroes are" and whose memory shall "shine like the morning star."

THREE NEW CIRCULARS OUT FOR JUNIOR FARM WORKERS.

Lexington, Ky.—Three new circulars for Kentucky farm boys and girls have just come off the press at the College of Agriculture to be distributed to interested youngsters as aids for the junior agricultural club projects which they are conducting. One outlines the dairy cow or calf project and the dairy cow and calf project, another takes up the beef breeding project in detail while a third deals with the butter making project. Work along each of these lines has proved popular with farm boys and girls in the State, club workers at the college say. Copies of the circular may be obtained free by writing the Experiment Station, Lexington.

SEASONAL TIPS

FOR GARDENERS.

In Kentucky the second planting of lima beans, string beans, late carrots, sweet corn and tomatoes should be made by June 1.

Regardless of whether tomatoes are staked or unstaked, it is a good plan to go over them about every ten days and remove suckers. This conserves the strength of the plant for fruit production. The suckers may be removed satisfactorily by using the thumb and forefinger or a sharp knife.

When tomatoes are sprayed for insects and diseases care should be taken not to spray them while they are in bloom as this decreases the amount of fruit which the plants produce.

About June 1 is the time to make the second planting of watermelons in Kentucky. Tom Watson is an especially good variety for planting at that time.

Equal parts of air-slaked lime and tobacco dust mixed together and sprinkled around cucumber, melon and squash plants act as a repellent to the striped cucumber beetle which already is reported to be giving some trouble, gardeners at the College of Agriculture say. Tobacco dust may be obtained by grinding tobacco stems.

WAS A TONGUE TANGLER.

(Toronto Set Square.)

"Let me have sleeping accommodations on the train to Ottawa," I said to the man at the window, who didn't seem at all concerned whether I took the trip or stayed at home.

"For a single person?" he finally said.

"No," I replied. "I'm married but I'm not taking anybody with me. A single shelf will answer."

"Upper or lower?" he asked.

"What's the difference," I inquired.

"A difference of 50 cents," came the answer. "Our prices to Ottawa are $1.50 and $2."

"You understand, of course," explained the agent, "the lower is higher than the upper. The higher price is for the lower berth. If you want it lower you'll have to go higher. We sell the upper lower than the lower. It didn't used to be so, but we found everybody wanted the lower. In other words, the higher were fewer."

Why do they all prefer the lower?" I broke in.

"On account of its convenience," he replied. "Most persons don't like the upper, although it's lower, on account of its being higher, and because when you occupy an upper you have to get up to go to bed, and then get down when you get up. I would advise you to take the lower, although it's higher than the lower, for the reason I have stated, that the upper is lower than the lower because it is higher. You can have the lower if you pay higher, but if you are willing to go higher it will be lower."

A SQUINT AT YOUR FUTURE

A fortune teller who could print your future would be in demand in this country, and yet it has been successfully shown that history repeats itself and that it is pretty sure proposition that you may judge the future by the past.

You know about what preparation to make on land to grow a crop. You know about what kind of orchard and berry patch to have to grow fruits and berries. You know what care is required to successfully run a dairy or a poultry yard. You know what a little money put into a savings account on interest will do for you in your accumulation or you can find this out by a little calculation. You know it takes a little education along all these lines for a boy or a girl to succeed and by knowing all of these things you can have some idea just what you can expect to take out of life, because you know what you are putting into it.

If you do not know these things required for the country you can go to work and find out these essentials, learn them and by ability, industry you can count on a successful future. You can at least have some idea of the final outcome.

THE WELL KEPT HOME

The success of a country family in keeping their young people at home, depends in a large measure on whether the home is attractive. If a dwelling house is allowed to acquire a dingy air, it exerts a depressing influence. The young people compare it with the neat homes of their friends whom they have visited in larger places, and they get an ideal that country life is a discouraging proposition.

But if you can brighten up the faded walls by fresh wall paper, if you clean up the dingy woodwork with paint, put in a little new furniture and otherwise give that place a cheerful background for their thoughts, Country life begins to look to them to have hopeful possibilities, and the chances that the young people will remain in their home town are greatly increased.

A writer speaks of Russia's post-bellum troubles. Russia's troubles, however, are not so much post-bellum as cerebral.

MAJORITY OF SHEEP

HAVE STOMACH WORMS

Lexington, Ky.—Practically every flock of sheep in Kentucky is infested with stomach worms, according to L. J. Horlacher in charge of sheep work at the College of Agriculture.

However, by using proper preventive measures, farmers can keep the infestation from becoming very serious and send their lambs to market in prime condition, he pointed out.

"On the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment farm we have found that rotation of pastures is one of the best means of prevention. Whenever possible, ewes and lambs are changed to fresh pastures every 2 weeks from the first of June until the lambs are marketed. It has been found that if the pastures are kept in good condition, the infestation will not be as serious as it is if the grass is kept cropped short."

"Rape, oats, clover and vetch make excellent crops for alternating with permanent bluegrass pastures. Lambs which are kept free from the worms by these preventive measures will be ready for market much earlier than those which are troubled with them."

"If the sheep become infested with the worms, they must be drenched, copper sulphate, commonly known as bluestone, being best for this. One-fourth of a pound of the pulverized material is dissolved in a pint of boiling water and enough water added to make three gallons. This is sufficient to drench 100 adult animals, each one being given three and one-half ounces or seven level tablespoonsful. Lambs receive half of this amount. It is necessary to keep the sheep off feed for 12 hours before drenching and care also should be taken not to strangle them while the drench is being given. Details of controlling stomach worms may be obtained by writing the Experiment Station."

The games are played at Miamitown, Addyston, Taylorsport, Elizabethtown, Saylor Park and North Bend. The clubs in this league are playing good ball, and their followers are enjoying the games. Sunday base ball is becoming a very popular sport, and large crowds attend the games every Sunday afternoon.

BOLT CARRIED MILE BURNS MERCHANTS BACK.

Harrodsburg.—Willard VanArman lives to laugh over burns across his back after having been struck by lightning at his store at VanArdsall Station. The bolt struck a mile from the store, judging by the thunder, but was conducted to the building by a telephone wire, destroying a box which was within the building just behind the plank against which Mr. VanArdsall was leaning. The burns were caused from nails in the plank.

GARDEN TOMATOES CAN BE STAKED PROFITABLY

Lexington, Ky.—Tomato growers, including farmers, commercial growers and back yard gardeners, again are considering the question of question of whether or not to stake their tomatoes or cultivate them and allow them to fall on the ground, inquiries being received at the College of Agriculture show. Staking is one of the question for commercial growers but can be used to advantage in the average garden, specialists on the crop at the College say. Staked plants are easier to keep free of disease, they yield more an acre and produce a more perfect fruit than unstaked ones.

"The cost of stakes, the additional labor involved and the greater number of plants required are the limiting factors for profitable staking of tomatoes when the crop is grown for the canning factory," N. R. Elliott said. "In this case, the ground should be cultivated thoroughly and then a mulch of hay, straw, or some similar substance placed on the ground so that the fruit will be kept out of the dirt. Placing this material on the ground also helps to conserve moisture.

"For the average garden, it may be best to stake the plants. They are set about three by five or four by six feet apart and trained to a single stem. Stakes similar to a tobacco stick are driven beside each plant when these are set. By training to a single stem and pruning off all other stems and removing suckers that grow out of the axils of the leaves, it is possible to raise fruit of better quality than is produced when the plants are allowed to run on the ground.

"If the plants are set in the ground at least five inches deep and staked they should produce fruit until frost. Cultivation may be continued throughout the growing season when staking is practiced. When staked, the plants are tied every six to 12 inches, care being taken to see that they are not tied too tightly so as not to injure the fruit."

FLEA BEETLES BEGIN ANNUAL DESTRUCTION

Lexington, Ky.—Flea beetles have opened their annual attack on potatoes, tomatoes, eggplant and other garden plants in Kentucky, according to a report made by J. S. Gardner, vegetable gardening specialist of the College of Agriculture upon his return from a tour of a number of counties in the State. The insects are particularly abundant in the southwestern part of the state, he said.

The beetle doing the most damage is known as the black flea beetle, its body being entirely black and covered with hairs. The adults measure about one-eighth of an inch long. Injury caused by it to beetles is characterized by small holes eaten in the leaves, the damage to potatoes some times resembling that caused by the blight. The entire leaf usually dies while the damage in some cases is so severe that the whole plants are destroyed and yields of the particular crop reduced. Gnawings of the insects usually are accompanied by a deadening of the leaves about the holes, giving the plants a rusty appearance not always recognized as the particular work of the pest.

Spraying with Bordeaux mixture has been recommended as a control. This not only reduces the amount of damage done by the beetles but also makes it possible for the plants to go through a drouth in better shape, Mr. Gardner says. In seasons of light rainfall, spraying with Bordeaux may make the difference between success and failure with the potato or tomato crop.

Bordeaux mixture is made by dissolving five pounds of copper sulphate in 25 gallons of water and slaking five pounds of fresh stone lime in another 25 gallons. These two solutions then are poured thru a strainer into a spray tank at the same time. A small quantity of about five gallons may be made by using one-half pound each of copper sulphate and lime.

UNFAIR COMPARISON

"One thing the farmer gains is most of the food necessary to sustain life. Many a farmer gets from his farm and his own efforts food that costs the city family from $300 a year up."

This is true, and the writer quoted is not attempting an invidious comparison. His mistake is in the attempt to class the farmer as a wage earner, when he is an employer. The farm hand may well be placed in a class with the mechanic, but the farmer himself should be placed with the employer to make a fair test of his income.

First of all he has his investment, the interest on which would make a large hole in his income. The risk in crop success, even when agriculture is well paid, is a matter that requires consideration. His own work must be figured at going wages as a business proposition, if not as high as a managerial position in a business involving the same capitalization.

He has the advantage of being his own employer, and that is all. It is worth while, however, and in the end the farmer is the happiest of the various business classes. But the attempt to show him his returns are adequate, or in keeping with those in other lines, with which a just comparison may be made, is a dismal failure.

True Detective Stories THE SECRET OF HOLMEHURST

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

THE discovery of the body of B. F. Perry in his home at 1316 Callowhill street, Philadelphia, by a man who had come in to see about securing a patent, did not cause any sensation at the time, for the coroner's jury gave a speedy verdict of "death from accidental causes." There was clear evidence that some sort of an explosion had taken place. A shattered bottle which had manifested some sort of inflammable material, a broken pipe filled with partly burned tobacco and a charred match, lay beside the body.

An autopsy showed that Perry had died from congestion of the lungs caused by the inhaling of flames or chloroform, the latter having presumably formed the contents of the broken bottle. So, as there were no claimants for the body and no estate, Perry's remains were interred in the Potter's field. There they would have remained undisturbed if it had not been for the evidence of a convict in the St. Louis prison.

Shortly after Perry's death, the Philadelphia branch of the Fidelity Insurance company received a letter from Jephtha D. Howe, an attorney in St. Louis, stating that "B. F. Perry" was really Benjamin F. Pitzel, who had carried a $10,000 life insurance with the Fidelity company. The only person who could be found to identify the body was a man named H. H. Holmes, of Wilmette, Ill., who willingly came to Philadelphia to superintend the exhuming of the body. Holmes and Howe met in the office of the company, presumably as attorneys, and the former clearly identified the body of the dead man as that of his friend, Pitzel. Satisfied, the insurance company paid the insurance to Howe, Pitzel's attorney, and reimbursed Holmes for his expenses.

The details of the case were reported in the St. Louis newspapers, and a few days later, Marion Hedgespeth, a convict serving a sentence for train robbery, informed the governor of the prison that he would like to give him some information which he considered most important.

"If you will examine the records of the prison," said Hedgespeth, "you will find that there was a man here last summer by the name of H. H. Howard. He was in for fraud, I think, but was released on bail. While he was here, Howard asked me if I knew any lawyer whom I could recommend in connection with a swindling scheme which he had in mind—a plan which ought to net at least $10,000 without any trouble. He promised me $300 for my information and I gave him the lawyer's name, but I never got my five hundred."

"The name of the lawyer I recommended to 'Howard' was Jephtha D. Howe and 'Howard' is undoubtedly the man named Holmes who is mixed up with that insurance case in Philadelphia. The details of the case agree exactly with the scheme, as Howard outlined it to me last summer."

As soon as this information reached Philadelphia, the insurance company, detailed an experienced detective, named Geyer to arrest Holmes and to investigate his antecedents, for it was clear that Pitzel had not met his death through accident, but had been deliberately murdered. After a month's search, Holmes was traced to New England and finally arrested. This, however, proved to be practical.

In the beginning of the case, for the further back Geyer went into Holmes' history, the more gruesome details he discovered. In endeavoring to find out what had become of Mrs. Pitzel and her five children, Geyer found in the cellar of a house in Toronto—a house rented by Holmes under the name of Cannan—the bodies of two children later identified as Alice and Etta Pitzel. From Toronto the trail led to Indianapolis, by way of Detroit and Cincinnati, and it was in Indianapolis that Geyer discovered the body of Howard Pitzel, aged ten, jammed into the chimney of the furnace in a house which had been rented some time before by a man who answered to the description of Holmes.

It was in the course of his search through Indiana and Illinois that Geyer came upon the most startling discovery of the entire case—the mysterious building in Chicago known as "Holmes' Castle" or "Holmehurst." The prisoner had personally superintended the erection of this structure and had investigated proof that it contained an air-proof, sound-proof vault, communicating with the cellar by means of a secret staircase. Buried in the cellar floor and half-consumed by quicklime were found the remains of at least five persons who had been lured to Holmehurst and there murdered.

All of these crimes had been committed some time before the Pitzel affair, and had it not been for the fact that Holmes overlooked the promise which he had made to a convict in the St. Louis prison, it is quite possible that he would have remained at liberty, a constant and deadly peril to everyone with whom he came in contact.

But Detective Geyer returned to Philadelphia with more than enough evidence to secure conviction, and Holmes paid the penalty for his crime on the gallows.

FARM HOUSE OF COLONIAL DESIGN

House That Will Make Children Contented and Happy.

HAS LABOR-SAVING FEATURES

Contains Nine Large, Comfortable Rooms, Six of Which Are Bedrooms—Has All Conveniences of a City Home.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF CHARGE on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1271 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

"I am going to make home life so attractive on this farm that my boys won't care to go to the city for excitement and variety when they grow up to manhood," remarked the farmer in his talk to the contractor. "That is one reason why I am planning a modern house with every convenience known to the building art."

What he had in mind was a home like the one illustrated here with floor plans. He had learned the lesson from the experience of many of his neighbors and he was determined to profit by their mistakes. Alert and progressive, he had very soon recognized the vital fact that to keep the children on the farm contented—a happy home life and freedom from the drudgery which has so often driven the boys to the larger cities just when the father had planned to turn over the reins to them was essential.

The first important step in his program was the farm home. This he decided was to be so attractive as to arouse the envy of city visitors. He could not have picked a prettier and more charming design than the colonial type shown in this picture. Always appealing, never falling in its popularity, although it is one of the oldest types of architectural styles in the country, it has a homelike atmosphere that cannot be excelled. Combined with its quaintness is the modern touch of the building science.

There is something about this hospitable home that is most inviting. Perhaps it is the quaint green shutters on the windows, the open front porch set on a level with the ground, the low rambling appearance, the unusual chimneys.

This home is designed for a family with plenty of children. There will be no crowding, for there are ten rooms in all, six of which are bedrooms, and a large nursery for the smaller "kiddies."

The front door leads into a small reception hall. Another door opening from the porch leads into the large living room, so essential in the colonial type of home, and an ideal lounging and resting place for the family after the work of the day. This living room is 23 by 14 feet 6 inches, with a large open brick fireplace built in the side. It extends the full depth of the house, thus providing for excellent lighting from front and rear as well as the side on which the fireplace is located. At the rear end a door leads to a small bedroom, 9 feet 6 inches by 11 feet, very convenient for the men who have to arise early.

The reception hall also opens into the dining room on the opposite side. This room is not quite as large as the living room, but is ample for the needs of the family. It opens at the far end into a hall which gives access to another small bedroom and to the stairs leading to the cellar, and to the floor above. At the right end, which forms a sort of wing to the main building, is the large kitchen which is necessary in farm homes where many must be fed. Off one corner is a handy lavatory. In a corner adjacent to the pantry and kitchen a dumb-waiter has been installed, which makes the carrying of food and other supplies from the storage cellar to the kitchen a very easy task and lightens much of the work which falls on the shoulders of the housewife. Too many of these labor-saving conveniences cannot be installed in the farm home, because the amount of work to be done is always considerable.

Upstairs are the sleeping quarters. Here the floor plans call for four bedrooms of various sizes, a bathroom and a splendid nursery in the far wing over the kitchen. The dumb-waiter is extended to this room, so that in case of illness the prepared meals can be carried direct to the sick room. In addition to the dumb-waiter there is an invalid lift in the side hall.

All of the bedrooms have good lighting facilities, most of them having ex-posure on two sides. The corner bedrooms are large, 22 by 13 feet 6 inches and 14 feet 6 inches square, and can be used as a sewing room or library if the occasion demands.

It goes almost without saying that this is a most distinctive farm home and one that will insure a large amount of comfort and satisfaction to the farmer, his wife and especially his children. The girls and boys have a real home in which to entertain their friends. There is electric light, running water, modern lavatories and bathroom. A modern heating plant in the cellar keeps the home comfortable all year round. If more homes like this were built on American farms, and they can be, for they are not very expensive, there would be less worry over farm help and less hue and cry about keeping the children on the farm. Human nature is alike the world over, in that it craves comfort, convenience and attractive surroundings. That is the basis of all honest ambition.

Animals and Reptiles That Have Been Held in High Reverence for Various Reasons.

Perhaps no animal ever butted its way into the literature of childhood so successfully as did Mary's little lamb, and today no animal gets as much petting and fantastic reverence bestowed upon it as does the white elephant of Siam, and the elephant in America has its following. In Siam the worshippers believe that the soul of a dead person, perhaps of a Buddha, may be lodged in the white elephant. Consequently he is baptised, dressed and winced, and mourned at his death.

The snake figures as much in history as a pet as perhaps any other reptile or animal. The sinuousness of its body, made possible by the hundreds of vertebrae in its backbone, and the never-winking eye have given it a fascination conducive to a belief that some sort of occult power is embodied in it. The ancient Incas made in the rocks of their temples, even in the Temple of the Sun, small holes leading to circular inclosures for the snakes to nest therein. It has been surmised that the priests probably kept in the temples a few tame snakes in order to use them in prophesying. One snake always gets a prominent place in the histories of Egypt and Rome—the asp which Cleopatra used to end her life because Octavius Caesar scorned her charms.—National Geographic Society Bulletin.

A WEEK'S NEWS.

A single headline in the daily paper tells nothing beyond the context of the article it heads. But a dozen of them may tell quite another story. For instance, consider this edition made from four papers within two days: "Charge Movies Rudele Pastors; Higher Critics Take Church Unaware; Baptists Want Books Free of Evolution Error; Science Conflicting With Revealed Religion; Clergy Declare Divorced America Doomed; Reasons Object to Church Unity; Pastor Leaves Church for Business; Explains Contradictions in Bible; Dancing Enemy of Church; Flappers Cause of Irreligion."

Evidently there is a cry in Macedonia, which comes from someone having toes heavily stepped on!

It would seem on merely casual analysis, that the church which started with a Carpenter and some fishermen two thousand years ago and managed to live through the destruction of Rome, the evils of the Dark Ages, the debauchery and crime of a few hundred years ago on the Continent, the world war and the spirit of unrest of this year of grace 1922 can probably continue to exist, whether the movies make fun of pastors or not, whether higher critics criticize or not, whether Baptists or Methodists or any other sect think evolution is an error or not, whether the various denominations are unified or remain divided, whether Americans get divorces or not, whether the Biblical contradictions be explained or not, and whether we have flappers dancing or staid!

There is probably something wrong with the church. There is something wrong with most things. Nothing human is perfect, and the church is a human institution, ministering a divine truth. But the "something wrong" would seem much more to be the man who thinks that a flapper or divorce, or higher criticism or unity or the lack of it can definitely interrupt the march of true religion, than the various, sundry and almost always puerile causes they assign for any failure of any church to be perfect!

There are many people who are bright, active, and alert who can not seem to work harmoniously with others, and who lack ability for loyal co-operation.

There are employers who have the characteristics tending to promote efficiency, yet somehow they fail to achieve large results by reason of lack of human touch. They can't seem to acquire enthusiastic co-operation of their employees.

Many workers are capable of efficient action, but they will not co-operate heartily with each other or the management. They are jealous of each other, or sore because they think the management makes too much money. Instead of trying to perfect their own work and thereby get advancement, they fritter away their energy in discontent.

To make any kind of business or work efficient, there must be team play of all elements. Somehow they must be induced to get together and work with all their heart for the common result. Class hostility is probably the greatest obstacle to efficiency in the business world today.

The favorite defense of Newberry by reactionary Republican spokesmen and the reactionary Republican press is to allege that the huge sum of money spent in his behalf in the Michigan Senatorial primaries was spent to defeat Henry Ford. This is rank deception and the speakers and writers who practice it do so with the evident purpose of deceiving and misleading their hearers and readers. The plain fact is that Newberry's friends were pouring money into the Senatorial primary campaign in violation of an existing Federal statute, not then nullified by the Supreme Court, long before Henry Ford was a candidate.

Efforts are to be made during the coming summer to retrieve some of the $18,000,000 worth of specie which sank in the sea when the Laurel was torpedoed during the war by a German submarine near Lough Swilly, Donegal. Previous salvage operations saved approximately two-thirds of the treasure and specially trained divers from the British navy are expected to recover the rest. The vessel lies in about 20 fathoms of water and the huge boilers rolling about make operations hazardous.

Rev. D. C. Blythe, D. D., preached in the First Presbyterian church last Sunday morning and gave a very interesting and helpful sermon. The Rev. Mr. Blythe has had long pastorate in one of the Presbyterian churches of Seattle but is now a member of Cincinnati Presbytery. He is visiting his brother, Harry Blythe and wife, on Centre street—Lawrenceburg (Ind.) Press.

Mr. Coolidge says he will not be a candidate for re-election to the Vice-Presidency. Maybe he plans to re-enter public life.

DIES SUDDENLY

M. J. Corbin Stricken With Death While Out Motoring

In the announcement of the death of M. J. Corbin, which was received in Burlington, last Thursday morning, the county has lost another of its valued citizens and his sudden taking away was a great shock to his many friends and relatives throughout the county where he spent the greater portion of his life.

Mr. Corbin, his wife, daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Shear, 2102 Maryland ave., Covington, with whom he lived since his retirement, were out motoring and when in Bromley, Ky., died suddenly following an attack of acute indigestion, last Wednesday evening, May 31.

For more than a quarter of a century he was engaged in the merchandise business in the merchandise business conducted by A. Corbin & Son, at Bellevue. After the death of his father the business was successfully managed by M. J. Corbin until a few years ago when he sold out and moved with his family to Erlanger, and for a year or so was assistant cashier of the Erlanger Deposit Bank at that place. About three years ago he retired from business and moved to Covington, where he owned a beautiful home.

M. J. Corbin was born October 31, 1851, near Hebron, Ky., and during all his life had all the attributes of a thorough going gentleman and excellent citizen. He was a member of the Baptist church, and was a devout christian, and served as deacon, treasurer and assistant clerk in the Baptist church at Bellevue for many years.

In all his church and Sunday school work his devoted wife was his faithful helper; having the same ideals and purposes, their work was congenial and productive of much good to the church and its membership. Truly, a good man and an honorable citizen has gone to his reward.

He was married on November 22, 1877, to Miss Catherine Botts, daughter of John and Hester Botts, of the Bellevue neighborhood, and to this union two daughters were born—one dying in infancy. Besides his wife he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. E. J. Shear, three sisters, Mrs. Fannie Snyder, of Petersburg, Mrs. Alice Snyder, of Burlington, Miss Amelia Corbin, of Lima, and one brother, A. B. Corbin, of Erlanger, who have the sympathy of a host of friends in the loss of a loving husband, father and brother.

After a short funeral service at the residence on Friday afternoon, June 2, the remains were buried in Highland cemetery.

CONTROL METHODS SUGGESTED FOR CHEESE OR HAM SKIPPERS

Because of damage by insects, chiefly the ham skipper, about $1,000,000 worth of meat is annually condemned by Federal inspectors. Much greater damage in proportion to the value of meat handled undoubtedly is done by skippers, which are the larvae of the skipper fly, in small abattoirs and on farms where sanitary precautions are not generally so thorough as in the large meat-packing establishments.

This loss, according to the Bureau of Entomology of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, must largely be controlled by preventive measures. The larvae hibernate in cold temperatures and it takes a high temperature to kill them. Natural insecticides which are useful in the control of some harmful insects, are of little or no use in controlling the ham skipper because most of those which attack the skipper are pests in themselves.

Fine wire screens, having at least 30 meshes to the inch, should be used where cured meats are stored. Rooms infested with skippers can be fumigated with hydrocyanic-acid gas according to directions furnished by the United States Department of Agriculture. Rooms in which cured meats are hung should have cement floors and light-colored walls, either plastered, painted or whitewashed, so that hiding places for the skippers will be eliminated.

The life cycle of the skipper is completed in 12 days during warm summer weather, so that two generations a month may be expected. In one ham kept under observation there was a total recorded production of 52,627 skippers during a period of 18 months, and a loss in the weight of the ham of 6 pounds 4 ounces, largely due to the feeding of the skippers.

WOOL POOL SELLS.

The Farmers Union wool pool disposed of their holdings last week at a very satisfactory price. While the price has not yet been made public, it is understood that it will be around 18 cents per lb. Quite a number of sheep owners disposed of their wool at an average price of 30 cents.—Grant County News.

WHEN HARDING WISHES HE WERE NOT PRESIDENT.

There are three that I wish for a little while that I were not President of the United States—President Harding to the Women's Republican Club of New Jersey.

Recent events in President Harding's administration make it possible to specify some of the times when the President logically, at least, have such a wish. For instance:

When he reflects upon the exposure of his personal appointees, political sponsor and former campaign manager, Attorney General Daugherty, in connection with the pardon of Charles H. Morse, and the demands in the Republican press for Daugherty's resignation, and the resolutions by Republican Congressmen for an investigation, noting, as any intelligent man must, the loss of public confidence in Mr. Daugherty as head of the great Department of Justice.

When he reflects that the seating of his personal friend and associate, Senator Newberry, in a purchased seat has been condemned from one end of the country to the other and recalls the exclamation of the then Senator Kenyon, now Judge Kenyon, "My God! you can never lower the dignity of the Senate after this day."

When he recalls the general public condemnation of his appointment of the notorious Nat Goldstein, who admitted taking $2,500 of the Lowden campaign slush fund when a candidate for delegate to the Republican National Convention.

When he reflects upon the general protest against the leasing of the last of the naval oil reserves to subsidiaries of the Standard Oil trust after they had been set aside by his predecessors for use of the oil-burning ships in the navy in national defense and the oil-burning ships of the Merchant Marine in the carrying of American commerce, and that he assumed personal responsibility therefor.

When he reflects upon the sorrow and shame he has cast upon the lives of old faithful employees of the Bureau of Engaving and Printing whom he summarily discharged without warning and to whose pleas for a hearing he refused to listen.

When he recalls his party's promise to reduce taxes and then notes the fact that the only persons who have had their taxes reduced are multi-millionaires and war-profters.

When he recalls the promise of his party to revive industry and trade and then sees a Republican Congress passing a tariff bill which will inevitably destroy foreign trade and work disaster to American industry—the high protective tariff bill which he himself advocated.

When he reflects upon the returns of the primary elections in Indiana and Pennsylvania containing a repudiation of a De-Nothing Congress and his own administration by members of his own party.

When he reviews the 11 months of the Harding administration and finds a minimum of accomplishment almost buried out of sight under a maximum of failure, with his party breaking up into factions; and scandal multiplying in his administration and the influential papers of his own party press arraigning against the principal economic policy of his administration.

SHIPPING CHICKENS.

A large industry has grown up recently in shipping fledgeling chickens by parcel post, and many post offices resound with their melodious chirping. Even that venerated center of solemn greatness the White House at Washington, resounded to this pleasing note the other day, when 25 newly hatched chicks were deposited there, shipped to Mr. Harding from his home town at Marion, Ohio, which city is now sending out 1,000,000 of these chicks per year.

In some superlative communities and neighborhoods, many persons object to the chicken raising habit. But if people have land where the little fluffy creatures can run without interfering with anyone, the backyard chicken coop is a public blessing, adding to the nation's supply and family prosperity and welfare.

BUYING FARMS.

Much sympathy is expressed for young men who want to buy farms but are as is claimed unable to do so owing to high prices. Yet if advertisements inserted in farm and other journals, and of property for sale, reliable, and there is every reason to have faith in them, the young man who has saved $1,000 or more should be able to find a good chance where with industry and intelligence he can win his way.

Young men desiring farms must expect to have saved and be able to invest a reasonable amount of their own money, or secure the same from personal friends. Few people care to invest in a property unless the purchaser takes a stake in it himself. There are plenty of good opportunities in Boone county for the young men having the right spirit of industry.

AT A RIPE OLD AGE

Mrs. Louise Riddell Passes to the Great Beyond.

Death has again entered our town and taken away another of the oldest and most beloved citizens. Friends throughout the town and community will learn with sorrow of the death of Mrs. Louise (Hawes) Riddell which occurred last Friday night, June 2, 1922, at 10:40 o'clock at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. B. Renaker, with whom she had made her home since the death of her husband, the late Fountain Riddell, who preceded her to the Great Beyond nineteen years ago—May 30th, 1903.

Mrs. "Babe" Riddell as she was familiarly called by all her friends and relatives, was born in Burlington September 20, 1845, where she spent her entire life, and was the last of a family of 13 children born to N. E. and Jemima (Bradford) Hawes—her father, N. E. Hawes, being a leading merchant of the town for 46 years. Notwithstanding her advanced age, for she had attained the ripe age of seventy-six years, had been afflicted with diabetes for a number of years but did not take to her bed until about three weeks ago, she was ushered into the Lord's presence from her usual activities. The finger of God touched her and in a moment she was with Him, death being attributed to diabetes.

Mrs. Riddell was a splendid christian woman. Her distinguishing characteristics were her unselfishness, her unwavering loyalty to her friends and the prayerful devoutness of her faith will forever live in the hearts of all who knew her. In early girlhood she trusted her saviour, and became a member of the Christian church.

She is survived by two children, one son and daughter, Judge N. E. Riddell and Mrs. A. B. Renaker, both of Burlington, one granddaughter, Mary Louise Renaker, several nephews and nieces, who have the sympathy of a large circle of relatives and friends in their bereavement.

After a short funeral service conducted by Rev. R. H. Carter, at the residence Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, the remains were laid to rest in the cemetery just north of town by the side of her husband, where she sleeps in undisturbed rest.

The beautiful floral offerings, and large crowd of relatives and friends present at the funeral attested to the high esteem in which the deceased was held by the people of Burlington and surrounding community. Quite a large number of friends from a distance being present. The pallbearers were R. S. Cowen, S. W. Tolin, J. T. Gaines, G. C. Kreylich, Geo. Blythe and F. A. Hall.

At the end of the way in life's evening, a still small voice said, "come," and her spirit was wafted gently to Jesus, and to her heaven, her home.

THE COUNTRY HOME AND MODERN LIFE.

One of the big problems of rural life has been to get the intimate touch with the world of modern progress, without drawing the young people away from their home surroundings.

To get the best results for any form of life, it needs to be closely in touch with modern progress and with bright and able people. This touch can be gained through education. Students go to fine schools and colleges, and meet a picked class of young people, and their minds are stimulated by contact with brilliant teachers and speakers. But as a result, many young people get interested in business and professional opportunities in the cities, and think they are burying themselves if they go back to the farms or to some country town.

On the other hand, if you do not give young people these opportunities for mental enlargement, they have missed something, the lack of which will handicap them. This is the reason why rural progress has lagged behind city progress in some respects.

There are two remedies for this condition. The first is to urge country people to read newspapers, magazines, and books, and to maintain lecture courses in their village centers. In such ways they get just as close contact with the world of progress as city people can have.

The second remedy, is to urge the country young people to take agricultural school and college training, where they will get the mental enlargement that shall increase their constructive and thinking ability, and at the same time will learn how to make a success of rural problems. When those two conditions are generally fulfilled, country life will make more rapid progress than city life, since multitudes of city people are not interested in educational advantages or in improving their minds.

COST OF PRODUCING TOBACCO IN KENTUCKY

Washington, D. C.—The average cost of producing Burley tobacco on 74 farms in the Burley district of Kentucky was 32.6 cents a pound in 1920 as compared with an average of 25.3 cents in 1919. The average cost of producing dark fire-cured tobacco on 50 farms in the dark tobacco area of Kentucky was 14.9 cents a pound in 1920 as compared with 17.2 cents in 1919, and was less than one-half the cost of producing Burley. These figures are disclosed in a cost-of-production study made by the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky and the U. S. Department of Agriculture under a cooperative arrangement. Figures for 1921 are now being tabulated.

The yield per acre on the 74 Burley farms ranged from 378 pounds to 1,492 pounds with an average of 907.86 pounds. The cost per acre ranged from $160.20 to $493.69 with an average of 295.73. The cost per pound ranged from 20 cents to 66 cents. Approximately 80 per cent of the tobacco was produced at 37 cents a pound or less. The average yield in 1919 was 1,492 pounds. The light weight of the 1920 crop is attributed to the unusual weather conditions prevailing during the growing season.

In the Burley district an acre of tobacco required an average of 32.84 days of man labor and 9.36 days of horse labor. Of the total cost, man labor constituted 38.22 per cent, land rent 36.07 per cent, barns and sticks 11.65 per cent, horse labor 6.96 per cent, insurance 3.72 per cent, and machinery .76 per cent. Not including land rent as a cost, man and horse labor constituted 70.66 per cent, and the other items 29.34 per cent.

The yield per acre on the 50 dark fire-cured farms ranged from 275.2 pounds to 1,603.4 pounds with an average of 855.4 pounds. The cost per acre ranged from 9 cents to 37.5 cents. Approximately 60 per cent of the tobacco was produced at 15 cents a pound or less.

In the dark tobacco area an acre of tobacco required 24.8 days of man labor and 8.4 days of horse labor. Of the total cost, man labor constituted approximately 50 per cent, horse labor 14 per cent, land rent 13 per cent, insurance 4.9 per cent, and other items about 10 per cent. Excluding land rent as a cost, man and horse labor totaled approximately 75 per cent, and the other items 25 per cent of the total cost.

The territory covered represented typical conditions in the Central Kentucky Burley district and in the Western Kentucky dark tobacco district. Cost studies will also be made for 1922, and will complete a period of four consecutive years.

WHOLESALE AMUSEMENTS

The future of the young people of a country town depends largely on the kind of amusements they have. If the townspeople are too indifferent to plan and organize wholesome diversions, the young crowd will be slipping around to other places for cheap sports, or engaging in undesirable pastimes nearer home.

The country life campaign of the future must plan better for its young people's good times. They need their ball teams and their dramatic clubs and their dances, just as much as a young colt needs a chance to kick up its heels. Deprive them of the enjoyments that are natural to their age, they get sore and grouchy, and the first thing you know they are taking a job in some city.

THE ROAD PROBLEM

The road question is not only uppermost in the minds of the people of Boone but is occupying the attention of the people in every county and state in the Union. The people are over the country are crying for roads suitable for automobile travel. In some States they have carried the good roads scheme to a point where it has almost bankrupted the Commonwealth. California and Ohio are two of these States. There are about three hundred and fifty miles of pikes in Boone county that need repair. Some of these roads are almost impassable for automobiles. It will cost from $2,000 to $5,000 a mile to repair this 350 miles of pike. This would mean that the taxpayers would have to put up $700,000. To spend $4,000 a mile would mean $1,500,000. The question arises would the taxpayers of Boone county be willing to spend this vast amount of money to repair the roads, which at the greatest would only last from three to five years? This good roads proposition is a big undertaking.

When—

But what's the use. When President Harding declares that there are times he wishes for a little while that he were not President of the United States he is simply saying a wish that is common to all over-increasing number of his fellow-citizens, and which, unless there is great improvement in his administration, of which there are no present signs, threatens to become general.

ANOTHER PROGRESSIVE MOVE.

Made By Boone County Jersey Cattle Club.

The members of the Boone County Jersey Cattle Club in an effort to eliminate the scrub or grade bull, have decided to offer at public auction a dozen or more of the best young registered bulls in their hands to the farmers of Boone county. These young bulls will be sold on "Jersey Day" Saturday June 17th, at which time the Jersey heifers will be distributed to the Boys and Girls in the Dairy Club. A committee composed of O. C. Harter, S. B. Ryle and County Agent Sutton are spending Wednesday and Thursday of this week visiting some of the best Jersey herds in Kentucky, securing these heifers. Fieldman R. D. Canan, American Jersey Cattle Club, New York City, has promised to be with us on "Jersey Day" and will address the Jersey breeders of Boone county.

No advertising has been sent to buyers outside of the county, as it is the desire of the local club that this offering all remain in the county. These young sires are the best in breeding and individuality in the county, and will be knocked off at the high dollar, regardless of what they bring.

MEMORIAL SERVICES AT PETERSBURG.

Boone Post American Legion will take part in services Sunday June 11th.

Memorial services will be held at Petersburg Sunday June 11, by the K. of P. and Odd-Fellows lodges of that place. Boone Post No. 4 American Legion, has been asked to take part in these services. All ex-service men are asked to take part in the parade reporting in uniform at 1 p. m. The usual military honors will be given by the post and Rev. Garber, Post Chaplain, will deliver a short address in behalf of the American Legion.

NOTICE WOOL POOLERS.

The Boone county wool was sold Monday to M. Sabel & Sons, Louisville, at a good price, and will be taken up as follows: At Walton, June 20; at Burlington June 21, and at Bullittsville, June 22 in forenoon and at Petersburg same day in afternoon.

L. T. CLORE, Secty.

Thirty-one years ago last Saturday, June 3, 1891, a very severe wind storm visited this part of the county, doing damages to fencing and timbers, a great deal of both being leveled. At Big Bone a barn belonging to Raseless Huey was demolished and a piece of falling timber struck Huey, inflicting what was considered at first a fatal injury. A large new barn of Charles Hume on Mudlick creek was completely demolished; the house occupied by Robt. Sullivan near Big Bone church was moved several inches.

Judge Sidney Gaines left, Sunday for Williamstown where he convened a two week's session of the Grant county circuit court. The Grant county News of last week says: "Grant Circuit Court convenes next Monday for a two weeks' session. The term is likely to be a pretty busy one as there are several important cases. Numerous divorce cases are on the docket some of which have been pending for a long time."

The old home of Daniel Boone in Kentucky is falling to pieces. It has withstood the elements for nearly 200 years and is slowly falling to ruin from lack of care. One room contains a large fireplace of stones still in good condition. The doors and shutters of the dwelling are hung on wrought iron hinges, but many of the windows are broken, permitting snow and rain to enter and causing the floor to decay.—Dearborn Independent.

More tobacco has been set in this county up to the first of this week than ever known at so early a date, and still we hear it said the crop will not any larger than last year.

Miss Katherine Bierman, of Latonia, has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Fred Morris, at her home out on the East Bend pike, for several days.

Don't lose hope. Tanlac has helped thousands who had almost given up in despair. Try it. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

This is the season of the year when a fellow feasts on strawberry short cake and cherry cobbler.

To combat the bandits who specialise in holding up payroll carriers, and bank messengers, the Adams Express Company has equipped a fleet of armored motor cars and recruited a small army of expert riflemen to guard the treasure entrusted to its care.

The company has ordered one hundred cars, made throughout of welded chrome steel. Fourteen have been delivered, and are seen daily on the streets of New York. The only openings in the rivetless surface are seven portholes, a few inches square—two on each side, two in front, and one in the rear. Through these portholes project the three ening muzzles of the shotguns and rifles of the guards inside.

One of the cars stops, say at a bank. Out step three men in snappy blue uniforms. The first and third walk alertly, hands on revolver butts; the man in the middle carries a canvas sack. It is lined with steel-wire mesh, is that sack, and further protected by a lock as nearly impregnable as ever was devised.

The locks on the heavy steel doors of the car open only to the master key. Inside the car are modern burglar-proof steel safes. Around the safes, when the car is traveling, sits a crew of four men, each armed with pistol and two extra clips of ammunition, and shotgun or rifle. The driver's seat is separated from the inner compartment by a steel wall and a locked steel door as heavy as the outer walls. The driver looks through glass that has withstood the test of a point-blank charge of buckshot. When the car is closed the running-board folds against the body so as to leave not the slightest foothold. But even if the driver should fall a victim to a bandit's bullet, even if bandits could get aboard and take the wheel, they would still be powerless to escape with the car, for there is a special emergency brake by which the men in the inner compartment could bring the car to a sudden halt.

The crews are organized on a military basis and practice marksmanship daily at the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory. Each man carries an identification card and photograph, and every member of a crew must prove his identity every time the crew is placed on guard over a consignment.

The services of the cars and their crews are rented to banks by the year, or they may be engaged for a single job.

The Ford International Weekly, "The Dearborn Independent," published at Dearborn, Michigan, in its issue of June 3, says:

"It may be in the interest of justice, but it certainly is not in the justice of interest, that appeal is to be made to Congress for the settlement of the claims of the collateral heirs of Robert Morris.

"In 1781 the Pennsylvania financier borrowed $1,500,000 on his personal credit to help finance the Continental Army. This he advanced to the government, receiving bonds in return. When Morris was placed in the debtors' prison after the collapse of his personal fortunes, the bonds were lost.

"Now, after 141 years, the descendants of the Continental financier's sister (he was a bachelor) have hired counsel and prepared to file claim for the debt of the Revolutionary days. There are various ways of figuring compound interest, but the Morris heirs have moderate in their requests. All they want for the million and one-half in Continental currency is $80,000,000. This, any money-lender will tell you, is quite reasonable.

"It is to be hoped that poor posterity, 140 years hence, will not awaken to discover that the world's 1922 debts, treated with multiplication-table interest, remain unpaid."

98 Head of Guernsey Bring Total of $262,930.

Northeasten, Mass. Ninety-six head of Guernsey cattle brought a total of $262,930, an average of $2,738 a head, at the disposal sale of the Langwater farm herd of the estate of Frederick Lothrop Ames. The record price of $19,500, paid for Langwater Cleopatra, by R. J. Benson of Princeton, N. J., is said to be the highest price ever paid for a Guernsey cow. A calf, bred by Langwater Horatius, brought $2,000. It was only a few hours old when put up for auction.

Among those from a distance attending the funeral of Mrs. Louise Riddell, Monday afternoon were: C. W. Riddell, of Williamstown, C. L. Renaker and wife, Richard Stephenson and wife, of Dry Ridge, Grant county, Congressman A. B. Rouse, and quite a number of others of whom we failed to get the names.

Mrs. Martha Roberts, of Walton, came down last Friday evening, and spent several days with her brother and sisters, W. R., Sallie and Elizabeth Rogers.

Mrs. J. M. Lansing and son, John, arrived Monday night from their winter home at St. Petersburg, Fla., and will spend the summer in Burlington.

Quite a large crowd attended the all day meeting at Gunpowder Baptist church, last Sunday.

The races at Latonia opened Monday to continue 20 racing days.

COWPEA USEFUL TO HELP SOILS

Crop Increases Productiveness and Also Improves General Physical Condition.

GREATLY BENEFITS ORCHARDS

About 85 Per Cent of Fertilizing Value of Crop is Contained in Hay and 15 Per Cent in the Roots and Stubble.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

The case with which cowpeas are grown and their marked effect on succeeding crops have made them one of the most popular crops grown for soil improvement. Besides increasing the productivity of the soil, the bulletin says, the cowpeas also improve its general physical condition making heavy clay soils more open and sandy soils more compact. The cowpeas have the distinct advantage of making a good growth on soils which will not produce profitable yields of other legumes or cereals. It is an excellent green-manure crop for vineyards and orchards.

Plow Under Stubble.

Except on the poorer soils, results indicate that it is decidedly more profitable to utilize the cowpeas as hay or pasture and then plow under the stubble than it is to plow under the entire crop. About 85 per cent of the fertilizing and soil-improving value of the cowpeas is contained in the hay and about 15 per cent in the roots and stubble. Feeding experiments indicate that much of the fertilizing value of feeds is recovered in the manure. It is possible, therefore, to obtain the feeding value of the cowpeas as hay or pasture, and in returning the manure to the soil, to save a large part of the fertilizing value, provided the manure is well handled.

When the entire crop is plowed under, a more beneficial and lasting effect is obtained, but this advantage is not sufficiently great to equal the feeding value of the cowpeas.

Plow Under Entire Crop.

Light or sandy soils that have been cropped for a long time and need humus receive greater benefit from plowing under the whole crop. When, therefore, the improvement of the land is the sole object, the entire crop should be plowed under to obtain the greatest value. In utilizing the entire crop for soil improvement, it is best to plow it under when green, before being killed by frost. The green plants decay more readily and are superior to dry plants in their fertilizing effect.

The results of analyses made by the North Carolina agricultural experiment station show that one ton of cowpea hay contains 47 pounds of nitrogen, 10 pounds of phosphoric acid and 29 pounds of potash.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Once more the silent messenger has visited the Big Bone Aid Society of the M. E. church and has claimed as its own our sister and friend, Mrs. Mary Howlett, who fell asleep on May 9th, 1922.

In her death our society has lost a valued member who was always willing to do her part. Therefore be it resolved

That we show our appreciation of her efforts by extending to her relatives our heartfelt sympathy. Second

That these resolutions be placed on our records and a copy sent to the Boone County Recorder for publication.

One of the largest crowds in the history of the Boone County Milk Producers was held at Florence on Thursday night, June 1, when W. F. Schilling, of the Minnesota Twin Cities Co-operative Milk Marketing Association delivered an address to the members. Mr. Schilling is a large dairyman and farmer, living near Northfield, Minnesota, and is recognized as one of America's leading farmers, and is president of one of the largest and most successful co-operative milk marketing associations in the U. S. His address was very much enjoyed by those present, as he dealt in facts not theories. After disposing of other important business committees were appointed to solicit members in territory in which no organization have been made.

A law was passed by the last Legislature requiring every voter in the State, both men and women, to register on July 10th and 11th. There is a penalty attached to every one who fails to register, and that penalty is that the voter will be deprived of the right to vote in the coming November election when Congressmen will be elected. The people in the rural districts of Boone are a unit in denouncing this registration law, but nevertheless it is now on the statute books and the only thing to do is to comply with the law and register. It is true the registration days come at a busy time for the farmer and his wife; but make up your mind to register and not be a slacker.

Mr. G. M. Riley, formerly of this county, but now a resident of Dayton, Ohio, was among the crowd in attendance at court Monday. Mr. Riley is nearly 92 years of age and is as alert and active in mind and body as a man of sixty. He is an ex-Confederate soldier. He bids fair to grind out 100 years. Mr. Riley is always glad to get back among his friends in his old stamping ground and hear the grass grow.

SULPHUR DUSTED ON CLOTHING PREVENTS CHIGGER ATTACKS.

Rare days in June—and July and August—tempt nature lovers into woods and fields and by the sides of babbling brooks. Frequently they return to undergo days of acute torment due to attacks by chiggers, the tiny mites whose larvae attach themselves to the skin in any exposed spot.

The Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture has made a careful study of the habits of chiggers and methods of control, and suggests two ways of reducing the discomfort caused by chiggers.

The first step is to clothe the feet and ankles properly when going into the woods where chiggers are likely to occur, by wearing heavy high-topped boots instead of low shoes, thick stockings or even spiral puttees. The second method is to apply repellents either directly on the skin or on the hose and undergarments before starting out for a "hike" or a picnic. Flowers of sulphur is ordinarily used for this purpose. A hot bath with a thick lather of soap taken immediately after returning from an outing often kills chigger larvae on the body.

Palliatives such as sulphur ointment, alcohol, ammonia, cooking soda, dilute solution of iodine, or camphor ore of use chiefly because of their acrid or mite-killing quality, or because of their antiseptic quality, or for both reasons.

Miss Mary Roberts and a gentleman friend of Covington, Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Martin, of Florence, were guests of Misses Sallis and Elizabeth Rogers, Sunday.

PRESENT OUTLOOK GOOD

No one who has paid any attention to that portion of the year 1922 that has come and gone can fail to note with pleasure that those who have been constantly on the job can have much to complain about as far as a prosperous outlook is concerned. We have bountiful crop of grass, fruit, lambs and wool and prices are getting better every day. With care and thorough work and the best habits of economy we are bound to succeed. The gardeners and farmers need to work their ground and crop with extra care and often so that in the case of a serious drought later, the soil will be in a condition to hold moisture.

T wonderful amount of money seems to be headed our way and if applied to debts instead of extravagant living this will soon be a great county. Farms will be put in a high state of cultivation and well fenced, out buildings will be built or repaired and the hay barns will be filled with baled clover and alfalfa, the dairy herd will be sleek and fat and the honey bee will hunt the row of new hives in the orchard and the land will indeed flow with milk and honey.

The best indication of prosperity is the fact that in the faces of the majority of those you can see a determination to do something and they are on their way which will add much to a prosperous future.

Dr. J. G. Furnish, of Covington, was called in consultation with Dr. Dalton, last Sunday, to see Charles Maurer, who has been poorly the last two or three weeks.

Shelby Cowan, of Covington, spent Sunday with his aunt, Mrs. Laura Martin and daughter, Miss Nell.

Little defects grow into big ones in time if not corrected.

The correction of a small defect in its early stages costs but little.

When left until it grows into serious proportions its correction runs into money.

That is what makes the maintenance of a car so expensive to many people—neglecting the little things until they grow into big ones.

The better—the safer—the more economical way is to see the garage man at the first warning of trouble.

Today is always a good time to have it done.

BUT HE WON'T RESIGN

It was on May 24 that Senator Watson arose in the Senate and flatly denied Senator Caraway's charges of Attorney General Daugherty's connection with the Morse case. Daugherty, said Mr. Watson, "did not get him (Morse) out of the penitentiary; he had not anything to do with getting him out of the penitentiary, and he received no fee for getting him out of the penitentiary."

Daugherty for nearly a month allowed that statement of his friend, Watson, to stand, without a word of modification or correction. It was not until the 25th of May, after Senator Caraway had proved his charges against Daugherty, that the Attorney General broke his silence to admit that he had received $4,000 as an inadequate fee for his work for Morse and declared that Senator Watson had no authority for making the denial he made on May 2; that he had misquoted what the (Daugherty) had told him about the Morse case.

From May 2 to May 25 Senator Watson had stood by his denial of Mr. Daugherty's connection with the case, although his denial had been almost daily assailed by Senator Caraway. It was during all that time Mr. Daugherty did not open his mouth except once to say the charges were made against him to weaken him as a public prosecutor. He permitted Mr. Watson to stick to a denial which, though he thought to be the truth, Mr. Daugherty knew to be a lie. It was not until Mr. Caraway had publicly proved it that Mr. Daugherty wrote his humiliating letter to Senator Watson informing him that he didn't know what he was talking about when he uttered his denial.

The performance leaves Mr. Daugherty in the apparent attitude of having been willing to profit by a lie as long as he is innocent. Indiana Senator seemed to have any chance of getting away with it. It has all the appearance of a piece of trickery in keeping with the most unfavorable estimate of the Ohio lawyer lobbyist when he was appointed Attorney General.

Under the circumstances it is readily understandable that even so staunch a Republican journal as the New York Tribune should call for his resignation.

"Mr. Daugherty," says the Tribune, "should never have been named as Attorney General. The appointment was one of the few mistakes President Harding has made. It was a personal selection, and such for high office are seldom happy. The only way to rectify the blunder, if the documents published in the Congressional Record are genuine and accurate, is to ask for a speedy resignation if one is not tendered. Granted that Mr. Daugherty was one of those who were fooled, he is manifestly in that event too gullible to be a head of the Department of Justice."

Mr. Daugherty will not resign, and as the President says he never apologizes for his appointments it is improbable that Mr. Harding will be relieved soon of what the Tribune calls the "embarrassment" of his Attorney General.—Courier-Journal.

Dr. John A. Ryan, professor of industrial ethics at Catholic University, Washington, D. C., is reported to have said publicly: "Anyone who spends time combating radicalism in America, using the term in respect to revolutionary movements, is slaying the slain."

Well, maybe so. The professor ought to know; it's his job. But the common or garden man, with his ear to the ground and his eyes on the newspaper reports of crime, robbery, pillage, murder, rape, lynching, industrial unrest, strikes, arson and the rest of the decalogue of offenses against life and property, cannot help but be struck with the fact that most of the crimes are directed against wealth or persons of wealth. The police of any large city can testify to the "red" meetings constantly interrupted and dispersed, the immigration authorities can and do testify to the undesirable constantly turned back in spite of sympathetic support for their entry by those who have use for bolshevistic propagandists in this country. After there are those who find hidden obstructions, mysterious difficulty and unseen snags in the way of the spread of the public schools in general and the Tower-Sterling hill in particular! It may be, in the sense in which Dr. Ryan uses the term, that radicalism is dead in this country. But even so, the risk of killing the slain, slaying the slain, and then burying the already interred, it would seem the part of wisdom to keep the vigilant eye well open and the alert hand ready to strike. The apparently moribund have come to life before now, and will again; eternal vigilance is the price of liberty no less now than when first said.

Radicalism may be dead—but let keep on killing it to make sure it isn't aping Fido and just "playing dead."

The farmers are looking for sunshine but the city folks seem to be looking for moonshine.

THE BURLEY ORGANIZATION

If there is any good reason why any tobacco grower in Grant county, or any other county in the burley district, for that matter, should not become a member of the Burley Tobacco Growers Association, we fail to see it.

Last year when the association was in the formative stage there may have been good reasons advanced. But the situation is different this year. Then the success of the organization was a matter of doubt. All doubt has been removed this year. Burley growers who were members have already received more for their weed than those who remained out, grade for grade. And not only is this true both association and non-association growers have no hesitation in saying that it has not been for the organization few would have received as much for their product as they did.

The Burley Tobacco Marketing Association is now a going concern. It has control of very nearly all of the loose leaf markets in the Burley district. Its membership rose at least 80 per cent. of all the burley tobacco grown. It has proven that it can and will secure for the grower a better price than he can secure if he continues to work independently. It has also demonstrated the fact that the association member will not have to wait for any considerable period for his money, a claim which was made last year by some who held out.

An average of nearly 19 cents a lb. has been paid for the 1921 crop of tobacco which was signed up to the organization and there is a distribution yet to come which will considerably increase that amount.

Last year's crop of tobacco turned out to be light in weight and short in acreage. This year's crop in so far as acreage is concerned will be a bumper one. More tobacco was set in May this year than ever before. If other counties are increasing their acreage as Grant is, and this seems entirely probable the acreage this year will exceed last year's by at least 25 per cent. probably more. Only time will tell what kind of a yield and what quality will be grown, but if the season turns out fair it will be one of the largest crops ever grown in the Burley district. Were it not for the association and such a crop were grown, the bottom would fall out of the market and an average of 10 cents per pound would be a high one.

But with the association's plans of marketing the price can be maintained at a figure which will give the grower a profit. Naturally the non-pooler will profit if the price is held up by the association, but is it fair that he should do so?

There is, however, a very strong probability that the non-pooler this year will find difficulty in marketing his crop. So many new members are joining the association that it is doubtful if there will be an independent loose leaf market in the whole burley district. In such an event the non-pooler would have to sell direct to a speculator or else pack and ship his tobacco to the hogwash market. If he follows the former course he will get for his crop just what the speculator sees fit to give him. In the latter case he will have to raise enough tobacco to justify him in pricing it, which is not commonly done by the average grower.—Grant County News.

GOVERNMENT ISSUES

BRICK ROAD FILM.

With its latest motion picture release—a brick road film—the Department of Agriculture, thru the Bureau of Public Roads, has made available to the public, motion pictures on three types of modern paving: asphalt, brick and concrete. Due to this activity of the government the general public, thru farmers granges, city civic associations and the like, can obtain, graphically, information on modern highway construction.

The brick picture starts with the mining of the shale or clay, and gives a clear idea of the heavy labor and fuel expense in connection with the manufacture of this paving material.

After portraying the details of manufacture and inspection, the film shows the unusual diversity in the use of brick for surfacing city streets and country highways. (Brick streets in use today range from the more simple designs, where the brick are laid on the natural soil without any artificial base, up through the more elaborate designs to a point where thick beds are specified because of exceedingly heavy traffic.)

The picture shows in detail several modern methods of laying brick surfaces on various types of bases and with different kinds of fillers between the joints, and closes with the sub-title: "Vitriified brick makes a high-class durable pavement, suitable for the heaviest traffic, expensive in first cost, but cheaply maintained."

1921 TOMATO PACK.

The 1921 pack of tomatoes in the United States was less than half that of any of the past fifteen years, according to statistics compiled and made public by the National Canners' Association. The total pack for the year is estimated to have been but 4,017,000 cases. The lowest previous pack recorded in the association's comparative figures for each year since 1908 was 8,469,000 cases in 1915. The highest 15,322,000 cases in 1914.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

Now that business improvement is definitely under way, the foremost problem is that of gauging the rate of expansion and its ultimate limit for a reasonable period ahead. Production should not be recklessly increased but should expand in relation to a carefully tested market.

In connection with the course of even during the next few months, two factors are worthy of consideration; namely, the extent to which output is now below normal and the outlook for exports.

The difficulties of determining what is a normal output are obvious. Population has increased by nearly one-fifth since 1910, and the war is regularly affected the expansion of the various industries, so that any standard of measure which may be set up is necessarily arbitrary.

At the same time, it is the consensus of business judgment that activities during the latter part of 1919 and the opening months of 1920 were above normal, and that operations during the latter part of 1920 and throughout 1921 were below normal, and that a safe rate of production for the United States lies at some point between these extremes.

The Harvard Economic Service has endeavored to establish a normal rate for manufactures and to compare production with it from 1919 to date. The results of this work indicate that at no time during the depression, the lowest point being July, 1921, was the volume of manufacturers in the United States lower than 70 per cent. of normal.

During that month according to the same source, a sharp upward took place, and gains since that time have been fairly steady, the manufacturing output of the country at present being perhaps nearly 95 per cent. of normal. Other studies carried on along different lines have shown similar results, but indicate a somewhat lower current rate of operations.

The experience in the recent past of business generally may raise a question as to the accuracy of these estimates, but they have support in several directions. There has unquestionably been much unemployment in the United States, but despite this fact, consumption has on the whole been well maintained. What is more, convincing evidences, the amount of actual suffering caused by men being out of work has been relatively unimportant compared with preceding depressions of apparently much less severity, and in most districts savings bank deposits either have been maintained or have increased. The conclusion is inevitable that unemployment has not been as widespread as has been indicated by published estimates or by popular opinion. Excess stocks of all kinds have been generally disposed of, stocks of some classes of goods are adequate, and manufacturing output in a number of lines is fairly well adjusted to demand.

In the face of these facts, the outlook for American exports of all classes is of vital importance. Attention has been called repeatedly to the fact that exports of agricultural products, with the exception of cotton, have been well maintained. The consuming countries are gradually increasing their own agricultural production but they are also improving their purchasing power, so that exports of American food products will probably continue in satisfactory volume. Cotton exports, already show notable gains, and as business gradually improves there is no question that the international market will demand increasing volume. Gradual resumption of business activities throughout the world will in time take care of American surpluses of other raw materials.

From the standpoint of the immediate business future and likewise from the standpoint of that group of American labor which is as yet unemployed or only partially employed, the outlook for exports of manufactured goods is especially important, and it is in this field that there are now notable grounds for encouragement.

A Chicago moonshiner was discovered making booze out of acorns. That's the kind of stuff that makes the drinkers nutty.

WHAT TO EAT.

The eternal question constantly occurring daily, to be solved by twenty million housewives and cooks is what shall we have for dinner? Fish Soup—Cover the skin, bones of several fish (cod, haddock, flounder or lake trout) with cold water, add an onion, half a carrot, half a cupful of celery leaves, three branches of parsley, chopped and cooked in two tablespoonsful of fat; let simmer, closely covered, for half an hour. Strain off the liquid and to a quart of the soup or broth add one-third of a cupful of minute tapioca cooked in a pint of milk until transparent; add a teaspoonful or more of salt, one-third of a teaspoonful of paprika, one cupful of cream and half a pound of fresh raw fish cut in half-inch cubes. Let cook over boiling water ten minutes and serve with olives.

Creole Stew.—Take one pound of lean beef or a medium-sized fowl, two cupfuls of tomatoes, one cupful of carrots, one cupful of chopped sweet peppers, one-half cupful of rice, one-fourth of a cupful of chopped onion, one teaspoonful of salt and one tablespoonful of fat. Cut the meat in pieces, melt the fat, add the onions, peppers, meat or chicken; brown in the fat. Put in the cooking vessel, with the seasoning, rice, vegetables, and one cupful of boiling water; simmer for one-half hour, then put into the cooker for three hours without the tomatoes or two hours with them. With chicken and okra instead of the meat and carrots, this is a favorite southern dish.

Dried beef prepared by scalding and draining and used as the chicken with macaroni, makes another good hot dish for supper or luncheon.

Apple Gelatin.—Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one-half cupful of cold water. Cook six tart apples with half a lemon rind, or use a like amount of seasoned apple sauce. Put through a sieve, add the juice of a lemon, the softened gelatin and pour into a mold. Serve with cream, whipped or plain.

HELPS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

Chili sauce may be prepared any time during the year with a few canned tomatoes, adding such spices, chopped pepper and onions as suits the taste. When preparing catsup or chili sauce, winter in large quantities, put the tomatoes through the meat chopper and use the juice, canned, for soup.

Old can rubbers together in the form of a mat to use to save the enamel of the sink, when using dish pans and drainers. These mats are also good to use on ice to keep dishes from slipping.

Place small rings on the inside hem of the curtains in bedrooms, have small hooks on the side of the casement; the curtains may be hung by the rings at night, securing better ventilation and saving the blowing of the curtains. These hooks and rings will be found useful to hang up the curtains when sweeping the room.

When bleaching clothes, as soon as dry turn the hose on them, then let the sun dry; the repeated wetting and drying will bleach cloth much sooner than the old manner.

Baskets and mats of sweet grass may be restored to fragrance by a quick dipping of the article into boiling water.

Wood, such as posts, stakes or trellises which must be driven into the ground, will last twice as long if the surface is charred by fire.

Make the candy for the children at home and save the price of one pound of candy, having three of homemade.

To Fill Cracks—Soak newspaper in a paste made by using one-half pound of flour, one-half pound of alum, and three quarts of water. Mix well and boil. It should be as thick as putty when it is ready to use. Force it into cracks in floors, wainscoting or other cracks in wood, and fill permanently any cracks.

After painting furniture white, rub it with powdered pumice stone, using a cloth dampened in water. The paint should be thoroughly dry and at least two coats. This gives a satin finish.

Paint the bottom cellar stair white and thus avoid accidents.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Every country is just as sound as the people who comprise it. Measured by that, our country is in no danger. On the contrary, there is every sign that, sooner or later, depending on the circumstances, the highest and best elements in our population are silently going to move the whole political situation on to higher ground and constitute politics a public service instead of a professional office-seeking game. The people were never more quietly thoughtful than now. Without bitterness, without impatience, with a splendid instructive confidence in their own ability to infuse vitality into a torpid situation, they are taking cognizance of many public matters, and when they decide to speak, the powers that be will be shaken and the public conscience revived.—Dearborn Independent.

A bridge has been designed to span the Hudson River at New York which will be the most important gateway to the West. Its lower deck will carry 12 railroad tracks, its upper deck roadway, two and a half times as wide as Fifth Avenue, will take care of 16 streams of vehicles. There will still be room on the upper deck for four surface car lines and two sidewalks. Although the bridge will cost $180,000,000 it is believed it will pay for itself by cutting the cost of bringing goods across the Hudson from $2.28 to 50 cents a ton.

SPREADING MISINFORMATION.

It is amazing how much misinformation is spread around by a type of orators and so called thinkers who are trying to create class warfare. They sling around their alleged facts and many people can not say positively whether the things they report are correct or not.

At the present time, for instance, many apostles of unrest are claiming that the failure to recognize the soviet authority in Russia as the government of that country, and to do business with it, is causing industrial depression in this country. Many of them go so far as to say it is the leading cause of the business troubles that occurred last year, the effects of which have not been wholly removed as yet.

Many a man who does not make a specialty of public questions, is surprised when he hears a statement like that. He does not believe it, but can't positively deny it on the spot.

Secretary Hoover exposed this ludicrous fallacy the other day when he stated that when Russia was running full blast previous to the revolution, that country only bought one per cent of the exports of the United States. The trade that this created would have only supplied enough business to employ 30,000 of our people. Manifestly such a trade as this would be only a drop in the bucket.

The industries of Russia have been destroyed by the soviet government and it will be many years before their trade goes back to pre-war figures, even if their government was fully recognized. But the people will keep on making these preposterous statements, and some folks will keep on believing them. Fortunately more people are reading newspapers and magazines than ever before, and those who can size up information of this kind for its real worth are growing more numerous.

LEATHER BECOMES STRONGER WITH INCREASE IN HUMIDITY.

The strength and elasticity of leather are greater when the air is moist than when it is dry, and for this reason, says the Bureau of Chemistry of the United States Department of Agriculture, it is important in making comparative tests of leather to be sure that all pieces tested are under the same humidity conditions. A good piece of leather tested in a dry atmosphere might appear to be weaker than a much poorer piece tested when the air was moist.

Tests made of more than 500 pieces taken from the most uniform part of the hide, alternate strips being subjected to dry air and damp air at a temperature of 70 F., showed that an increase from 35 per cent relative humidity to 55 per cent increased the strength of the leather 13 per cent and the stretch 16 per cent. When the humidity was raised from 55 per cent to 75 per cent the average increase in strength was 42 per cent and in stretch 53 per cent.

It is apparent that control of the humidity in a room where leather is tested is necessary if the results are to be worth anything. The Bureau of Chemistry has devised such a room in which the amount of moisture in the air may be kept uniform and at any percentage of saturation continuously. It is the only testing room in the world where the conditions are controlled so well.

OHIO RIVER HAS ENORMOUS DISCHARGE

In volume of water Ohio River is the main tributary to the Mississippi. Its average discharge, according to the records of the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, is about 300,000 cubic feet per second, which is much more than the discharge of St. Lawrence River at Ogdensburg, N. Y., although the drainage area of the St. Lawrence is nearly twice that of the Ohio. The maximum flow of the Ohio is approximately 1,500,000 cubic feet per second, about 30 times the minimum flow.

A comparison of records of the flow of Ohio River with those of the upper Mississippi and Missouri shows that although its drainage area is but one-third that of the combined Mississippi and Missouri its average and low-water flow is 1.3 times as great as their combined flow, and its maximum flow is 1.5 times as great. This fact is accounted for by the greater rainfall in the Ohio basin and by the general character of the region.

In the Ohio basin there are apparently many opportunities for storage, especially on the southern tributaries. On topographic maps of the Geological Survey that cover part of the drainage area of the Ohio a large number of reservoir sites have been located, some of them of enormous capacity, and it is believed that careful surveys would show many sites suitable for dams that would impound large quantities of water in reservoirs.

The volume of water flowing in the Ohio may perhaps be better appreciated by noting that a discharge of 300,000 cubic feet per second would in one day cover 595,000 acres to a depth of 1 foot.

Maybe Mrs. Stillman didn't write those love letters, but whoever did write them can easily qualify as an expert in the art.

PENDLETON COUNTY.

(Falmouth Outlook)

All the dog owners in Pendleton county have paid their dog license with the exception of seven. Warrants were issued for their arrest, and their cases referred to the October term of the Pendleton grand jury. The law is very severe for not paying the dog license and these men face a fine of $100 and three months in prison.

Fifty years ago the court house yard in Falmouth was used as a hitching rack. That was done away with, owing to the filthy condition around the temple of justice. We have two more of these hitching racks in town that the citizens are kicking are kicking around like hosed dogs. It is almost impossible to do any business with these places and country people coming to town have to be provided with some place to park their horses; but it should be located some place where it will not be a nuisance to the citizens' homes.

The worst political demagoguery that is being indulged in now is that being used by men making the race for Congress over the country in both political parties. To catch the wet vote some of these candidates are announcing that if elected they will vote for a law permitting the manufacture of beer and wine. Any sane man should know that Congress can not over-ride the constitution, and the only way to brick back beer and wine is to repeal the 18th Amendment, which prohibits the manufacture of it. These candidates may catch votes in this manner, but national prohibition has come to stay.

Last week a local business man was bemoaning the fact that he had purchased $1,300 worth of stock in a manufacturing concern in another state, which has turned out to be conducted by crooks, and necessarily is a bad investment. This gentleman bought this stock on the installment plan, and will have to pay the remainder of the payments into the defunct business. The crooks who come around and sell stocks in imaginary enterprises picture a get-rich-quick scheme to the fellow whose brain is dulled by the ambition of grabbing a little "easy jack" to the extent that he is not able to resist the temptation. These stock salesmen are more costly and dangerous than the hold ups. They come as wolves dressed in sheep's clothing, and work within the bounds of our weak laws. Before a man invests in one of these wild-cat schemes he should go to his banker and investigate; but the money-mad investor swallows bait, hook and sinker, and does his investigating after it is too late. We have known men in this county who have traded perfectly good Liberty Bonds to these crooked agents for stock in absolutely worthless concerns.

About thirty years ago when the Farmers' Alliance was very strong in Pendleton county, we were listening to the late Josh McGraw addressing a large audience of farmers in the court house on the theme of the farmers securing better prices for tobacco and other farm products. Mr. McGraw was a good speaker in his home-spun style, and was always ready to answer any questions from hecklers or men who differed from him. Right in the midst of his speech when Mr. McGraw was all "het up" and using words as fast as a machine gun could shoot, explaining how the farmers could obtain a better price for their products, some bird in the audience asked him what he was going to do with the law of "supply and demand." As quick as a flash he said: "We propose to repeal it." This incident took place 30 years ago, but the law of "supply and demand" has never been repealed; but farmers in different sections of the country are doing just what Josh McGraw predicted—organizing and placing a price on their product. The law of "supply and demand" has lost power in the control of the sale of fruit in California, and burley tobacco in Kentucky.

BUFFALO HERDS INCREASING ON FEDERAL GAME RESERVES.

Forty-six new buffalo calves are reported on three of the four game preserves maintained by the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture for the special protection of buffalo. On the National Bison Range, in Montana, there are 417 buffalo, including 28 calves born this spring. Fifteen calves are reported at the Wind Cave preserve, in South Dakota, and 3 at Niobrara, Nebraska.

The department has been very fortunate in maintaining the herds established at these three points and at Sullys Hill, N. Dakota. There are relatively few large herds now scattered over the country, and the Biological Survey has made special efforts to provide suitable ranges and protection for what threatened a few years ago to become an extinct species of native American animal.

Claiming that they want simple country life, the city folks put on their swell clothes, and motor out to costly country club houses and spend their money.

The school strikes occurring in some places suggest that the school boards resign and let the pupils elect their teachers and make their own rules.

ELEGANT BLACK FROCKS

Those simple, elegant black frocks of silk crepe, for afternoon, have an aristocratic quality that endears them to women and they are found in all displays. One of them shown here is a straight-line model, bloused at the waist, where roses made of the crepe are set on a girlishly made of it. The sleeves of georgette are slashed from arm's-eye to cuff and the edges finished with green and white silk braid.

GAS TIP CAME AS ACCIDENT.

While practically all inventions having to do with the rendition of the essential public utility services have romantic histories, none is more interesting than that of the gas tip, so common in homes and factories where there is gas illumination.

Thomas Murdock, a Scotchman, who is generally referred to as "the father of the gas industry" desired to stop the flow of gas which was burning from an open tube during one of his experiments, more than 100 years ago. To accomplish this he clapped a thimble over the flame. The thimble had been pierced and the gas coming through the hole in smaller volume was brought into contact with a greater proportion of air at the point of combustion. This incident is said to have been responsible for the origin of the "gas tip."

Murdock was a queer young man, addicted to wearing wooden hats. He made a lantern by fixing a tube in the neck of a gas-filled bladder. The sight of him wandering around at night with the strange beacon filled the neighborhood with dismay, and some people suspected him of being in league with Lucifer.

Rats in the Montreal court house showed their contempt for the judge by eating his gown and silk hat when they were placed in the judge's chambers at night. Court stenographers had their notes eaten by rats during the night and civil suits involving valuable property were delayed through the disappearance of records. When "Exhibit A" in a murder trial was eaten, and the prisoner was liberated from lack of evidence, the authorities appointed an official rat catcher.

WHEN DEVOTION DOES ITS BEST

and medical skill fails to stay disease and death, you turn for aid to the funeral director to take from you all care and responsibility for fitting and final ministries to the one taken from your home.

It will not be enough for you to think of him as a good neighbor, or even a valued friend, as much as that would mean to you at such a time. But you would know of his fitness for the delicate duties you entrust to him; for his skill in embalming and restoring the facial appearance of life; for his tenderness in caring for the loved one.

It is with just such service as this, that by careful study, instruction and practice, we are prepared to respond promptly to any call made upon us by the bereaved.

EXPENSIVE ECONOMY.

The average hard surfaced smooth road as at present constructed in this country is not adequate to withstand the weight of the heavily loaded trucks that continually pass over them.

The result is that within a few months a new road begins to go to pieces and constant repairs are required to keep it in any kind of condition. This, in the course of time, leads to greater expense than would have been the case had the road been properly constructed in the beginning.

The time is fast approaching when the double track road will become a necessity, with one side extremely heavy in construction for motor truck traffic, and the other of a lighter roadbed for the exclusive use of automobiles.

In the meantime we will continue to dodge holes and bump the bumps and preserve our tempers as best we can.

A moderate improvement is better than none at all, but expensive economy never pays in the long run.

BUFFALOED

Statesmen of the old world are worrying themselves gray over what to do with Russia.

Lenin and Trotsky are firmly seated in the revolt saddle and are engaged in the pleasing pastime of pulling the string while the old world dances to their music. In the meantime the rank and file of the Russian people are dying of starvation.

Russia demands that the rest of the world supply the finances for her reconstruction. This will probably be done, because the premiers and bankers of Europe dare not definitely refuse.

The spread of bolshevism is what they fear, and the spectre is so terrifying as to practically obscure every other consideration.

In plain words, soviet Russia has the old world buffaloed to a frazzle.

WHY DOCTORS, WHY?

Fifty years ago a man was considered old at 60. Today he is only in the prime of life, with many years of usefulness yet ahead of him.

In Poland the "oldest inhabitant" is still farming at the age of 132, and he isn't worrying about the approach of death.

We appear to be a generation of people enjoying longer lives than our forefathers, a fact which the average man is unable to explain.

But perhaps our local physicians can throw some light upon a subject of such vital interest to us all.

Speak up and be heard.

GOOD LUCK, SENATOR!
 Senator Stanley is going to a dress Tammany Hall on "The Present Trend Away From the Principles of the Constitution."

No organization is more in need of having expounded to it "The Principles of the Constitution" than is Tammany Hall.

"What is the Constitution among friends" gave no little fame to one of the most noted of Tammany Braves. "What is the Constitution among friends" has been Tammany's philosophy from the days of Boss Tweed to the days of Boss Murphy.

Mr. Stanley is to be applauded for his courage. Daniel, who went into the lions' den and came out unscathed, "had nothing" on this Augustus, thus leaping into the Tiger's mouth.

Good luck, Senator!—Courier-Journal.

One year ago yesterday was the date of the big fire in Burlington.

NO KICK ON GAS FOR MOTOR—
 BUT FOR GAS STOVE—OH.

"The price of gasoline increases constantly—but no one hears of a man selling his car because of the price of gasoline. It's cheaper to walk, but mighty few men walk who can afford a car, and gasoline will have to go a lot higher before any one can't afford to ride. An automobile costs many times the price of a gas range, and the monthly gas bill is but as a drop in the bucket compared to the upkeep of a car, in addition to the high price of gasoline. Think of the repairs and the tires, and the inner tubes, and the thousand and one things for which you have to spend money on your car, and then think of your dependable little old gas range, on the job three times a day every day in the year, of the comfort and satisfaction it brings, and then think of the fuss you sometimes make about the gas bill. No one place you put your money brings so real results in comfort and labor-saving as does the gas bill, and yet some pay that bill reluctantly, they complain—every month at its size. Consider what gas does for you and your household, and compare its price with any of your expenses and your opinion of your gas bill may improve.

CONSTANCE.
 The coming Thursday the teachers are going to take the Constance school children to the Zoo.

Several from Constance attended the strawberry and ice cream social at Pt. Pleasant, last Friday night.

Miss Bernice Helm, of Saylor Park, was one of the guests at the birthday dinner at the home of Sam Alor.

Decorations day Mr. W. H. Kenyon wife and two children were guests of his parents, W. A. Kenyon and family.

M. Kenyon took the examination for expert accountant in Cincinnati, and passed as a qualified expert accountant.

Eugene, George, Ollie and Herbert Hetzel attended a birthday party at the home of Mr. Fred Gross in Point Pleasant neighborhood, May 27th.

Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Clore, of Ludlow, were the guests of Mrs. Clore's uncle and aunt, Mr. J. W. Riggs and wife, and also called on Mr. Clore's brother Wm. and family.

Mr. and Mrs. John Klaserer had as guests Sunday week in afternoon the guests who attended the birthday dinner at Mr. Sam Aylor's, and all enjoyed a musical feast.

I. RADIO AN OUTGROWTH OF THE WAR

We usually think of the great war as a disaster and as having done an incalculable amount of harm to the world and its people, but it is very doubtful if the war did as much harm as good. Within the few years it lasted it resulted in immense benefits to mankind in the tremendous discoveries, improvements and advancement of medicine, surgery, chemistry, aeronautics, mechanics, engineering, metallurgy and wireless communication and while the toll of life, the destruction of property, the devastation of lands, the loss of art and the bankruptcy of nations are all temporary and will soon be replaced and forgotten, the scientific progress and discoveries, which were a direct result of the war, will endure forever and will continue to benefit mankind.

Of all the arts and sciences which received an unprecedented impetus by the war, none is of greater interest or has a more far-reaching effect to the average person than radio telephony. Before the war wireless telegraphy was well established, universally used and a fairly exact and well-understood science; but wireless telephony was scarcely more than a dream—a visionary, uncertain thing; complicated, little understood and literally in its infancy.

But today, so incredibly rapid have been the strides made in the development of this science, that wireless telephony is an every-day affair; a simple, easily understood thing—far simpler than telegraphy—and in constant use, not only commercially, but by countless thousands of amateurs. In a way, however, the war was merely a practical application of its career and far greater progress has been made in commercializing, simplifying and cheapening it within the past four months—October to February, 1921-22—than within the previous six years. Indeed, so rapid has been its advancement, that it seems to have come upon us almost overnight, and within a few short weeks it has leaped from an obscure, scientific curiosity to an almost universally used means of entertainment and profit.

Today thousands of mere boys are using wireless telephones—many of the instruments made by the boys themselves—and in department stores, electrical supply stores and elsewhere sets for receiving may be purchased for a few dollars. From various stations, music, crop reports, market reports, weather reports, speeches, songs, operas, plays, stories, official time, racing and baseball returns; shipping news and countless other interesting matters are sent broadcast through the air, free to anyone who possesses a wireless telephone receiving set. Thus, the farmer, miles from the nearest town, the sailor at sea, passengers on ships, guests in hotels, crowds about bulletin boards and people in their own homes can listen to the voices of famous men, the music of bands and orchestras, the singing of famous operatic stars, the dialogues of plays and countless other things, from far-distant points and as clearly and plainly as though no space intervened.

Truly, radio telephony is the greatest modern miracle; a dream more fantastic and fairy-like than the Arabian Nights; a more marvelous actuality than the fabulous lamp of Aladdin or the flying carpet, and best of all, it is within the reach of everyone, while the "music in the air" is free to all who care to listen in.

It is certainly a strange, almost incredible, thing to think that the air about us, even within our dwellings, is constantly filled with sounds, voices, music, messages and songs which are as inaudible as they are invisible, but which may be caught and delivered to our ears by means of a few wires and batteries and a few appliances so simple that even a child may use them, and the limit is far from being reached. Within a few years or even months, the range of wireless telephony will be increased by hundreds or even thousands of miles, antennae or aerials will be entirely done away with and the instruments for sending and receiving will be so improved, simplified and reduced that one may carry them in one's pocket, for while radio telephony has already become highly perfected, widely used and absolutely practical, yet it is still hardly out of its infancy and no man may prophesy what its future may be.

LEGION NOTES

Austin, Texas.—All nuts are not to be fostered, but in order that the pecan nut may continue to be one of Texas' foremost products, the American Legion of the state has pledged itself to plant groves of nut trees, see that they are properly transplanted and care for them when they are developed.

Boston, Mass.—While waiting with his outfit to be called up to the front in 1918, a Peabody, Mass., soldier fell out of a hay-loft and suffered injuries to his back. He has just obtained Government compensation, however, following the American Legion's direct appeal to President Harding.

New Orleans, La.—Despite the fact that New Orleans, La., has been chosen as its 1922 convention city, the American Legion has received a $200,000 offer from Kansas City, Mo., which would be host to the ex-soldiers this year as it was in 1921. The offer followed questions by the New Orleans chamber of commerce, inquiring of Kansas City if the service men's gathering was a commercial asset.

Constantinople.—Fifteen ex-soldiers have formed a post of the American Legion exactly on a spot in Harpoot, Asia they say, where Adam and Eve first kept house. The unit is called the Garden of Eden post. American Legionnaires in Turkey now number 216.

Tulsa, Oklahoma.—When Stillwell, Okla., was struck by a black smallpox epidemic, a guard of 185 American Legion men kept the town quarantined by guarding all roads and railroads day and night for three weeks.

Tampa, Fla.—With the Bahamas and Bermuda not too far away, the Tampa, Fla., American Legion has placed its entire membership at the disposal of the Prohibition enforcement officer of that district.

Sitka, Ala.—The first building built by Uncle Sam at Fort Wrangell, Alaska, when that country was first occupied by the United States in 1867, has been remodeled and presented to the Alaska American Legion as a clubhouse.

Indianapolis, Ind.—July 1st has been designated by National Commander Hanford MacNider of the American Legion as "Membership Day." To carry on the Legion's comprehensive program for the relief of service men during the summer, Commander MacNider has urged a united front and an all-inclusive membership. By midnight of July 1, the Legion chief has requested each post shall have increased its membership by at least 25 per cent.

San Francisco, Cal.—The absence of the old pre-Volstead corkage is not noted in Frisco. Jimmie Flexner of the American Legion of San Francisco couldn't find one of them when he wanted to open a bottle. He took a rifle and at a distance of 1,000 feet, shot out the cork in one try. He now challenges the Pacific coast.

Omaha, Neb.—The War Department has just written former Sergeant Jesse Kanady, Falls, Nebraska, that he owes his Uncle two dollars. The W. D. alleges that somebody overpaid Kanady $2 on some payday some time in the Army. In appealing to the American Legion for advice the Sergeant declares his usual good memory fails him as he cannot recall ever having been overpaid while in the Army.

Indianapolis, Ind.—One plank in the platform adopted by the Republican state convention of Indiana declares that "we acknowledge our indebtedness and gratitude to the veterans of all wars," and that "we favor Federal adjusted compensation for world war veterans."

DROWNING ACCIDENTS

Early summer fills the newspapers with many reports of drowning accidents. Many families are thrown into mourning, and a trail of sorrow is marked across the land. Young people can not be kept from the water, and they must learn how to use it safely. But the carelessness, inexperience, foolhardiness of many of them create tragic events.

Drowning accidents occur largely in three classes of cases: 1—Boys who do not know how to swim, who go into the water without supervision; 2—Expert swimmers who go in deep water and are attacked with cramp; 3—Canoe accidents.

Parents should see that their children learn swimming under some competent instructor, or in charge of some good swimmer. The canoe is no place for petting parties, and people who act in it as they would in a flat bottomed boat are not fitted to have the use of one.

True Detective Stories
SHADOW OF EVIL

"I'll be back in a few minutes," said Henry Goudie, cashier of the Bank of Liverpool, to one of his associates. "I'm just going across the street to get a bit of lunch."

An hour later the officials of the bank began to wonder where Goudie was, but the fact that his hat still remained upon its accustomed peg indicated that the cashier wasn't far away, and that he would soon return. But at the closing hour that afternoon Goudie was still missing—and when an auditor went over his books it was discovered that a hundred and seventy-five thousand pounds (some $350,000) had also disappeared!

Inquiry at the house where Goudie had lodged failed to bring to light any trace of the missing cashier, who had left home that morning as usual, apparently without any intention of being away over night. His clothes were in their accustomed position, and even his toilet articles were untouched. In fact, if it hadn't been for the disappearance of the money from the bank, the police would have searched the hospitals, on the theory that Goudie had met with an accident.

But, as Frank Frost, superintendent of Scotland Yard, pointed out, it was hardly likely that a bank official and $350,000 would vanish at one and the same time without some connection between the two events.

"As luck would have it," continued Frost, one of the ablest detectives in England, "Goudie has chosen the simplest manner in which to make his escape—the easiest from his point of view and the most difficult from the standpoint of the police. It is comparatively simple to find a man who says his plans are connected with Scotland Yard searching for the absconding cashier. But it was several weeks before he was located and captured in a lodging house in the north of England."

However, the arrest of the man who looted the Bank of Liverpool did not by any means close the case. Even before he was discovered, Frost had found out that Goudie had been in the habit of playing the race—patronizing a clique of "hand-book men," who had played upon his cupidity in such a manner that they, and not he, had secured the benefits of his dishonesty. In order to recover the money, Frost therefore had to round up the members of this gambling ring and force them to disclose.

It developed that the leader of the organization, sensing a way in which to make a lot of money, without running any risk, had approached Goudie with an account of a "fixed race" which was to be run at Epsom Downs, and that the cashier, believing that he could clean up a fortune in a single day, had taken twenty-five thousand pounds from the bank, falsifying the accounts to conceal the shortage. The cashier's credulity is evident from the fact that he placed the money at odds of 20 to 1, which meant that he stood to win half a million pounds, or $2,500,000 if his horse came in first. Of course, no bookmaker could afford to pay a bet of this size—but Goudie overlooked this fact and cheerfully wagered his "borrowed" capital. The horse naturally failed to win, and, in an effort to recoup his losses, the cashier commenced systematically to loot the bank's funds.

One of the odd features of the case which Frost discovered, by blind luck, Goudie one day placed a big bet on a horse that won. When he went to collect his bet, with the firm intention of squaring accounts with the bank, he was casually informed that the wager had not been placed in time, and he was advised to put it on another "sure tip," which lost. When his defalcations reached a point when it was hopeless to attempt further concealment from the bank authorities, Goudie "went out to lunch."

It didn't take Frost long to discover that in planning a round-up of the gambling ring he was tackling one of the most difficult jobs of his career. One by one Frost picked up the various threads of the tangled case. One by one he followed the various clues, at least one of which led to the suicide of a member of the bookmakers' clique. But, in addition to seeing that Goudie was sent to prison for ten years, Frost secured evidence which forced the return of all but a small amount of money which had been taken from the Bank of Liverpool and placed upon horses, which, save in a single instance, had no chance whatever to win.

COZY HOME FOR SMALL FAMILY

Stucco Bungalow Has Charm and Appeal All Its Own.

MAKES A PLEASING PICTURE

Home Like This Would End the Wars Over Landlords, Rents and Leases—Plenty of Light and Ventilation.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 127 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Upturned in the thoughts of most families today is the question of home—where they are going to live—how much it will cost—and will they be able to pay. Thousands are practically facing eviction upon the expiration of their present leases in May. Their rents have been raised to a point where they can no longer pay and live, so they must move. Consequently they are in a never-ending dilemma. The possibility of their getting a new flat at a reasonable rate is very slim and they are confronted with a situation that demands considerable thought and worry. Many of them are turning to a sure source of relief, buying a home. In a home of their own their worries over rents, landlords, leases, etc., cease. They become independent citizens of a community; not wandering nomads and tent dwellers. And this can be done at less monthly outlay than if they attempted to rent an apartment.

Never was there a time when homes were needed as badly as they are at the present. With thousands marrying each year, the number of new homes being erected to house them is sadly inadequate. It is estimated there are a million homes short in the United States. That is why every family should seriously consider the possibility of getting a home of its own. For the family of moderate means the bungalow affords an excellent shelter. It is small, comparatively inexpensive, and delightfully cozy and comfortable. Moreover it is distinctively individual in design.

Such a home is the charming bungalow shown here with floor plans. Low rambling design, it forms a very pleasing picture with its immaculate white stucco exterior and exclusive front porch recessed under an extension of the roof. It gives an impression of lightness, but really is not as large as it looks at a glance, as the dimensions show. This bungalow home is 28 feet wide and 39 feet long on the longest side which includes the wing containing the rear bedroom.

The windows are unique and ample, insuring plenty of light and ventilation in all parts of the home. Two triple windows provide light for the living room, a large cheerful room on the right front, 18 feet 6 inches by 18 feet. The porch is a few steps above the walk and very attractively surrounded by broad stucco balustrades and protected by an arch of the same material. The front door opens directly into the living room, the largest room in the home, being 17 feet 6 inches by 15 feet. The living and dining rooms are connected by a wide open doorway. Leading from the living room is a narrow hall which gives access to the two bedrooms and equipped with space-saving garment carriers which eliminate much of the waste entailed by old-fashioned clothes closets. Each bedroom has splendid ventilation facilities and window space. The rear bedroom has windows on two sides. Moreover it is being separated from the living rooms as they rise, the people who wish to sleep are not disturbed by the noise from other parts of the house.

Directly to the rear of the dining room is the kitchen, modeled along the very latest ideas of home-building in that it is small, compact but complete in all details. The large awkward kitchen has no place in the modern home. They only mean extra work for the housewife because of their size. A small pantry is built off one corner of the kitchen. A modern bathroom completes the floor plan arrangement.

It is obvious that an attractive home like this will appeal to many families who are planning on building a home of their own, not only because of its picturesque appearance and charming interior arrangement, but because of its reasonableness in cost. It is free from any feeling of crowding, and a wonderful place for children. What most homeowners need is the stimulus to make their ambitions a reality, and certainly a home like this will do much toward bringing this result about.

REAL "PRINCE OF DENMARK"

Hamlet Not Altogether a Creation of the Brain of the Greatest of English Writers.

Hamlet, the hero of Shakespeare's most famous tragedy, is a personage who appears in history, yet is half mythological, but has been transformed by the genius of the English poet into one of the most dominating figures of literature. It is allowed that Shakespeare's Hamlet was suggested by the Hamlet, or Amleth, of Saxo Grammaticus. The latter's "History of Denmark" had been published in Paris in 1514. Francois de Belleforest included the tale of Hamlet in his "Tragic Histories" (1570), an English translation of which appeared in 1608. Shakespeare's drama was written earlier than this last date and must have derived its plot either from De Belleforest's work or a translation executed before the end of the sixteenth century, unless the poet, who it is known, was a great reader of histories, took the incident direct from Saxo Grammaticus.

According to the Danish historian,

Hamlet was prince of Juland; his father, the king of Juland, had been murdered by his own brother, Fengo, who took the throne and queen of the dead man. Hamlet feigned madness to save his own life. He stabbed one of Fengo's courtiers, sent to spy upon him, and for this purpose concealed himself under a truss of straw. He reproached his mother with her shameful second marriage to such effect that she promised to help him in avenging his father by putting Fengo to death—a promise which she kept. These are the very incidents Shakespeare has selected for his play, sometimes emphasizing the points of the narrative, sometimes softening them or changing them in harmony with his own vivid conception of dramatic requirements. Shakespeare's "Hamlet" was first played in 1600 or 1601, and first printed in 1603.

President Eliot Was Oarsman.

The Varsity club at Harvard university is made up of athletes who have won their letter in competition. At a recent luncheon of the club the names of all the graduates present, in the order of their classes, were read, and first upon the list was the name of President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot, '53.

President Eliot was a noted Harvard oarsman in his day, and he told the club youngsters present of how the Harvard color was chosen by a six-oared crew in which he rowed while he was in college. Harvard "crimson" at one time degenerated to magenta, according to color historians at Cambridge, but deep research has developed that the true shade is arterial red.

Letters of Recommendation.

"Billy" Williams, United States commissioner of internal revenue, says a lawyer told him once that "a letter of recommendation does not evidence a man's ability, but merely signifies the amiability of the writer." That is about as solid a truth as one will see in a day's work. Every ready letter writer will agree to that. Many letters tell the truth about the man for whom they are written, but they rarely tell the whole truth. If there are unpleasant facts about the bearer of the letter, the writer has been discreetly and courteously silent in respect to them. It is not his business to argue and analyze. It is his job to give a friend a life.—The Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser.

Wealthy Indians.

A great many Indians are very wealthy and own a great deal of both real and personal property. A large number of them are fully enfranchised citizens of the United States. The commissioner of Indian affairs says that every effort is made to induce the Indian settlers on the reservations to improve themselves and make use of the opportunity America offers them to become citizens.

A WEEK'S NEWS.

Spraying in this county is followed by most farmers in order to get rid of potato bugs, but spraying to control disease and keep the vines vigorous is not commonly done. The rapacity of thoroughly spraying has given increases in other parts of the state, of as much as thirty bushels per acre. Whether or not growers can afford to spray in this county will depend on conditions in your potato field. If your vines die before frost on the late crop or the early ones die prematurely with dry burn, then you can keep them green and growing about two weeks longer by thorough spraying with Bordeaux Mixture.

Rockcastle's county school muddle in which have figured during the last year the invalidation of teachers' examinations and the discovery of a fraudulent teacher's certificate, presented in another county, has resulted in the indictment of the County Superintendent, Mrs. Alice Davis, on charges of misappropriating public funds and of foregoing certificates, and the indictment of J. S. Swineford, vice chairman of the county board, on a charge of illegally issuing warrants to his own son for salary as teacher, according to Mack Morgan, special inspector for the Department of Education.

A total of $18,729.23 in inheritance taxes was collected from 44 estates during the month of May by the State Tax Commission, according to the monthly report made by R. T. Wells, chairman of the commission, to State Auditor John J. Craig, Frankfort. The largest collection was $3,255.88 from the estate of Louise Welch Liberat, of Franklin county; the second largest, $2,909.36 was from the estate of Marie V. Roberts, of Jefferson county, and the third largest, $2,592.87 was from the estate of Joseph U. Whitehouse of Kenton county.

Since the first of the year, up to June 1, 1922, the County Clerk has issued 970 auto licenses. More than were issued during the twelve months of last year. Of this number about 100 were for new cars. At an average of $13 a car would produce the sum of $1,310; but has also been issued 120 truck licenses at an average of $40 per truck, which is $4,800, making a total of $17,210 the people of Boone county have paid for the privilege of owning a pleasure car or truck, outside of tax and upkeep. Joy-riding is very expensive.

The United States spent $600,000,000 for roads in 1921, according to estimates of the Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture. This sum was derived from the following sources: Local road bonds, 33 per cent; county, township, and district taxes, assessments, and appropriations, 14 per cent; State taxes and appropriations, 12 per cent; State road bonds, 7 per cent; motor vehicle license revenues, 10 per cent; Federal aid, 14 per cent and miscellaneous sources, 1 per cent.

The iceless refrigerator was developed by extension workers as a home convenience for use in hot, dry climates where it is difficult to secure ice. A report has been received by the United States Department of Agriculture showing how the principle of the iceless refrigerator has been successfully applied by a Wyoming woman florist to keep cut flowers in good condition.

The case of the Commonwealth vs. Mrs. Ida Gerding, of Constance, charged with assault, was before the county court, last Thursday, and was continued on account of absent witnesses. The warrant for her arrest was sworn to by Mrs. Peeno, of Constance. S. W. Tolin was the attorney for Mrs. Gerding.

J. G. Adkins, who was confined in jail for shooting Frank Norman, was released one day last week, on a $1,500 bond; Ambrose Armerman, who had been confined in the county jail for the past two months was released last week on a $1,000 bond.

Don't forget this big all-day picnic to be given by the members of the Boone County Farm Bureau at their new warehouse in Florence, Wednesday, June 28th.

Much is being said about the necessity of prison reform, and one of the most needed changes is to fill up a lot of the empty cells with bootleggers and bandits.

The class of people who indorse Tanlac is a convincing guarantee of the medicine's merit. Give it a trial. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

John Rogers, of Bellevue neighborhood, shipped to market, last week, fifty-five 200-pound hogs, for which he received good prices.

Dr. K. W. Ryle has purchased a new Ford runabout.

NOTICE TO TOBACCO GROWERS.

The Cincinnati Tobacco Warehouse Company in its June circular letter says:

"On April 10th, this year, we wrote you at some length, endeavoring to point out the advisability of growing a full crop of Burley, planted early, carefully cultivated, properly housed and handled.

At this writing the crop is on the hill, conditions generally favorable. We are still of the opinion that a full crop of good to fine Burley is desirable, and will be appreciated by manufacturers. They certainly will not hesitate to take as much of it as can be taken care of. They have always taken a full stock from a good crop, and on the contrary have bought shy of over-stocking at a time when they were compelled to make selections out of a medium or common crop. Therefore, we advise 1922 the crop now growing, if possible, more than ordinary care and attention in cultivation, curing and handling. In our former letter we told you there was enough common and medium old tobacco on hand to fill all requirements for such for 1922. We now believe the supply of these grades will be sufficient to take care of quite a portion of the requirements for 1922, but not to the extent as to adversely affect market value for 1922 crop.

The Cincinnati Tobacco Warehouse Company is still selling tobacco of the old crops, some of them two and three years old, but later will be offering the redried tobacco of the 1921 crop, which will, no doubt, be superior in both quality and quantity. This Company will maintain an open market the year round for tobacco packed in hogsheads. Our Friend, the Kenton Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse, of Covington, Ky., will continue to sell in the loose leaf way as heretofore.

We have taught but the best and friendliest towards the grower who believed his best interest lay in the cooperative plan of marketing his tobacco. He is an honest man and knows that plan is still central. He has no desire to injure his friends of a life time by circulating or creating harmful propaganda; if informed he knows it is untrue; if not informed he will not be a mere gossip. His desire is to be on the fair side, and will be, even though he changes his position, nevertheless there are just a few loose jawed male factors in every community, incessant talkers, but remittant thinkers. They know the bray of the same is louder and carries as far as the whistle of a steam whistle, or the faithful Watch dog's honest bark, and that is about all. To you, which "Listens" sweeter, which gives forth the greater unselfish joy and cheer, the pleasure of living?

These uninformed, or evil minded, persons are continually circulating a report, the Kenton Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse is closed and will not open. We are telling you the truth. The Kenton Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse will open December 1st, 1922, and stay open until all the winter order Burley tobacco is offered and sold.

Yours Truly,
THE CINCINNATI TOBACCO WAREHOUSE COMPANY.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED

Boone Post American Legion Elect New Officers.

At a regular meeting of Boone Post No. 4, American Legion of Kentucky, held at Burlington, Ky., on Tuesday, June 6, 1922, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

J. Allice Grant... Post Commander
J. P. Brothers... Vice-Commander
Galen S. Kelly... Finance Officer
Harold Conner... Post-Adjutant
Rev. John Garber... Post-Chaplain
James B. Pettit... Sergeant-at-Arms
Frank Sayre... Athletic Officer
Irving Regenbogen... Historian

In addition to the above officers the following were elected to serve as the Executive Committee: Stanley Aylor, Stanley Parsons, Sanford Briarson, Robert Coffman and Omar W. Cleek.

The first Tuesday after the first Monday of each month was agreed upon as the Regular meeting night. And hereafter all members will receive due notice of such meeting and the nature of business to be transacted.

By order of the Post Commander,
HAROLD CONNER, Adj't.

WILL DELIVER THEIR WOOL.

Next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday the farmers of Boone county will be busy delivering their wool. Any farmers throughout the state were caught by speculators and received prices as low as $20 to $25 cents pound for their wool.

SOWING THE BUSINESS SEED.

Merchants of the older type some times used to think that if they had a good location on a popular business street, they would get trade without much effort to solicit it. They would feel they would get a certain portion of those who passed their stand or were attracted by their window display.

This theory assumes that people decide where they want to trade as the result of haphazard influences, and influenced by the fact that one store may be a short distance nearer than another. That is not the way people decide where they are going to trade.

The average person does not visit the store that happens to be nearest him when he feels the need to buy something. He usually knows in advance where he wants to go, as the result of impressions and ideas formed over a considerable period of time. The way to get his trade is to build up in his mind the idea that certain places are the best places to trade, and the nth effect of this trade in, and then the fact that certain other places have good locations and attractive window displays is not likely to shake his purpose.

The quickest and surest way to create a conviction of that kind, is to keep up a campaign of advertising. One notice will not do it, but it takes constant hammering. If a person sees in a newspaper a constant succession of advertising indicating that a certain store is working hard to get the public, if special opportunities are constantly being called to public attention, he is going to get the impression that that store is a live place where he can get good values. He will pass by stores having an equally good location, and equally attractive window display to reach the place that has impressed itself on his mind by its constant effort to interest the people.

WASHINGTON COMMENT.

That the United States is poorly served by its present immigration laws is evident to any who takes the trouble to study the problems of illiteracy, of undesirable aliens, who fail to understand or live by the standards of American life, or who follow the curious methods by which admission to this country is sometimes obtained—fraud, smuggling, or lack of care on the part of authority.

Any legislation law, no matter how justly framed and wisely administered, will probably occasionally permit injustices and cause suffering, but there seems to be no real reason why sufficient discretion cannot be given proper authority to make humane exceptions, to impersonal law, when the law interferes as between man and wife, mother and child, or son and mother.

A case in point is that of the mother of "Charlie" Chaplin. Mrs. Chaplin was admitted to this country as an alien, suffering from mental disease (due to shell shock) and permitted to remain for treatment for a year. When the year was up she became subject to deportation as an undesirable alien, regardless of the fact that her internationally famous son, worth well over a million dollars, was doing all in his power to make her happy and comfortable, was providing her with a home, doctors, nurses, and treatment.

The case is being adjusted. It took "special rulings" and "opinions" of legal lions in the government to do it. It should have needed nothing more than proper evidence before a commissioner of immigration. Those who think that "law is law" regardless of personal cases, might try imagining their own mothers in Mrs. Chaplin's place, perhaps then they will see more clearly the need not only of intensive restriction of immigration, but of humanizing the administration of such laws.

BIG TIME BEING PLANNED

A big time is being planned by the members of the Boone County Farm Bureau for the people of Boone county at the picnic which is to be held in the new warehouse at Florence, Wednesday, June 28th. Many new features are being planned for the surprise and entertainment of all who attend. A cordial invitation is extended to each and every one. Bring well filled baskets with you.

INCENDIARY FIRES.

The United States fire loss last year was something tremendous, amounting to $485,000,000. Insurance men suggest that a large number were set to secure insurance.

These fires are a burden on every family, as insurance is one of the costs of doing business which the consumer must pay, every dollar of it.

The man who sets fire to a building commits one of the worst offenses known to human nature. If he does it from revenge, he reveals a dark and vindictive mind, and if he does it to collect insurance, he endangers life and places a burden on his fellowmen. No punishment the courts will impose on such sneaks are too severe.

MILK PRODUCERS

Hold Convention and Trustees Are Chosen to Elect Officers.

At a meeting of the Tri-State Co-operative Milk Marketing Association held at Turner Hall, Cincinnati, last Thursday, J. B. Cloud, of Hebron, was chosen as one of the fourteen Trustees who are to organize and elect officers. The meeting was attended by farmers and their wives and daughters from Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky.

W. F. Schilling, President of the Twin City Producers' Association of Northfield, Minnesota, in an address at the opening of the convention, appealed to the farmers for greater co-operation for their own good and the good of the milk consumers.

"Wake up," he urged. "If you do not you and your wives won't have enough money to pay for embalming fluid to get you out of the world."

"You dairy farmers are not getting what you are entitled to from the milk dealers, you will not until you can organize your own milk and test it yourselves at your co-operative creamery plant."

"My association went through the same trouble. We were indicted and tried and the milk dealers told us to drink our own milk, but that was not you and your wives won't have enough money to pay for embalming fluid to get you out of the world."

"If you do not co-operate and handle your own product, you dairy farmers of the Ohio Valley and vicinity, you will lose $2,000,000 a year, which now goes into the profits of the large creameries which handle your product."

COUNTRY EXPERIENCE.

A newspaper man who spent his earlier life in a country town but has since lived in large cities, says he feels his years in rural surroundings gave him a more valuable experience of human nature than he ever got in his city life.

In the country, he said, people show up for what they are. You come to know them intimately, you become familiar with all their eccentricities and you understand their motives better. There may sometimes be disagreeable society, but there is much intimate friendship and manifestation of sympathy and appreciation.

The country folks can read what is going on inside of people's minds and they become keen in their analysis of human action. You can't fool the folks who have had that experience much. If fakers and bluffers come along they can see right through them, and are not swayed by superficial appearances.

In city life people live more on the surface of things. Their attention is caught by the shows and excitement and the superficial glitter. They do not see the inside of things. They do not see the inside of things. They do not become intimately acquainted with people, and do not have time in their rushing lives to stop and analyze human conduct and become judges of human nature. As a consequence they are more frequently deceived by false appearances. People who feel the positions of much prominence and are entitled to them, when country people would quickly detect their artificial and hollow quality and attach little weight to them.

The country town is a little sample of the wide world on a small scale. The man who has lived in a country town has seen about all the forms of human mentality. He is learned to size them up for their real worth. His judgment is sounder on political and civic questions, he is not so often fooled by demagogue, nor is he deceived by false appearances in business and social life.

NOW IS THE TIME.

From the way some of our young folks stay out these nights and get up and next day at nine or ten o'clock they must think making a living is unimportant.

The fellow who stays out these short nights is worth but very little on the job next day and gradually gets the inside of things. These are the days to rise with the speed the plow. Now is the time to make hay while the sun shines.

The grass hopper sang all the summer and was allowed to dance in the winter and unless there is a change there will be several dances in this vicinity next winter.

USE YOUR HEAD.

A wood pecker pecks out a great many pecks of sawdust when building a hut. He works like a nigger to make the hole bigger, and he's sore if his cutter won't cut. He won't bother with plans of cheap artisans; but there's one thing can rightly be said, the whole excavation has this explanation: He builds it by using his head.

If the girl of the period did a little less prinking, and a little more thinking, she would come out better.

WHY JOIN THE FARM BUREAU?

A man and his eleven-year-old boy were bumping along towards home. The heavy wheels on the rutty road, the squeaking of the spring beds, and the rattle of the sideboards make talking difficult. It was a fine chance for thinking.

The man generally did a lot of thinking when he brought the empty wagon home from town.

The transactions there always bothered him somehow, brought him down to earth from his optimistic dreaming that a full wagon of well produced corn or hogs always gives a man. On the way home he realized that it takes hard work to raise corn for much hard work for the money it brought.

While the man brooded over the gap between his debts and his assets the boy sucked a licorice stick and thought about all he had seen that day.

Then there came back into his boyish mind the thing he had discovered that afternoon something queer. Why was it?

What was the difference between his father and the storekeeper? He had followed his father into the store when he had sold the five fat barrows and had then trotted after him to the other counter where he bought supplies with the money. The two conversations stood out in his mind like the raised letters on his grandpa's tombstone. Something was wrong somewhere. He had sort of lost respect for his father. He must not be as smart a man as the storekeeper. Why?

"Pa," he yelled to drown the noise of the wagon. "Weren't those your hogs?"

"Why, yes."

"Then why did you say to the man, 'How much will you give me for them?'"

"The butcher names his own price when he buys our stuff."

"Well then why couldn't you walk up to the grocery clerk and say, 'See here, I'll give you one dime for all the licorice sticks you got?'"

"The grocer would have laughed at me."

"Well, why didn't you laugh at the butcher?"

"That wouldn't do me any good. I'd have to take them back home again."

"But he has to have hogs or he can't be a butcher?"

"He would buy my neighbor's hogs."

"Why don't the neighbors just laugh at him, too?"

"We can't all get together."

"Why can't we all get together?"

"I don't know."

We can all get together.

That is why the Farm Bureau is here.

STORES AND HOMES

Raided At Williamstown By Prohibition Officers—Six Arrested, Liquor Seized

Williamstown, Ky., last Friday buzzed with excitement when a flock of Federal prohibition enforcement agents, Newport police and a militia swooped down on the village and raided two stores and two residences, seizing more than 60 gallons of whiskey, one still with a total capacity of 100 gallons, several shotguns and a quantity of ammunition.

Six men were arrested on charges of having possessed liquor in violation of the Volstead act, and were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Oscar Roeten, at Covington, and released on bond. They were ordered to appear for hearings: They are Charles and Wirth Barnes, grocery, 107 Main street, Williamstown; Peter Boll, clerk for the Barnes brothers; W. N. McMillan, 105 Main street, Jeweler, and Glenmore Bennett, 106 Main street. Kirtley Barnes's bond is $1,000 and the others is $500 each.

The raiders included Christopher Scott, James Wood and Elmer Correll, enforcement officers working out of the Covington office; Captain Roy Easley, Felix Fields, W. C. White and John Collins, of the Lexington office; Police Chief C. W. Thomason, Detective David Murphy and Patrolman Charles Debbes, of Newport, and Captain K. C. Grant, member of the Kentucky State National Guard. Williamstown is 35 miles from Covington.

They raided the Barnes store, confiscating, they say, a large still, 37 gallons of moonshine and six gallons of red whiskey. Then they went to Wirth Barnes's home on the Covington pike, where they say they found fifteen gallons of moonshine. Small quantities of liquor were found on McMillan's and Bennett's premises, the officers allege. Only enough liquor was held to show as evidence.

ICE CREAM FESTIVAL.

There will be an ice cream festival given in the grove at the Big Bone Baptist church, Saturday, June 17th, to begin at 4 p. m. You are cordially invited to attend. Proceeds for the benefit of the church.

THE FINAL SUMMONS

Answered By Charles Maurer After an Illness of Four Weeks of Typhoid.

One of the saddest deaths that has occurred in this community, and perhaps in the county, in many a day, was that of last Thursday morning, June 8th, 1922, at 7 o'clock, when Charles Maurer, closed his eyes upon this world and entered into that last, long sleep, after an illness of four weeks, at his home just west of town. At his bedside were his wife and six children.

Typhoid fever was the immediate cause of his death although he had been in poor health for some time prior to the time he took to his bed, two weeks ago.

He was born near Bellevue, April 22, 1871, and was a son of Joseph and Rebecca (Cook) Maurer, both of whom are dead. He was married to Jessie Scott Grant, daughter of John and Lou Scott, January 4th, 1905, and to this union were born six children, all boys, all of whom survive him. "Caddie" Maurer, as he was called by his intimate friends, was a quiet unassuming gentleman, ever looking forward to the welfare and happiness of his family, and ever ready to assist others in time of trouble. He was a friend of man—a friend in need as well as a friend in deed.

He served as Circuit Clerk for nine years—having been appointed in 1913 to fill the unexpired term of Jas. A. Dumas, who resigned, he was elected in 1916 without opposition and served six years, until January 1, 1922. He performed the duties of the office with credit, he served the people efficiently and faithfully.

He was a member of the Christian church at Bellevue, and was also a member of the Masons, Odd-Fellows, K. of P., Eastern Star and Rebecca Lodges.

Mr. Maurer's entire life was spent in this county, and was highly respected by all who knew him. He ends the career of another good citizen. He has gone home to await the coming of others and to meet loved ones who have gone before.

Besides his wife and children he is survived by two brothers, John J., of Bellevue, Ed. of Pittsburg, and one sister, Mrs. James G. Smith, of Bellevue, and a legion of friends throughout the county, who sympathize with the bereaved in their hour of sadness and sorrow.

The funeral services were held at the home Sunday afternoon in the presence of a large concourse of relatives and friends, after which the remains were taken to Bellevue and interred in the cemetery at that place. C. Scott Chambers, undertaker.

The funeral services were conducted at the home by Rev. C. C. Omer of the Christian church, before one of the largest crowds that ever attended a like occasion in this part of the county. The procession that followed the remains from the residence to Bellevue cemetery being over a mile in length. At the cemetery the funeral cortege was met by a larger crowd of friends and relatives of the community in which he was born and reared, where the Masons conducted their services, paying their tribute to a departed member, neighbor and friend.

One of the saddest scenes ever witnessed, was when the casket was being borne from the house to the hearse through the vast throng, followed by the wife and six little boys, brought tears to the eyes of most everyone.

The bearers were composed of members of the orders to which he belonged—Colin Kelly, Kenneth Ryle, John Smith, Ephraim Cline, Sam Williamson and Manley Kyle.

The floral offerings were beautiful and one of the largest ever seen on a like occasion, coming from friends far and near.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The examination for Teachers Certificates for First and Second Grades, as well as State and High School, will be held in Burlington on Friday and Saturday June 16th and 17th. Examination to begin at 9 o'clock Friday morning. Our Summer School is expected to begin in Burlington, June 26th. Watch next week's issue for a more definite announcement.

WOOL CLIP TO BE GRADED

Much of the 1922 wool clip will be graded in accordance with tentative grades for wools initiated by the Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates, United States Department of Agriculture. In practically all sections of the country where investigations have been made and grading demonstrations conducted, it is found that the grades and market value are greatly improved.

Poorly is not a word that people treat it as a word.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON

Inasmuch as Senator McCormick, Chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee has tendered the support of his organization to Col. Smith Brookhart in his Senatorial campaign in Iowa, it would be interesting to know if his support carries with it an endorsement of the policies of Col. Brookhart as revealed in his primary campaign.

Col. Brookhart, for instance, denounced the repeal of the Excess Profits Tax by the Republican Congress and the attempt to materially lower the higher surtaxes.

He demanded the repeal of the Eech-Cummins railroad act, which President Harding declared to be the reatest piece of railroad legislation ever passed. He has given unqualified endorsement of the Agricultural Bloc in Congress. He declared he favored the control of the Federal Reserve Board by producers. He denounced Newberryism which a Republican Senate approved and ratified by seating Newberry. He declares for the government ownership of railroads.

The press of Iowa construes Col. Brookhart's primary victory as a notice that "the rank and file of the party is not in favor of the proposed tariff, the ship subsidy, the juggling of adjusted compensation for ex-service men and the general policy of wiggle and wobble." Does the support of Col. Brookhart by the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee mean that the Committee also is not in favor of these things?

The things for which Col. Brookhart stands, as we understand them, constitute treason to the Republican party as now organized and controlled. Does the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee in supporting Col. Brookhart wish it to be understood that it endorses Col. Brookhart's "treason" and becomes an accomplice after the fact?

The Treasury Department is recommending that owners of the 3 1/2 per cent Victory notes, which will be redeemed on June 15, re-invest part of their redemption money in Treasury Savings Certificates. These certificates run for a period of five years and if held for this length of time they return 25 per cent on the cost price, or 5 per cent annum. If necessary demands, however, they can be redeemed at any time prior to maturity. These certificates are issued in denominations of $1000, $500 and $25, at cost prices of $800, $400 and $25 each, respectively, and any individual or corporation may own up to $5,000, maturity value, of the present issue. Both principal and interest are free from all state and local taxes and the Normal Federal Income tax.

These certificates can be procured through any post office or from the Savings Division, Fourth Federal Reserve District, Columbus, Ohio.

A NAME THAT FITS.

The more the New York Herald talks about the pending Profters' Tariff Bill the more pointed and emphatic are its utterances. This great Republican newspaper, like the man who was driving a balky horse would go if called a certain name, has called the pending tariff bill every name it could think of. At least it has thought of the right name to characterize this particular piece of legislation, saying:

"The New York Herald, reflecting the protective principles and convictions of its owner, is a consistent and steadfast advocate of the American tariff system. But the owner of The New York Herald cannot stand for damn fool protectionism and the New York Herald will not stand for it."

Now we know for sure from a Republican authority just what kind of a tariff bill this Fordney-McCumber thing is.

If good old Dr. Samuel Johnson could have seen Senator James E. Watson (Newberry Republican, Indiana) wrap the American flag around him and have heard the soap-box oratory which was palmed off as an explanation of the Profters' Tariff bill in the Senator's best key-note style, he would have revised his famous saying that "patriotism is the best refuge of a scoundrel" and have made it read "patriotism is the last refuge of the tariff broker."

After Mr. Harding has succeeded in killing the twelve-hour work day in the steel industry he might try to institute about two hours of work per day in Congress.

Railroad rates and wages, it develops, are not exempt from the old law that all that goes up is bound to come down.

The Lord made the world and all of the people therein and we often wonder if He ever feels ashamed of some of the "birds" He produced.

Borrowing trouble is the easiest thing in the world. There are so many who want to get rid of it.

The world is full of good people, but many are unable to tell us from the common herd.

BRED SOWS NEED GAIN IN WEIGHT BEFORE FARROWING

Lexington, Ky.—After being bred and before fall farrowing, mature brood sows should gain from 75 to 90 pounds in weight, swine breeders say. The gains made by sows during the summer should be more than this. These gains not only insure strong pigs and a good flow of milk after farrowing but also offset the loss in weight of the sow during the farrowing and succeeding suckling period.

"During the first ten weeks following breeding, the sows should have enough grass or forage crops such as clover, alfalfa, Sudan grass, rape and oats to make any grain feed unnecessary," E. J. Wilford, a swine specialist of the College of Agriculture pointed out. "This not only will result in economy of feeding but also will be the means of giving the animals sufficient exercise and providing them with more healthful surroundings."

"During the last six weeks of the gestation period, it will be necessary to give the animals a small amount of grain feed. How much is fed will depend largely upon the amount of extra flesh the animals are carrying. The judgment of the feeder will determine how much is to be given at any one time. Regardless of the amount of grain fed, some protein supplement such as tankage, linseed oil, shorts or middlings should be supplied."

"Ordinarily, sows which have lost their place in the breeding herd should be fattened before they are sent to market. Thirty days of intensive feeding will put them in condition to sell at a sufficient advantage to more than pay for the cost of fattening. In that time a mature sow would gain from 60 to 90 pounds. Gains on sows which are to be sent to market should require not more than five and one-half pounds of grain for every pound of gain, which with the usual prices, would insure a good profit for fattening."

DOWN AND OUT.

(By Walt Mason.)

A down-and-outer, sadly pleading for rage and vitals he was needing, came to my door today; I staked him with a new supender, and fed him henfruit fresh and tender, and sent him on his way. Before he started forth to wander I gave him seven cents to squander in any way he chose. I said I thought a storm was brewing, and he agreed with me, while chewing his eggs and goods like those. When I was younger I'd have jawed him, my virtue would have overruled him, and spoiled his humble meal; but now I'm old I know that kindness is often ruined by the blindness of those who preach and spout. I might have said, "Oh, Weary Willie, how idiotic, vain and silly the course you've followed long! You would not have been in such a pickle if you had salted-dime and nickel when you were young and strong." But when a man is starved and broken, the moral lecture loudly spoken, will turn him blood to bile; when he is empty fed and rested, his meal of hard boiled eggs digested, he'll hear you with a smile. And so I fed this Dusty Dave, and filled him up with eggs and gravy, and gave him seven cents; and when he left he burst out singing, where, on arriving, he was bringing the new curses in lament.

CHARLES ADDISON GRAVES

In the early morning of May 31st, 1922, at Sunset, near Rock Valley, Ga., where he had been hoping to regain his health, passed into eternal rest, the spirit of Charles Addison Graves, aged 76 years, of Seffner, Florida, formerly of Boone county, Ky. (only son of the late Joseph Addison Graves and his wife, Anna Cabell nee Harrison, and brother of Mrs. Jos. H. Graves, of Erlanger, Ky.)

BUT AVOID THE BIG BERTHAS.

One of our ex-service men says that the Corporal in his Company was certainly a quick thinker. One day during drill the Corporal was standing on the sidelines of the parade grounds. A pretty girl was eagerly watching the drill when a rifle volley crashed out. With a surprised scream she shrank back into the arms of the young Corporal standing beside her. "Oh, I beg your pardon," she exclaimed, blushing. "I was frightened by the rifles." "Quite all right," said the Corporal. Let's go over and watch the heavy artillery."

JERSEY DAY CELEBRATION

And Funeral of the Scrub Sire.

Promptly at one o'clock, Saturday afternoon June 17th, at the High School grounds, Burlington, Mr. R. D. Canan, representative of American Jersey Cattle Club, New York, City, will address the Jersey breeders and farmers of Boone county. It is seldom that our breeders have an opportunity to hear a man like Mr. Canan talk Jerseys and breed type. Few sections in Kentucky are favored with the services of Mr. Canan, and every breeder should come out and make a personal acquaintance with him.

The buying committee of the Boone County Jersey Cattle Club have brought into the county the best shipment of Jersey heifers of an year yet. They were selected from three of the best herds in the State. Most of them are out of Register of Merit cows, and can be depended on for high production. The Boy and Girl Club members will draw them at this meeting.

Immediately following Mr. Canan's talk the Auctioneer's gavel will begin to fall on as choice an offering of young Jersey bulls as have been brought together in any county.

Any one of them will develop into a herd sire of merit. They will be at the mercy of the buyers. At every stroke of the auctioneer's gavel a young bull sells, regardless of what they bring. It is the hope of the members consigning them that everyone will replace a scrub or grade bull.

Remember the time and place, and come join in the "Jersey Day" celebration. Help swat the scrub sire.

CAN YOU IDENTIFY YOUR AUTOMOBILE?

Could you recognize your own car, if it were stolen following Mr. Canan's talk?

Before answering with a positive "yes," remember this: The professional thief thief covers up all possible traces of identification. He repaints the car, changes the serial numbers on the engine and chassis, searches out all other tell-tale marks to change or abolish them, and in fact rebuilds the entire machine.

What chance is there for the motorist whose car has been stolen, to identify it? Little, say police and insurance men. They back up their claim by citing instances wherein several car owners brought to headquarters to identify their cars, picked out the same automobile as their own.

Slight imperfections in certain cars are not certain means of identification. The experienced crook takes his stolen cars to what is practically a rebuilding factory, alters the entire mechanism and changes parts with similar parts of other cars of the same make. Practically a new car is turned out.

Most practical means of identifying your car, according to those who have studied this problem, is left to the owner's own ingenuity. Individual marks stamped on various parts of the chassis and engine afford the sure way of picking your own car after it has been stolen.

Punch your initials on the flywheel, on the inside of the axle, and other such spots not readily discernible. Then rub them with grease, so they will not be seen easily. Or, at a set measured off from a permanent mark, punch a hole, fill it with lead and the spot will with grease. Location of this mark, if the car has been recovered after theft, would be certain proof of ownership.

PRODUCTS FROM CORN.

Corn is commonly spoken of as the "king of cereals" in the U. S. because it is grown so extensively and depends on by so many farmers as their main money-producing crop. Taking into consideration its value for feeding animals and men and as a basic material for the preparation of commercial products, including foods, chemicals and substances widely used in the industries and arts, all must admit that it richly deserves the name.

Numerous toothsome, nutritious foods may be prepared with corn meal. In addition there are corn starch and corn syrup, both of which are valuable food substances. Besides all these the chemist has extracted more than a score of useful, valuable products; and in time may learn how to obtain many more. Among the most important of these products are the following:

An oil from the germ, widely used for culinary purposes; paraffin, used as a substitute for rubber in such things as bath sponges, pencil erasers and shoe soles; a soap-making material; oil meal and oil cake for feeding cattle, hogs, etc.; a sugar used by canners, bakers and vinegar-makers; dextrose, a kind of sugar that is of considerable value as a food in certain diseased conditions; phytin, a phosphorus compound that promises to be of great value as a medicine, and alcohol. The cobs which are used for making "Missouri meerschaums" by the millions also yield cellulose and furfural, both valuable commercial products. The stalks are used not only for forage for farm animals but for the manufacture of alcohol, syrup, oil, cellulose and paper.

BABY BEEF WORK ATTRACTS MANY FARM BOYS AND GIRLS

Hundreds of Kentucky farm boys and a few girls who are members of Junior agricultural clubs this year are devoting much of their spare time to fattening calves for numerous baby beef club contests to be held in various parts of the State in the fall, reports from various sources indicate. Considerable care in feeding and management will be necessary if these calves are developed into well finished baby beefs before the fall fairs and shows. E. S. Good, head of the animal husbandry department of the College of Agriculture, has pointed out.

"Grass alone or grass and clover are among the best feeds to be used in growing and fattening a baby beef as they help to make cheap gains, they grow the animal out of good shape and keep it healthy. Although grass alone will not fatten a young baby beef, grass supplemented with grain is a fattening as well as a growing feed."

"Early in the season, corn alone with grass will give good results but as the grass matures during the summer and its protein content becomes smaller, it is best to feed some oats or barley and oil meal with the corn. The calf should receive one and one-fourth pounds of grain meal a day for every 100 pounds of live weight."

"During June, the calf can be started on one-fourth of a pound of oil meal a day in his ration, this amount being gradually increased until by July the calf is receiving one and one-half pounds of the meal with all the grain he will clean up."

"A good grain mixture is made up of four parts of ground corn, three parts of ground oats or barley, two parts of bran and one and one-fourth parts of oil meal by weight. This makes an excellent feed for finishing or it can be used from the beginning."

Beginning Monday evening, June 19th, a week's Bible Institute will be held in the Christian church at Petersburg, Ky. Lectures on the Bible will be delivered each afternoon and evening by Prof. E. E. Snoddy, of Transylvania College, Lexington, Ky. You are invited. No admission charge. Every teacher and Bible student in Boone county should take advantage of this opportunity. Come and stay the week with us.

NICOTINE SULPHATE IS LESS EXPENSIVE

Dusting Found Effective in Controlling Pests.

Insects Hard to Reach With Ordinary Sprays Caught by Floating Dust Settling on Under Side of the Leaves.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

To the sorrow of some of the insect pests which feed on the under side of plant leaves and so escape the effect of poison sprays, the bureau of entomology, United States Department of Agriculture, has been conducting experiments with nicotine sulphate applied in dust form. Mixed with kaolin to give the poison bulk, 40 per cent strength nicotine sulphate did remarkable work in controlling meadow cabbage and pecan aphids, cotton thrips and western cucumber beetles. All these Hand Dust-Guns Are Effective on Small Areas.

Insect pests are hard to reach with ordinary sprays, but the floating dust settles upon the under side of the leaves as well as on the surface. The experiments show that much larger areas can be treated in less time than is required by spraying. Moreover, the equipment necessary to apply the dust is much less expensive than a spray outfit and its cost of application is less than by the older method. It weighs less, than spray and is more conveniently handled. It can be mixed with arsenate of lead or sulphur for use against insects and fungous diseases.

FRUIT FOR AVERAGE FAMILY

Everbearing Strawberries Which Find Place in Every Garden Where There is Space.

Plenty of vegetables for the table should be the first consideration of every home gardener, but fruit trees and some bush fruit should be planted, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. It does not take a very large space for growing enough fruit and berries of the different kinds to supply the average family.

Everbearing strawberries, which were a novelty a few years ago, are now being planted by thousands of gardeners, and they should find a place in every garden of the temperate region where space will permit. Strawberries, however, can be grown under a very wide range of climatic and soil conditions. The same is true of the blackberry and the dewberry. Raspberries are more limited as to distribution, and will not withstand the heat of summer in the South or the extreme cold of the North. Their planting is confined almost entirely to the temperate regions, the Central and Eastern states and the Pacific Northwest. Certain varieties of the red raspberry that are practically everbearing, or that at least produce both a summer and fall crop of fruit, are now being developed. Raspberries, blackberries, and dewberries do well when planted along a fence.

SETTING OUT NUT TREES

Nut trees, such as walnut, hickory and oak, develop a deep taproot and few lateral feeding roots during their first year. They cannot ordinarily be transplanted to the field so successfully as other trees, so that planting the nuts or acorns on the permanent site usually is considered preferable.

GROWING MUSCADINE GRAPES

Best Results Obtained by Training to Trellis, Using Three Wires Instead of Two.

The muscadine grape will produce the best results when trained to a trellis, using three wires instead of two as in training the "bunch" varieties. Posts should be at least eight to nine feet in length, and set two to three feet in the ground. The wire should be two feet apart on the posts, which should be sixteen feet apart. The vines should be set at least twenty-five feet apart in the row.

Excellent Row Station.

A relation which is excellent for sowing with peas is corn, grain and alfalfa. The hay can either be set in a rack or ground at a small cost and mixed with grain feed.

LARGE PASTURE ACREAGE

Lexington, Ky.—Kentucky has a pasture acreage equal to that of all other crops combined that is producing not more than one-half of what it should in the way of feed for livestock, according to R. E. Stephenson, soils specialist of the College of Agriculture. The best bluegrass pasture will carry about one steer, an acre during favorable seasons but in many pasture fields found in the State, several acres are required to maintain a single animal. Much of this land, which is too poor to furnish profitable pasture, can be brought to a profitable state of productivity by proper fertilization, he said.

In general, basic slag stands in high favor as a grass fertilizer. However, the use of acid phosphate and light application of finely ground limestone should prove equally satisfactory. The growing of clover improves the grazing quality of pastures and at the same time improves the soil and yield of grass. However, on poor, sour soils, few clovers will succeed without the use of limestone. If all manure is returned to pastures, it is rather inexpensive to maintain the phosphorus supply of the soil. Each 100 pounds of meat and each 10,000 pounds of milk produced on a pasture remove about as much phosphorus as is supplied by 100 pounds of 16-per cent acid phosphate. The cost of maintaining the phosphorus supply should not exceed 20 cents an acre a year, a 200 pound application being sufficient to replace what the animals remove for several years, provided the manure is returned.

Nearly all old pasture fields are poor in nitrogen and organic matter. The only practical way to supply the nitrogen is by growing a legume. White clover, Japan clover, and red clover all are found to some extent in pastures and by the use of lime and other fertilizers may be made to grow abundantly. As a rule, soils are well stocked with potash, about 90 per cent of it being returned in the manure. There seldom is any need for other applications of potash when the manure is cared for properly.

REDUCTION OF INTEREST RATES.

The Federal Land Bank of Louisville has advised us that effective June 1st, all loans will be made at 5 1/2 per cent interest.

This applies to all applications heretofore made to this Association as well as to the future borrowers.

We expect to have some more application blanks shortly from the Federal Land Bank and any one desiring a loan will please communicate with us and have their name placed on the waiting list so as to be in line for a loan at the proper time.

Loans are made for as long as 33 years and are repaid by the borrower on the amortization plan by semi-annual payments of $32.50 per each $1000 borrowed. This semi-annual payment of $32.50 per thousand dollar loan completely liquidates the principal and all interest in 33 years.

After five years the unpaid balance due on any loan may be paid at the option of the borrower and it may be paid before five years by a small compromise agreement.

ABOLISH THE TIP.

A certain class of Americans are nutty on the subject of tipping. They are not only nutty, but they are a nuisance to the rest of mankind.

The tip is an established institution in many of the old countries, but they use their brains there as well as we. An American would tip a quarter of a half dollar, the foreigner in his own country would hand over one or two cents. And they get just as much for their copper as the splurges do for his silver.

There ought to be a federal law forbidding tipping of every nature and fixing a jail sentence for both the giver and the receiver.

When a man goes into a hotel and registers he expects to pay the proprietor the established price of his board and lodging. He should not be required to pay also the waiter, and the chambermaid, and the elevator man, and the bellhop in order to secure the attention and service to which every guest is entitled.

Tipping is degrading, to both the giver and the receiver.

It should be abolished by law, since so many do not possess either the brains or the nerve to abolish it, by custom.

PARTY FEALTY.

Why are you a Republican? Or why a Democrat? It would be interesting to learn of the reason for the party affiliation of the individual, and to learn how much of party history he may know. That most men inherit their party allegiance is patent, and that bigotry has more to do with party prejudice than judgment cannot be denied.

Party names are no indication of continuous party sentiment. The Bourbon Democrat can trace his party ancestry further into the past than can his political rival. Yet if he goes back far enough he will find himself claimed by the detested rival name. For, when, after the political rivalry of Jefferson and the elder Adams, party conventions succeeded congressional caucuses, the followers of Jefferson called themselves Republicans, while the Hamiltonians were Federalists.

Madison, "Father of the Constitution," was a Republican of the stripe of Jefferson, yet he was the projector of the protective principle in the tariff on imports, while the modern Democrat is in theory a Free Trader, except that he has not the courage to say so, and suggests the tariff is justified only as a revenue producer.

The name Democrat was applied to the Republicans in derision by the aristocratic Federalists. Since 1856 the principal political organizations have been known by their present names, but in character both have changed. Could Lincoln visit us today he would have difficulty in recognizing as his own the party that has wandered so far from his teachings. And who would think of making the policies of a Cleveland tally with those of Jefferson?

Jefferson the Democrat, was the first public advocate of the abolition of Negro slavery. Lincoln gained immortality by achieving it. Madison, the Democrat, fathered the protective tariff principle, and while it is inconceivable that he would have supported it as it is in present practice, the idea has been a vital tenet in the theory of government of the latter day Republicanism.

The student of political history must be aware of these facts, and the student of political history is becoming cynical regarding the reasons for party affiliations on the part of the masses. There are explanations of the situation other than mere inherited fealty, but they are hardly complimentary to the ideal of American citizenship.—The Dearborn Independent.

THE FAMILY.

The following items taken from the Ohio County (Ind.), News, issue of June 9th, are of interest to Boone county people:

Russell Riley of Vevay, is spending the week with J. E. Botts and family.

Miss Iva Adams of Indianapolis, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Adams this week.

Mrs. Cad Williamson of Boone county, Ky., was the guest of Mrs. Robert Alkins last week.

J. E. Botts and family attended the Odd-Fellows Memorial service at Bellevue, Ky., last Sunday.

Miss Martha Kelly of Bellevue and sister, Miss Hester, of Burlington, Ky., are visiting their grandmother, Mrs. Martha Waldo.

Mrs. L. C. Cowen, Ben E. Harris and wife, Mrs. Samuel Wilson and William McConnell visited Dr. L. C. Cowen at Bethesda hospital and also Mrs. Mayms Stephens at Christ hospital.

Mrs. Hubert Rouse and children spent a few days the past week with her brother, Stanley Barker and wife, at Hartwell, Ohio.

Mrs. Martha Roberts returned to her home, last Saturday, after a visit of several days with her brother and sisters in Burlington.

Miss Sallie Rogers returned, Monday evening, from a visit of several days with friends at Mayville, Ohio, days with friends at Waynesville, Ohio.

JUST MARRIED FOLKS

June the favorite month for weddings, sees many sheepish looking couples on their journeying. Before they elude their home town pursuers, they manifest no concern about their ribbon tied motors and trunks, but once they escape their pursuers, these symbols of hymen are quickly cast aside and they try to look as if they were old timers.

Yet they can't seem to look natural. An observant woman will spot them every nine times out of ten. She notices their absorption in each other, their constant turning of their heads as they feast on each other's faces, the newness of the bridal finery, and other signs.

Some couples are tired of each other's society before they reach home again. But if the union was made with serious effort to base it on worthy character and congeniality of temperament, the wedding journey should be all it is cracked up to be. The honeymooners should not worry if a little of their joy overflows into public gaze.

TASTE IN GARDENING.

A lecturer on gardening the other day said that people have too many red, orange and magenta colored flowers. He felt that these shades are not restful, that they suggest too much the ideas of activity and aggressiveness. He favored white, blue, and pink as the principal colors, claiming that they are more refreshing. The home, he argued, should be the place where tired people come to rest, and their strength and calmness for life, and their flowers should fit into this mood.

Yet people who love brilliancy will dispute this claim, and say that the tones that this speaker decried give cheerfulness and sunny quality to a place.

There is one wonderful thing about flowers, that they seem to harmonize and fit into all moods. Colors that would clash terribly if made with artificial dyes, will often go together well in a flowerbed. The fields dotted with wild flowers contain a wide variety of colors, yet under the wonderful alchemy of sunshine all seem to flow together in a pleasing unity.

FUNDS AVAILABLE TO BUILD 46,000 MILES OF GOOD ROADS

The $350,000,000 appropriated by Congress as Federal aid in conjunction with State funds will result in the construction of about 46,000 miles of road, says the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. This mileage would parallel the railroad from New York to San Francisco nearly 15 times, or, if divided equally among the States would give nearly 1,000 miles to each State.

The status of road building on April 30, was as follows: In projects entirely complete, a total of 16,375 miles; under construction, 19,950 miles in projects, averaging 62 per cent complete. A considerable part of the latter mileage is actually complete and in service. In addition funds have been allotted to 7,611 miles, much of which will come under construction during the present season. Besides this there is still available for new projects $60,148,000, which on the same basis as previous Federal aid construction will result in the construction of 8,200 miles of highway. In March the fund available for new projects was taken up at the rate of $12,000,000 a month and at the rate of $5,700,000 in April.

Hail Destroys Millions of Dollars of Tobacco*May Get Yours Any Day

The loss of tobacco by hail in this and other tobacco states within the last five years has run up into millions of dollars with only a small part covered by insurance. Yet the amount of insurance received by growers who had the foresight thus to protect themselves against such loss, was enormous and should make every grower not only feel the necessity of insuring his tobacco crop against hail storms but to do that very thing and do it at once.

What Dr. Halley Says: Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association, upon congratulating an insurance company on lowering its rates on tobacco hail insurance, said: "Within the period that I have had hail insurance I have had four severe losses. The money I received exceeded considerably what I paid in, to say nothing of my peace of mind that I was fully protected in case of a storm. I have always advocated carrying hail insurance on tobacco without which every grower takes a chance to lose all. With it he can, in safety, go into the business of producing a crop which requires, as does tobacco, so much labor, time and money."

Now that the Burley Growers have gone into an organization to handle their business in a modern economic business-like way, I see no reason why all growers can not take out insurance on the reduced rates the companies are now quoting. Look up the insurance agent in your section now, and let him protect you against the loss of your tobacco. Policies effective July 10th, noon.

AS THE EDITOR SEES IT.

An artist, model, reputed to possess the most beautiful figure on the American continent, attempted suicide recently because she had been reduced to poverty and the future held nothing inviting for her.

The greatest men and women of the nation have marveled over the perfection of her figure. Foreign critics have stood entranced before her likeness as revealed by artists and sculptors. Other women have envied her that with which nature has so richly endowed her and deified them.

Yet in the midst of prosperity she is overtaken by adversity. And adversity does not attract friends or honorable employment.

Out of sight, out of mind.
Out of mind, out of pocket.
Out of pocket, oblivion.

Be lenient with the young man who has to walk gingerly in order to avoid tripping over his own hair.

The base ball season is in full swing, and it is generally conceded that an enthusiast can extract greater enjoyment from a whoop or a cheer by first thrusting his fingers upward through his flowing locks.

Then again, the hair covers the brains in the head, and some brains are so delicate they require a considerable amount of protection to prevent rapid decay.

Be generous to the feeble-minded. It is not their fault.

Some of these days we Americans—or our descendants—are going to see the greatest curiosity of all time, a politician who makes good on his campaign promises.

Just now there is no such animal. There never was one. It is not in the nature of things that there should be one—under present conditions.

Promises just ooze off from an electioneering tongue like thin moccasins gurgling out of an open bung-hole. And, like moccasins, they keep right on oozing out until the hole is plugged up by election or defeat.

And yet we can't navigate the turbulent sea of life without our politicians, especially those of the professional breed.

Thank it soothing to the disturbed mind, and there is no one who can hand it out as scientifically and as smoothly as a politician. We have to be hoodwinked and cajoled and bamboozled about so often or we would think the country was on oiled skids and headed for the everlasting bonanza.

And right there is where our dear old politicians get in their glorious work. After listening to their glowing promises for five minutes we see millions and other enticing wonders ahead, and this enthralls us and spurs us on to the performance of real constructive work of our own.

And we see the politician as a necessity and a national asset.

Nobody expects a politician to keep his promises. It can't be done. They are made to fit the various sections of his district in which he hands them out, and no two sections want the same thing and in the same manner.

It is the political duty of every voter to forget election promises as soon as the returns are counted. To insist upon their fulfillment would create discord throughout the state and nation.

Any poor boob can be a politician. It doesn't require any brains—just an unlimited amount of buns and the ability to smear it on and make it stick.

Yes, we or our descendants will some day see a politician who makes good on his campaign promises.

But perhaps he won't be a real bona fide politician—just a mere man instead.

We live in hopes.

Perk up and stay perked. The month of May witnessed a gratifying improvement in the American industrial world. Manufacturers are putting many of their idle men to work again, and plants that have been running on short time have increased their hours of activity. Altogether, the situation is fairly satisfactory to those who are not seeking to get rich one day and cut a dash the next.

In criticizing others we are apt to lose the good opinion of those to whom we are speaking.

BOB-WHITE AN ENEMY OF CORN ROTWORM.

The bob-white eats the adults or beetles of the corn rootworm which lay the eggs that later become larvae or worms and infest the corn. As many as 12 of the beetles, according to the Bureau of Entomology of the United States Department of Agriculture, have been found in the stomach of one bob-white. The red-headed woodpecker, nighthawk, cardinal, kingbird, and phoebe also eat the beetles to reduce the damage done by the Southern corn rootworm.

The 1922 production of crimson clover seed is expected to be larger than last year's small crop, although it will not approach the heavy production of 1918 and 1919, according to reports received by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

We are afraid the matter will drag entirely out of the newspapers before we find out whether Tarna is the name of a new soft or a new general.

IDLE MEN AND IDLE LAND

In this country there are millions of acres of excellent land that has never felt the bite of a plow. This land is capable of feeding many millions of people, although it is feeding none.

In every city in the country there are large numbers of people who would be glad to work the farm, if such could be effected. Generally they are men of families who have been brought up on the farm, but left in their younger days to "make their fortunes in the city," and are now marooned there as effectually as if stranded on a desert island.

It costs money to change from a crowded city to virgin land and convert the soil into a productive farm. And money they have not—at least not sufficient for the transformation. If the government could devise some means of placing such families on unused land and aid them to the point where they could become self-sustaining and pay off their indebtedness it would work a wonderful change in this country.

Of course it would reduce the price of farm products because of the great increase in production. This, however, would automatically reduce the expenses, and that would bring down the cost of labor and production would become less expensive, and wholesale and retail prices would be lowered in proportion.

In other words, there would be a general reduction in the price of everything throughout the country.

We lose a tremendous amount of foreign trade for the simple reason that our cost of production is so great that we find it difficult to compete in world markets with other countries whose people are not living at so rapid and expensive a pace. This reduction in foreign trade together with the rapid and constant influx of immigrants from abroad, produces stagnation in our labor markets and creates our armies of the unemployed.

There should be a general reduction of all prices of every nature, beginning with the man at the top, who can best afford it, and ending with the one at the bottom, who can least afford it.

It is useless to ask one element of our population to rake in their reduction in revenue while other elements continue to rake in their exorbitant profits. That is both unfair and foolhardy, because it leads to unrest and trouble. There can never be any great reduction in table costs as long as a great portion of the land remains untillied and those who are at present working the farms are compelled to pay excessive prices for everything they use.

A careful and honestly administered system of land reclamation aid to those who desire to return to the farms and become definite producers would go a long way toward solving the most difficult problem now facing the American people.

WE HAVE THEM.

Every community is infested with the moral coward, the writer of anonymous letters, the spreader of scandal and the various contemptible misfit of society and whose tongue is more poisonous than is the fangs of the viper. The writer of the anonymous letter is some poor contemptible trouble breeder whose advice if given in person would be an insult to the intelligence of the one receiving it. It is a mere soothing sop to the conscience in an effort to cast suspicion where innocence and virtue reigns. The scandal spreader is the whispering gum shoe sand bag, who would without qualm destroy the high standard of society maintained by the majority, with the wayward minority and the infectious tongue as the destructive agency. Every newspaper's waste basket is the receptacle of literature intended as the dagger of social death to some one, such communications are always unsigned, the writer laying in the ambush of moral cowardice. If the slack in the tongue of the idle few could be converted from scandal chronicling consolation and advice, this would be a far different world, full of faith and confidence in our fellowman instead of suspicion of his motives and a lost faith in humanity.—Ex.

DOWN WITH THE SPEEDER

With summer upon us again and automobile traffic on the increase, the spotlight of pitiless publicity should be turned with full force upon the speed maniac—the most dangerous of all irresponsible animals. Fortunately, they are not so numerous as they were. Heavy fines and jail sentences have checked a portion of this ruthless error.

But even one is too many to be left at large.

Not since the early days of Indian butcheries has there been such a menace to public safety.

Time and superior force have eliminated the Indian as a menace. The speeder's turn comes next, and action should be swift and with no greater mercy than he shows to his helpless victims.

There were 359,839 fewer meat animals slaughtered in the United States under Federal inspection during April this year than last, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. To this shortage sheep and lambs contributed 301,611, hogs 57,533, cattle 577, and calves 218.

GRANT COUNTY.

(Grant County News.)

The present term of Circuit Court will go down in history as one of the shortest regular terms ever held in Grant County. The petit jury were dismissed Tuesday at noon with only two days' service. The grand jury held over for another day. Judge Gaines stated that in his opinion it would not be right to hold farmers on the jury to try a lot of common law cases where only small amounts are involved when their crops need them. Many of the farmers summoned to serve on the jury stated that they had not finished setting tobacco and some still had corn to plant and ground to plow. It is pretty certain that Judge Gaines' decision will meet with the approbation of those who were caught on the jury.

SUDAN PLANTED NOW WILL MAKE SUMMER HOG FORAGE.

Lexington, Ky.—Sudan grass for hog pasture can be seeded as late as the middle of June in Kentucky, according to E. J. Wilford, avine specialist of the College of Agriculture. The crop is meeting with special favor among swine breeders and feeders because of its ability to continue growing during the hot, dry, Kentucky summers when rape and other pasture crops are dried up, he said. From 20 to 30 pounds of seed usually are drilled in each acre, the larger amount being preferable since it results in a thicker sod.

The grass is an exceptional rapid-growing pasture crop. A plot of it on the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station farm last summer averaged 15 inches high, when measured from the ground to the tip of the leaves, 16 days after planting. It is ready for pasture when about ten inches high. The crop also is palatable and well liked by the hogs and usually is no rank growing that a large number of hogs can be pastured on it and a crop of haycut afterwards.

UNORGANIZED COUNTRY LIFE.

Investigators who surveyed conditions in a certain little Illinois county a few years ago for the board of health of that state, reported that at their own resources for diversion. There was no organized play for the children. Outdoor sports were not popular. Efforts to interest children in baseball, croquet, and gardening did not elicit much interest from parents.

A country district where so little is being done to promote helpful recreation can't expect to keep its young people. The general complaint was, "There is nothing for us to do." Unless these folks have awakened up since that time, they are probably groaning because the young crowd has gone off to the cities.

A farmer near town shipped to market, one day last week, a coup of 34 flying chickens that brought him $22.50.

GOOD THINGS.

Cakes and cookies at this season are always an addition to any menu. The few that follow, are all good:

Orange Chocolate Cake.—Cut up one-fourth of a pound of bitter chocolate; when softened, add one-half cupful of sugar and one and one-half cupful of milk; beat to the boiling point, stirring constantly; boil five minutes. Cool and add two teaspoonsful of vanilla. In the meantime cream one-half cupful of shortening with one cupful of sugar, then add two eggs beaten well. Add three tablespoonsful of hot water, then add two cupfuls of flour sifted with three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of soda, alternately, with the chocolate mixture, stirring thoroughly. Bake in two layers in moderate oven for 30 minutes, decreasing the heat as necessary. Put together with orange jelly, or a cooked orange cream filling.

Pomona Pudding.—Mix four tablespoonsful of flour with one-half cupful of sugar and one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, until thoroughly blended. Stir this mixture into one-half cupful of warm sweet cider and keep stirring until thick and smooth. Add the juice and pulp of three oranges. Pour into a dish, make a meringue of the whites of three eggs, beaten with six tablespoonsful of powdered sugar; beat this into two cupfuls of soft-cooked rice and arrange in a border around the orange mixture in the dish. Bake or steam until the meringue is set, and decorate with glazed orange sections or any candied fruit.

Fruit Drops.—Mix in the order given: Two eggs beaten until thick; two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, two squares of chocolate melted, one-half cupful of hickory-nut meats—or walnuts chopped, one-half cupful of raisins, one-half cupful of candied cherries, and pineapple cut fine, one cupful of pastry flour sifted with one-half teaspoonful of baking powder. Drop from a teaspoon and bake in a moderate oven.

FOODS FOR THE CHILDREN.

For desserts grapes used in place of nuts or even in salads makes a desirable substitute that will not hurt children.

Our best authorities upon dietaries for children tell us that cereals should never be engaged, but use dates, figs, prunes and such dried fruits, cooked with the cereal. They furnish the sugar need and are more wholesome. The seeds of the figs, the woody fiber of the dates and prunes add bulk to food and help to keep the bowels active. A child who is well nourished with good fruit, dried or fresh, will not so often crave candy.

Cornstarch pudding made with egg and milk with a little sugar is sweetened, served with cream and sugar, with cubes of jelly for a garnish, with half of a peach or pear served on top of the pudding.

Cocoa made entirely of milk will often be taken when milk will be refused. Bread pudding made with egg, milk, a few dates, figs or raisins and serve with cream.

Plain sponge cake unfrosted. Milk toast with a white sauce made of cream or milk, thickened or not. The more one can add to milk in food and butter, the more the food value is increased.

Graham crackers buttered and put together as sandwiches. Graham crackers dotted with marshmallows and baked until they puff makes a safe confection or one that takes the place of candy.

Deserts suitable for growing children never include pastry of any kind, or rich cakes or puddings. Fruits, fresh and cooked, with cake, custards, tapioca with fruit, gelatin dishes, ice cream, water ices and other simple combinations are permissible.

Sometimes the most wholesome of foods disagree; each child should be studied as a special problem and watched from day to day. Anything which retards growth leaves a weak link which may not appear until later life.

LEGION NOTES

Washington.—D. John Markey, chairman of the military affairs committee of the American Legion, has announced that the Legion will use its best efforts to have enacted into law, a bill recently introduced in the lower house of Congress, to provide the retired pay of Warrent Officers to all retired enlisted men of the army, who served as commissioned officers during the world war. The bill would provide this pay no matter when the enlisted men became eligible for retirement.

Since the war, many enlisted men of the regular service who had been temporarily commissioned, have been refused to their former enlisted status, and retired on two thirds pay and allowances. The present bill extending the provisions of the National Defense Act, is designed to recognize the services these old army enlisted men rendered during the war, as commissioned officers. The bill is at present in the Military Affairs Committee of the House, which is expected to hold a hearing upon it in the near future.

Pat had been hurt. It wasn't much more than a scratch, but his employer, with visions of being obliged to keep him for the rest of his life, sent him to a hospital for examination. The house surgeon looked him over and then pronounced:

"As subcutaneous abrasion is not observable, I do not think there is any reason to apprehend tegumental cicatrization of the wound."

"Ah, said Pat, in relief, "ye took the very words out of me mouth."—American Legion, Weekly.

A jury at Louisville, one day last week, convicted and sentenced an auto driver to two years in the penitentiary for the killing of a Mrs. Bittner. The jury is entitled to and should receive the gratitude of the public, in their effort to check these law-breaking desperadoes. It is no injustice to call this class of law-breakers desperadoes; for the person who drives a motor car recklessly through the streets, whether he is drunk or sober, is as truly a desperado as the highwayman who is ready to take his life stands between him and his booty.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Thousands of inquiries concerning the national essay contest being conducted by the American Legion on the subject: "How the American Legion Can Best Serve the Nation" are open to all school boys and girls between 12 and 18 years of age, are pouring, into Legion national headquarters. The number and tenor of the inquiries ed denote that the contest will be a decided success despite the fact that it is being held during the vacation period. Additional information concerning the contest may be obtained by addressing American Legion national headquarters, Indianapolis, Indiana.

New York City.—A tale of the sea that had seemed almost incredible was brought to port by passengers on the Shipping Board steamship, Amstar, when that vessel arrived in New York from the tropics. As the liner was crossing the equator during the night, the passengers felt the ship suddenly recoil as though struck. The speed was decidedly diminished but the ship seemed to ride easily. At daylight, officers started an investigation and found the mutilated carcass of a 35 foot shark clinging to the sharp prow.

Washington, D. C. — Senators Walsh of Massachusetts and Jones of New Mexico have announced that they will offer an amendment to the American Legion's Adjusted Compensation bill to provide that the heirs of soldiers who have died since the armistice shall be included among the beneficiaries of the measure.

Omaha, Neb.—The first out door bed of American roses has been planted in Hanscom Park, Omaha, Neb. The American Legion rose, similar to the American Beauty but more hardy, blooms freely during the summer months.

New Orleans, La.—In order that the homes of many victims in the flood area of Louisiana may be saved from the sheriff's sale, the American Legion has petitioned Governor Parker to recommend that the time for the payment of taxes by those who were compelled to vacate their homes be extended.

Emulating the example of the American Legion member who gave a pint of his blood to save the life of a "buddy," fifty enlisted men of the regular army, stationed near Washington have formed a "blood giving squad," volunteering to give a quart of blood to each of their comrades who undergo major operations, at the Walter Reed Hospital and who would be benefited by the transfusion.

San Francisco.—California American Legion men have won their fight to use a $10,000,000 state bond issue for those world war veterans who desire to work farms or settle on land.

Ashville, N. C.—Secret service men are investigating the reports that North Carolina sick and disabled world war veterans are being unduly influenced by a group of women to make members of the group the beneficiaries under the war risk insurance act. The American Legion has given authorities evidence in three cases which were brought to light at Oteen and Kenilworth public health hospitals.

Topeka, Kansas.—Middle Western communities on the route of the Southwest trail are being equipped with camping sites by the American Legion for the use of the thousands of motor tourists who each night escape hotel bills by pitching tents along the trail.

Providence, R. I.—In order that the proposed memorial to Providence R. I., world war dead may be satisfactory to all, the municipal authorities have authorized the American Legion to send out a questionnaire to all voters. The questionnaire contains 10 different proposals.

The American Legion of Washington is endeavoring to locate Louis, or Antoine Layman, whose father has died in Hoquiam, Washington, leaving his son an estate. Layman, world war veteran, was last heard of in Milwaukee, Wis.

The Fox Hill hospital on Staten Island, N. Y., closed following charges of the American Legion that it was unfit to house sick and wounded service men, has been sold at auction for $61,000. In 1918 the hospital cost the Government about $3,000,000.

EVERYBODY AT WORK.

It is a strange result of the war that the defeated nation, Germany, in some respects seems much better off than the victors. There are said to be scarcely any idle men in Germany at the present time. Meanwhile victorious England is torn with industrial disturbances and nearly 2,000,000 men are out of work. Also victorious U. S. at one time had about 2,000,000 unemployed, though the number is not probably much over a third of that now.

What has made the difference? One reason has been that Germany has had very few labor troubles. It has been possible to reach harmonious adjustments, while America and England have been torn by industrial conflicts.

When a great body of men quit work, their power to consume commodities is destroyed, and their stoppage throws a lot of others out of employment. The relatively higher prices that have been maintained for factory products, while food-stuffs fell at one time nearly to pre-war figures, also destroyed the ability of the farming element to buy manufactured goods.

The fact that Mr. Pinchot spent $122,000 to get the nomination for governor of Pennsylvania doesn't make us question his honesty but it does reflect on his business sagacity.

Prices of dairy and poultry products suffered the least in the rapid deflation of prices of farm products which began in 1920 and continued through 1921, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

COULD YOU USE IT?

Do you ever feel like you could use or invest one hundred dollars? If so save two dollars each week, and more if you can, and you will soon own a tidy sum which invested will help you lay up money.

Try it, this is only a business proposition and one it will pay to begin to follow early in life. Habits formed early in life are more easily adhered to as you get older and the above is one that will add to the pleasure of old age.

Keep moving, or the world will run off and leave you.

THE FUNERAL DIRECTOR'S SERVICE

in addition to the preparation for burial of the deceased—with scientific embalming when desired—may well include kindly thoughts for the living.

These may find expression in many ways of helpfulness, by counsel or suggestion, or by little ministries of good will and sympathy, which cost little but mean much to surviving friends.

A newspaper writer remarks that on account of the tall buildings the sunlight seldom shines into Wall Street. Maybe that accounts for some of the shady deals pulled off there.

PLAIDS AND FRINGES

Fashion still puts striped materials in the lead for sport skirts, but they have some competition in plaid and checked patterns in all skirt materials. Checks with fringed edges, are reminiscent of shawls and they make many of the smart new models in which the fringe is substituted for a hem at the bottom of the skirt and also finishes the patch pockets. A skirt of this kind appears in the picture above, cut on simple lines and having a separate belt of the material. These fringed materials are particularly smart in the new wrapped skirts with the fringed edge arranged to run from belt to hem.

Sport skirts and street skirts are a little longer than they were, the regulation length being from six to eight inches from the floor. Flannels in plain colors, in stripes and plaids, is a rival for prunella and other cloths.

CONSTANCE.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Riggs have as guests Mr. Horace Cleveland and bride, of Pleasureville, Ky.

Mrs. Henrietta Craven and children are the guests of her parents, Captain and Mrs. Kottmyer.

PENDLETON COUNTY.

(Falmouth Outlook)

The man who goes through the world with a cheerful countenance and a laugh, spreading good-will, is more of a benefactor than the man with a sorrowful countenance and his eyes full of tears. One is like sparkling wine; the other stale vinegar.

There is an epidemic of petty thievery going on in Falmouth. An effort should be made to stop it at once. In the last week no less than a dozen homes have been visited and things stolen. The authorities should get busy, as the citizens are being put to a lot of trouble by having to put everything about the premises under lock and key.

A successful county school superintendent should not only be a college graduate, well versed in Cicero, Homer and know all about the Trojan War and what became of Mrs. O'Leary's cow, but he should know which end of the mule to put the harness on first, how to slop the hogs, feed the chickens, cultivate corn, tomatoes, cut and cure alfalfa and sweet clover, how to rob the bees of their honey without them finding it out, milk the cows and feed the calves on skim milk.

The last grand jury referred all the cases against the men who had not paid their license on Old Ring to the County Judge, and the judge comes back and says his court is no "dog-on" court, and he has no jurisdiction and it is the grand jury's duty to indict Old Ring's owners and back to the grand jury they go. The prosecuting attorneys are now hunting for the teeth in the law to have them plugged for the next grand jury.

Fifteen counties in Kentucky are fighting the State Tax Commission for raising their assessments for the purpose of meeting the bills incurred by the Legislature. This is a lesson brought straight home to the taxpayers. There is a way to muzzle these money-spenders who go to the Legislature. In the future the taxpayers should take more interest in the selection of their representatives, and send men to Frankfort who will forget personal interests and the interests of big grafters and think about their constituents once in a while.

GUNPOWDER

Robert Tanner is beautifying his home by having his house and barn painted.

L. H. Busby has the contract for building a cellar for a party near Erlanger.

P. J. Allen and wife, of Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, broke bread with this writer, last Sunday.

Mrs. H. F. Uts visited at Richwood last Monday, and was the guest of Mrs. E. E. Dixon and Mr. Dixon.

There was a large congregation present at the Children's Day exercises at Hopeful last Sunday, and the little ones deserve great credit for the manner in which they acquitted themselves. The offering was very liberal and will be forwarded to the Orphans Home at Springfield, Ohio, for the benefit of that institution.

Miss Ollie Hagin, of Jackson, Ky., spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Penn and family.

HIGHER PRICES IN CATTLE

Every indication points to higher prices in beef cattle in the next 12 months.

One great drawback to the cattle trade of this section is the class of cattle raised here. Farmers need to grow more of the Shorthorn type which are almost as good for milk and much better for beef purposes.

The cattle markets all show a marked improvement although it has been gradual.

Those who keep over the right kind of calves this winter will see a good market next year.

An unbroken flint arrowhead was found imbedded three-quarters of an inch in the dorsal vertebra of an Indian skeleton, found near Dublin, Ohio, recently. This is proof that Indian arrows were fatal and caused more than flesh wounds. Another example found in this region showed that an arrowhead had penetrated an Indian's brain one-half inch.

FIVE YEARS TO BUILD A COMMUNITY.

Five years ago the state of California drained some swamp waste in the Sacramento river valley and divided it into 100 farms, and sold them to a group of progressive men who wanted to do farming themselves. They agreed to go in for one breed of dairy cattle and keep only that breed and to use only purebred bulls. They have kept that agreement.

Today that country town is known far and wide for well bred stock and the milk there produced brings premium in the cities. Some of these farmers were city bred, and they represent several nationalities but by working for community progress they have built up a prosperous community in a few years. Any town could do the same thing by showing the same spirit.

All women look alike to men who can't see.

and all left rejoicing and wishing Francine Lee many more happy birthdays.

AT SIXTY-FIVE.

(Chicago Journal of Commerce.)

At 65 years of age only one person out of a hundred is rich, four are well-to-do, and five are self-supporting in this country. At 65, a man has had full forty years of mastering a trade or being educated for a profession, in which to provide a surplus for old age; but only four in a hundred do it, and for every five able to earn a living at 65, we have ninety-five dependent on somebody else for food and clothing. So we are told by a university president.

He attributes this lack of thrift to careless thinking and lack of definite purpose, which is a conclusion arrived at by thinking. One man can think all day in a rambling, lazy, easy-going way, and all his thoughts will not be worth a penny to him or to anybody else. Another man can do an hour's close thinking and arrive at conclusions worth money to him, his employer, his business and his community.

What's in the head of a man is what counts for his well or woe. All the foolishness, frivolity, vanity and vagrantly thought devoted to pleasure never put a man a foot higher in his climb to comfort and prosperity.

Dedication of 85 elm trees to the memory of John Burroughs, the naturalist, recently took place at Big Inlet, in the Catskills. Each tree represents a year in the life of Mr.
Burroughs.

LAMBS MAKE UP 80 PER CENT OF MARKET SHEEP

Lexington, Ky.—More than three-fourths, or about 80 per cent, of all the sheep pastured on the market are lambs, market receipts show. Demands of the consuming public for small, juicy cuts which cannot be obtained from older sheep and the fact that sheep return larger profits when marketed as lambs are pointed out by L. J. Horlacher, in charge of sheep work at the College of Agriculture, as the two main reasons for this condition.

"The most profitable lamb is the one which reaches marketable weight at an early age and requires a minimum amount of feed. The most popular weight for lambs is about 60 pounds although early in the present season there's growing around forty-five pounds topped the market. As general rule, no lamb weighing less than 60 pounds will bring a top price.

"Quality and breeding are continuing to command a premium on our markets. Experimental work at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station has shown that lambs sired by purebred rams not only weigh 10 pounds more a head when five months old than those sired by scrub rams but also that they sell for an average of 50 cents more a 109 pounds because of their type and quality. After the middle of May markets begin to discriminate against bucky lambs, the loss on these having been as much as $4 a hundred pounds in some instances already this year. The meat from buck lambs is coarser and less palatable than that from ewe and ewe lambs.

"Under average conditions, lambs intended for the market should be sold at weaning time. Records at the station farm show that during the hot, summer months they "make little or no gain, after they have been weaned. The fact that prices always are less during the fall months than they are in the spring is an additional factor in favor of selling the lambs immediately after weaning.

"Large numbers of ewes are ruined for breeding purposes each year by caking of their udders at weaning time. Placing them on dry feed or sparse pasture to check the milk flow and milking the udders out two or three times to prevent congestion will help prevent this. Ewes usually are dried up from four to six weeks before the beginning of the next breeding season."

PROPER SHADE FOR SHEEP RETURNS LARGE DIVIDENDS.

Plenty of the right kind of shade for sheep returns big dividends, farmers and stock raisers say. Only one or two shade trees in a pasture are worse than none at all since a place to which the sheep come day after day soon becomes a hotbed for parasites, they add. The construction of small shades which can be moved from place to place is solving the difficulty for many Kentucky farmers.

A cheap permanent shade constructed by setting posts in the ground to support a roof of boards is giving good results on the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station farm. The only objection found with the structure was the fact that the roof let water through in rainy weather and the rotting place of the sheep became muddy. This fault can be remedied at a somewhat increased cost by covering the boards with roofing paper. The usefulness of such a shed is increased by placing it on runners or wheels so that it can be moved from place to place.

LIMBERNECK BECOMING MORE SERIOUS AS CHICK TROUBLE

Lexington, Ky.—Frequent inquiries being received by the poultry department of the College of Agriculture indicate that limberneck already causing the death of many growing chicks and hens in different sections of the State. The trouble, which increases as the weather becomes warmer, is quite common each year among farm flocks, poultrymen of the college say.

Limberneck, which is a symptom rather than a disease, is a paralysis of the muscles in the neck of the birds which results from eating decayed flesh. It is a form of poisoning that also may be caused by eating arsenate of lead and other poisons found on the farm. No cure is known for the trouble, the chief control of it being prevention. Specimens should be taken to see that all dead chickens and animals are buried deeply or burned to prevent the spread of the trouble, the poultrymen say.

Esq. Jno. C. Bedinger, Atty. Jno.
L. Vest, A. M. Edwards, County Attorney B. H. Riley and County Judge N. E. Riddell were in Frankfort last Monday attending a meeting of the State Road Commission.
They were urging the commission to proceed as rapidly as possible and let contracts for the reconstruction of the Dixie Highway. The State and Federal Government will eliminate all railroad crossings, and this has been the final survey. The commission was of opinion that the crossing questions would be settled and that contracts could be made in from 30 to 60 days, and the work on the road would be underway by that time unless other unforeseen conditions should arise.

It is difficult for a filthy heart to produce a clean mind.

THE HOME RADIO

How to Make and Use It By A. HYATT VERRILL

II. PRINCIPLES OF WIRELESS TRANSMISSION

Before attempting to explain the functions and the principles of the radio telephones, or describing how to make, use and operate them, it is necessary to understand something of the underlying principles and fundamental laws of wireless transmission.

It is not, however, necessary to enter into a long discussion on the theories and principles of electricity or physics which enter into the subject, but merely to illustrate and make clear a few important and salient laws of nature and results which make the transmission of sounds possible without the use of wires between the sending and receiving instruments.

The first and most important principle of all radio transmission is the fact that all our atmosphere is constantly disturbed by vibrations or oscillations or, as we may call them for the sake of simplicity, waves. We are accustomed to think of the atmosphere about us as a more or less uniform mass which we call air, but in reality the air or atmosphere, space, and in fact all solids as well as liquids are pervaded by an invisible, odorless, and almost weightless but exceedingly elastic substance known as ether or luminiferous ether.
It is by means of this ether that all heat, light, electricity, etc., are transmitted, in the form of waves or vibrations. Light and heat waves have been known to science for a long time, but it is only within comparatively recent years that man has grasped the fact that electric or electro-magnetic waves also travel through the ether and it is through the discovery, and by means of them, that wireless telegraphy and telephony became possible. In a way, the electro-magnetic waves are very similar to the waves or ripples formed by dropping a stone in a calm pool of water, for, just as the water waves travel in gradually widening circles from the splash, so the electric waves, started by the spark of a wireless transmitting or sending instrument, spread in ever-widening circles through the ether. Moreover, just as the waves in the pool are shorter and closer near the spot where the stone is thrown and gradually become longer and less noticeable and farther apart as they move from the splash, so wireless waves are clearer and sharper near the instrument and decrease in clearness and size as they get farther and farther away and, to draw still another comparison, just as the shore of the pool or any object in the water interrupts or breaks the waves, so a wireless receiving instrument will interrupt or receive the electrical waves of the ether. Indeed, just as the waves or vibrations of the ether are the waves of the electro-magnetic waves and the energy that starts them is electrical energy, so the waves in the ether are started by muscular or mechanical energy. You can readily understand how it would be possible to communicate by means of such liquid waves, for, if a person at a distance should toss stones into the water at stated intervals, a person watching the shore, and noticing the intervals of the waves, could understand signals which had been prearranged. This, of course, would be a very crude and uncertain method of communication; but if you could devise some instrument to count and measure the waves, and could devise means for creating waves of definite sizes and numbers, a practical means of communication could be established. It is just this which occurs in the transmission and reception of electro-magnetic or wireless waves, for, by breaking or interrupting the waves sent out by the spark they are transformed into long and short sections which correspond to dots and dashes as used in wireless telegraphy.

These waves set in motion by the sending apparatus, possess the property of starting oscillations in any conductor which they strike, and if they strike the instrument to count and measure the waves, and could devise means for creating waves of definite sizes and numbers, a practical means of communication could be established. It is just this which occurs in the transmission and

A DIGEST OF THE REGISTRATION LAW.

Dates of Registration—July 10th and 11th, 1922.

Time of Registration—From 8 a. m. to 9 p. m., on each of these days. Where Registration is to be held—At each regular voting precinct in the State of Kentucky.

Persons entitled to Register—All legal voters both men and women, and all persons who will become 21 years of age on or before the following November.

Registration Office—Two judges and a sheriff and a clerk in each precinct. The two judges to be of opposite political parties; a like difference between the clerk and the sheriff.

Notice to be Given—County Board of Election Commissioners to give notice of appointment, of registration officers to the sheriff of county. Duty of Sheriff—The sheriff shall, within ten days next after said appointment, give each officer of registration written notice of his appointment. It is the duty of the county Sheriff to furnish a suitable place in each precinct for the registration.

Clerk of Registration—Notices—Ten days before registration, the Clerk of Registration shall post notices in at least six conspicuous places in the precinct, stating the time and place of the Registration.

Return of Registration Books to County Clerk—It is the duty of the officers of registration to return the registration books to the County Clerk not later than three days after holding the registration.

Duties of County Clerk—The County Clerk shall make exact copies of all the Registration books, and preserve both the originals and copies in his office. He shall also keep a book showing the names of voters who have changed their voting precincts, and to what place.

The Original Registration books can only be taken from the Clerk's office for use in any primary, special or general election, or for use in registrations or by officers appointed to purge same, or upon order of Court in any trial growing out of the registration.

Purging Registration Books—At the request of either of the dominant parties, the County Board of Election Commissioners shall, not later than October 1st, appoint officers for any precinct to purge the books of that precinct and who shall meet on Tuesday after the 1st Monday in October. If the two purging officers disagree, appeal may be taken in the Circuit Court.

The Registration Officers to be appointed by the regular Board of Election Commissioners of each county in the same manner as regular election officers are appointed and not later than the 20th day of June, 1922 and annually thereafter.

Registration is for the purpose of purifying elections in Kentucky. The greatest privilege enjoyed by citizens is the right to vote. You can not vote unless you register on July 10th and 11th.

PRESIDENT HARDING EXPRESSES SYMPATHY WITH CAMPAIGN NOW INSTITUTED.

Washington.—The Interstate Commerce Commission compiles statistics of accidents involving loss of life or injury in which railroads are involved. According to these figures last year 1,072 persons were killed and 4,818 persons injured in accidents at grade crossings. Most of these were automobile accidents.

As a result, a campaign having as its slogan "Cross Crossings Cautiously," is being instituted by the American Railroad Association, which will endeavor to impress upon all who use the road which passes over a railroad track, both in this country and in Canada, of the need of stopping, looking and listening and of letting the train go by first.

Of this campaign President Harding has said: "The complete scope of such an effort would mean the saving of thousands of lives, the prevention of many more thousands of injuries and incidentally the prevention of a great property loss."

"Of course, the ideal solution is elimination of grade crossings, to which all possible energy and means should be unceasingly directed. But the extent of our country and its railroad mileage make apparent that not for many years of utmost effort could this be effected."

"There should be constant pressure for elimination of the danger spots, particularly in the more populous areas, pending which there is need for just the kind of preventative effort that your association is planning."

"Among these measures the most effective would seem to be to arouse in the minds of drivers a sense of their personal responsibilities. When thoughtlessness is allowed to usurp the place of vigilance, as too often happens, the scene is set for tragedy. Reminders and still more reminders of the need for caution at railway crossings are needed."

True Detective Stories

ALLAN PINKERTON'S RECORD CASE

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

THERE was no response to the impatient knocking on the heavy doors of the Adams Express company's building near the end of the Columbus (O.) Union station, one night in the middle of winter. There stood the train, with the usual bustle and clamor preparatory to departure, but the express clerk and his assistant had not made their appearance.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

This time John Grossman, the express messenger, knocked harder than ever, for it was beginning to dawn upon him that something must be wrong. A moment later he tried the knob of the door. To his amazement it turned easily and he stepped forward into utter darkness, stumbling over boxes and packages until he reached the gas jet in the center of the room. Papers and parcels lay in wild confusion all over the floor, the door of the safe stood open and the clerk and his assistant were lying in one corner, in a sort of stupor.

It was evident that the two men had been chloroformed—the sickening odor of the drug still pervaded the room—and that the company had been robbed, in spite of the fact that hundreds of people had been just outside the building all during the evening. These circumstances, coupled with the fact that $40,000 was missing from the safe, were all that Allan Pinkerton had to work upon when he reached Columbus the following morning.

The details of the robbery were obtained directly from John Barker, the express clerk.

According to Barker, he and his assistant were stretched out on two cots, as usual about ten o'clock in the evening, taking a nap before going on duty on the train which was due to leave Columbus shortly after midnight.

"I was awakened by what appeared to be a muffled pounding or pushing at the door," Barker continued.

"Was the door locked?" inquired Pinkerton.

"It was—and bolted. I didn't pay any attention to the matter because, while we did have $72,000 in the safe—$32,000 of it in revenue stamps—we had often guarded a good deal more, and I thought the noise had been made by some one who had stumbled against the door in the darkness. Then, before I got really awake, I heard a bolt snap, and the next thing I knew some one had pilosed my arms, and I caught a whiff of something which I recognized as chloroform. I struggled, but it was no use. When I came to, Grossman, the messenger, was bending over me, and the whole place looked like a cyclone had struck it. The $40,000 in cash was gone, but they had overlooked or deliberately left the $32,000 in stamps."

Pinkerton made no comment at the time, but continued his examination of the room where the robbery had taken place. A careful scrutiny of the door revealed two scratching facts: The bolt had been bent, as if it had been in place when the door was forced, but it was bent far more than was necessary to secure an entrance to the room, and there were no scratches or other signs of violence on the outside of the door.

All the evidence appeared to point to the fact that the job had been handled from the inside, and Pinkerton immediately ordered the arrest of Barker and his assistant. The two men protested their innocence.

Upon looking into Barker's antecedents, Pinkerton found that the express clerk had a brother living in Chicago, a man who was reputed to be quite wealthy and whom Barker stated would willingly go on his ball if permitted to do so. But the Chicago branch of the Pinkerton agency reported that the other Barker was not only not wealthy, but was prominent in the life of the underworld.

"Where was this man on the night of the Columbus robbery?" Allan Pinkerton inquired by wire.

"Unable to obtain definite information," came back the reply; "but he was not in Chicago."

"Track him closely, and arrest him the instant he attempts to leave the city," were the telegraphic directions which followed.

Early the following morning, less than 36 hours after the crime in Columbus, Henry Barker was arrested on route to Canada, and $14,000 was found in the lining of his valise. Later having been given a taste of the famous Pinkerton "saline cure," he revealed the hiding place of the other $28,000 and the details of the whole affair, which he had claimed his brother had planned. The scheme was simplicity itself. John Barker had administered chloroform to his sleeping assistant. Then he opened the outside door, admitted his brother, and opened the safe. After stowing papers all over the floor, Henry Barker placed a cloth saturated with chloroform over his brother's nostrils, stuffed the cash in his pocket and left, first bending back the bolt on the door. Unfortunately, however, he had been a little too thorough in attending to this last detail, and had left a clue which enabled Pinkerton to start the two men toward the penitentiary within 48 hours after the discovery of the robbery.

NOVEL AND SATISFACTORY PLAN BETWEEN LANDLORD AND TENANT

Fixed Wages Plus a Share in Profits Give Zest to Farm Work.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

"I took the same interest in my work as a tenant as I take in my own farm. I began work without a dollar and with very little knowledge of farming, but while I was on the farm I learned a good deal. I had ample opportunity to study the principles controlling crop growth, soil improvement, stock management, etc. The inspiration I received was valuable indeed, and during my period of service I earned enough money to buy the small farm on which I now live."

This extract from a statement made by a former farm tenant employee, now a farm owner, reviews a relationship between owner and tenant that a great many persons on both sides of the farm-landlord situation may well envy. There is possibly no subject connected with the business of farming which leads to as many misunderstandings, dissatisfactions and mutual losses as the management of a farm by a nonowner. Somebody has said that nothing short of application of the golden rule would ever bring about satisfactory arrangements between the owner and occupant of a farm, and yet, in this case, there was nothing extraordinary in the arrangement.

Tested by Fifteen Years' Trial.

The man who made the statement quoted above was for a number of years the manager of one of two ordinary-sized hog farms owned by a man in Illinois, and the plan under which he was engaged as farm manager has been followed by the owner with almost unflinching success for more than fifteen years. Briefly, the plan was nothing more or less than a straight annual salary which included tenant house and the usual garden and poultry perquisites, and as a bonus, a share of the net profits.

The profit-sharing plan has served to stimulate the efforts of the employee and has greatly lessened the supervision necessary on the part of the owner. By the use of the telephone and occasional visits he is able to keep in touch with the farm problems and to co-operate effectively with the manager. Since the owner was farming himself it was important that the manager of his other two farms take as little of his time as possible. Thus far the managers have been selected from the men employed on the home farm, which serves as a training school.

How Net Income is Determined.

The managers are given a regular monthly wage and a bonus consisting of one-third of the net farm income. In determining the net income 5 per cent interest on the valuation of the property is first taken out, as due return for capital, after which all expenses are deducted, such as for thrashing, the manager's wage, extra labor, machinery repairs, depreciation, and the cost of fertilizers and seeds.

Each of the two managed farms has a house for the manager, who also can use the work horses to drive for personal use, has a garden, and a cow or two for supplying the family with milk and butter. Fifty chickens are furnished, and the family is permitted to raise as many as possible to supply the needs of the farm table, but on December 1 all the chickens above the original number must be sold, and the landlord gets one-half the receipts. The purpose of this limit on chickens is to enable the manager to have his own poultry supply without taking undue advantage of his opportunity.

In order to calculate the amount of money which the manager is to receive on this plan it is necessary to do a certain amount of bookkeeping. This is left to the owner, who keeps a set of farm accounts, and on March 1 a complete inventory is taken and a yearly summary of the farm business is completed. In cases of disease, poor crops, or a partial failure which is unavoidable, thus cutting down the income of the manager, the owner makes some allowance and gives the manager, in addition to the wages he has received, what he thinks is due him for the work he has done, and the responsibility he has assumed.

In the period before war inflation the managers made from $41 to $48 per month the year round, in addition to having their rent, garden, milk, butter and eggs. The manager of the smaller farm, comprising 90 acres, received $38 a month straight wages for four years up to 1918, and his bonus averaged $180 a year. The manager of the other farm, comprising 100 acres, formerly received $30 per month and was increased to $35.

Manager Well Paid.

When the fact is taken into consideration that the managers employed under this system are provided with houses in which to live and are given the privilege of raising their home supplies of vegetables, milk, poultry and eggs, it will be seen that their necessary expenses are inconsiderable, and it must be conceded that they are well paid for their services, in view of the fact that they have no investment risk.

The length of time which the men remain on the farms shows that this method of employment must have been satisfactory both to employee and landlord in these cases. It should be pointed out, however, that the tenant should have absolute confidence in his landlord before he would be justified in working under this system.

TOMATOES ARE BEST IF RIGHTLY PRUNED

Fruit is Larger, Cleaner and Superior in Flavor.

Grown in Home Garden Staking and Pruning Requiring Little Trouble and Will Fully Repay Trouble, Say Specialists.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

A thrifty tomato plant left to itself will spread over a space from 4 to 6 feet in diameter and will produce a peck or more of tomatoes. If staked and pruned it will yield about the same quantity of fruit, the tomatoes will be larger, cleaner, better flavored, and superior in every respect, and enough space can be conserved to accommodate five other plants cared for in a similar manner, say garden specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. The staked and pruned plants are easily sprayed, and will continue to produce fruit later in the fall than plants which are allowed to spread naturally. As a rule, also, the pruned tomatoes will mature earlier. On the scale on which tomatoes are grown in the home garden, staking and pruning require little trouble, and will fully repay the effort.

When the plants begin making a vigorous growth, shoots will appear in the little pockets where each leaf joins the stem. Later the blossoms appear on the opposite side of the stem. In pruning the plant, remove all these side shoots and those around the base of the plant, being careful not to disturb the blossom clusters. The shoots, sometimes called suckers, should be pinched off shortly after they appear. The main stem can be carried to the full height of the stake, then allowed to hang over. By this time six or seven blossom clusters, on which the fruit is developing, should be set on the stem.

WOODLOT LIKE BANK.

A woodlot should be treated as the principal in a savings bank. The annual growth of wood corresponds to compound interest. When you cut out more than the equivalent of the growth, you are drawing upon your principal.

SILO OF GREAT IMPORTANCE.

Never Discarded When Properly Built and Filled With Corn at the Right Stage.

No silo which was properly built and filled with corn at the right stage of maturity has ever been discarded. Neither is there any farmer who has had a silo on his farm and used its succulent, nutritious feed that is willing to do without one.

CHEAP SEEDS ARE EXPENSIVE.

Success of Garden May Be Jeopardized by Unwisely Trying to Save on This Item.

Cheap garden seeds are likely to prove expensive at any price. The cost of good seeds is relatively small and the success of the garden may be jeopardized by unwisely trying to save a few cents on this item.

FORMER BOONE CO. BOY

Makes Address Before Atlanta, Ga., Board of Education.

Hon. W. W. Gaines, who is President of the Atlanta (Ga.) Board of Education, has presented certificates and diplomas to nearly six hundred graduates of the schools in Atlanta, during the past few weeks. Mr. Gaines is taking great interest in education in Atlanta. After a stormy board session, the Atlanta teachers were chosen. Near the end of the debate, President Gaines took the floor and explained why he could not vote against teachers solely on religious grounds. Mr. Gaines said: "We have the finest system of government in all the world. Our national constitution is the greatest political document ever drafted by mortal man. I have been taught all my life to honor it and to reverse it. To my mind the greatest provision in our national constitution is its guarantee of religious liberty to all of the people. And next in importance in my opinion is that other closely-related provision for the separation of church and state."

"The idea of religious liberty was a new doctrine at the time established. And the wisdom and baseness of the provision has commended the doctrine to all people everywhere. The famous John Bright was once sitting at a dinner next to a distinguished American. He asked the American this question: 'What is the greatest contribution America has made to the world?' The American replied: 'The principle of religious liberty.' And Bright then said: 'That was indeed a great contribution.'"

"The early settlers of America did not understand the principle of religious liberty. They came over here in order to find a place where they might worship God as they desired. But as soon as they came they set up a state religion, and they persecuted all who disagreed with them. In Massachusetts they banished Roger Williams, who championed the idea of religious liberty. Six of the colonies had state religions in Georgia and in Virginia people were imprisoned because they would not conform to the established religion."

"The separation of church and state is just as important as the doctrine of religious liberty. Wherever there has been union of church and state the result has been baneful. They had it in Spain, where the Catholic church was the state religion and there came the horrors of the Inquisition. They had it in Protestant Britain under Cromwell, and the Catholics of Ireland were persecuted to the death. Wherever there has been union of church and state, or where there has been domination of the state by the church the result has been lamentable. The world will never forget Canosa."

No Discrimination
"The fathers of our republic knew all this; they knew history, and they wrote the principle of religious liberty in our national constitution. It has also been written into our Georgia state constitution. Here all religions are equal before the law. Our laws favor no one above another. The government has nothing in the world to do with any person's religion, except to protect him in the free exercise of it. Under these precious doctrines of religious liberty and the separation of church and state our nation has grown and prospered and has become the greatest nation in the world. People of all creeds have come here and have found a place for their faith. Together we have lived. Together we have fought the country's wars. Together we have built up our marvelous civilization. We must make no law and we must establish no practice that will in any degree infringe on these great and fundamental doctrines."

"The free exercise of one's religion is his right. A person has a right to be a Baptist, a Presbyterian, a Catholic, a Hebrew, a Methodist, a atheist, an unbeliever; he has an absolute right in religion to be anything he pleases or nothing if he prefers. No man's religion is merely tolerated in this country; it is his by constitutional right."

"And going along with one's right to his own religion, whatever it may be, is also that other principle that no person is to be discriminated against or penalized on account of his religion. For a person to be discriminated against in business, in the holding of office, or other places of responsibility on account of his religion is to violate the principle of religious liberty. For a person to be penalized because of his religion is religious intolerance, and religious intolerance leads to persecution. Indeed, it is persecution."

"The religious denomination to which I belong has always believed in the absolute separation of church and state. It has always stood for the principle of religious liberty. Its members have been publicly whipped, have been thrown in jail because they would not pay taxes toward the support of a religion in which they did not believe, and because they would not conform to the established forms of worship. It is a demonstration that has never been repeated. If I believe in anything in the world it is this great doctrine of religious liberty."

Churches Hands Off.

"Should any religion try to get hold of our government I would fight it to the limit of my abilities. Should any religion try to get control of our public schools I would resist it to the uttermost. Churches must be hands off, both in the matter of the teaching in the matter of control of our public schools. And no church-school must ever get any of the public tax money."

"But I cannot vote against a public school teacher, with a clear teaching record, simply because of his religion. I will vote against any teacher of whatever religion for good and sufficient cause, and one such good cause would be if he sought to propagate his distinctive religion, and another such cause would be any evidence of disloyalty on his part to our government. But I cannot vote against him merely on account of his religion. I want to accord to others the same privileges I claim for myself."

"I would not be true to my political beliefs if I voted against a teacher simply and only because of his religion. I would not be true to my religious beliefs if I did so. I would not be true to my education and training if I did so. I would not be true to my deepest conscience if I did so."

"It would be an American if I did so. Religious intolerance and religious prejudice are un-American. True Americanism means separation of church and state; means religious freedom; means no discrimination on account of religion."

"I believe in true Americanism."

1,300,000 POUNDS

ADDED TO POOL

MORE THAN FIVE HUNDRED CONTRACTS SIGNED UP BY BURLEY TOBACCO GROWERS CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATION THE PAST WEEK.

Lexington, Ky.—Five hundred and thirty-eight additional contracts, representing about 1,300,000 pounds of tobacco, were signed by growers of Burley and reported to the office of the Field Service Division of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association during the past week. Assistant Chief William Collins, of the Field Service, reported Saturday on his return from Taylor, Adair and Green counties, where he went last Monday to organize those counties for a systematic drive for members.

One hundred contracts were signed in three counties when Mr. Collins started his home Friday afternoon and the work is being pushed by the county chairman and their organization. As a considerable amount of Burley is grown in the three counties, the signing up of growers there is regarded as very important by the association officials.

STATES AID IN ELIMINATING RAILROAD GRADE CROSSINGS

What can be done when a community sets out to rid itself of the menace of railroad grade crossings is shown by the plans for a Federal-aid road to be constructed in Alabama between Arion and Clayton. In a distance of about 21 miles the old road crossed the railroad 14 times. By good engineering 13 of these crossings have been eliminated, the remaining one being in the small town of Clio, where there are only three trains a day, and these move at slow speed as they approach the station.

Some months ago the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture announced that grade crossings would be eliminated on all Federal-aid highways wherever practicable. Officials of the bureau are receiving hearty cooperation from State highway departments and the general approval of the public.

It has been found possible to revise many plans, keeping the road entirely on one side of the track or finding a suitable place where the road can cross beneath or above the track.

In some states the highway departments on account of existing legislation are having difficulty in including the railroad companies to share the cost of placing the highway above or under the track.

HENRY HARTWIG, JR.

Henry Hartwig, Jr., aged sixteen years, died at St. Elizabeth Hospital Sunday night, June 11th. Funeral services were conducted at the home of his parents, in Elmore, Ky., Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock, by Rev. Dorn, after which the remains were taken by Undertaker Philip Taliaferro to Vine Street cemetery for interment. Henry is survived by his parents and several brothers.

LAST ROLL CALL

Answered By Another Confederate Soldier—R. A. Brady Aged 81, Gone.

Although his life of more than the Biblical allotment of four score years had been a long and useful one, the death last Wednesday night at 10 o'clock, at his residence in Burlington of Robert A. Brady has plunged in sorrow a wide circle of friends whose heartfelt sympathy goes out in generous affection from all parts of the county to his devoted wife and loving children.

He had always been an ardent supporter of the Democratic party, and in 1890, after one of the hottest primary elections in the history of the county, was nominated for County Assessor, being elected, being re-elected in 1904. During the term of his office he established the reputation of being one of the most efficient of Boone county's officials. He was always faithful, thorough and thoughtful in the performance of his official duties, and was courteous and friendly to his friends and neighbors, always greeting them with a smile, and thus a favorite among them.

He was born near Bellevue, Boone County, Ky., September 28, 1841; he married Susie Duncan more than fifty years ago, to this union three children, Emma Brown, Mary L. Lasing and Hubert D. Brady were born, all of whom survive him. He had been in his usual health until about a week ago when he took to his bed, and although all that could be done was for him, he gradually grew worse until the final summons. No citizen of Boone county was better known than Robert A. Brady.

He enlisted in the Confederate army and served through the Civil war and was discharged at its close.

No braver man carried a gun in the defense of what he believed to be right than R. A. Brady. In his death Boone county has lost one of her best and noblest citizens. He was a son of Sebern and Elizabeth, Garrett Brady, both of whom preceded him to the grave years ago. Besides his widow and three children he is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Eubenia Gaines, of Carrollton, Ky., Mrs. Laura Carter and Mrs. Lou Scott of this county, and a large number of other relatives and friends who mourn his death. He was a kind and affectionate husband and father, striving at all times to be of service to his family and friends.

His death removes from our midst one of our best beloved characters, a true citizen of Boone county, whose legion of friends mourn deeply his departure, and the bereaved family are extended the sympathy of the community in the death of their revered husband and father.

The funeral services were held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Bellevue, after which the remains were placed in a vault there to remain until resurrection day. Rev. Nicely of the Bellevue Baptist church conducted the service, at the grave. C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, had charge of the funeral arrangements. The casket was surrounded by a number of beautiful floral pieces.

The pall-bearers were composed of five of his grandsons, Robert, Sebern and Joseph Brady, John Lasing, Jr., Walter Brown and Carroll Cropper, husband of the only granddaughter.

JERSEY DAY CELEBRATION

At the sale of Jersey's held by the Boone County Jersey Club last Saturday, ten registered or subject to register Jersey calves were sold at an average of $35.80. Eugene Randall's calf brought the top price at $56.00. All of the calves offered were the best of Jersey breeding and the purchasers will improve their herds. The sale was conducted on the High School grounds and was in charge of President W. G. Kite, of Waterloo and Secretary O. C. Haffer, of Hebron. S. B. Kyle, of Waterloo, was the auctioneer. He is well informed in the breeding of Jersey cattle, as he has made it a business for several years. The club will have other sales in the near future, due notice of which will be given.

Wm. Whitson, Joseph Neumeister, Elizabeth Hensley, Robt. Hensley, Russell Loudon, Leroy Vashell, Percy Ryle and Geo. Dixon were the lucky folks to get the Jersey heifers obtained by the club for distribution in Boone county. The Jerseys ranged in price from $80 to $145 and were obtained from the best herds in the State. All are registered and of the best Jersey strains.

REVIVAL MEETING

A revival meeting will begin at the Methodist church Sunday July 2nd, 1922, at 11 a. m. The Rev. E. O. Hobbs, one of the General Evangelists of the M. E. church, South, will do the preaching. All are invited to attend these services.

GIFTS TO COUNTRY TOWNS.

Attractive public buildings and treasures of architecture are not alone the possession of large cities. You find them often while traveling through country districts. The tourist is often impressed in small towns by the substantial churches of beautiful exterior, school buildings of classic taste, dignified little libraries and shops. Closer examination may show a modest slab stating that such building was the gift of some son of the town.

The many memorials of this kind suggest the strong hold that a country town keeps on the people. Who grew up in it. Wherever a man may go, if he has the right feeling toward his native place or early home, he would like to do something for it. The early days spent in the quiet friendliness of a rural community are a wonderful influence for the molding of character. The village child shares the care and interest of the whole community and his associations with many fine people tend to shape his personality. The memories of one's old home ought to be just as strong as time goes on as was the wanderlust that led him to quit it.

The heart of a small town is quick to respond to demands of charity. Not merely is a great deal done to help home people who have misfortune, but money is sent out of the town freely to all kinds of public causes. This is one claim which the country town has on its sons and daughters. The community that has shared its modest wealth so generously, ought to have many gifts coming back.

While the memorial gifts are rather common, there should be many more of them. Most country towns have sent men out into the world who could well afford to make some generous gift to their native town or early home. It is a noble use of one's good fortune, and money spent that way will give better satisfaction than if frittered away in luxuries.

FARM BUREAU PIC-NIC

To Be Held at Florence Next Wednesday, June 28th--Everybody Invited.

The second annual all-day picnic of the Boone County Farm Bureau will be held at Florence on Wednesday, June 28th, 1922. The affair is to be of a basket-dinner nature and promises to far surpass the picnic of last year in several different ways. The list of speakers for the day includes authorities on milk production and marketing, the tobacco question and its many phases, the growth of and splendid future seen for Farm Bureau work. In fact the list is so complete and comprehensive that no one who attends can depart for home in the evening without enjoying a satisfied feeling of having been benefited highly in many ways than one.

The affair will afford an opportunity for the inspection of the commodious, up-to-date Farm Bureau warehouse in Florence which has just been completed and is ready for occupancy. The opening of this new supply station marks a big step forward in Farm Bureau advance in Boone county and is only a beginning of the action on an increased scale which is proposed for the near future.

When the fact is considered that the Farm Bureau, with practically no capital and with but passive operation, managed to get only one year, during the past two years of hard times but was a source of great benefit to the farmers in so many ways, there seems to be no limit to the growth which can be obtained if the proper effort is put forth and all put their shoulders to the wheel.

The social feature should not be disregarded for the whole day promises to be just like Saturday of the "FAIR" with everybody else and a big brass band to make such good music that everyone will start looking round for a day chuck full of genuine pleasure coupled with a gain of knowledge as to just what the Farm Bureau can and will mean to each and every one if the thing is fostered properly.

SO LET'S ALL FILL UP A BASKET WITH "EATS" AND TAKE THE WHOLE FAMILY!

THE PARTNERSHIP SPIRIT.

The thing that has broken up many farm homes has been the lack of partnership between the farmer and the property of his boy, but the property of his boy, but when the calf was sold Father took the cash. The boys under such conditions grew up to feel that they had no share in the farm. The astute farmer makes his boy his partner from the day he is old enough to hold and operate garden tools or feed any farm animal. He gives that boy something of his very own, from which he can reap his own personal reward. As that boy grows up his share of the farm enterprise constantly increases. That boy will not usually go off anywhere else.

FIGHT LAW FOR PURE ELECTIONS

JUDGE CHAS. A. HARDIN EXPRESSES AMAZEMENT AT THE COURSE OF REPUBLICAN ORGANIZATION.

Republican action to test the new Registration Law, expected to be initiated in the Franklin Circuit Court was interpreted as a fear of clean elections by Judge Chas. A. Hardin, Chairman of the Democratic State Central and Executive Committee. "It is a passing strange," said Judge Hardin "that a duly organized political body would institute a suit to test a law that seeks to purify elections. The registration law has for its purpose clean elections. It contains no partisan provisions whatever. It imposes exactly the same conditions on all political parties playing no favorites."

It strikes the Democratic leadership that any party which is afraid of this law must object to clean elections.

I am amazed that the Republican party would put itself on record as fighting the law designed to bring an honest election. The only criticisms of the law that I have heard were that it would cause inconvenience or cost something for its administration. No one of responsibility has accused it of being partisan. Anyone who reads it can see that it can't be used by either party but to bring a selfish way. Any organization which puts itself on record as opposing electoral machinery which insure pure elections is doomed to fail.

Under the State-wide registration law no longer the groups of repeaters can be swung from poll to poll; from county to county; from State to State in border counties, to create artificial and corrupt majorities. No longer can the transients and families who are not entitled to vote secure the privilege thru corrupt election officers. No longer can the corruptionists, by use of unlimited corruption funds, be effective as under the old law. No longer can the unnatural citizen vote in the mining camps of Kentucky. The registration law is not for the benefit of either party but to bring about clean and pure elections.

In my opinion this law is one of the most progressive laws ever enacted by the Legislature in our State. It renders possible the enactment of all progressive laws which are concerned in by the majority opinion of the electorate, and thereby secures a foundation of justice consistent with Democratic principles and the certain support of the people.—Louisville Evening Post.

KELLY REUNION.

The annual reunion of the Kelly family held at the home of Z. T. Kelly in the Rabbit Head neighborhood, last Sunday, was attended by about 150 relatives and friends from all parts of the county and some from Indiana, making it one of the most pleasant events of the season. Mr. Z. T. Kelly is the last surviving member of thirteen children born to Jesse Kelly and wife, and has passed the three-score and ten years in his journey through life, and is enjoying fairly good health for one of his years, and it would be futile to endeavor to express with mere words the pleasure it afforded him to have his friends and relatives meet with him. The morning dawned bright and beautiful, the heat of the day was alleviated by the gentle breeze, which cooled the air, and made the noon hour especially enjoyable. After partaking of a bountiful dinner that was spread under the shade trees in the yard, the afternoon was passed in pleasant conversation and singing. It was late in the evening when the crowd commenced to leave for their respective homes with a farewell handshake and goodbye.

ALETHA JANE MORE

Mrs. Aletha Jane Moore, aged 80 years, and 4 months, passed away Monday night at the home of her daughter Mrs. Clarence Norman, having been an invalid for about four years. Funeral services were conducted Thursday morning by Rev. Speers at the B. F. B. Baptist church, interment followed in local cemetery. Mrs. Moore is survived by three children, Mrs. Clarence Norman, Miss Ida May Moore and J. D. Moore, two brothers, one sister, eight grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. Undertaker Philip Taliaferro had charge of the funeral arrangements.

ENTERTAINED WITH PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Easton entertained the young people at their home out on the Petersburg pike, last Saturday evening, with a lawn fete. "Lads and lasses" from Burlington and surrounding community were present and a very pleasant and enjoyable time was had.

The new cistern at the court house is about completed.

A WEEK'S NEWS.

Miss Lucy Crisler, aged 72 years and 11 months, daughter of the late Smith Crisler, died at the home of W. F. Grant near Gunpowder Baptist church last Thursday night, June 15th, after an illness of a few days of the infirmities of old age. She leaves two brothers, B. F. Crisler, of McVie, R. S. Crisler, of Burlington, and one sister, Mrs. W. F. Grant, with whom she had made her home for many years. A short funeral service was held at the home at two o'clock Saturday afternoon, after which the remains were buried in the old Crisler burying ground at the Forks of Gunpowder.

Edward Beemon, aged 77, son of Abel Beemon, died at his home in the Union neighborhood, Thursday morning June 15th, 1922, after a lingering illness of drowsy. He leaves a wife and one daughter, and many relatives and friends to mourn his death. After a short service at the residence last Saturday morning the remains were taken to Bellevue and laid to rest in the cemetery at that place. Another of the county's good citizens has gone to his reward.

Now is the time to plow corn. Constant plowing while it is small, no matter how dry the weather gets, will cause the ground to hold the moisture, and when rain comes it will grow surprisingly fast. While the corn crop in this county is rather late it is looking fine and will not damage from dry weather for several days if constantly cultivated.

While cleaning out a ditch along the roadside near Waterloo, one day last week, Henry Olore, of Bellevue, unearthed a trappan that had cut on its shell the following: "R. L. Ayler, 1881" forty-one years ago. It was along about that time that R. L. Ayler conducted a store at Waterloo in the same building in which W. G. Kite now operates a store.

Hon. John D. Carroll, of Frankfort, and Hon. Wade Yeager, of Warsaw, were before Hon. Sidney Gaines last Saturday seeking an injunction against the Gallatin county fiscal court in order to prevent that court from making certain appropriations of the road fund. The injunction was granted by Judge Gaines.

Dr. and Mrs. L. E. Rouse, of Elm Street, Ludlow, are home from Louisville, Ky., where they attended the wedding of Mrs. Rouse's sister, Miss Sarah Huey, daughter of Mr. J. S. Huey, of Union, Ky., to Mr. Fred Miller of Walton, Ky. The marriage took place in Louisville on Thursday afternoon, June 15th.

After a three weeks visit with his father, George McGlasson, in Hebron neighborhood, Lieut. Commander and Mrs. Arch McGlasson have returned home. He is now stationed at Bureau of Navigation in Washington, D. C., and expects to leave this fall for a two years cruise at sea.

If you fail to register at the special registration day in July next, you will not be permitted to vote at any elections that will be held in the county. Register and register so that you can vote for your favorite candidate at the primary and regular elections.

At the fifty-fifty annual commencement exercises of the University of Kentucky, Thursday, June 14th, at Lexington, 215 young men and women graduates were given diplomas. The largest number in the history of that institution.

Mrs. P. B. Riddell, of Middletown, Ohio, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Robert K. Conner, of Union, also her sister Mrs. A. M. Ritter, of Erlanger, who has been very ill.

W. W. Grimsley, one of the few ex-Confederates left in the county, and W. F. Moore, of Walton, attended the funeral of R. A. Brady, last Friday afternoon.

The Republican Committee and press are fearful that the Kentucky Registration law will disfranchise a large per cent of their voters.

Democrats, men and women, do not fail to register so that at the next election you can cast your vote for your favorite candidate.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Riddell spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Chester Uts, of Hebron neighborhood.

The people who don't advertise should be mighty careful, or somebody might find out that they are doing business.

J. B. Arvin from out on the Bellevue pike, shipped to the Cincinnati market, last Thursday, twenty 100-pound hogs.

Atty. Ray Rogers, of Covington, was in Burlington on legal business last Saturday.

BIG CAUSES OF LOSS IN STOCK SHIPMENTS FOUND AT POINTS OF SHIPPING.

Lexington, Ky.—Heavy losses resulting each summer from injury, death and shrinkage in shipments of livestock are caused largely by improper methods of handling the animals at shipping points, marketing specialists at the College of Agriculture say. Anything which adds to the comfort of animals in transit diminishes the danger of losses, their suggestions on shipping point out.

"Before having animals placed in them, cars should be cleaned carefully and bedded with sand or some other similar bedding, the use of these being preferable to straw, saw dust and shavings," D. G. Card, one of the specialists said. "Stock will reach the market in better condition if fed the usual amount of dry feed instead of being fed excessively just before shipping. Clubs, whips and poles should be eliminated as far as possible in loading animals as the use of these causes bruises and a consequent loss of meat."

"About twenty-two 1,000 pound steers may be loaded safely in a standard 36-foot car, he said. Danger of losses may be reduced by partitioning off bulls, vicious animals with horns, calves cows with calves. Cattle fed on dry feeds a day or two previous to shipment will reach market in better condition than those allowed to fill up on water and grain."

From 80 to 100 hogs depending upon their size may be shipped in a single deck standard 36-foot car, from 16,000 to 17,000 pounds making a good carload in hot weather. In summer the bedding for hogs should be drenched thoroughly with water and in extremely hot weather, from five to 800 pounds of ice should be broken up and placed on the floor of the car or hung up in sacks. It is best to give them dry feed before shipping instead of filling them with water and will as is often the case.

From 125 to 150 lambs may be loaded safely in a single deck standard 36-foot car.

C. T. Claunch, Real Estate Agent, Erlanger, Ky., sold the following properties:

For Dr. Sayre, of Florence, to J. K. Seebree, of Union, an eight acre tract of land for $4,500.

For Frank York, of Erlanger, a five room house and five lots for $1,525.

Moak, of Erlanger, to Litzler, of Covington, a four room house for $2,000.

Fedders Brothers etc., of Covington, to The Mickle Lumber Co., a house and three lots on the Dixie Highway, Erlanger, for $3,670.

Miss Gwendolyn Goodridge of Burlington, and Mr. Albert Oldham, of Sharpburg, Ky., were married in Covington Monday evening. The young couple will make their home in Mt. Sterling where the groom is in business. Miss Goodridge is the accomplished daughter of James W. Goodridge, of near Burlington, and has been teaching for several years. A happy and prosperous life is what the Recorder hopes will be the future of this young couple.

Hon. D. B. Wallace and Robert Coffman, of Walton, were in Burlington Tuesday, and together with Sheriff B. B. Hume appointed the officers to hold the registration July 10th and 11th.

The first checks have been received for loans made by the Federal Farm Loan Bank. The checks amount to about $35,000.00.

Mrs. W. L. Riddell fell Monday, on the concrete sidewalk in her yard, fracturing the bone in her right arm at the elbow.

Farm Agent Sutton is in Lexington, Ky., this week with the delegates to the club work convention.

A nice stone was placed at the head of the grave of the late Joseph Reed, in Odd-Fellows cemetery, Tuesday, by Tooby, of Rising Sun.

Rev. H. M. Curry will preach at Mt. Pleasant next Sunday, June 26, at 11 O'clock.

NOTICE.

The L. O. F. Picnic will not be held June 24th as reported, but at some future date.

COWPEAS SUPPLYING BIG NEEDS OF POOR SOILS.

Lexington, Ky.—The cowpea is one of the best crops that can be grown to supply nitrogen and organic matter, the two things needed most by poor soils of Kentucky, soils and crops specialists of the College of Agriculture say. Unlike other legumes, such as alfalfa and clover, the peas make a fair growth on poor, sour soils without either limestone or other fertilizers although a light application of limestone and some phosphate fertilizer help them make a better growth. The peas are especially valuable as a soil improvement crop because they may be seeded by being broadcasted and therefore need no cultivation.

In using the peas for soil improvement, many farmers seed them as a catch crop after wheat, oats or rye. Seeded at this late date the crop makes considerable vine growth which is valuable for forage and fertility but which would hardly be sufficient to mature seed.

On other farms, the peas are seeded with success in the corn at the last cultivation, a bushel of seed an acre being sufficient in this case. Some farmers drill the peas in rows between the corn, this method requiring less seed and therefore being advisable when seed prices are high.

The nitrogen gathered by a ton of peas is worth about $3 on the basis of the commercial cost of nitrogen, the specialists point out. Also the hay obtained from the peas is satisfactory feed for all classes of livestock. When the manure resulting from the feeding of the peas is returned to the soil, 20 to 30 pounds of additional nitrogen is added for each ton of peas grown.

Funds are being subscribed by the citizens to supplement the county fund in order that the Burlington and Florence pike can be put in condition for travel. The road fund allotted to this road was not sufficient and labor could not be procured at the price set by the Fiscal Court and the subscription will make it possible to secure the necessary labor and scarify and roll the road from Florence to Burlington. Very little work on the roads can be done with the county funds and the subscription is proper under these conditions. It is expected that this work will be completed within the next few weeks. Every one who travels this road should subscribe to this fund.

A prohibition officer suspected DeWitt Ransome and Lloyd Rouse, of Crittendon, with having moonshine in their possession and followed them to Walton, Monday afternoon where they found them with a gallon of moonshine in their automobile; he arrested the men and took them before the U. S. Commissioner at Covington. The automobile was confiscated by the revenue officers.

GAINES—ROBERTS

Miss Sheba Roberts and Judge Sidney Gaines were married in Lexington Monday. They will spend a few days visiting in the Blue Grass section of Kentucky. Judge Gaines has purchased a house in Walton and will make his home there. The Recorder extends congratulations.

Quite a number of lambs and calves have been shipped to market from this section the past week.

LOWER GUNPOWDER

Quite a few from this vicinity attended the ice cream supper at Big Bone church Saturday—including C. H. Jones and his best girl.

Mrs. Lennie Hubbard and baby boy Edward Delbert, visited relatives in Covington a few days last week.

Mrs. Harry Copelan of Muncie, Indiana, is visiting relatives near here.

Wallace Shanks has been the guest of Lennie Hubbard and family.

Miss Sherry Style spent Monday and Monday night with her friend, Miss Beatrice Faidhaus, of Norcrossville.

SCHOOL NOTES.

We are authorized to announce Summer School will begin Monday, June 26th, with Prof. Carnegie, of Louisville, as the Principal instructor. We expect to be able to supply teachers with the necessary books at the opening of the term. The term will be for six weeks. We have been twice disappointed in securing the teachers but now Prof. Charles who has the matter of distributing teachers for these summer schools has advised this announcement to be made. All teachers and others who expect to be students in this school will be on hand Monday morning June 26th.

INJUNCTION

Denied To Republicans, Kentucky Registration Case To Go To Appellate Court.

Judge Robert L. Stout, of Franklin Circuit Court overruled a motion for an injunction, made by Republican attorneys, to prevent Franklin County officials performing the duties prescribed for them in the Smith-Minor registration law. The suit was one filed by J. M. Perkins, as a taxpayer, attacking the constitutionality of the measure.

HEALTH TALKS.

Warm weather usually brings with it a loss of appetite, especially in the case of the office man or other sedentary worker. Most of us overeat in summer or else cram our bodies with foods containing in themselves too much heat.

Foods contain varying amounts of heat units, or calories. Therefore, at this season, unless you select your food with some care you are liable to supply your old furnace with enough heat for midwinter instead of summer.

Too often we measure our food by the measure inch—eat thru our eyes, as the saying goes—according to the size of our stomachs, instead of regarding food units. A pat of butter has as many food units as five cupsful of shredded cabbage.

In hot weather avoid meat and heavy foods altogether. In their place substitute green vegetables, fruits and cold foods. Fish and fowl may be eaten when the meat craving is strong.

People who are more or less inactive during the day do well to cut out the noon meal altogether.

Here are rules to remember, no matter what the weather or the meal: Do not eat too fast, but chew the food well.

Do not eat when excited or angry. Food should not be "washed down" with water, milk or coffee. They interfere with digestion. Drink after the food has been swallowed.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express through the columns of the Recorder our sincere thanks to our kind neighbors and friends for their unselfish devotion to us during the illness and death of our mother Aletha J. Moore. To Bro. Spears, to those who prepared the last resting place, for the beautiful songs and to Philip Tallaferra for his very kind and efficient service.

THE FAMILY.

Some one took from Dr. Yelton's automobile, Sunday night an automobile casing and tube.

"Wither are we drifting" shouts the popular orator. But the average man says he should worry so long as he is getting a free ride somewhere without effort on his part.

BABY DROWNED IN CREEK FOLLOWING OLDER SISTER

Owenton—Three-year old Evelyn Howard tried to follow an older sister who had gone to gather wild flowers and searchers who saw tracks on the bank of Eagle creek, 800 yards from the home, dragged it and recovered her body.

TRIPLETS SEVEN WEEKS OLD IN DESTITUTE FAMILY.

Mayfield—Seven-week-old triplets at Folsomdale are being cared for by charitable agencies, which found the babies and the family destitute. The children are unusually healthy, and physicians say all will live.

HANDCUFFED TO BEDSIDE GIRL ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

Leitchfield—After being handcuffed to a bedstead by her father to prevent elopement with a clerk in his store, it is alleged, Thelma Campbell, 16, attempted suicide by drinking wood alcohol at the family home in Millwood, this county, where a near-mob gathered with threats against the father when her outcries were heard as she was being made a prisoner. The father E. T. Campbell, remained with Sheriff Robert Bond in Leitchfield until the excitement was allayed. It is said he discovered plans for the elopement, found the girl in hiding near home, and handcuffed her. He was tried for breach of peace and found not guilty by a jury composed largely of women.

NEGROES LICK STREET WASHED BY MONSHINE.

Lawnburg—Negroes knelt to lick bricks in the city streets after officers poured 100 gallons of moonshine, worth $1,000 at prevailing prices it is said, into the sewer. Hats, buckets and glasses were used for salvage purposes by other bystanders. Children reported finding the liquor hidden in the woods, and county officers vainly lay in ambush all night expecting whisky runners to return to their cache.

INDIAN GRAVE OPENED HALF SKULL FOUND.

Vanceburg—Half of an Indian skull was found by sons of Bas Lewis who dug into an Indian grave on a ridge covered by a large pile of rocks. The grave had been known for more than 100 years, old residents claim.

UNCONSCIOUS WOMAN LEFT AT HOSPITAL BY MEN.

Covington—Mrs. Minnie Hood, 41, was removed to St. Elisabeth hospital in an unconscious condition as the result of a skull fracture and numerous bruises. She was accompanied to the hospital by two men who departed without registering their names. Police believe that when she was returning to the end of the Ft. Mitchell car line she was hit by an automobile when on the Dixie Highway.

USE HAILSTONES FOR ICE AFTER STORM IN MERCER.

Harrodsburg—Hailstones were used to freeze ice cream, make feed drinks and in one case were kept all night in a cellar after a heavy storm in the Burgin and Nevins vicinities. Damage was confined largely to broken windows.

HAIL SPLINTER'S ROOFS KILLS CHICKENS, FRUIT.

Barbourville—Roofs were splintered and in some cases perforated, chickens were killed and fruit and other crops destroyed by a terrific hail storm on the border of Clay and Bell counties.

COUNCILMAN UNION KING (Danville Advocate.)

Councilman A. L. Gates is certainly king of the onion fields of this section. He has four acres, from which he has been gathering with a leavis lavish hand since the eleventh of March. He stated that from beginning to end his crop would produce about five car loads.

MANUFACTURERS NOW USING APPLES TO THE LAST SEED

The thoroughness with which the apple is now worked over and utilized by some manufacturers makes it comparable with the packing house pig that leaves only a futile squeal. The apple is not transformed into such a variety of products as the pig, but all are useful, and when the last of the series has been made hardly a smell is left.

In many of the apple-using factories the apples are first pressed to produce cider, which may be sold as such or may be manufactured into vinegar. After thorough pressing the pomace is treated with hot water, after purification, is sold in either liquid or solid form to manufacturers of jellies and similar products and to housewives. The much-wasted and uneaten residue is dried, ground and sold as cattle feed.

Well filled pocketbooks are often like some heads. There is nothing of value in them.

BASE BALL.

Walton team went to Petersburg last Saturday afternoon and performed a "greasy trick" on the team at that place—taking home nineteen slices of the bacon, leaving only 11 for the Petersburg boys to subsist on until the next game. That Walton bunch are a slick set of ball tossers and full of "pep."

Don't forget the two games at Burlington July 4th, when the "All Stars" will play the strong Taylorsport team.

Last Saturday afternoon the "Old Stiffs" showed the Union team their side of commission and omission at the High School campus, to the tune of 8 to 5, in one of the most interesting games of the season. It took some time for the "Old Stiffs" to get cranked-up, but when they did they hit and ran like a lot of "tin lizzies," and had much trouble in applying the brakes when they reached the bases. Sunday morning "jint oils" and liniments were in great demand and the local stores had a splendid sale. The Union team is composed of a gentlemanly set of players, and with a little more training will make some of the other teams in the county hustle to beat them.

Taylorsport journeyed to North Bend Sunday afternoon and was defeated in 11-inning game 2 to 1. Sandford was in the box for Taylorsport, and his pitching would have won 99 games out of 100 had it not been for a few very costly errors. Zimmer was behind the bat for Taylorsport, and he put up a real snappy brand of ball. Each team made a run in the third and fourth inning and there was nothing more doing in run getting until the 11th, when a couple of errors gave North Bend one, making the score 2 to 1 in favor of North Bend. Struck out by Sandford 9; by James 8. Hits—North Bend 6; Taylorsport 7. Manager Zimmer has added to his line-up for the season Clayton Roberts, of Walton, who will play short and Finn who will twirl. Roberts put up a professional game on short for Taylorsport Sunday.

The White Sox of Ludlow, defeated Hebron at Hebron, last Saturday afternoon in a very exciting game by a score of 8 to 7.

Huey is rounding into mid-summer form, and although touched up for nine hits, with perfect support would have won his game by a good margin. Roy Garnett hit a homer in the sixth with two on and two down. Base hits off Huey 9; off Meyers 12; struck out by Huey 11; by Meyers 9; bases on balls by Huey 3; by Meyers 1. Hebron and Florence will play at Hebron Saturday June 24. Florence has taken two closely contested games from Hebron this season and the Hebron boys are on edge to get another chance, at them.

THE RADIO IN THE COUNTRY.

One of the big elements in rural advance has been the telephone. It has banished loneliness from the country home. Now comes the development of the radio-telephone which seems likely to fill almost as big a place. The time will come when most country homes will be equipped with receiving sets, that will give them the news of the day and a splendid variety of entertainment.

Then people will no longer complain that they are shut off from the big world. The best music and lectures, the latest market reports and the doings of the public bodies, will be made known to the quiet groups around the fireside. It will reconcile many a country life who are now restive in quiet villages.

Europe is sick—very sick—and there appears to be one physician capable of restoring her to health. That physician is Uncle Sam.

But when a physician gives medicine to a patient he requires that his instructions be faithfully observed, for without such observance there can be no cure.

It is possible that America owes a duty to the world, the duty of aiding in the readjustment of stricken Europe.

Let the people of this country will approve the extension of such aid only upon the assurance that it will be employed for the collective good of all of the people and not be diverted to the maintenance of great armies or the enrichment of favored individuals. "No adherence, no dough," says Dr. Sam.

A WARNING TO THE EDUCATED.

Well educated young people frequently complete their courses with the idea that having had these advantages, the business world is going to compete to secure their services. Many business men noting this attitude on the part of college graduates, say they don't want them. They say that the college young people feel too assured of their position and won't dig for success the way an uneducated person often will.

On the whole education is a tremendous boost. But some young people do make it difficult for themselves by manifesting a certain cocksureness. They feel they know a great deal, and are sure to go ahead without much effort.

When they take their first position they are as ignorant of the conditions surrounding that job as the uneducated fellow and they have to hustle just as hard. If they bank on superior education, they arouse antagonism. A modest attitude and absence of claim to superior ability, is the best spirit for them.

CAR SENSE

Spend a Dollar and Save Ten

Little defects grow into big ones in time if not corrected.
The correction of a small defect in its early stages costs but little.
When left until it grows into serious proportions its correction runs into money.
That is what makes the maintenance of a car so expensive to many people—neglecting the little things until they grow into big ones.
The better—the safer—the more economical way is to see the garage man at the first warning of trouble.
Today is always a good time to have it done.

Hail Insurance Rates Reduced on Tobacco

With the recent reductions of hail storm insurance rates on growing tobacco, in the face of the enormous losses to growers within the last four or five years, every grower can afford to protect himself to the limit and, with safety, go into the business of producing a crop that requires so much money, time and labor, as does tobacco, that should be insured against loss by hail storms.

Now that so many growers have gone into an organization for a more economical, business-like way of handling their crops, and the insurance companies have so lowered rates on hail insurance, there is no reason in the world for any grower to neglect the protection of his crop by ample insurance.

Better see your insurance agent right away and have him protect your crop, which is likely to be destroyed any day by a hail storm. Policies become effective noon, July 10th.

General Manager Penn of the Farm Bureau has been a very busy man the past few days preparing for the Bureau picnic next Wednesday, at their new building in Florence.

The students of the graduating class look very serious when the preacher gives his good advice in the baccalaureate exercises, but perhaps some of them are wondering if their new clothes are going to fit.

Ft. Bayard, N. M.—A male chorus of 30 voices has been formed by sick and disabled soldiers at the government hospital at Fort Bayard, N. M. Under the guidance of the American Legion the chorus gives frequent concerts for the benefit of the less fortunate bed-ridden patients.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Two hundred school boys in Pennsylvania public and private schools have been awarded medals of merit for superiority in class room work and athletic activities by the Pennsylvania American Legion.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Oklahoma is furnishing American Legion posts with free traveling libraries. After keeping one collection of books for two months, a post may return it and receive another or request that it be held for an additional two months.

Paris, France.—Members of the Paris, France post of the American Legion are putting in their spare minutes studying the technique of cricket, in preparation for a mixed international athletic contest with members of the British Legion. The ex-Tommies have challenged the former doughboys to a game of baseball on condition that the Americans meet them on the cricket field.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—One hundred and sixty acres of land, near Hobart, Okla. have been purchased by the American Legion which will erect thereon a community summer resort.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Reports coming into national Legion headquarters from every section of the country indicate that American Legion Membership Day, July 1, will be eminently successful. Each Legionnaire has been asked by National Commander Hanford MacNider to get at least one new member for the service men's organization on that day.

Pittsburg, Pa.—A squad of her comrades of the American Legion fired a last volley over the grave of Lillian Russell, world famous opera star, at her burial in Pittsburg. By official warrant in the world war, Miss Russell held the rating of gunnery sergeant.

Louisville, Ky.—The names of soldier dead from various states of the Union will be buried in Mammoth Cave, near Glasgow, Ky., by the Kentucky American Legion. It will place a monument in the cave, at the base of which will be a sealed stone box containing the names of the dead.

Jersey City, N. J.—A sheet, pillow case or towel was the price of admission to an entertainment given by the American Legion Auxiliary at Wildwood, N. J., to require needle linen for sick and wounded soldiers confined in a New Jersey hospital.

Reno, Nev.—Planning to cover a total distance of 4,500 miles, Donald F. Chase, prominent American Legion worker of Reno, Nev., has started to New York on a bicycle. He expects to visit American Legion posts on the way.

Indianapolis, Ind.—National Commander Hanford MacNider of the American Legion has tentatively accepted an invitation to speak before the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic to be held in Des Moines, Ia., during the week of Sept. 24. In his invitation to Commander MacNider, Lewis S. Pilcher, Commander-in-Chief of the G. A. R., says, "Let me assure you that the veterans of the Grand Army appreciate highly the sentiments of regard expressed by your younger guard expressed by your younger comrades in the great war. In a special degree we look upon them as the successors in promoting the highest spirit of patriotism in the country in the years to come."

Washington, D. C.—Ex-service men and women who should be considered for medals of honor, distinguished service crosses and distinguished service medals for meritorious services during the world war will be considered for these awards until April 1923, by a special act of Congress passed upon the recommendation of the Military Affairs Committee of the American Legion.

Toledo, Ohio.—An island in the Maumee river, twenty miles from Toledo, Ohio, will furnish the setting for many Robinson Crusoe outings of a Toledo post of the American Legion. The post has bought the island outright and is erecting thereon tents and barracks so that Legionnaires and their families may spend their week ends and vacations there.

Charlie Barlow and family, Dr. Loy and family, Howard Barlow and family, Lawrence Newpickle and family, Mrs. Ada Newpickle and son, of Kenton county, and J. A. Barlow and son, Chester and Cris Whitaker and family, of Hebron, spent Sunday at Archie Acra's on Middle Creek.

KENTUCKY CROP REPORT

General crop conditions in Kentucky are shown to be 11.6 per cent above the 10-year average. In the June crop report for this state issued today by the United States Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates in co-operation with State Commissioner of Agriculture W. C. Hanna. The condition of crops in Kentucky on June 1 indicated the production of approximately 5,444,000 bushels of wheat; 8,550,000 bushels of oats; 174,000 bushels of barley; 239,000 bushels of rye; 1,232,000 tons of hay; 3,948,000 bushels of apples; and 1,109,000 bushels of peaches. Compared with 1921 this would be an increase of 2,806,400 bushels of wheat; 988,000 bushels of oats; 25,000 bushels of barley; 59,000 bushels of rye; 95,000 tons of hay; 8,309,000 bushels of apples; and 1,022,000 bushels of peaches. Actual yields may turn out less or more than these estimates, depending on whether conditions are particularly favorable or unfavorable between now and the time these crops are harvested or gathered.

Reports on acreage and condition of tobacco and corn will be issued July 12.

The Kentucky wheat crop this season in practically every part of the state gave promise of being one of the best in recent years, but as it began filling considerable red rust developed, and there was some complaint of poor filling and of lodging.

Condition June 1 was 93 per cent compared to the 10-year average of 82 per cent. Acreage of oats is 8 per cent less than '21, with condition June 1 90 per cent compared to the 10-year average of 84 per cent. Burley acreage in Kentucky is about 2 per cent more than in 1921, and the condition June 1 96 per cent compared to the 10-year average of 90 per cent. Hay, of all kinds, was 90 per cent compared to the 10-year average of 82 per cent. Clover hay acreage is 5 per cent greater than in 1921 and the condition 94 per cent compared to the 10-year average of 85 per cent. Alfalfa condition is 96 per cent and the acreage 6 per cent more than in 1921. Pasture is excellent in practically all sections of the state; and a heavy blue grass seed crop has been stripped, about 650,000 bushels of hemp acreage is exceedingly small this year. Condition of apples is 70 per cent; peaches 82 per cent; pears 64 per cent; field peas and beans 90 per cent; cabbage 91 per cent; onions 92 per cent; blackberries 97 per cent; watermelons 86 per cent; and muskmelons and cantaloupes 87 per cent.

A dispatch from Russia says that the outlook for the future of that country is brighter. Perhaps it is only a coincidence that the same paper carries the news that Premier Lenin is on his deathbed.

A Washington wit suggests that a brand of soda water be named for the effervescent Tom Watson. But wouldn't the fiery Senator's name be better suited to something with a kick in it?

IOWA PRIMARIES WORST REPUTATION OF HARDING.
Washington—The most emphatic repudiation of the reactionary Harding administration and the reactionary Do-Nothing Republican Congress so far administered in a Republican primary was in the recent Iowa contest where Col. Smith W. Brookhart, radically progressive, won the nomination for United States Senator against a large field by a vote of more than two to one, against the united efforts of Republican national leaders aided and abetted by John T. Adams, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Henry Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture.

Candidates were brought into the field by the administration forces with the hope of dividing the progressive and radical vote so as to prevent Col. Brookhart from receiving the required 35 per cent to insure his nomination, but this well-known trick failed utterly and the successful candidate had about 41 per cent of the votes cast.

FITTERS' TARIFF BILL

Heretofore the labor cost of an article was regarded by Republican tariff makers as the foundation upon which tariff taxation must rest. In the pending bill this plan has been utterly abandoned, and the labor cost bearing no relation whatever to the amount of protection given in the bill. Specific instances of this were recently submitted in the Senate by Senator Simmons (Dem.), N. C., from which the following extracts are taken:

Wrought pipe: Labor cost 18.2 per cent; protection 27 per cent.
Cable-killing machines: Labor cost 25.7 per cent; protection 30 per cent.

Structural iron (not made in steel mills): Labor cost 20.3 per cent; protection 30 to 40 per cent.
Tin plate and terneplate: Labor cost 5.9 per cent; protection 8.3 per cent.

Brass and bronze: Labor cost 20.4 per cent; protection, 46.3 per cent.
Electric machinery, apparatus and supplies: Labor cost 23.9 per cent; protection 40 per cent.

Stamped ware: Labor cost 23.4 per cent; protection 40 to 60 per cent.
Enamel ware: Labor cost 25.7 per cent; protection 5 cents a pound to 50 per cent ad valorem.

Bath tubs, lavatories and sinks: Labor cost 30.5 per cent; protection 40 per cent.
Table cutlery: Labor cost 43.5 per cent; protection 132 per cent.

Razors: Labor cost, 16.1 per cent; protection 75 per cent.
Knives, except table knives: Domestic labor cost, 46 per cent; protection 166 per cent.

All other cutlery: Labor cost 36.7 per cent; protection 134 per cent.
Edged tools: Labor cost 82.3 per cent; protection 40 per cent.

Fires—an article in common use in every household and on every farm: Labor cost 29.5 per cent; protection 40 per cent.
Hardware: Labor cost 29.3 per cent; protection 40 per cent.

Wire: Labor cost 18.6 per cent; protection 35 per cent.
Wirework, including wire rope and so forth: Labor cost 17.1 per cent; protection 40 per cent.

Aluminum ware: Labor cost 17.7 per cent; household ware made of aluminum, 15 cents per pound and 60 per cent; electric attachments, 15 cents a pound and 70 per cent.

Clocks: Labor cost 33.6 per cent; protection 41 per cent.
Watches, including parts of watches and clocks: Labor cost 39.6 per cent; protection 58 per cent.

Concerning this data Senator Simmons said:
"I am taking advantage of this occasion to put in the Record some matter, and it is not graveyard stuff either; it is live stuff, pertinent to the duties of this bill. I have obtained these figures through experts furnished me by the Tariff Commission. The calculations have not been worked out by free-traders; they have not been framed up by tax-dodgers as many of the figures that are brought in here from the other side have been framed up by people who are seeking to gouge the American public. They have been prepared for me by the Department of official experts and the basis of the calculations are the official figures."

SENTIMENT AND SPEEDING.
It has been remarked by police officers that a considerable proportion of the drivers arrested for speeding automobiles, are young fellows who are taking girls to ride. A young driver, they remark, takes pride in making records for speed while driving out with his best girl. He likes to appear in her eyes as a daring driver, who is not fearful of taking chances, who will work his way in an auto of traffic with out slackening his pace, and who can cover a given distance in a small amount of time. They are fond of showing what their breath escapes they can experience and still not get into trouble.

In former days young men of a sentimental turn often used to like a lazy old nag who could be driven with one hand, leaving one to encircle the slender waist of their fair companion. Drawn by faithful old Dobbin, such amorous diversions might be safe as far as danger of collisions go. But the same method is not adapted to automobiles. The driver in these times is not the only peril either. Some of his lady passengers feel that they must struggle up to the man at the wheel, and he can drive with their clutch hold on him is a mystery.

Officers claim that these amorous speeders do not mind being hauled up in court while on these joy rides, and passing out a good sized bill as the penalty for their recklessness. They rather enjoy handing over this assessment in the presence of their girl friend, as a sign that they are good sports and willing to pay for their fun.

It is a man's sized job to drive an automobile in these times, and people who undertake it should expect to give their attention to the job. Many young people when they pick the highways for their amorous demonstrations, not merely make themselves absurd, but they create a peril to the public.

Europe owes America $10,000,000,000, but if any of those nations came along and offered $267.50 cash, a good many people think it would be good policy to accept the same.

THE CHERRY GUESTS.

(By Walt Mason.)

I have uncles, I have cousins, I have nieces by the score, and in couples and in dozens they come gadding to my door; just to visit for a season just to make themselves at home; and you here behold the reason for the furrows on my dome. Yet with sunny smiles I greet them, as they come in ranks and rows, when I'd like to beat them with a length of garden hose. For they bore me with their chatter, and they talk in voices strong, of the things that do not matter, of the things that don't belong. If there is a theme or topic that's a weariness to me, they'll discuss it, loud and yavine, till I wring my hands and feet. But I lack the nerve to ask them when they journey to my gates; with a cordial smile I scan them, crying, "Welcome" to each ekate. Oh, I like to have my nieces come and drink a dish of tea, but they should not bring valises and big wardrobe trunks to me. I can stand a decent number, and my welcome will, not fail, if they eat and drink and slumber and depart before they're stale.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Walton a son, June 18th.

Mrs. Aletha J. Moore died Tuesday morning June 13th at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Elva Norman, near Union, after a long illness. She deceased was the widow of F. H. Moore, who preceded her to the grave about five years ago. Mrs. Moore was 80 years and 4 months of age. She was born at Verona Feb. 13th, 1842. Her maiden name was Eldridge. She was the mother of three children, one dying several years ago, Mr. Douglas Moore and Mrs. Elva Norman surviving her. The funeral services were held at the Big Bone Baptist church after which the remains were interred in the Big Bone cemetery. A large number of friends and relatives were present to pay the last tribute of respect to the deceased. Philip Tallaferr, undertaker, had charge of the funeral.

Louisville, Ky.—Altogether 3,360 inspections were made by the two inspectors of the State Board of Health's Bureau of Pure Food and Drugs in 1921, according to Miss Sarah Lane, director of the bureau, who has just finished tabulation of the work done last year.

Some of these inspections were made in every county in Kentucky with eight exceptions. Two hundred and eighty-five communities in all were visited by the inspectors.

The kind of places inspected included bakeries, bottling plants, dairies, groceries, food factories, ice cream plants, fountains, slaughter houses and patent medicine factories. Fifty-four summer resorts also were visited.

The Bureau of Pure Food and Drugs will employ a third inspector after July 1, Miss Vance said, this will permit great extension of its usefulness to people of the State.

TRADE BRIBERY.

A bill prohibiting trade bribery, or the offering of rewards or bribes to agents to influence their action in business matters, has passed the lower house of Congress. Business men will hope this measure becomes a law, as it should make competitive conditions fairer.

It is pretty discouraging to an honest salesman or dealer when he has done his best to put over a line of stuff on its merits, to loebusiness because some slick rival offered financial inducements to a buyer. Goods must cost more under such methods, as the inducement offered the buyer must be added to the price the consumer pays.

THE HOME RADIO

How to Make and Use It By A. HYATT VERRILL

III. WIRELESS TELEPHONY

In many ways, all the principles and laws of wireless telephony apply equally well to radio telephony, but, in other ways, there are great differences between the two. In the first place, the vibrations or waves sent out by the wireless telegraph transmitter are interrupted as they are produced by the vibrator of a spark coil and while the flow of the oscillations or waves may be so rapid that they appear as a steady stream, yet there is really a distinct pause after each one.

If a telephone transmitter and receiver were attached to the ordinary wireless instruments used in telegraphy, the sounds or vibrations of the voice would vary the path of the electrical oscillations and the same variations would be produced on the receiver. But, owing to the fact that the waves are interrupted and are not continuous, the words or sounds would be cut up into sections which would be meaningless, although such sounds as music, bells, whistles, etc., might be recognizable. In fact sounds of this sort frequently have been heard over ordinary wireless telegraph instruments. Hence it is easy to see that the only reason why all sounds cannot be carried through space by ordinary wireless telegraph apparatus is because of the interrupted or broken waves, whereas, if these waves were continuous or were so incredibly rapid as to appear continuous, the sounds they transmitted could easily be heard and understood. Therefore, the real fundamental key to successful wireless telephony lies in producing what are known as continuous waves and it is to the perfection and control of such waves that radio telephony owes much of its rapid advancement.

The accompanying figures, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 illustrate just how the interrupted telegraphy currents and the continuous waves carry sounds. These 1 represents the variations in vibrations in a certain word. 2, the intermittent oscillations of the wireless telegraph sender and 3, the way the words would be broken and interrupted by being transmitted by means of such interrupted waves. Figure 4, on the other hand, shows the continuous waves of the wireless telephone transmitter; 5, the sound waves of a word and 6, the way the continuous waves, interrupted by the words would appear. By studying these diagrams you can easily see the difference between the words broken up as in figure 3 and flowing smoothly as in figure 6. It must be borne in mind, however, that whereas the sounds of the voice, of music, etc., cannot be satisfactorily sent or received by wireless telegraph instruments, yet wireless telegrams can be sent to perfection, and can be perfectly received, over wireless telephone instruments. Indeed, the very best transmitting radiophone sets serve the best for sending telegraphic messages, the only difference being that for the former the continuous high frequency waves are used, whereas, when sending code messages by telegraph, the waves are broken or "chopped" by suitable instruments and a key which opens and closes the circuit.

In using wireless telephony, just as in wireless telegraphy, there must be two separate units known as transmitters and receivers and a transmitter can be used only for sending and a receiver for receiving. As the sending or transmitting apparatus of the wireless telephone is far more complicated than the receiving instruments, as the greatest interest in wireless telephony lies in receiving the messages, songs, etc., sent broadcast from large sending stations, and as the receivers are very simple and easy to understand or to construct, we will put the cart before the horse, so to speak, and consider the receiving end of radio telephony before we take up the sending end.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C.—When Oscar Underwood, of Alabama, was in the House of Representatives he built up a great reputation as an expert on the tariff; he became Chairman of the Committee on Ways & Means and his name became fastened on the tariff law which his committee compiled and put through the House. Under that measure the country enjoyed the greatest prosperity it has known, and it remained in the greed of American manufacturers to find fault with the law. Mr. Underwood is now the Democratic leader in the Senate. He has written for the New York Times, the greatest Democratic newspaper of this time, a long article on the proposed tariff law now before the Senate. Space forbids its use in full, but here are some of the most pertinent paragraphs:

"I have always opposed in principle the theory of protection, and have leaned strongly to the idea that customs taxation should be levied primarily in the interest of revenue for the Government, and that all rates of taxation should be so adjusted as to allow a reasonable inflow of goods from abroad in order that the Custom House might have an opportunity to take its toll as they passed through and some degree of competition might be established. I have never contended that, in the interest of a revenue tariff, it is necessary to bring about destructive competition, but a tariff that fixes the rate of taxation so high as to practically prohibit foreign goods from entering the American market at all has been abhorrent to my ideas of the proper use of the taxing power of the Congress of the U. S.

Outcasts All Other Bills.

"There are some few low rates in the pending bill. There are some articles on the free list. But, taking it all in all, it is undoubtedly the most prohibitive tariff bill that has ever been proposed in the American Congress, and the rates of taxation are higher and less defensible than any that have ever been presented to us in the past. It looks as if those charged with the responsibility of writing the bill have accepted unqualifiedly the rates proposed by the special interests desiring protection and have not given consideration to the resultant effect on the general business of the country or the burdens that must be borne by the consumers of America. Should the bill become a law, the American people will find this out in time, but it will be after they have paid the price of the experiment.

"The Democratic party is often charged with being a free trade party. So far as I am concerned, the Democratic party has never abandoned the system of raising taxes at the Custom House. There are fraternders in the Democratic party and I have known some of them, and I have known of some in the Republican party. As I understand it, the position of the Democratic party is that taxes levied at the Custom House should be for revenue purposes only, that the Custom House is a place where revenue may be obtained to run the Government, and that it provides a convenient way of raising a certain amount of revenue; that if a revenue tax be levied at the Custom House in such a way that it does not unduly stifle competition from abroad, and the person who pays it really pays it to the Government, it is a reasonable way to raise revenue. But when a tax is levied so high that very few imports come in—and if imports do not pass through the Custom House they leave no taxes behind them—the result is merely that of raising the price, which goes into the pockets of the home producer.

"The effect of protective tariff laws, as distinguished from tariffs for revenue only, has been to tax the great mass of the American people and to increase the profits of a few. I often hear socialism and communism condemned. I do not believe in either, but it is discrimination on the part of the few of the Government against the masses of the people for the benefit of the few, that sows the seed from which grows the tree of discontent, and discontent, when brought about by unjust laws reflects on the whole system of Government. I believe that the great powers of the Government are intended to be used only for the benefit of all the people, not for the promotion of special interests, and I care not whether those special interests come out of the fields of agriculture or arise from the smokestacks of a steel mill.

Where the Farmer Comes Out.

"In my opinion, if it were not for the support given this bill by Senators who represent agricultural constituencies it would be impossible to pass it through the Senate. The argument is advanced that since taxes are to be levied on manufactured products, taxes should also be levied on agricultural products, and that if the people are to be penalized for the benefit of the manufacturer they should likewise be penalized for the benefit of the farmer. Where the fallacy of this argument comes in is that under the guise of doing something to help the farmer in some particular item, their support is asked for a bill that as a whole means that for every dollar the farmer may derive from the bill they will pay $100 in taxes for the benefit of somebody else. In other words for every 1 per cent. of protection they are given they pay 99 per cent.

of protection for the benefit of other people. I do not think there is any question about that.

"Take the wool schedule, known as Schedule K in the Payne-Aldrich bill, but having a number in the bill that is now before the Senate. If the tax proposed in the bill is levied the farmer will have to pay the tax the same as does the man who lives in the city, the man who works in the store, the machine shop, the foundry or in an office. If the analysis be worked out it will be demonstrated that the tax of 33 per cent. on secured wool will cost the public nearly $200,000,000, of which those engaged in the growing of wool will receive something like $72,000,000, against which the farmers as a whole will pay about $99,000,000, the rest of the people will pay in proportion, while the Government will receive as its share of this enormous tax less than $20,000,000. Yet, it is contended that this duty on wool will help the American farmers. I admit it will help the men whose business is raising sheep, but the other farmers of the country, those who do not grow wool but raise wheat and corn and cotton, will pay the bill—that is, a most substantial part of it—and for every wool grower there are a thousand farmers who do not raise sheep. I do not have in mind the little farmer who raises cotton or wheat and has a few sheep on the side, but the man whose business is growing sheep and who are only a few in number when compared with the great mass of farmers who will pay so large a proportion of the tax proposed in the pending measure.

"So we find some of the proponents of the pending measure maintaining that its enactment will greatly relieve the agricultural situation in this country, because it raises the tax on their products at the Custom House. Personally I have never believed that such a tax would prove of any benefit to the American farmer. We are told how the bill is going to help the farmer by an increased tax on wheat, by increasing the tax on certain kinds of cotton, neither of which will ever be of any benefit to the farmer or put one dollar in his pocket. This talk may sound like music to the farmer, but does the farmer realize that there are also in this bill paragraphs taxing the necessities of life, necessities that are vital to the farmer, the necessities by which agriculture lives?

"When the present law was written not only were all kinds of fertilizer, which are imported into the United States and are valuable in the development of agriculture, placed on the free list, but binding twine for the man who raises wheat in the West and ties and bagging for the West were likewise placed on the free list. Under this bill they propose to put these things back on the tax list, and there is no evidence that either of those industries has suffered from outside competition under existing law. Some of the fertilizers coming into this market and many of the commodities from which fertilizers are made will be taxed, under the proposed law. I am confident that the farmer will not be long in finding out these things. The items I have cited are simply illustrative. Others which concern the welfare of agriculture can be found all through the bill."

A WEEK'S NEWS.

Kentucky will be face to face with a serious problem when on next Saturday, July 1, the appropriation for the maintenance of every pauper idiot in the State will lapse. What will be done with these public charges no one seems to know, but all agree that the situation will be a serious one. As a result, July 1, the State will cease to pay the yearly pittance for the upkeep of pauper idiots, and it will be up to the counties to take care of such persons within the boundaries of each. With the State allowance abrogated, county fiscal officers will have to wrestle with pauper idiot maintenance for the next two years. Even if the sum is scaled under the yearly allowance heretofore authorized by the State, it will prove a heavy drain on many of the counties with depleted finances.

Only about 80 per cent of the tobacco crop in Boone county has been set out, and a goodly portion of the last setting has died during the past ten days, owing to the intense heat and dry weather. So far in June there has not been a good tobacco season, but many farmers have set out their tobacco with settlers and made a season by the roadside, and which was set in May looks well and is growing nicely. It is not too late yet to set out a full crop, if we get a rain during the next week, but tobacco set after that time will be late and will cure up bad.

Ed. Graham, many years ago a citizen of Burlington, but now of Greensburg, Ind., and wife, were in Burlington, last Thursday. Ed. was viewing the scenes of his boyhood days and shaking hands with old friends. It has been about thirty five years since he left, and there have been many changes in the old town since he was a mere boy running the streets—a majority of those with whom he was acquainted having passed away. He was trying to locate the grave of his father, who was buried in the old cemetery just north of town.

The pooled wool delivered at the different sections in the county, last week, amounted to about 35,000 lbs., at 45 cents, brought quite a neat sum of money to Boone county farmers. Following is the number of pounds received at the different points: Burlington, 10,000 pounds; Walton, 12,000; Petersburg, 10,000; Bullittsville, 8,000. Mr. Geo. Penn, of near town had the banner clip, so far as we have heard—10 sheep that averaged 10 pounds to the fleece.

With the wheat and hay harvest about over, the farmers will have more time to devote to the tobacco and corn crops. Corn is growing fast and is looking good, but it is badly in need of rain. Some damage to tobacco, as well as other crops, have been caused by the hot, dry weather of the past month. Early garden truck has about burned up, with a good rain, the late planted would show great improvement.

The Florence fair dates for 1922 are August 30 and 31 and Sept. 1 and 2. The fair will be one of the best in the State. Special features have been secured by the management.

The Erlanger fair will be held August 16, 17, 18 and 19th, day and night. The grounds will be brilliantly lighted for the night shows. Band concerts, free acts, running and trotting races are special features.

At the rate the birds are now disappearing we believe that there are people now living who will see many of the feathered tribe entirely disappear. It is now a rare thing to see an oriole, cardinal, mocking bird, red bird, and weaver. The worst enemy to birds is the small boy with a gun. Parents should never let their boys kill the song birds, for who could live and enjoy life in the country without the birds?

Arthur Edson Blythe entertained about thirty-five of his friends at a birthday party last Wednesday afternoon, at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Blythe. The young people enjoyed the afternoon playing games. The young folks especially enjoyed the ice cream cones that were served during the afternoon.

Federal aid to the amount of $944,786 has been apportioned Kentucky for road construction during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, it has been announced by the Bureau of Public Roads, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Alfred Jones, carrier on R. D. 3 out of Burlington, has purchased a new Ford coupe and now you'll hear some people say—"But 'Pete' says 'nothing stirring'."

Miss Mary Thompson, who has been poorly for the past two or three weeks, is improving.

QUICK-ACTING

POISON USED

BY CHEMIST TO END HIS LIFE—BROODED OVER DIVORCE SUIT.

Joseph Humble, 31 years old, who was employed as Chief Chemist in the American Diamalt Company's plant at Cincinnati, ended his life at the home of his father, Joseph Humble, on a farm near Walton Thursday of last week by swallowing a poison which he knew would be quick-acting. It produced almost instant death.

Humble had recently separated from his wife, who had sued him for divorce in the courts at Cincinnati and the case was to have been tried this week. Brooding over the matter, it is believed, led to his determination to end his life. His wife is with her mother in Chicago.

Before taking the poison Humble wrote a brief note stating that he bequeathed all of his estate, of approximately $15,000, to his mother and father and the note was found at the bottom of his straw hat when his body was found.

Lucia C. Humble, 3177 Hillside avenue, sued Joseph Humble, chemist for the American Diamalt Company, for alimony, April 3, last. May 10th she filed a new suit, seeking both divorce and alimony. She charged cruelty, alleging that on March 24 her husband forced her back on a bed and hit her in the face, blackening her eyes, because she refused to go to the Hotel Sinton with him for dinner. She said she refused because he was intoxicated. She left him after the beating, she said, in her petition. They were married June 9, 1914.

HURRY.

Hurry is a chronic American disease, an evil habit that has fastened itself, cancer-like, on our life, and has sent its roots deep down into our vitals.

Hurry is not speed. It is not energy. It is not the opposite of slothfulness. It is not a means by which great ends are accomplished.

A study of the men of affairs, who have made or are making history, will demonstrate that hurry is not a characteristic of the man who is doing things worth while.

There are exceptions, of course, but almost invariably the man of affairs is deliberate. He accomplishes much, but he does it calmly, measuredly, and according to schedule.

His schedule is so planned, perhaps, that every moment of the working day is assigned, but there is sufficient time for each task when its time comes. He does not hurry.

The hurrying man is one who with his hurried plans, is trying to keep up with a poorly arranged schedule, and is always a little behind.

Some, because it involves lost motion, makes for inefficiency.

Many men imagine that hurry is a virtue, that their feverish activities help to keep them in the limelight.

Such activities may impress some persons, but not those who read below the surface.

Among the most reprehensible of the hurry tribe are those to whom traffic rules are anathema, and who are willing to take long chances to save 10 minutes in a trip to or from town.

It is this class that furnishes the daily menu of automobile casualties.

Perhaps the most effective punishment would be to give the traffic officers authority to order every speeding car to the side of the road, and there padlock it for half an hour, or more, according to the gravity of the offense.

Another class of the hurrier, who, however injures only himself, orders and eats his meals with a rush.

One chef is quoted as saying that the curse of American cooking is the injunction, "Rush this order, please."

Neither good preparation of the food nor good digestion goes with such an order.

Whoever is living a hurried life is living a poorly planned, disordered, nervous, inefficient life, and is meanwhile rushing the undertaker!—The Dearborn Independent.

PROTECT YOUNG CHICKS.

There is a summer disease in young chicks, known as cholera, that is causing considerable loss. The disease is coccidiosis and is recognized by continual sleepiness, drooping of the wings and paling of the color about the head. It is not very unlike cholera in appearance. This treatment has proven very effective: One 1/2 tablet of Bichloride of Mercury dissolved in one gallon of drinking water. Take care to put this solution in stone, glass or wooden troughs as it corrodes tin and granite. By keeping this treatment before your chicks two days out of the week you will control the trouble.

The streets of Burlington have been given a coat of oil.

HIGH TAXES IN THE COUNTRY.

Business men everywhere are complaining about high taxes. The country people echo this complaint, and usually they are the ones that suffer the most from high taxes, so they feel strongly on this question. In country towns, most property is easily visible. Land and buildings are never skipped by any assessor. It is easy to calculate what a man has for stock, farm tools, and machinery. The stock of country stores is visible and in the majority of cases is probably taxed well up to its value.

A great part of the wealth of the country is not so easily revealed. Tax laws are more or less antiquated, and have led to a good deal of concealment of property. It must be much more difficult to make a fair assessment on the assets of a large corporation or a great store than on a small one. It seems reasonable to believe that in many places such property is under assessed.

The result is that the property of a country town is usually assessed for its full value, while a good deal of property held by city people is not likely to be. Thus the country man feels the tax burden heavily. This has been a severe handicap in these times, when the costs of federal, state and local government have advanced rapidly. A great many farms and country enterprises have been in a period of relatively low taxation, and the struggling owners are demanding forcibly that these tax rates be kept down to the limit.

The country must have its good roads and schools. But the people demand that money be spent with the utmost efficiency. The costs of all forms of government must come down. If public men expect to get the rural vote, they must show up strong on economy. It is no time for extravagant projects, and all kinds of public work should be done in the simplest way.

TWO BIG GAMES OF BALL.

At Burlington, July 4th—A Day That Everyone Should Help Celebrate.

Two good games of ball will be played in Burlington July 4th, morning and afternoon. Manager Robert Berkshire will put his "All-Stars" against the strong Taylorport team.

He expects to take that into his camp, but the Taylorport boys cannot see it that way, and are firmly convinced that when the sun sinks behind the western hills on that national holiday they will have shown that Manager Berkshire's expectations were a myth, and that two victories will have been earned by the Taylorport club. The Taylorport boys say they will change the name of Manager Berkshire's "All-Stars" to "Has-Beens." The spectators will enjoy these games as each club is composed of good ball players, and regardless of who wins, they will see as good ball playing as can be seen on any amateur field. Come out and enjoy the 4th. Bring your dinners with you and enjoy that day on the campus of the Boone County High School grounds rooting for your favorite club. Plenty of nice shade.

STUDENT ESSAYS.

One of the charms of graduating exercises and school exhibitions is the spontaneity and fresh thought of the essays and orations prepared by graduates and other students. Parents and friends may feel that such passages sound immature, but the average student would prefer to have such productions given just as the young people wrote them.

In former years and in some schools, essays used sometimes to be presented that sounded as if some writer had been hired to do them. They might read as if parents and friends had doctored them up a good deal.

The audience might be dazzled by such polished periods, but shrewd listeners would guess they were not original.

Probably that kind of a thing is not done now, for people desire to see what the young people can do unaided. Their ideas may some times sound unoriginal, but they convey a spirit of courage and faith that is heartening to all who are interested in these young folks.

We have no fault to find with the man or woman who tries to keep fit. It is a very wise thing to do and to that very thing we owe much success of modern business. But there is such a thing as pushing the thing too far. A lot of people think that "keeping fit" is the most important thing in the world. They talk of nothing else and do nothing else. If a lot of these faddists were asked, "But what are you keeping fit for?" they would not be able to think of a thing to answer. They are merely keeping fit in order that they may keep more fit, which seems to be going in a circle.

W. L. Kirkpatrick was quite ill a few days last week.

SHERIFF'S FEES

HELD AT $5,000

COURT OF APPEALS SAYS THAT EXCESS MUST GO INTO COUNTY TREASURY.

Frankfort, Ky.—All fees in excess of $5,000 and the salary of necessary deputies and assistants, collected by Sheriff's of Kentucky must be turned into county treasuries and go to the payment of the cost of county government, the Court of Appeals decided. The question was discussed in a voluminous opinion written by Judge Bowman and concurred in by the whole court reversing the action of the Fayette Circuit Court which had held that Paul E. Shipp could bring suit against J. Walker Rodes and T. C. Bradley, former Sheriffs of Fayette county.

The opinion affects many counties throughout the State in which the Sheriffs have been receiving more than $5,000 a year in salary from fees. Officials here say it will save the State and counties many thousands of dollars annually. The case was the outgrowth of agitation for saving money to the State and counties and is backed by farmers' organizations throughout the State. During the last Legislature an effort was made to pass a bill introduced by James Park of Madison county limiting salaries by statute and providing penalties for failure to observe the section of the Constitution that limits all salaries except that of the Governor to $5,000. The bill passed the House but did not pass the Senate.

The county fiscal courts are charged by the court with the enforcement of the constitutional provision, in its opinion. It says that the sheriffs are required to make returns to the fiscal courts and that through these an exact accounting for his office can be obtained. Through the law requiring that the fiscal courts approve the appointment of deputies, the salaries and number of deputies can be regulated, the court said.

The opinion quotes at length section 246 of the State Constitution and says:

"The question is, does this provision per se interdict the retention of more than $5,000 per annum as compensation for the official services of the Sheriff, independent of the compensation of his legally authorized deputies and assistants, or is it only directory, requiring legislative action to bring it into full operation?"

The general opinion is that prohibitive and restrictive constitutional provisions are self-executing and may be enforced by the courts independent of any legislative action, according to that the fiscal courts.

"The absence of a penalty for the violation restrictive provisions is a circumstance tending to support the view that they are not self-executing, but it is by no means a conclusive test, for, as stated, the great weight of authority is that they are self-executing and may be enforced by the courts independent of legislative action," the court continued.

"But it is asserted that this provision is not self-executing, because there is no limit to the number of deputies that a Sheriff may employ, and consequently there is no way of determining what he shall pay deputies and assistants."

The opinion says it is competent for the Legislature to fix salaries and designate the number of allowable deputies and to provide the method and means of compelling obedience to the restrictions established as was done in an act passed in 1923 but later repealed.

TIME TO SPRAY

Now is the time to spray late summer and fall apples. Spraying at this time prevents apple blotch, bitter and brown rot and codling moth (late hatch). The spray to use is Bordeaux mixture—3 lb. copper sulphate 4 lb., stone of hydrated lime in 50 gallons of water to which 1 1/2 lb. of powdered arsenate of lead is added.

Since there is an abundance of apples this year it will be the sound apple of quality that will command the price. Nobody will want to buy a scabby, wormy bitter rot apple.

The peach crop may be saved from brown rot and scab by spraying with a home boiled lime-sulphur solution. The formula is 8 lb. sulphur, 8 lb. lime in 50 gallons of water. This spray should be applied about four weeks before fruit ripens.

County Agent.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Correspondents will please mail their communications one day earlier than usual, as next Tuesday is a holiday, July 4th and no rural mail will be carried on that day.

There's no excuse for getting sick and run down by eating garbage. Make you well, sturdy and strong. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

BIG MERGERS.

Some years ago people became greatly alarmed over the tendency to form great combinations, which seemed to be squeezing the little fellows out of business. Some predicted that the big trusts would be too unwieldy to live and that the small producer who gave close personal attention to his business could serve the public more efficiently.

The big combinations must have made good to a large extent, and must have effected important economies, else they would have not been able to retain their volume of business. And on the other hand the small producer is holding his own in many ways. It is pretty hard to drive out an industrious and intelligent man who gives close attention to the details of his business.

LICENSES FOR PASSENGER AUTOMOBILES.

The licenses for 1923 are as follows:

Passenger automobiles, 25 cents for each horse power and 40 cents on each 100 pounds of the weight of the automobile. The limit for loads hauled in trucks over pikes in Boone county between Dec. 1 and April 1 are as follows:

Three inch tires or less... 5,500
Three to four inch tires... 6,500
Four to five inch tires... 7,500
Five inch and over... 10,000
The above load limits include the combined weight of the load, vehicle and driver. The penalty for a violation of the load limit law is a fine of not less than $25.00 nor more than $200.00, and in addition persons who haul excessive loads are liable to any and all damage done to the roads.

1,600,000 POUNDS
ADDED TO POOL

FOR THIRD CONSECUTIVE WEEK CONTRACTS ADDED BY LEAF COOPERATIVE ASSOCIATION OVER 500 MARK.

Lexington, Ky.—For the third consecutive week new contracts signed by burley tobacco growers pledging their 1922 to 1926 crop to the cooperative marketing plan of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association, exceeded 500, according to the totals of the reports to Assistant Chief William Collins, of the Field Service Division, made public Saturday.

The past week contracts to the number of 252 were received, representing about 1,600,000 pounds of tobacco. More than 150 signed in West Virginia, and a number known to have been signed in other counties are not included in the report.

THE WORLD IN BLOOM.

The good old summer time brings a wealth of flowers into both the home gardens and wild nature. The richness of nature spends itself prodigally in these blooms, and it is a joy to the heart to take a triphorous open country.

The cultivated flowers have individually a more abundant and glorious beauty. But many of the common flowers grow in so prolific a way, that they constitute a mass of color more impressive than most formal gardens are.

A mass of these flowers gives a country landscape the appearance of some wonderful oriental rug, in which soft and radiant hues are gathered by the hand of the master artist, into a fabric far surpassing anything the craftsman could put together.

The farmers may say that many of these blossoms are only weeds, and that the cattle can't eat them, and they serve to no useful purpose. But they cheer the hearts of man and women, who find delight in a country side that has been made so lovely.

EGGS MUST BE CANDLED

No person engaged in the buying or selling of eggs shall buy or sell them without candling, and no payment either in cash or merchandise shall be made for those unfit for food. The apparatus to be used in candling eggs shall be approved by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. Anyone who violates the provisions of the law shall be fined not less than $10.00 nor more than $50.00. Under this statute it is the duty of every merchant when they buy eggs to immediately candle them, and he violates the law and subjects himself to a fine if he pays for eggs before he candles them.

Judge Gaines and bride came down from Walton Saturday afternoon and spent Saturday night and Sunday with Burlington friends. The Judge left Monday morning for Owensboro where he will convene the June term of the Owen county court.

Throw off that tired, rundown feeling and build up your strength by eating nourishing food. Tanaka does it. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

WASHINGTON COMMENT.

Educators and scientists have paid comparatively little attention to the self-arranged controversy which Mr. Bryan has staged between himself and the demonstrated facts of evolution, but the ends of education appear hardly well-served by attempting refutation of Mr. Bryan's ideas largely by ridicule.

Mr. Bryan has no power to alter the facts of nature, and what he believes or does not believe does not in the least affect the progress of science. But his abilities and his prominence have given him a large following, and as many worthy people let him do their political and moral thinking for them, it is of some interest to see that they do not also permit him to do their educational and scientific thinking too!

Mr. Bryan has demonstrated himself as perhaps the ablest orator in the country. He has a reputation as a speaker, due to his knowledge and outlook and experience as much, perhaps, as to his voice, his magnetic personality and his personal charm. But political, platform and oratorical ability do not constitute authority to say what is and what is not true in science.

Nor does a personal interpretation of the Bible constitute such authority. It is but a few hundred years since men were burned at the stake for heresy; and not much later that it was considered heresy to say that the earth was round, not the center of the universe, or that the "six days" of creation could mean anything else than one hundred and forty-four hours!

With literally thousands of able divines and learned scientists quite content with their ability to see only parallels and not a conflict between the Bible and the theories of modern science, it would appear wise, at least, for any who attempt to follow themselves whether they are led because Mr. Bryan is really a leader in either science or religion, or whether they have not thrown his political and oratorical mantle over his attempt to arrogate to himself a final authority in matters of science!

Senator Borah has added one more to his many services to the country. In a public letter he has stated: "Year after year Congress is lashed into passing laws which are manifestly unconstitutional, and it has been a settled principle apparently that Congress should disregard the Constitution and leave the Supreme Court alone to protect it."

"To my mind such a rule is so utterly shameful, so utterly intolerable that it is startling that it should be even spasmodically urged."

"If the people of this country have made up their minds to deal with all these matters (anti-lynching, child labor, etc.) through Congress, then why not give Congress the power to do so rather than urge a course which involves the lowest form of constitutional immorality."

Americans honor no virtue above courage. Courage in any form makes a mighty appeal to the people whose whole existence from the time of the pioneers to the present has been founded upon courage; courage to dare, to do, to think, to stand up and call the truth aloud. The great national heroes, Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt, are venerated first for their courage.

It is a non-courageous act to vote for a law which the voter knows is not constitutional merely to please or win the favor of the "folks back home." And it is insulting to the intelligence of these same folks back home—Americans all, intelligent, able to sift the wheat from the chaff—to suppose that they regard as courageous a man who votes for the law which conflicts with the Constitution merely because the intent of the law voted for is good.

Senator Borah hits the nail on the head when he calls the practice "smallness." Senator Borah has a moderation of speech which is admirable, but many will add "courageously" to "shameless" and express their opinion freely—to the polls.

SUMMER TRAINING SCHOOL.

The Summer Training School opened in the High School building last Monday morning. Prof. C. A. Carnegie, of Louisville, and Professor Cooper, of Mt. Washington, are the instructors. This school takes the place of the Institute, and all teachers who take the course of study are given credit in their school work. Two subjects must be taken, School Management and Reading. Other subjects are optional. One half of the expense of the school is paid by the State and one half by the county school board. The school course continues for six weeks.

Increased rates on agricultural products in the tariff bill now before the United States Senate will add $13.15 annually to the cost of living of every individual in the U. S. according to figures obtained by Senator David L. Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts, from the Department of Agriculture, and made public in the Senate, Monday.

EVOLUTION OF JULY FOURTH.

Two or three generations ago, judging by old newspapers, people took much more interest in the real meaning of July Fourth. Banquets and oratorical gatherings were held everywhere, with expression of fervent Americanism.

The glorious achievements of our country were celebrated, while the powers of Europe were spoken of as effete nations whose hun had set. There was something enthusiastic and likeable about the spirit of those old patriotic gatherings, even though some of the remarks would now sound rather crude.

People had simpler ideas in those days, and used to enjoy big noises and other primitive forms of celebration. So the habit of discharging firearms and making bonfires got established as a means of expressing national joy. As time went on and people grew more sophisticated, the adults got sick of kiddish ways of observance but the youngsters kept them up and developed them. They reached a point at one time where life in many cities on "the night before" bore a close approximation to one's conception of the infernal regions.

Fourth of July should be a glorious occasion, but we all seem too busy on various outings to observe it as it should be. Still many cities do show civic spirit by the interesting observances that they produce. A program of athletics is a suitable July Fourth event, and displays that manly prowess which enabled the struggling colonists to fight a severe war against terrible odds. Parades and fireworks can be pretty and interesting observances that delight young folks and give opportunity for artistic effects.

The day ought not to be passed without suitable recognition, since it marked a turning point in history. It signified that a force of freedom and justice was born into the world, which was bound to revolutionize human life on this planet.

M. Duke died June 13th, at his home in Aurora Ind., age 79 years 10 months and 10 days, of valvular heart trouble caused his death. He was in the flour mill business at Petersburg, Ky., for about five years, he was a member of the Baptist church and a Mason for over fifty years, lived in old Kentucky all his life until about eight years ago, when he moved to Aurora, Indiana, but he remained a Kentuckian as he would always go to Petersburg, Ky., to vote. He was a Confederate soldier and went out as a volunteer at the age of nineteen, and served until the end of the war. He started with the Flour Milling business with the old time burrs, and has been in the milling business all the time until he sold out the Petersburg flour mill some 10 years ago. The widow now 76 years of age, and two sons Sam and Will, and one daughter Miss Betty Duke survive. His remains were shipped back to Southern Ky. The Masons had charge of the burial.

Burlington Masonic Lodge will raise two Fellow Craft Saturday evening, July 1st, beginning at eight o'clock.

COLLIE DOG VAINLY TRIES TO SAVE JOSEPH HUMBLE.

Mother Finds Body After Barking Attracts Attention

The persistent barking of a dog led to the finding of Joseph Humble, 32 years old and expert chemist, lying in the back yard of his parents home on the Mt. Zion road in Boone county. The young chemist mother who discovered the body, had been talking to her son a few minutes before in the front part of the house, and had no intimation that he contemplated suicide. She found the Collie running excitedly about the body barking and trying to awaken his master, after trying in vain to arouse her son. Mrs. Humble called her neighbor Mrs. Geo. Bassett, who found a note stuck in the brim of his hat, and the bottle that contained traces of a violent poison close by his body, they then called for help and Dr. G. C. Rankin and Dr. Senour arrived half hour later, but he was dead ten minutes before the doctors arrived. Mr. Humble had been dependent since separating from his wife, Mrs. Lucia Orth Humble, two and one-half months ago. In the note that was found it was a plea for forgiveness for what he was about to do, and what he had taken. He had been worrying continually over the trouble with his wife. Mr. Humble was a brilliant young chemist and was on leave of absence from the American Diamond Co., 419 Plum St., Cincinnati, where he had been employed. Previous to his connection with the Diamond Co., he was employed for six years at the U. S. Food and Drug Laboratory in Cincinnati, where he was for a time chief chemist. John D. Park, of the wholesale drug firm of John D. Park & Son, 517 Sycamore Street, Cincinnati, was his uncle. Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at Highland cemetery chapel, Ft. Mitchell.

Do you invest your savings in bonds. If so, buy only gilt edged ones from substantial houses and then hold onto them. Don't become uneasy and unload the moment they go down a few points on the market. A bond that is worth having will pay par at maturity, and in the meantime it pays the interest provided for on its face. Speculators force them down and then buy them up in large quantities. They get the gravy while you get the experience.

Some people never pray until they get into a tight place, and then they come.

Hail Destroys Millions of Dollars of Tobacco

May Get Yours Any Day

The loss of tobacco by hail in this and other tobacco states within the last five years has run up into millions of dollars with only a small part covered by insurance. Yet, the amount of insurance received by growers who had the foresight thus to protect themselves against such loss, was enormous and should make every grower not only feel the necessity of insuring his tobacco crop against hail storms loss but to do that very thing and do it at once.

What Dr. Halley Says: Dr. Samuel H. Halley, of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association, upon congratulating an insurance company on lowering its rates on tobacco hail insurance, said, "Within the period that I have had hail insurance I have had four severe losses. The money I received exceeded considerably what I paid in, to say nothing of my peace of mind that I was fully protected in case of a storm. I have always advocated carrying hail insurance on tobacco without which every grower takes a chance to lose all. With it he can, in safety, go into the business of producing a crop which requires, as does tobacco, so much labor, time and money."

Now that the Burley Growers have gone into an organization to handle their business in a modern economic business-like way, I see no reason why all growers can not take out insurance on the reduced rates the companies are now quoting. Look up the insurance agent in your section now, and let him protect you against the loss of your tobacco. Policies effective July 10th, noon.

SLAUGHTER OF INNOCENTS.

Every year 20,000 children under fourteen are killed by accident in the United States. The Red Cross has been gathering the statistics and it finds this appalling total. No other human being can know the grief which fills the heart of a mother whose infant has been snatched from her. The sum of the suffering caused by the slaughter of the innocents is beyond computation, beyond understandable statement. There is another way of looking at this roster of meaningless sacrifice, however. Every one of the 20,000 children accidentally killed is a potentially useful citizen, a worker in industry, in commerce, in art, a great leader in politics, in social betterment. Every one of them is a possible defender of the republic. The vast, the overwhelming majority of them would surely grow up into good and useful citizens. Their parents feel the sorrow of their loss; the whole country bears another burden imposed by their death. Is it not worth while for everybody to help save them?

A South Africa pioneer captured a gorilla with his bare hands and dragged the animal in chains to the city, where he found a skilled surgeon and insisted upon the transference of certain glands after the Voronoff idea. As a result the hunter's waning eyesight is restored and he can see for miles. However, it is said to be difficult for the patient to restrain himself from climbing trees and picking coconuts. After all, a gorilla is not the best sort of a household companion, and too heavy a strain in the blood would be apt to spoil a man for the path of refined civilization. There can be too much monkeying with the monkeys. In gathering glands a patient should be a discreet and careful picker.

It is given out that the American people paid $3,000,000 last year to the telegraph companies for the privilege of using the superfluous word "please" in their messages. But no one will say that the money was really wasted. The word is seldom superfluous. It is a part of the courtesy that makes life worth living, says Los Angeles Times. If "please" and "thank you" were to be mustered out of the grand army of words in the business vocabulary of the nation, this would be a grim world, indeed.

The mikado's son, the crown prince, is in the midst of a violent love tangle with a pretty girl of the proletariat, and he's going to take a trip around the world to forget her. Nature never counts a girl's money when distributing beauty and other charms. That meanly job is left to those who clothe her.

It happened at a recent dance in Paris. The dance room was crowded and there was plenty of room for the dancers to gyrate in. Somebody had spread a small quantity of cornmeal on the dance floor. Over in one corner of the room stood a couple who had just retired from active exercise on the floor. The girl observed the cornmeal. "I wonder," she said, "why they put cornmeal on the floor when they dance?" Her companion reflected a moment, and then a bright idea struck him. Including War Tax.

The gifted man bears his gifts in to the world, not for his own benefit, but for the people among whom he is placed; for the gifts are not his, he himself is a gift to the community. That is the way Life gives gifts to the people; it wraps them up in men, and sends them forth. If then the bearer purloins the gifts for his own use, and turns his ability to serve into an excuse for overlordship and exploitation of those who need him, he is a traitor to the Universe. Every kind of ability or superiority is an obligation. Here is the solution of all racial, national, class and individual problems. Service is the badge of the great. There is no greatness without—Mr. Ford in The Dearborn Independent.

County Tax Commissioner J. S. Cason attended the meeting of all Tax Commissioners of the State at Frankfort, Ky., last week. The meeting is required by law and the commissioners receive instructions regarding the duties of their office. The State Tax Commission will not permit a reduction of land value of Boone county, as they claim that the records show that Boone county lands are not assessed at its value and commissioner Cason will not be permitted to reduce assessments, but he must hold the assessment of Boone county at its present assessment. To do this may require an increase in the assessment of land and town lots. The state needs the money, and as the rate is fixed the assessment must be increased. An increased assessment increases the amount that you are required to pay as taxes just the same as an increase in the tax rate.

Judge Stout of the Scott county circuit court has handed down a decision against Fayette and in favor of the State Tax Commission of reassessing Fayette and other counties that did not comply with the order to place an increase on the taxable property. The case will now go to the supreme court for final decision. It would not do to usurp the power of the State Tax Commission, as many of the counties might see fit to return a 25 per cent assessment and get by with it. Sufficient revenue has to be raised to meet the expenses of the State, and Fayette is not paying more than her share of the taxes. The State Tax Commission will undoubtedly go on with the reassessment of Fayette county, and when it is done it will show that Fayette is assessed mightily low.—Falmouth Outlook.

The Ladies of the Baptist Missionary Society of the Union Baptist church will serve dinner at Union Registration Days. The first day they will serve a fish dinner, the second day another good dinner will be served.

Duty of Sheriff—The sheriff shall, within ten days next after said appointment, give each officer of registration written notice of his appointment. It is the duty of the county Sheriff to furnish a suitable place in each precinct for the registration.

Clerk of Registration—Notices—Ten days before registration, the Clerk of Registration shall post notices in at least six conspicuous places in the precinct, stating the time and place of the Registration.

Return of Registration Books to County Clerk—It is the duty of the officers of registration to return the registration books to the County Clerk not later than three days after holding the registration.

Duties of County Clerk—The County Clerk shall make exact copies of all the Registration books, and preserve both the originals and copies in his office. He shall also keep a book showing the names of voters who have changed their voting precincts, and to what place.

The Original Registration books can only be taken from the Clerk's office for use in any primary, special or general election, or for use in registrations or by officers appointed to purge same, or upon order of Court in any trial growing out of the registration.

Purging Registration Books—At the request of either of the dominant parties, the County Board of Election Commissioners shall, not later than October 1st, appoint two officers for any precinct to purge books of that precinct and who shall meet on Tuesday after the 1st Monday in October. If the two purging officers disagree, appeal may be taken in the Circuit Court.

The Registration Officers to be appointed by the regular Board of Election Commissioners of each county in the same manner as regular election officers are appointed and not later than the 20th day of June, 1922 and annually thereafter.

Registration is for the purpose of purifying elections in Kentucky. The greatest privilege enjoyed by citizens is the right to vote. You can not vote unless you register on July 10th and 11th.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C.—"One of the most dangerous tendencies in our government is the evil growth of bureaucracy and of officialism, and this Ship Subsidy Bill presents the most flagrant and arrogant instance of it ever devised." So said Judge Davis of Tennessee, who brings one of the finest judicial minds of the country to his service in the House of Representatives. And there are enough Republicans in the House who are willing to join hands with the Democrats to defeat this vicious grab, but those who have seen how the thing is done are free to predict that before the bill comes to a vote the President will have bullied orajoiled enough members of his own party into line to put through his pet measure. "A ship subsidy bill," says the editor of the "Ship Subsidy," "well be inscribed on the President's shield, for that represents his attitude to a dot. Daily the Wall Street Journal boasts the one and knocks the other. Daily the President does the same. He has never been the soldier's bonus and does not even make good work of concealing the fact."

I quote some of the more pertinent paragraphs from Judge Davis' masterly arraignment of the Ship Subsidy Bill:

"One of the provisions of the bill is that 50 per cent of the immigrants to this country shall be transported in American vessels. Mr. Thomas H. Rosbottom, a representative of the Shipping Board, who testified at the hearings, estimated that under the present 3 per cent quota law, this traffic would give the transporting companies a gross income of $17,600,000 per year, of which one-half or $8,800,000 should come to American owners. He further stated that one-half of this sum would be net profit."

"It is important to note that this bill does not require the Shipping Board to make any report or accounting at any time to either the President or to Congress or to anybody else. Neither does it provide any appeal on any decision or action of the Shipping Board or any other tribunal. Proponents of the bill also conceive that there would not be any recourse in the courts. In other words the Shipping Board is all powerful and all supreme under the provisions of this most extraordinary bill."

"The $1,715,000 advertising fund being spent during the current year by the Shipping Board is not being spent in vain," he said, and called attention to the fact that while a statement of disbursements from this fund had been promised it had not been filed. He even asserted that the social lobby had been overworked to further this bill and exhibited expensive propaganda which had been sent broadcast to the press and individuals and asserted that employees of the Shipping Board were engaged in this work for weeks neglecting their regular duties. He declared that the propaganda programme was unseemly and reprehensible and should be rebuked of by Congress. The worst feature of it, he said, is that the propaganda is full of false and deceptive statements."

"Our government-owned merchant tonnage cost the people about $3,000,000,000. It is estimated that we will probably sell the ships for $200,000,000. Consequently the people will stand a loss by deflation of $2,800,000,000. Furthermore, it is contemplated that either existing shipping companies or companies to be organized, who buy the ships, will capitalize the ships largely in excess of their cost to them, and sell the stock and bonds to the American people—so that the people will be standing the war inflation, the post-war deflation, and then the promotion inflation."

THE DAY THAT NEVER DIES
No day of the Christian calendar is on a par with that of Christmas, but next to it the Fourth of July is the one most indelibly fixed in the minds of all American people.

It signifies LIBERTY, and liberty is our most cherished inheritance, bequeathed to us by our sturdy forefathers and maintained by our strength and determination.

July 4th is a great day for flag waving, speech making, and general jubilation. It is our annual method of signifying our undiminished admiration of our gratitude to the heroes of 1776 who won imperishable fame by freeing our struggling colonies from the oppressive rule of a foreign king.

Great events of history become dim in the minds of men as time flies on, but Independence Day remains ever green in memory and the deeds of its creators die.

Attention, Americans! Right hand, Salute!

RIOT GUNS FOR BANK.
During these times there is an uneasiness among bank managers because of the many "hold ups" being committed and precautions are taken in numerous ways. The State bank has been equipped with four Winchester repeater riot guns carrying buckshot. These will be placed at points near the bank and will be in the hands of men who know how to use them.—Rising Sun Reporter

AS THE EDITOR SEES IT.

THE WHO'S AND THE WHATS.

Everybody talks of the whys and the wherefores, but not always do we consider the who's and the what's.

In agitating for local improvements the most vital of all considerations are WHO will get the benefit and WHAT will be the results.

These are important questions which should be uppermost in our minds. They are questions which should be satisfactorily answered before any action is taken.

Let us continue to strive for the upbuilding of this community, but in the crystallization of our efforts let us go beyond the whys and the wherefores. The who's and the what's are of greater importance.

ONLY A TRIFLE.

Some days have passed now since J. P. Morgan and his syndicate of bankers refused to sanction a German loan, yet it has failed to create even a ripple of excitement, either of chagrin or relief.

The reason for our sublime indifference? The amount was too insignificant. Only a paltry billion dollars, or three hundred billions of German marks at the present rate of foreign exchange.

Trifles never bother us.

Don't stand still as the years go by. You can never catch up.

The most desirable of reputations are the easiest to lose. It requires years of correct living to build them up, but an incautious moment to destroy them.

Too many men seem to forget that they are judged not by what they really are, but by what they seem to be. Their actions and their words are the only things that count.

The little things of life are of vast importance. They indicate the character that lies beneath the polished surface, and it is from them that the most lasting impressions are formed.

A sanctimonious countenance is not indicative of a clean heart. It is a cloak under which many disreputable deeds are performed.

A cheerful smile, a truthful tongue and an honest heart are all that any person requires.

Character is built from these, and reputation is but the aftermath of character.

Quite a discussion is springing up as to who is our richest man. Some hand the palm to John D., while others claim that Henry Ford is entitled to the blue ribbon.

One enterprising writer suggests that the question be settled by reference to their tax receipts. But that would only serve to increase the doubt. Tax receipts are very deceptive and misleading.

There is, however, one way in which a solution to the problem could be found. Let them emulate Andrew Carnegie and give away their wealth.

Then the ribbon could go to the one who coughs up the most.

Don't be too hasty in condemning the fellow whose conscience troubles him. Possibly he is to be admired.

Whereas there is a normal mind there is supposed to be a conscience. But many of them do not function. Some, apparently, have even ceased to exist.

A conscience is a troublesome thing when it is in good working order. It is forever interfering with some long cherished plan or pet project. When we want to lull it to sleep it insists upon remaining wide awake. Hence we kick it, and cuff it, and trample upon it until it becomes blunted and calloused from incessant abuse.

And then it droops and fades away and we, being emancipated, proceed to prosper in the world of material affairs.

The more a girl pulls a young man's leg while single the tighter he will draw the purse strings after marriage. It is his only method of evening up the score.

The average young man with a best girl has to cough up lively these days. He has to put up a front in order to out distance his rivals and remain in the running.

Coughing up is his specialty, and many girls are experts in leading him up to the coughery.

Pulling his leg for endless treats may be great sport while it lasts, but it doesn't last long and it leaves a bad impression.

Even a very young man looks beyond the day when the preacher ties the knot.

Maidenhood should do no less.

A city exchange remarks that some towns spend more time in sounding their slogans than they do in cleaning their streets.

It is quite true, to the detriment of the towns. Glowing slogans cause the stranger to expect something out of the ordinary, and when he learns his mistake his interest ceases to exist.

Fine words on the wings of wind travel a long way, but a clean street leaves a more lasting impression.

THE BURDEN OF DEBT.
It is remarked by some authorities that the world is in for pretty hard times for a considerable period of years, owing to the tremendous burden of war debts. This thought may have been over estimated. In the anxiety to promote thrift, the handicap of debt has been made bigger than it need be.

The debts of Europe seem to be crushing, according to old standards. In England, for instance, the debt is about half the estimated national wealth.

If a similar obligation existed in this country, the average family would have to pay about $290 a year in interest alone, besides payment on principal. That is a heavy burden under existing conditions.

The debt of the United States, which is around $24,000,000,000, involves a payment of about $40 for interest annually for each family. This is not a crushing load by any means.

A business man who had gone thru a fire, and had come out with new debts which bore on him as heavily as the burdens named above bear on the average family, would not feel discouraged. He would grit his teeth, work a little harder, push his business a little more diligently, and in a few years would be in better standing than before.

The average person, if he would use his brains on his work, study how to improve his methods, make himself more familiar with the way success is achieved in his line, could add 50 to 100 per cent to his production.

If the people in our country and Europe could generally be persuaded to take hold with this energy and determination, they could be better off in five years than before the war. But the doctrine of doing less work and getting more pay will never produce that happy result.

Some motorists can't seem to understand why the telephone poles move out in the road and hit them.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Furnished on application. The value of the RECORDER as an advertising medium is unquestioned. The character of the advertisements new in its columns, and the number of them, tell the whole story.

Next Monday is county court.

Lloyd Weaver made a business trip to the city, last Friday.

Mrs. Laura Martin and daughter, Miss Nell, spent Sunday with friends in Covington.

Tom Walton and wife, of Newport, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pettit, Sunday.

D. R. Blythe has installed an electric coffee grinder. No coffee is ground until sold.

Mrs. Vina Kirkpatrick entertained a number of friends from Riverside, Ohio, Sunday.

No great popular grief is manifested when two automobile speeders run into each other.

Tanlac is a scientific triumph. Results prove it. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

Mrs. Alice Snyder, J. L. Kite and N. W. Carpenter were shopping in the city, last Saturday.

The Fiscal Court will not be in session next Tuesday on account of that day being a holiday.

Mr. Geo. Gano and wife, of Cincinnati, called to see Miss Mary Thompson, Sunday afternoon.

When we learn to know ourselves as others know us we will be proud of the things we haven't done.

Mrs. Sarah Carpenter and granddaughter, Miss Bessie Baldon, are visiting relatives in Aurora, Indiana.

A. B. Renaker, wife and daughter, Mary Louise, spent Saturday night and Sunday with relatives at Dry Ridge.

Rev. Adams, the regular pastor, occupied the pulpit at the Baptist church last Sunday morning and evening.

The congressmen do not seem to have passed many bills at this session, but anyway a lot of smelling has been done.

A six weeks Summer School began at the Boone High School building Monday, with Prof. Carnegie as the principal instructor.

Next Sunday a revival meeting will begin at the Burlington M. E. church, Rev. Hobbs assisting the pastor, Rev. Tomlin.

The curbstone loafers seem to think they are helping the city beautiful movement by exhibiting themselves on the sidewalks.

The hand that used to rock the cradle is now marking the ballot and deciding whom we shall have for president and governors.

L. C. Scothorn and family and Henry Seikman wife and mother, of Idlewild neighborhood, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hewitt.

It seems to be the opinion of many women folks that a lot of the old line politicians should come home and help Mother do the house work.

The picnic at the Harvest Home grounds last Saturday evening, was attended by a large crowd and very much enjoyed by all those present.

Who are the 12 greatest women in the United States? is asked. Most men will put Mother among 'em, particularly when they think of her pies.

It is difficult to escape getting your pocket picked when you go in a crowd nowadays, but quite likely the thief won't get anything but some laundry tickets and theater seat checks.

There are two coming events which our people want to keep in mind and be ready for. The two big games of ball at the High School campus on July 4th, and registration days, July 10th and 11th.

Norris Brook Company bought for W. M. Hise at the Ohio Shorthorn Breeders sale held at the Cincinnati Union Stock Yards, June 21st, a yearling Shorthorn bull Otisbein Beau. This bull is from the Otisbein Home farm, Lebanon, O., the best milking Shorthorn herd in Ohio. The grand dam of the Hise bull holds the Ohio state milking record and has a good show for the world's milking record which it looks as if she will win. Let the good work go on in improving our cattle breeding and help bring Kentucky back to her old time record of pedigreed cattle.

UNUSUAL AND AMERICAN

Here is something unusual in coats, quite new and thoroughly American in style. It is a snappy spring coat with a sporty flavor, made of a novelty mixture and distinguished by leather patch pockets and a leather belt. The pockets have a long slanted fringe, decorated with steel beads, and they bring to mind cowboy and Indian trappings. The collar is convertible—the sleeves a new type.

Few people realize the enormous effort required to make a single pound of honey. In a pound jar, a recent authority tells us, there is the concentrated essence of 62,000 flowers.

To make a pound of clover honey, the bees must take nectar from 62,000 blossoms and make 2,700 visits in getting it.

Often the journey from the hive to the flower and back is as much as two miles, so that the making of a pound of honey requires journeys that may aggregate more than 5,000,000 miles.

When we remember that single colony of bees will produce from 60 to 80 pounds of honey in a season we realize that the bee is indeed "busy."

HOGS DON'T SWEAT MUST HAVE SHADE.

Hogs are non-sweating animals and unless they are provided with protection in the form of shade or water for wallowing purposes, they suffer heavily from heat during the hot summer months, livestock men say. Many farmers are using concrete wallowing tanks successfully in keeping their animals cool while others have found shade to be the most practical form of relief on their farms. In either case, it is necessary to provide the animals with plenty of clear drinking water in order to keep down the suffering from heat most effectively.

If there are no trees in the pasture to provide shade, a good shelter from the sun may be constructed by setting short posts in the ground and building a roof of light boards over these. The boards should be nailed down to prevent their being blown away by the wind. If the owner wishes the building for permanent shade, rafters can be set up and the structure made more complete.

A shed-roof type of building 14 feet long and five and one-half feet high in front sloping down to three and one-half feet high in the rear has given satisfactory results on the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station farm, swine specialists of the station say. No sides are put on the building as free circulation of air is desired.

When concrete wallowing tanks are used in keeping hogs cool, a small amount of oil should be placed in the water to keep the animals free from lice. Care should be taken to see that wallows of all kinds are kept clean.

Doughboys, gobs and marines, who attend the American Legion national convention in New Orleans October 16 to 21, may obtain a "bunk" for $1.50 a day, as a result of an agreement between representatives of seven leading hotels and convention officials.

The hotel men have consented to establish a rate of $1.50 for rooms without baths and $2.50 with baths. This rate is based on a minimum of three persons to the room. If the service man prefers to dwell in solitary grandeur he will pay $4.50 or $7.50, dependent upon whether his room is equipped with a bath.

All reservations for hotel rooms during the five days of the convention will be made through the forty-eight Legion state adjutants, who will forward the reservations to the hotels and housing committee of the convention.

Some of the most famous hostleries in the South are a party to the agreements for reduction in rates. Included in the list are the Gruenwald, St. Charles, De Soto, Lafayette, Monteleone, Bienville and Planters. Legion officials obtained assurances from all hotel managers that all rooms, including those occupied by permanent guests, will be turned over to the convention visitors.

The row over the sale of liquor on Shipping Board ships is particularly interesting in that it is the first time that the Anti-Saloon League and Adolphus Busch ever agreed on anything.

How did your neighbor's last bargain tire turn out

PROBABLY you know at least one car owner who is always on the look-out for the cheapest tires he can find. He likes to get them by mail or at a sale or at some place where they have big red bargain signs over the door.

It would be fine if he could get "the edge" in every tire trade.

But the dealer can't afford to let him have it.

Even if a man saw any slight percentage in tire shopping at all—it disappeared when the "Usco" brought the price down.

A standard product—and the dealer sells it with pride.

A good tire. The dealer has no desire to trade you into a larger profit for himself.

United States Tires are Good Tires

Copyright 1922 U. S. Tire Co.

An out-in-the-open tire. The dealer sells you confidence, not price. He wants you satisfied with performance and value. The only way he knows to get your business is to do service.

This is the "Usco" idea.

Compared with the ten-minute thrill of the bargain appeal, the "Usco" is just plain common-sense.

Aurora, Indiana, having taken the place of Saylor Park, Ohio, in the Down the River League, Taylorsport had to journey to that town last Sunday, where she took the scalps of the Aurora team 8 to 2. Black was in the box for the county boys and pitched a good game, letting Abzora have only 3 hits. Next Sunday Taylorsport will play Miamitown at Miamitown. July 4th Taylorsport will play two games at Burlington, one in the morning and one in the afternoon. Manager Berkshire, who has picked a team from the county to battle with them, thinks he has collected an aggregation that will take their scalps. Come out on the 4th and root for your favorite team.

Florence journeyed to Hebron last Saturday and defeated the local team again 9 to 5. Hebron took the lead early in the game and held it until the sixth inning, when the visitors got busy with their sticks which helped with a few errors, put four runs across the plate, and although the home team tried their very best to overcome this lead, the opposing pitcher had them hitting everywhere else but in safe territory, after the first few innings, and they could not get in striking distance anymore. The Walton team will cross bats with the Hebron team next Saturday at Hebron. The Walton team has been winning pretty regularly from the other teams in the county. This will be an opportunity to see one of the best teams in the county play in this part of the county.

The "Old Stiffs" will play a team from the south end of the county at Burlington Saturday afternoon. A good game is expected.

Bellevue journeyed to Petersburg Saturday afternoon and were defeated by that team 11 to 5.

SECOND CROP OF SPUDS WILL BE PLANTED SOON.

Lexington, Ky.—The planting of Kentucky's second crop of potatoes will begin about July 10 and continue throughout the month, according to A. J. Olney, potato specialist at the College of Agriculture. The Bull Moose, Green Mountain, and Rural Russett varieties are the best planted about July 15th in this state while early varieties, such as Irish Cobbler and Early Ohio, can be planted as late as August 1 or even later if grown for seed, he said.

Planting the spuds on a piece of soil that has not grown potatoes for two or three years has been found to be a good practice in increasing the average yield. This lessens the possibility of the potatoes becoming scabby. It is advisable to plow the land and do the initial harrowing at least two weeks before planting time.

In order to allow the tubers to get into growing condition, the seed should be taken off storage about two weeks before planting. The best seed pieces are medium sized and free from scurf. Soaking the seed for from one and one-half to two hours before it is cut in a solution made of 4 ounces of corrosive sublimate and 30 gallons of water mixed in anything but a metal container, is an extra precaution against these diseases. Care is necessary in handling the solution as corrosive sublimate is a deadly poison.

After the seed is dried, it should be cut into blocky pieces having one or two strong eyes and as much of the potato with them as possible. In planting, it is well to remember that freshly manured ground is apt to encourage the growth of scab. Tests have shown that it is best to drop one seed piece in a place and to space the pieces about ten to 14 inches apart. From the time that the plants first come through until the tops cover the ground, they should be given thorough cultivation.

THE HOME RADIO

How to Make and Use It By A. HYATT VERRILL

IV. RECEIVING SETS

Broadly speaking, the receiving set consists of the antenna or aerial, the tuner, the detector and the receiver, but aside from the aerial, each part of the instrument is made up of several other units and appliances, each of which is used for a definite purpose.

The aerial, which is a wire designed to intercept or catch a portion of the continuous waves (always referred to in wireless telephony parlance as C. W.) consists of a single wire, for example, a wire stretched across a room or through a hallway indoors, or even a metal bedstead or bed spring, may serve as an aerial for receiving wireless telephone messages, although far better results are secured by properly installed aerials out of doors. And here it may be wise to impress all users of receiving sets with the fact that the longer the aerial and the higher above the ground the better will be the results obtained, although an aerial 150 feet long and well above other large buildings will serve every purpose. Moreover, it makes no difference whether the aerial is horizontal, vertical or at an angle, provided it is thoroughly insulated from all surroundings, and very good results have been obtained by aerials run vertically up an air shaft or along the side of a building. So too, the lead-in, or wire connecting the aerial with the receiving instrument, serves as an aerial itself and therefore a long lead-in with a short aerial will serve almost as well as a long aerial and short lead-in, which is a tremendous advantage to dwellers in hotels, apartment houses, etc., where it is very difficult or impossible to install a long and lofty aerial on the roof. But before going into details as to the installation of aerials, let us consider the rest of the receiving equipment and thoroughly understand its principles.

The detector, without which it would be impossible to register or detect the minute currents of waves which pass through the aerial is a very important part of the mechanism. There are two types of detectors in use, the first known as the crystal detector and the other as the vacuum tube. In the former, a crystal of some mineral—preferably galena—is used, while in the latter, a form of incandescent lamp with especially prepared filament is employed. Of the two, the former is the cheaper and is used on most of the cheap, ready-made sets, but it has limitations and is not nearly as satisfactory in many ways as the vacuum tube, as will be explained later. The third unit or tuner is the means by which the entire apparatus is made to pick up the sounds from some station or elsewhere and by means of which the sounds are shut out, so to speak, by means of the tuner can the receiving set be placed in synchronism, or "tune" with the waves carrying the sounds you wish to hear. The last unit or receiver is merely a telephone receiver made for the purpose and which, on a small set, is worn over the ears exactly as in receiving wireless telegraph messages.

Figure 7 illustrates in diagrammatic form these units with their relative positions in the set, but there are several good accessories which are essential to good results.

ELECTION LAW

HELD TO BE INVALID.

Injunction Is Granted To Frankfort Man in Opinion Handed Down By Appellate Court.

Frankfort, Ky.—The Smith-Minor general registration law passed by the 1922 session of the General Assembly was declared to be unconstitutional by Chief Justice Rollin Hurt, of Court of Appeals, All of the Justices of the Court concurred except Justice Clay, who presented a dissenting opinion.

The law was held to be unconstitutional because it did not provide for special elections and because it made no provision for registering public officials and others who were called away from their voting precincts on registration day by affairs that could not wait, and violates Section 6 of the constitution, which stipulates that all elections shall be free and equal.

Justice Hurt held that the General Assembly had conformed to all requirements in passage of the bill, and it was stated, it had been necessary that the fact it had been passed over the Governor's veto be noted on its face. The journals of the House and Senate are sufficient for this, he said.

The Purgation Board, which it was contended, was an unconstitutional Court, was held to be merely an arbitration board, from the decision of which a voter might appeal.

Justice Clay, in his dissenting opinion, held that the three days for registration fixed for the first year made ample opportunity for all voters to register, and that objections to the act were technical and devoid of merit. He asserted that where there was a doubt as to the legality of a law it should be resolved in favor of the Legislature and asserted that "it seems to me that 1,000,000 voters should not be deprived of the benefit of a registration law and the State denied the right to have public elections merely because an insignificant number of voters might not have the opportunity to vote at a special election, if, perchance, it should happen that such an election should be called."

TWELVE HUNDRED LEPROS AT LARGE IN NATION.

Public Health Service Warns of Danger of Insufficient Care.

Dr. C. H. Lavinder, assistant surgeon general of the Public Health Service, warns the nation of the dangers of its 1,200 lepers now at large in 25 states. He plans to ask Congress for funds and authority to round up all lepers and provide suitable quarters for them.

"While remarkable results are being obtained in combating leprosy in other countries, it is on the increase here," he said. "In the tropics, notably in Hawaii, lepers are being cured by the use of chaulmoogra oil, one of the new discoveries."

"But we have no success with it here, due to a difference in the blood consistency in this climate and of this race."

"We have built a leprosarium at Carville, La. It has rooms for only 200 patients, and now every available bed is occupied."

"We are compelled to inform health officers who come to us that there is no room. As it is next to impossible for each city to construct its own leprosarium, the sufferers are at large, and each day some one comes in contact with them, adding to the possibilities of the disease being communicated to others."

POWER OF EXPRESSION

For many years rural interests have not had adequate recognition. One reason has been that country people as a whole have not been good public speakers. They could talk freely among themselves but not many could get up in a legislative or other public assembly and make a logical presentation of their case, so as to win support for country interests.

To enable country life to protect itself and get right treatment, its young people must be trained in the power to express themselves. Every rural locality needs its high school where the pupils are taught as one of the most important things in life, how to express themselves well in public speech.

MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED.

The following marriage licenses were issued by the County Clerk last week:

Geo. Harp, 64, of Frankfort, Indiana, and Emma A. Gasper, 62, of Westfield, Ind.

Walter F. Hall, 23, Burlington, and Evaline Stephens, 17, Burlington.

After complaining of the small of stable manure and phosphate in the country, the city folks go home and breathe in the dirty coal smoke.

FARM HELP.

Some observers think the farmer's difficulty in getting reliable help is the long hours the "hired man" has to work. But it is doubtful if that counts much. Country life has many desirable features compensating for long hours of labor.

Probably the worst factor in getting farm help is the seasonal character of the work. It is highly discouraging to an "industrious man" to work faithfully all summer, and then find the farmer will have nothing for him to do for the winter. There is little satisfaction in hunting a new job every fall.

The problem of farm help can always be solved, if two conditions are met, comfortable living quarters and something to do for the off season. Many farmers are solving this question by giving their helpers freedom to develop little enterprises of their own, with some chickens, a cow or pigs, or a garden space, etc., when winter comes, they find things to do in their own little section of the farm enterprise. Some farmers keep their help from year to year by giving them fee rent of their quarters through the winter months.

Many farm hands become dissatisfied because their quarters are in poor condition. If this is the case, the "hired man" can be set to work repairing the same, on terms mutually fair. He can do it much cheaper than the work could be hired out. Or he can be put to work improving the farmhouse, barn, or other property. While it will cost something to keep him working all winter the property is being steadily improved by his labor, and its value is thereby growing. Its well kept appearance will be good advertisement.

The advantages of keeping a steady man year after year are great, and his added expense will pay for some extra expense in the off seasons.

COUNTRY PEOPLE ARE READING.

A recent survey of rural conditions in Blackhawk county, Iowa, brought out among other facts that the average family subscribed to about nine different periodicals, including daily and weekly newspapers, magazines and farm papers. A showing like this indicates that the country people are doing a lot of reading and they know what is going on. Not many city households would show nine different periodicals subscribed for.

The result is to produce a high level of intelligence in country districts, so that they give the safest guidance on public questions. In cities are hotbeds of vice, unrest, and radicalism. Country life provides the normal point of view, based on thoughtful investigation and reflection, which holds the nation true to the right course.

BOONE COUNTY CROPS.

Grain This Year Is Inferior Both in Quantity And Quality—Drought Hurts Crops.

Farmers will turn their eyes this week to the threshing of the wheat since most of the crop has been harvested. A large part of the crop this year was harvested earlier than usual on account of the dry weather which lasted thru out May and the earlier part of June, most of the grain being ripe well several days in advance of the usual time.

The yield of wheat is described as being only fair both in quantity and quality. The heads did not fill out as well as if there had been rain in May. A few farmers have reported yields as good as the average, but these are very much in the minority.

The hay crop that has been harvested during the last two or three weeks is the best in recent years. The dry weather that has prevailed has been favorable to the ripening and satisfactory curing of this crop.

Dry weather has begun to have its effect on the tobacco and corn crops in many sections, and a good rain would be welcomed anywhere in the county. The rain that has fallen during the month of June has been mostly in local showers and the supply has been inadequate in nearly every section.

Tobacco and corn have not suffered, but probably can not stand the drought much longer without considerable damage. Potatoes and oats have suffered perhaps more than any other crops from the drought, while gardens have been affected to a large extent.

Blackberries are plentiful, but the crop has been considerably diminished by the dry weather. The fruit crop in general is promising and, with favorable weather, it is likely that a bumper crop will be produced.

BIG APPLE CROP.

There is a big apple crop this year and we imagine that many an old farmer will be doing a good deal of work for years. The Vaseline will be cracked a good many times in this section when the side begins to grow old.

FARM BUREAU PIC-NIC

An Enjoyable Day Spent By Farmers and Their Wives.

The Farm Bureau picnic held at the Florence Fair ground Wednesday the 28th, was attended by a large crowd of farmers from different parts of the county. The program was of interest to all. Harry Harke, Director of the Farm Bureau for the Sixth District, acted as Chairman, and in introducing the speakers touched on a number of subjects of interest to farmers and Farm Bureau members. Dawson Chambers, of Independence, spoke on Marketing of Farm Products, and his talk showed that he was well informed on his subject. C. F. Howe, Food Chemist, of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, spoke on Animal Nutrition, and value of different kinds of feed. D. E. Vanatta, Chairman of the Agricultural Committee, Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, spoke on Farm Bureau Organization, giving the benefits to be derived from the organization by the members. Margaret Jones, of the Farm Federation, Louisville, addressed the speakers of the day's program, she spoke on the success of the Farm Bureau's New Kentucky Home, and drew the attention of the crowd during her talk, as she was a very interesting and entertaining speaker. The music for the day was furnished by Hafer's Orchestra. At the noon hour all were invited to the dining hall where a table was found loaded with all the good things to eat, such as only the good women of Boone county can prepare, and no one left the hall until his appetite had been thoroughly satisfied. After the noon hour the dining room was cleared and those who desired enjoyed the afternoon in dancing. The new building in Florence was inspected during the day and was found to be a model, and satisfaction was expressed by the members. The Bureau expects to have the warehouse open for business July 10th. President Penn and Farm Agent Sutton are to be congratulated upon the success of the day's activities, as they were untiring in their efforts to have a program that would be of benefit to all who attended.

When a man does commit a felony, society claps him in jail, if it can catch him. The offender has been supporting a family that leaves him a problem to be dealt with. In many places they are neglected. The wives and children may be worthy people, doing the best they can to make good in the world. But the father in jail may prove a handicap to their progress. Some people will fear the children might inherit the bad blood, and would dislike to employ them. Such families often become public charges from no fault of their own.

THE CONVICT'S FAMILY.

Society's duty does not end when an offender is locked up where he can reflect on his errors. There is an obligation to the innocent wife and family. If the home is broken up, an incentive toward straight living is taken away from the prisoner when he is released.

Society should look with interest and sympathy upon such families. They often have a difficult path to travel. Neighbors and townpeople should inquire into the welfare of these seeming needy and public officials and civic organizations should see if they need assistance or guidance.

THE NOISY FOURTH.

If in the palmiest days of the noisy Fourth of July celebration, you had offered a kid an elaborate collection of crackers and fireworks on condition that he go outside the town and set it off where no one would be bothered, he would promptly have turned it down. His enjoyment of the occasion was promoted by the fact that he was creating a disturbance.

The noisy household was irritated by the spirit, the more the boys bothered him. If he ever had a complaint, it would become the regular program of subsequent celebrations to see that he got proper attention.

Fourth of July has become a somewhat tame occasion since fireworks were limited, and home is broken up, may find those permitted by law too trifling to stir his interest. If noise had been the only objection to the old time Fourth, it would probably have gone on unchecked, but there was a long record of damage and injury that became intolerable.

MARRIED.

George Harp, 64, of Frankfort, Ind., and Mrs. Emma A. Gasper, 62, of Westfield, Ind., married at Burlington, last Wednesday afternoon, and after securing the necessary documents, were married in the Temple of Justice by the Rev. W. W. Adams, in the presence of a few witnesses. They were accompanied by the bride's sister and her husband.

HOW ABOUT YOUR PLANS.

If you're doing all your heart and soul could wish, prosperous, happy and gathering self culture, then stick to it and let well enough alone. If not doing well shift your gear, change your plans, map out a course of progress and labor early and late to fulfill it. If you do not know, hunt some one who does know, and whom you know knows. You can soon become a scholar if you begin to learn your lesson well each day.

They may be hard at first but two hours each day will soon make them easier. It is the constant dripping that wears the stone. You may have to cut out society to some extent, you may have to beat the sun up to get an hour each morning, but that early hour while your mind is fresh will do wonders and soon become a pleasure. No man can put up a good structure without a foundation, no man can succeed without a plan to work to on a five, or ten year stretch. Hard study, deep thinking, a trained mind and muscle will make you a success.

Do not be a piddler, a loafer or a small talk dispenser. Hitch your horse to the best star you can find, and begin your fight and remember that— "It is not luck nor chance nor fate, But the grit to get there, that make men great."

Primary books can be found along almost any line of study and when mastered others more advanced can be had.

Self improvement makes a better and more thoughtful citizen and broadens the paths of usefulness.—Ex.

500 MORE SIGN POOL CONTRACTS

Million and a Half Pounds Added To Burley Association Pledgees During The Past Week.

Lexington, Ky.—More than five hundred growers were added to the signed membership of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association during the past week, not counting the West Virginia and Eastern Ohio territory, in which Manager Clifton Rhodes and his staff of workers are said to be making considerable progress in the face of a determined fight made by warehouse and speculative interests.

More than a million and a half pounds of tobacco are added to the holdings of the Burley Association by the past week's work, is said at the office of the Field Service Division. Assistant Chief William Collins spent most of the week in the western part of the district, in the counties of Barren, Hart, LaRue, and Metcalfe, aiding local workers in perfecting campaign organizations. The belief is steadily growing among members of the Association that the sign-up of growers will be so thorough that not enough tobacco will be left to be marketed through the few loose legal warehouses operating in the Burley district to make the business profitable this year. Some counties have an almost universal sign-up and in others the amount signed up to the Association constitutes about 80 to 95 per cent of the production.

HALL—STEPHENS.

Miss Evaline Stephens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Stephens, and Mr. Walter F. Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Hall, all of this neighborhood, were married at the residence of Mrs. E. E. Kelly, in Burlington, last Wednesday afternoon, by Rev. W. W. Adams, of the Burlington Baptist church, in the presence of a few relatives and friends. Following the wedding ceremony the young couple returned to the home of the bride's parents out on the Florence place, where an elegant supper was served. On Thursday they were entertained with an excellent dinner by the groom's parents. Their many friends extend to them their best wishes for a happy future.

PROMPT JUSTICE.

Delays in prosecuting crime encourage more crime. Where trials are postponed, witnesses disappear, people's memory become less clear and criminals are apt to elude justice.

An illustration of the effect of prompt justice was given recently in Chicago, where as the result of an effort to clear up the murder docket, 12 of these men were sentenced to death and 12 given prison terms. The effect was remarkable, the murder rate in that city being reduced about half. Long delays in administering justice may have as harmful effect as wrong decisions. When vengeance comes swiftly, the result strikes terror to the hearts of evil doers. Justice should be swift as well as firm.

There is one sure way to get back some of the money you put into taxes, and that is to put some more in the banks of Boone county and have interest checks coming regularly.

COUNTIES MUST

MEET TAX RAISE

State Tax Commission May Not Reassess, Court Holds in Fayette Case.

INDIVIDUALS MAY APPEAL

Frankfort, Ky.—Appeal to the courts on the facts is the only alternative of counties that decline to comply with orders of the State Tax Commission to bring their assessments up to totals fixed by the commission.

The Court of Appeals in an opinion by Judge Sampson in the case of Fayette County against the State Tax Commission, held that the commission may not reassess the county, but the County Board of Supervisors must obey the commission's orders unless the Fiscal Court appeals. This was not done by Fayette county in time, and the Board of Supervisors must raise farm lands $600,000, town lots $3,000,000 and tangible personal property $6,400,000. The State Tax Commission may by mandamus compel the board to act, or, if it is not in session, may by the same process compel the County Judge to reconvene the board.

Scott, Union and Knott counties refused to meet the commission's requirements. A reassessment was started in Union, but suspended when this action was instituted by Fayette. All the counties by delay have lost their right to go to court on the correctness of the commission's orders, and will be bound by the orders.

When the returns were sent in from Fayette to the State Commission it made a tentative raise and, after a hearing, fixed the final raise the county would have to meet at $600,000 on the land, $3,000,000 on the town lots and $6,400,000 on tangible personal property. The county officers refused to make it, and the commission entered an order for a reassessment to be made by its own force at the county's expense. An agreed suit was filed to test the right of the commission to reassess. The Fayette Circuit Court sustained the right of the commission and the county appealed.

The Court of Appeals said the provision of the Act of 1917 authorizing such a reassessment has been repealed by the Act of 1920, and the procedure is for the Commission to fix the total amount of assessment on each class of property and for the Board of Supervisors to equalize the assessments at that total valuation. The Fiscal Court may wish much to time limit, appeal to the court from the order on the question of its correctness. Otherwise, it has no discretion but to comply.

Each individual taxpayer, whose assessment is raised in the process of equalization, has a right to appeal to the courts.

WORKING IN HOT WEATHER.

Warm weather has a somewhat unfavorable effect on industrial production, since most people feel rather languid on a warm day. In extreme weather it is wise for everyone to moderate his pace a little, and many working forces become so listless that they force themselves much less than they are capable of.

The employer who keeps his workrooms comfortable gets much better results in summer. A poorly ventilated factory is not favorably planned for good production results at this time of year. The people who are not used to working out doors are almost prostrated when they attempt farm or garden work on a warm day. Meanwhile the old hardened farmer keeps on hoeing or cultivating cheerily, and does not seem to think much about exposure. The warm weather tests the kind of physical condition one has been maintaining. Those who wilt down easily suggest that they have been neglecting their bodily development.

WILL NOT REGISTER.

The voters of Boone county have been relieved of the duty of having to register on July 10th and 11th, by a decision handed down by the Court of Appeals, last Thursday, declaring the law passed by the 1922 session of the General Assembly to be unconstitutional. All the justices concurred in the opinion except Justice Clay, who presented a dissenting opinion.

BIG WOOL CROP.

From 150,000 to 200,000 pounds of wool will be handled through 15 to 20 wool pools formed in Tennessee this year. Woolgrowers in Virginia are also assembling wool for grading at eight different points this year, the largest pool being at Alexandria, Va. Wool classifiers from the United States Department of Agriculture will conduct investigations in the use of Federal tentative wool grades by the local pools.

TEACHERS ATTENDING

There are about forty teachers in attendance at the summer school being taught at the Boone County High School.

A WEEK'S NEWS.

REVIVED GARDEN TRUCK SOME. The light shower last Wednesday evening helped to revive garden truck some.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN. Last night the Hebron Theater had Charlie Chaplin in "The Kid" which is one of Chaplin's best films.

QUAIL PLENTIFUL. Quail in this county is said to be abundant. It has been a good season for them—not much wet weather.

PURCHASED FORD FOR PASTOR.

The members of the Burlington Baptist church have purchased a Ford auto for their pastor, Rev. W. W. Adams.

MOSTLY CITY DWELLERS

At the time of the Civil War only three per cent. of the population of the United States lived in cities, while today more than one-half are city dwellers.

EVERYTHING IS DRY, WEAVER.

Lloyd Weaver, who was born and reared on Gunpowder creek, says he never saw Gunpowder creek as dry as it is at present, to have had as much rain as we had a month ago.

HOGS SCARCE.

Hogs in Boone county, and especially young pigs, are said to be very scarce, due to the fact that farmers have had bad luck in breeding the past two years. Showers are demanding a good price.

HAD INTERESTING MEETING.

Burlington Masonic Lodge had a very interesting meeting Saturday night. Two candidates were raised to Master Masons. A number of visitors from neighboring lodges were present. After the work a lunch was served.

AT WORK ON PIKE

A force of hands began work last Thursday, putting the Burlington and Florence pike in traveling condition. The county fund was supplemented by a private subscription in order to get this much needed work done.

A CONNECTICUT YANKEE

A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court was the attraction July 4th at Burlington Theater. This is a first class film, and all who appreciated humor enjoyed this production, taken from the book of Mark Twain.

BOTH LOVE OLD BOONE.

W. L. H. Baker and Bert Smith, former citizens of Boone county, but now residents of Newport, were in Burlington, last Thursday, and made this office a pleasant call. They both have good positions in the Newport Postoffice and are making good.

RETURNED HOME

Flave Louden, who has been in Christ Hospital, Cincinnati, for the past ten weeks, and who underwent two very serious operations, was able to return to his home last Friday. His many friends will be glad to know that he has about recovered and able to be about.

VISITED JERSEY BREEDERS.

Farm Agent Sutton in company with Farm Agent Link, R. G. Warner and five other gentlemen from the Campbell County Jersey Breeders Club, visited several of the Jersey breeders in Boone county, last Thursday, and purchased a registered Jersey bull from the Boone county club of Jersey breeders.

WAS IN SESSION

The Kentucky Press Association was in session at Crab Orchard last week. Crab Orchard is said to be a fine place for a vacation, but some of the things that used to be made at Crab Orchard are no longer made there, and the water in the springs had to be used in the dining rooms of the editors. Things are not quite like they used to be.

PROTECT AND FEED QUAIL

Quail are classified as songbirds by the Minnesota State Humane Society. The executive committee of the society has adopted resolutions urging the farmers of all states where there are quail to feed and care for them because of the fact that the small amount of grain expended would be abundantly repaid in the destruction of seeds of noxious weeds and insect pests.

WILL NOT PLANT ANY MORE.

Tobacco growers who did not get all their crop out at the last season in this county have about decided against planting any more. No rain has fallen, excepting a few local showers, since the 23rd day of May, which have not been sufficient to make a season. Some who tried to get a better report that the plants were all dead. What plants that are left are in pretty bad shape.

LEGION NOTES

Washington, D. C. — President Harding together with Senators and Representatives in Congress from Iowa have received copies of a resolution unanimously adopted at Des Moines, Ia., by the Iowa Bankers' Association, representing more than 1,800 Iowa bankers, favoring immediate enactment of the American Legion's adjusted compensation bill now before the Senate. President MacAdams of the American Bankers' Association was present at the Des Moines meeting.

New Orleans, La. — Especially equipped box cars, attached to passenger trains, will carry hundreds of members of the 40 Hommes and 8 Chevaux, the American Legion's playground society, to the annual promenade nationale of the organization to be held in conjunction with the national Legion convention in New Orleans, October 16-20.

Omaha, Neb. — Going on record as opposed to violations of the eighteenth amendment, the Omaha, Nebraska, American Legion at a special meeting voted to reprimand members who violate the amendment.

New Orleans, La. — Senators E. S. Broussard and Joseph E. Ransdell of Louisiana, who have been named in press dispatches among opponents of the soldier bonus bill, have informed an American Legion post commander in New Orleans that they favor the measure.

Omaha, Neb. — A "Knocker" Night" meeting held by the Douglas county post of the American Legion at Omaha, Neb., proved a howling success. Every member was invited to air his grievance and make suggestions. The post chaplain recommended the formation of a Saturday night "American Army" that with five, drum and orator would preach the gospel of Americanism on the street corners, especially in the foreign quarters of the city.

Providence, R. I. — Following the example of New York state, Rhode Island has set aside a fund for the relief of unemployed world war veterans. The administration of the fund has been placed with the American Legion which will investigate all cases of distress and need among former service men.

A bill to appropriate $25,000 to help defray expenses of the American Legion national convention in New Orleans next October has passed the House of Representatives of Louisiana. The city council of New Orleans expects to give $10,000 toward the entertainment of the Legion visitors.

New York City. — Murray Watkins, 55 years old, claiming to be a former chief of President Theodore Roosevelt, was apprehended in New York recently wearing the uniform of an army major. His bogus regalia attracted the attention of American Legion men who reported the facts to the authorities. Watkins has already begun his three year jail sentence.

Los Angeles, Cal. — For several months the Government has been chasing Geo. T. Johnson, an ex-magistrate around the country, trying to present him with a roll of citations and other official papers due him for his war services. The former "leath-erneck" has at last been found by the Los Angeles, Cal., post of the American Legion.

Arco, Idaho — Each Sunday one of the churches in Arco, Idaho, extends an invitation to the local post of the American Legion to use its sermon hour for a lecture on "Americanism."

New York City. — The $3,463 left from a fund raised by the old Manhattan Club of New York for the purpose of defense during the war, has been turned over to the New York American Legion to be used in building a veterans' tuberculosis camp in the Adirondack mountains.

Providence, R. I. — More than 250 American Legionnaires in Rhode Island are already making plans to attend the national Legion convention in New Orleans in October. Rhode Island Legion men will join with those of other New England states in chartering a steamship to take them to the old Southern city.

Detroit, Mich. — As a monument to Michigan's war dead, the Michigan American Legion will build and equip a home for orphans of world war veterans. The Legion will raise the necessary funds without drawing from the public coffers.

It is difficult for some folks to think that a physician can be kind hearted, when he declines to relieve their sufferings by giving them a liquor prescription.

Naturally the women folks don't want to tell their ages when they are asked, as it might injure their chances of getting taken for flappers.

The railroads are trying to persuade the public to use cars in going to their crossings, but some folks seem to hurry to catch the train.

LOWER PRICES FOR VARIOUS HIGHWAY MATERIALS REPORTED

A considerably lower level of prices for the various items entering into highway construction is reported by the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. This conclusion is based on the following prices by successful bidders on Federal-aid roads during April and are averaged for the whole of the U. S. Some of the figures cover a large volume of work well distributed over the country, while others are based either on small volumes or scattering reports. The figures which cover the cost in place are as follows: Earth excavation, common, 33 cents a cubic yard; rock excavation, $1.26 a cubic yard; gravel, $1.44 a cubic yard; sand-clay, 45 cents a cubic yard; crushed stone, $3.42 a cubic yard; structural concrete of various classes ranges from $14 to $21.20 a cubic yard. For surfacing the following are the prices by the square yard: Gravel, 40 cents; surface-treated macadam, 60 cents; bituminous macadam, $1.06; bituminous concrete, $1.97; reinforced, $1.17; reinforced cement concrete, $2.54; and brick $3.70. Reinforced steel has cost $0.053 a pound and structural steel $0.059 a pound. Cement has been furnished to contractors by the following States at the prices given by the barrel: New York, $1.73 Wisconsin $1.94; and Arkansas, $2.70.

GREAT SYSTEM OF HIGHWAYS PLANNED FOR UNITED STATES.

A system of highways that will serve the whole country and will be far superior to any other in the world is being mapped out by Federal and State engineers. It is estimated that the system will comprise 180,000 miles of road. The Federal highway act recently enacted specifically requires that all Federal aid be spent on a connected system of highways consisting of not more than 7 per cent of the road mileage in each State, and that this system shall consist of interstate or primary roads and intercounty or secondary roads.

Proposed systems have been received by the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture from all the eight States. They are plotted on a large map of the United States and carefully examined as to coordination with the roads of adjacent States and service to all sections of the country. Where coordination is not satisfactory conferences are held with all interested State highway officials and routes adjusted.

Many states have already adjusted difficult problems with their neighbors. As an example the system sent in by Nebraska showed a big gap in an important road along the northern boundary. It was learned, however, that South Dakota would follow with a system that would fit like pictures on toy blocks. Since the Federal highway act of last November became a law, only roads certain to be on the system have been approved for construction.

TODD JERSEY OWNERS WILL BOOST DAIRY IMPROVEMENT

Lexington, Ky. — Following the recent organization of the Todd County Jersey Breeders' Association with ten charter members, interested farmers and dairymen in that section of the State have set about to carry out a definite program for the improvement of their herds, according to E. M. Prewitt, dairy extension specialist of the College of Agriculture. Their program includes the blending of a car load of Jerseys to be sent to the coming State Fair, increased support for boys' and girls' dairy club, the introduction of more purebred sires and the elimination of scrubs and grades, increased advertising, and the testing of more cows for Register of Merit classification. This last point is to be given special attention in view of the fact that Todd and Christian county dairymen already have sold more than $20,000 worth of stock as the result of testing which they have done under direction of the college.

SUNSHINE NEEDED IN HOG BREEDING

Modern, Comfortable Houses Are Profitable Investment.

DESIGN WITH GOOD POINTS

Building Here Illustrated Has All Modern Equipment for Insuring Little Pigs and Mothers Plenty of Air and Sunshine.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1227 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Hog raisers are in the same position as every other manufacturer of food-stuffs to earn a profit they must raise more hogs at the least possible cost.

The shortest cut to profitable hog raising is to feed the little pigs and their mothers plenty of sunshine and sunshine doesn't cost a cent—nature provides it freely, more freely at some times than at others, but no matter how great or small is the supply, it is free.

Sunshine keeps little pigs from contracting disease; it keeps their pens free from disease germs, and from cold and damp which are two deadly enemies of the animals in their infancy. By admitting plenty of sunshine into their living quarters, a greater proportion of each litter will live to become sacrifices to the need for ham and bacon, to say nothing of pork chops.

Of course, the easiest way to bring the little pigs and the sunlight into contact is to allow them to run out doors. But in the late winter and early spring, when a great majority of pigs are born, it is too cold for them. They must be housed in buildings that will protect them from cold and drafts, but the building must be so constructed that there will be an abundance of sunshine in their living quarters.

This need of young pigs has been thoroughly recognized by modern farm building architects, and they have designed buildings that will keep the pigs and their mothers warm, allow them plenty of fresh air without drafts, and at the same time admit the life and health-giving sunlight.

How this is accomplished is shown by the building in the accompanying illustration. This frame structure, 24 feet wide and 70 feet long, will house 20 sows and their young. It is set on a concrete foundation and has a concrete floor. The floor enables the farmer to keep the house clean and sanitary. One half of the pen floors, that half that is next the outside walls of the building, is covered with planks, raised an inch or so from the concrete. This permits a circulation of air underneath the planks, on which the bedding is placed, and prevents the pigs from coming in contact with the cold, damp concrete.

But the most essential feature of this building is the windows in the walls and roof. These windows are so located that every bit of sunlight available in February and March has access to the pens, killing the disease germs that thrive in the dark and damp, and warming the interior of the house. Later in the spring, the windows provide means for greater ventilation of the house.

The pen partitions may be either of wood or metal, the latter being preferred, as it is more sanitary. There is less chance for dirt to adhere to it than to wood; also it is more easily cleaned. Through the center of the building is the feeding alley, sufficient wide for a wagon to be driven through for either distribution of feed or removal of litter. Sunk into the concrete floor is a gutter, which may be holed out, and raised above it are the feeding troughs in front of each pen. Records show that the price of live stock has decreased less than any other farm product. While feed is cheap, hogs are bringing a good price, comparatively, and hog raisers are much encouraged over the prospects. However, greater production at a less proportionate cost means profit for the farmer who markets his corn on the hoof.

During the last few months building costs, or, rather, the cost of building materials has been reduced more than 25 per cent. Lumber dealers everywhere have revised their price lists downward, and farmers who have put off building for this reason can now go ahead with a reasonable assurance that they will be getting their buildings at a cost that has little chance of being much lower for several years to come.

How much this building will cost can be easily ascertained by consulting with the local lumber and building material dealer and the contractor. If it is decided to go ahead with construction work, it is the best policy to build from plans, as with the plans before him the contractor has no excuse for mistakes.

Building this year will be heavy, as buildings are needed, both in the large cities, the rural communities and on the farms. Those who take advantage of the spring season to get needed buildings erected, will be in a position to properly house their live stock and crops next fall.

CLASSED AS DEADLY POISON

Wool Known Generally as "Poison Ivy" Has Been Under Investigation by Government Chemists.

Poison Ivy has been under investigation by the United States bureau of chemistry and it is declared to be one of the most powerful poisons in the vegetable world. People have been known to die from too liberal a contact with it.

Poison is present in all parts of the plant, and if taken internally is extremely dangerous. It is described as a violent irritant poison—an oily substance, the slightest trace of which on the skin will produce severe inflammation.

ELECTION LAW

HELD TO BE INVALID.

Injunction Is Granted To Frankfort Man in Opinion Handed Down By Appellate Court.

Frankfort, Ky.—The Smith-Minor general registration law passed by the 1921 session of the General Assembly was declared to be unconstitutional by Chief Justice, Rollin Hurt, of Court of Appeals. All of the Justices of the Court concurred except Justice Clay, who presented a dissenting opinion.

The law was held to be unconstitutional because it did not provide for special elections and because it made no provision for registering public officials and others who were called away from their voting precincts on registration day by affairs that could not wait, and violates Section 6 of the constitution, which stipulates that all elections shall be free and equal.

Justice Hurt held that the General Assembly had conformed to all requirements in passage of the bill, and it was stated, it was not necessary that the fact it had been passed over the Governor's veto be noted on its face. The journals of the House and Senate are sufficient for this, he said.

The Purgation Board, which it was contended, was an unconstitutional Court, was held to be merely an arbitration board, from the decision of which a voter might appeal.

Justice Clay, in his dissenting opinion, held that the three days for registration fixed for the first year made ample opportunity for all voters to register, and that objections to the act were technical and devoid of merit. He asserted that where there was a doubt as to the legality of a law it should be resolved in favor of the Legislature and asserted that "it seems to me that 1,000,000 voters should not be deprived of the benefit of a registration law and the State denied the right to have pure elections merely because an insignificant number of voters might not have the opportunity to vote at a special election, if, perchance, it should happen that such an election should be called."

TWELVE HUNDRED LEPROS AT LARGE IN NATION.

Public Health Service Warns of Danger of Insufficient Care

Dr. C. H. Lavinder, assistant surgeon general of the Public Health Service, warns the nation of the danger of its 1,200 lepers now at large in 25 states. He plans to ask Congress for funds and authority to round up all lepers and provide suitable quarters for them.

"While remarkable results are being obtained in combating leprosy in other countries, it is on the increase here," he said. "In the tropics, notably in Hawaii, lepers are being cured by the use of chaulmoogra oil, one of the new discoveries."

"But we have no success with it here, due to a difference in the blood consistency in this climate and of this race."

"We have built a leprosarium at Carville, La. It has rooms for only 200 patients, and now every available bed is occupied."

"We are compelled to inform health officers who come to us that there is no room. As it is next to impossible for each city to construct its own leprosarium, the sufferers are at large, and each day some one comes in contact with them, adding to the possibilities of the disease being communicated to others."

POWER OF EXPRESSION

For many years rural interests have not had adequate recognition. One reason has been that country people as a whole have not been good public speakers. They could talk freely among themselves but not many could get up in a legislative or other public assembly and make a logical presentation of their case, so as to win support for country interests.

To enable country life to protect itself and get right treatment, its young people must be trained in the power to express themselves. Every rural locality needs its high school where the pupils are taught as one of the most important things in life, how to express themselves well in public speech.

MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED.

The following marriage licenses were issued by the County Clerk last week:

Geo. Harp, 64, of Frankfort, Indiana, and Emma A. Gasper, 62, of Westfield, Ind.

Walter F. Hall, 23, Burlington, and Evaline Stephens, 17, Burlington.

After complaining of the small of stable manure and phosphate in the country, the city folks go home and breathe in the dirty coal smoke.

FARM HELP.

Some observers think the farmer's difficulty in getting reliable help is the long hours the "hired man" has to work. But it is doubtful if that counts much. Country life has many desirable features compensating for long hours of labor.

Probably the worst factor in getting farm help is the seasonal character of the work. It is highly discouraging to an "industrious man" to work faithfully all summer, and then find the farmer will have nothing for him to do for the winter. There is little satisfaction in hunting a new job every fall.

The problem of farm help can always be solved, if two conditions are met, comfortable living quarters and something to do for the off season. Many farmers are solving this question by giving their helpers freedom to develop little enterprises of their own, with some chickens, a cow, pigs, or a garden space, etc. When winter comes, they find things to do in their own little section of the farm enterprise. Some farmers keep their help from year to year by giving them fee rent of their quarters through the winter months.

Many farm hands become dissatisfied because their quarters are in poor condition. If this is the case, the "hired man" can be set to work repairing the same, on terms mutually fair. He can do it much cheaper than the work could be hired outside. Or he can be put to work improving the farmhouse, barn, or other property. While it will cost something to keep him working all winter the property is being steadily improved by his labor, and its value is thereby growing. Its well kept appearance will be good advertisement.

The advantages of keeping a steady man year after year are great, and his added efficiency will pay for some extra expense in the off seasons.

COUNTRY PEOPLE ARE READING.

A recent survey of rural conditions in Blackhawk county, Iowa, brought out among other facts that the average family subscribed to about nine different periodicals, including daily and weekly newspapers, magazines and farm papers. A showing like this indicates that the country people are doing a lot of reading and they know what is going on. Not many city households would show nine different periodicals subscribed for.

The result is to produce a high level of intelligence in country districts, so that they give the safest guidance on public questions. The cities are hotbeds of vice, unrest, and radicalism. Country life provides a normal point of view, based on thoughtful investigation and reflection, which holds the nation true to the right course.

BOONE COUNTY CROPS.

Grain This Year Is Inferior Both in Quantity And Quality—Drought Hurts Crops.

Farmers will turn their eyes this week to the threshing of the wheat since most of the crop has been harvested. A large part of the crop this year was harvested earlier than usual on account of the dry weather which lasted thru out May and the earlier part of June, most of the grain having ripened well several days in advance of the usual time.

The yield of wheat is described as being only fair both in quantity and quality. The heads did not fill out as well as if there had been rain in May. A few farmers have reported yields as good as the average, but these are very much in the minority.

The hay crop that has been harvested during the last two or three weeks is one of the best in recent years. The dry weather that has prevailed has been favorable to the ripening and satisfactory curing of this crop.

Dry weather has begun to have its effect on the tobacco and corn crops in many sections, and a good rain would be welcomed anywhere in the county. The rain that has fallen during the month of June has been mostly in local showers and the supply has been inadequate in nearly every section.

Tobacco and corn have not suffered, but probably can not stand the drought much longer without considerable damage. Potatoes and oats have suffered perhaps more than any other crops from the drought, while gardens have been affected to a large extent.

Blackberries are plentiful, but the crop has been considerably diminished by the dry weather. The fruit crop in general is promising and, with favorable weather, it is likely that a bumper crop will be produced.

BIG APPLE CROP.

There is a big apple crop this year and we imagine that many an old settler will be duty that has not been working for years. The Valedictory will be cracked a good many times in this section when the golden apples begin to grow old.

FARM BUREAU PIC-NIC

An Enjoyable Day Spent By Farmers and Their Wives.

The Farm Bureau picnic held at the Florence Fair ground Wednesday the 28th, was attended by a large crowd of farmers from different parts of the county. The program was of interest to all. Harry Harkle, Director of the Farm Bureau for the Sixth District, acted as Chairman, and in introducing the speakers touched on a number of subjects of interest to farmers and Farm Bureau members. Dawson Chambers, of Independence, spoke on Marketing of Farm Products, and his talk showed that he was well informed on his subject. C. F. Howe, Food Chemist, of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, spoke on Animal Nutrition, and value of different kinds of feed. D. R. Vanatta, Chairman of the Agricultural Committee, Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, spoke on Farm Bureau Organization, giving the benefits to be derived from the organization by the members. Margaret Jones, of the Farm Federation, Louisville, addressed the speakers of the day's program, she spoke on the success of the Farm Bureau's New Kentucky Home, and she held the attention of the crowd during her talk, as she was a very interesting and entertaining speaker. The music for the day was furnished by Hafer's Orchestra. At the noon hour all were invited to the dining hall where a table was found loaded with all the good things to eat, such as only the good women of Boone county can prepare, and no one left the hall until his appetite had been thoroughly satisfied. After the noon hour the dining room was cleared and those who desired enjoyed the afternoon in dancing. The new warehouse in Florence was inspected during the day and was found to be a model, and satisfaction was expressed by the members. The Bureau expects to have the warehouse open for business July 10th. President Penn and Farm Agent Sutton are to be congratulated upon the success of the day's activities, as they were untiring in their efforts to have a program that would be of benefit to all who attended.

THE CONVICT'S FAMILY.

When a man does commit a felony society claps him in jail, if he can catch him. If the offender had been supporting a family the leaves of the day's activities, as they were untiring in their efforts to have a program that would be of benefit to all who attended.

Society's duty does not end when an offender is locked up where he can reflect on his errors. There is an obligation to the innocent wife and family. If the home is broken up, an incentive toward straight living is taken away from the prisoner when he is released.

Society should look with interest and sympathy upon such families. They often have a difficult path to travel. Neighbors and townspeople should inquire into the welfare of those seeming needy and public officials and civic organizations should see if they need assistance or guidance.

THE NOISY FOURTH.

If in the palmiest days of the noisy Fourth of July celebration, you ever offered a kid an elaborate collection of fireworks and firecrackers on condition that he go outside the town and set it off where no one would be bothered, he would promptly have turned it down. His enjoyment of the occasion was promoted by the fact that he was creating a disturbance.

The noisy household was irritated by that spirit that the boys bothered him. If he entered a complaint, it would become the regular program of subsequent celebrations to see that he got proper attention.

MARRIED.

George Harp, 64, of Frankfort, Ind., and Mrs. Emma A. Gasper, 62, of Westfield, Ind., motored to Burlington, last Wednesday afternoon, and after securing the necessary documents, were married in the Temple of Justice by the Rev. W. W. Adams, in the presence of a few witnesses. They were accompanied by the bride's sister and her husband.

HOW ABOUT YOUR PLANS.

If you're doing all your heart and soul with, prospering, happy and gathering self culture, then stick to it and let well enough alone. If not doing well shift your gear, change your plans, map out a course of progress and labor early and late to fulfill it. If you do not know, hunt some one who does know, and whose you know knows. You can soon become a scholar if you begin and learn your lesson well each day.

They may be hard at first but two hours each day will soon make them easier. It is the constant dripping that wears the stone. You may have to cut out society to some extent, you may have to beat the sun up to get an hour each morning, but that early hour while morning is fresh will do wonders and soon become a pleasure. No man can put up a good structure without a foundation, no man can succeed without a plan to work to on a five, or ten year stretch. Hard study, deep thinking, a trained mind and muscle will make you a success.

Do not be a piddler, a loafer or a small talk dispenser. Hitch your horse to the best star you can find, and begin your fight and remember that—"It is not luck nor chance nor fate, but the grit to get there, that make men great."

Primary books can be found along almost any line of study and when mastered others more advanced can be had.

Self improvement makes a better and more thoughtful citizen and broadens the paths of usefulness.—Ex.

500 MORE SIGN POOL CONTRACTS

Million and a Half Pounds Added To Burley Association Pledges During The Past Week.

Lexington, Ky.—More than five hundred growers were added to the signed membership of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association during the past week, not counting the West Virginia and Eastern Ohio territory, in which Manly Clifton Rhodes and his staff of workers are said to be making considerable progress in the face of a determined fight made by warehouse and speculative interests.

More than a million and a half pounds of tobacco are added to the holdings of the Burley Association by the past week's work, it was said at the office of the Field Service Division. Assistant Chief William Collins spent most of the week in the western part of the district, in the counties of Barren, Hart, Larnue, and Metcalfe, aiding local workers in perfecting campaign organizations. The belief is steadily growing among members of the Association that the sign up of growers will be so thorough that not enough tobacco will be left to be marketed through the few loose leaf warehouses operating in the Burley district to make the business profitable this year. Some counties have an almost unanimous sign-up, and in others the amount signed up to the Association constitutes about 90 to 95 per cent of the production.

HALL—STEPHENS.

Miss Evaline Stephens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Stephens, and Mr. Walter F. Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Hall, all of this neighborhood, were married at the residence of Mrs. E. E. Kelly, in Burlington, last Wednesday afternoon, by Rev. W. W. Adams, of the Burlington Baptist church, in the presence of a few relatives and friends. Following the wedding ceremony the young couple returned to the home of the bride's parents out on the Florence pike, where an elegant supper was served. On Thursday they were entertained with an excellent dinner by the groom's parents. Their best wishes for a happy future.

PROMPT JUSTICE.

Delays in prosecuting crime encourage more crime. Where trials are postponed, witnesses disappear, people's memory become less clear and criminals are apt to elude justice.

An illustration of the effect of prompt justice was given recently in Chicago, where as the result of an effort to clear up the murder racket, 12 of these men were sentenced to death and 12 given prison terms. The effect was remarkable, the murder rate in that city being reduced about half. Long delays in administering justice may have a harmful effect as wrong decisions. When vengeance comes swiftly, the result strikes terror to the hearts of all. Justice should be swift as well as firm.

There is one more way to get back some of the money you put into taxes, and that is to put some more in the banks of Boone county and have interest checks coming regularly.

COUNTIES MUST MEET TAX RAISE

State Tax Commission May Not Reassess, Court Holds in Fayette Case.

INDIVIDUALS MAY APPEAL

Frankfort, Ky.—Appeal to the courts on the facts is the only alternative of counties that decline to comply with orders of the State Tax Commission to bring their assessments up to totals fixed by the commission.

The Court of Appeals in an opinion by Judge Sampson in the case of Fayette County against the State Tax Commission, held that the commission may not reassess the county, but the County Board of Supervisors must obey the commission's orders unless the Fiscal Court appeals. This was not done by Fayette county in time, and the Board of Supervisors must raise farm lands $600,000, town lots $3,000,000 and tangible personal property $6,400,000. The State Tax Commission may by mandamus compel the board to act, or if it is not in session, may by the same process compel the County Judge to reconvene the board.

Scott, Union and Knott counties refused to meet the commission's requirements. A reassessment was started in Union, but suspended when this action was instituted by Fayette. All the counties by delay have lost their right to go to court on the correctness of the commission's orders, and will be bound by the orders.

When the returns were sent in from Fayette to the State Commission it made a tentative raise and, after a hearing, fixed the final raise the county would have to meet at $600,000 on the land, $3,000,000 on town lots and $6,400,000 on tangible personal property. The county officers refused to make it, and the commission entered an order for a reassessment to be made by its own force at the county's expense. An agreed suit was filed to test the right of the commission to reassess. The Fayette Circuit Court sustained the right of the commission and the county appealed.

The Court of Appeals said the provision of the Act of 1917 authorizing such a reassessment has been repealed by the Act of 1920, and the procedure is for the Commission to fix the total amount of assessment on each class of property and for the Board of Supervisors to equalize the assessments at that total valuation. The Fiscal Court may, within the time limit, appeal to the court from the order on the question of its correctness. Otherwise, it has no discretion but to comply.

Each individual taxpayer, whose assessment is raised in the process of equalization, has a right to appeal to the courts.

WORKING IN HOT WEATHER.

Warm weather has a somewhat unfavorable effect on industrial production, since most people feel rather languid on a warm day. In extreme weather it is wise for everyone to moderate his pace a little, and many working forces become so listless that they don't accomplish much.

The employer who keeps his work rooms comfortable gets much better results in summer. A poorly ventilated factory is not favorably planned for good production results at this time of year. The people who are not used to working out doors are almost prostrated if they attempt farm or garden work on a warm day. Meanwhile the old hardened farmer keeps on hoeing or cultivating cheerily, and does not seem to think much about exposure. The warm weather tests the kind of physical condition one has been maintaining. Those who wilt down easily suggest that they have been neglecting their bodily development.

WILL NOT REGISTER.

The voters of Boone county have been relieved of the duty of having to register on July 10th and 11th, by a decision handed down by the Court of Appeals, last Thursday, declaring the law passed by the 1922 session of the General Assembly to be unconstitutional. All the Justices concurred in the opinion except Justice Clay, who presented a dissenting opinion.

BIG WOOL CROP.

From 150,000 to 200,000 pounds of wool will be handled through 15 to 20 wool pools formed in Tennessee this year. Woolgrowers in Virginia are also assembling wool for grading at eight different points this year, the largest pool being at Alexandria, Va. Wool classifiers from the United States Department of Agriculture will conduct investigations in the use of Federal tentative wool grades by the local pools.

VISITED JERSEY BREEDERS.

Farm Agent Sutton in company with Farm Agent Link, R. G. Warner and five other gentlemen from the Campbell County Jersey Breeders' Club, visited several of the Jersey breeders in Boone county, last Thursday, and purchased a registered Jersey bull from the Boone county club of Jersey breeders.

WAS IN SESSION.

The Kentucky Press Association was in session at Crab Orchard last week. Crab Orchard is said to be a fine place for a vacation, but some of the things that use to be made at Crab Orchard are no longer made there, and the water of the famous springs had to be used in washing down the dinners of the editors. Things are not quite like they use to be.

PROTECT AND FEED QUAIL.

Quail are classified as songbirds by the Minnesota State Humane Society. The executive committee of the society has adopted resolutions urging the farmers of all states where there are quail to feed and care for them because of the fact that the small amount of grain expended would be abundantly repaid in the destruction of seeds of noxious weeds and insect pests.

WILL NOT PLANT ANY MORE.

Tobacco growers who did not get all their crop out at the last sale in this county have about despaired of planting any more. No rain has fallen, excepting a few local showers, since the 23rd day of May, which have not been sufficient to make a season. Some who tried to get a better report that the plants were nearly all dead. What plants they are left are in pretty bad shape.

Earl Cropper, after a three week's vacation with his mother, Mrs. Lorena Cropper, left Monday to resume his duties as salesman for large Cincinnati firm. His territory includes Southern Kentucky and Northern Tennessee.

N. W. Carpenter and wife had as their guests last Sunday, W. G. Snyder and wife, of North Madison, Ind., D. C. Snyder, wife and son David, of Walnut Hills, Ohio, C. L. Gaines wife and two daughters, Mildred and Helen, Miss Pamela Corbin, of Limaburg, Mrs. Fannie Snyder, of Petersburg, Mrs. D. M. Snyder, of Burlington.

Lightning killed three fine Jersey cows for William Ute, of the Limaburg neighborhood, last Sunday afternoon. Mr. Ute went to get his cows at milking time, and found them dead under a cedar tree. They were insured in the Boone County Breeders Mutual Insurance Co.

No rural mail was delivered on the 4th.

GOODNESS KNOWS WHAT NEXT.

(Whitesburg Eagle.)
Innovations come and innovations go, in Whitesburg as well as anywhere else. When the bicycle came we didn't believe it, when the telephone came we were agnostic, when a big railroad engine came pawing up the snake-like valleys of the Northfork looking like it would knock the old Pine Mountain 'tother side of Jordan we couldn't believe our eyes, when the automobile came pantin' along, mornin' gas as its only force of propulsion, we were dazed and knew it couldn't be so, and now Jim Frasier is laying sidewalks in front of his new store building with window lights in them. If you want to see yourself in them or see down below you must stand on your head. Well, innovations, accommodations, vituperations, aggravations and—pshaw now!

G. O. P. GEMS

(From Ohio State Journal (Rep.))
Opposites attract opposites and perhaps the fact now pointed out by Senator Lodge, that President Harding has never misinterpreted his relations to the universe, explains why dear Cabot seems to like to go to the White House parties so well.

The conscienceless Democrats accuse our towering Republican leaders of not daring to take a firm stand, and here within the space of a week our great President has endorsed George Washington and Francis Scott Key in the boldest and most unequivocal terms and we noticed the other day that our great Ohio Captain, Hon. Carmi Thompson, had placed the stamp of his unqualified approval on the Ohio River and its possibilities, let the chips fall where they might.

Success involves its penalties and we have our moments of depression when we almost wish that we Republicans were in the minority, so the fool things we do wouldn't be so noticeable and thence the Democrats would do if they had the chance would show to good advantage in this critical hour.

Well, the Old Guard candidates are taking the stump and our prediction is that the abolishment of human slavery is going to come in for some very warm endorsements now and very warm endorsements between now and election.

(From the New York Times (Ind.))

The evidence is ample that no tariff bill ever raised up so many enemies, even in its own household, as the measure now hung up in the Senate. This unpopularity appears in all parts of the country and in every kind of business opinion. Newspapers hitherto of the straightest sect of protectionism are so disgusted with the proof they get of public dislike of what Congress is doing that they are calling upon it to throw the bill out of the window and adjourn as soon as possible.

ROMANCE OF ADVERTISING

Life is short and the young business man of these days will not always follow in the footsteps of the older generation. He is trying to study out the heart of business, learn the reasons why some men go ahead and others fail, so that he can apply to his career those basic principles that create prosperity in a business. Thereby he hopes that he can achieve success by less painful efforts than were required in the old days.

The old timers may say that anyone must plod the same old path that they trod to achieve success. But it would be strange if the younger generation, which is studying every aspect of life with scientific thoroughness, can not find out new and better paths. Ten years from today, many of us will be astonished to see how these young fellows have gone ahead as the result of their more thorough training, and their more buoyant imagination. The success of many men has elements of romance much like any story of adventure, as seen in ability to accomplish great results in spite of difficulties and dangers.

One of the means by which the coming generation will attain success by paths which seem very short to the old timers, will be the more enterprising use of advertising. The young people have studied the methods and advantages of publicity, and they will never attempt to get along without its help as some of the former generation did. As a result one can fairly expect from them successes or prompt and noteworthy that they will have an element of romance in them.

As an encouragement to all business men young and old who attain hopes of better success during the coming season. The Recorder will during the coming weeks print a few little editorials under the head "The Romance of Advertising." Not all the romance and adventure is found in the movies and library shelves. Men people can find instances in their own experience and this newspaper will suggest how they happen.

New Orleans—A modern hotel on wheels with a capacity of 14,000 guests will be operated by four large railroads during the national convention of the American Legion in New Orleans October 16 to 21. The rolling hostelry will be 465 pullman cars parked in four large railroad yards.

Equipped with electric lights, shower baths and all facilities of a hotel, the cars will be the homes of thousands of visitors during the five days of the convention. One of the largest parking yards is only four blocks from Legion national headquarters hotel, while the others are located at distances necessitating only a short street car ride.

The railroads have established a rental and parking charge which will enable the Legionnaire to obtain his "bunk" for about two dollars a day, including pullman charges enroute.

The pullman hotel project has appealed to Legion men in many parts of the country. One of the largest railroads has announced that its reservations for cars have filled parking space available. Minneapolis Legion men have reserved space for 25 cars; Louisville, 15; Washington, 20; Cleveland, 7; and other reservations are on file from Detroit, Atlanta, Birmingham and Pittsburgh.

PUBLIC SCHOOL SENTIMENT.

The progress made by a public school in a town depends largely on the extent to which the parents back it up. If they insist on a school run on strictly old fashioned lines, a bright and clever teacher brought up with the new ideas will become discouraged with the obstruction and will be likely to quit and allow the school to languish.

While no country district cares to go in for frills and fads, it ought to support the school authorities in certain basic ideas of progressive education. The school ought to give instruction in sewing and cooking and garden work, and if possible in some forms of manual training. The country town school can't go in for heavy expenses along these lines, but much good work in training the eye and hand can be done with but little money.

AS THE EDITOR SEES IT.

TOO MUCH AND NOT ENOUGH.

Why so much politics in the average country town or small community?

Why so little cooperation in the interest of local advancement? Will the solution to these problems, remove the cause, and you will more than justify your presence as a citizen.

Continued co-operation will make any community. Excessive political activity will throttle it.

We can find no fault with maintaining party lines in national and state affairs, but when they are drawn and tightened to include the small home town it has a tendency to destroy the hearty co-operation that is essential to local amity and prosperity.

Neighbors who think first of party ascendancy in time become so engrossed in their political strife they consider little else. Thus the legitimate plans for local improvements are advocated by the party adherents who propose them and are opposed by the members of the opposition party.

One group of active citizens is pulling against another regardless of the merits of the questions at issue, while the inactive class stands idly by and watches one bunch smash the other.

Political hatreds and community animosity are thus engendered to the detriment of progressive advancement.

A PLAIN CASE OF DUTY

Don't neglect the children. They may not exert any great influence upon the community life of today, but in a few short years they will be directing the affairs of the community while we will be looking on—or will have passed on.

As we train them today, so will they be then. And as they are then so will we of today be judged.

We can not escape our duty. It is plain and squarely before us. We may shrink it, and squirm out of it, but in the end we must pay, even in person or in memory.

The child does not come into this world of its own volition, and it should not be left to its own devices. That which we create we must protect and foster and bring as near to a state of perfection as is humanly possible. Nothing else will suffice in the eyes of Him who created mankind.

The home without children is not without a duty to the children of other homes. They form an integral part of the community, and as such are entitled to the co-operation and encouragement of the remainder of the community.

The child may not say much in the presence of its elders, but it sees much and remembers much of what it sees and hears.

Thus are its impressions formed, and these are the beacon lights that beckon it on to a life of honor or of ignominy.

"Remember the days of thy youth" Though an adult today, you were a child once yourself.

There are other children around you.

THE SPIRIT THAT WINS.

The cultivation of a fraternal spirit it has much to do with the success of a local community.

Where the population is limited the indifference or selfishness of a single individual exerts a depressing effect upon others, and this attitude of pessimism in turn permeates the whole community. Men and women who really desire to advance the interests of themselves and their neighbors find it difficult to work to advantage when disaffected ones are continually throwing a wet blanket over every new project that is proposed.

Investigation and discussion are both commendable and desirable, but pessimistic remarks and pulling back in the community harness are on a par with a balky horse. They render more or less futile the efforts of those who would push forward to ultimate achievement.

A community of brothers working together in harmony is far better than one of opponents pulling in opposite directions.

Why cause the warm weather? The Lord made it, and what is good enough for Him ought to be good enough for us.

If we didn't have the warm weather with its bright sunshine we would not have any crops to feed us, and if we didn't have any feed we wouldn't long be here, and if we were not here we would miss all of the wonderful things that are created for our special benefit.

The warm weather is all right—perhaps a little uncomfortable at times, but quite necessary to our material well being.

Make the best of what the Lord gives you and you won't feel like complaining.

In one of our great cities there is a family composed of the parents, one little boy about six years of age, and a baby. The husband is a musician, and it is possible you have listened to his banjo on your Victrola.

Recently a number of friends were invited to a Sunday dinner. When seated at the table the husband quietly raised his hand. A sudden hush ensued. Neither of the parents are over zealous attendants at church, and the husband can even swear like a pirate. The guests were plainly puzzled.

Then a tiny voice was heard, asking God to bless the food, and the parents, and the baby brother, and the friends who were guests of the home.

Levity? You could have heard a pin drop.

Do it now. Make that your rule of life and success will be assured.

Many of the failures in the business world are caused by short-sightedness and procrastination. Putting it off until tomorrow means that in many cases it is never done, and it is the things that are not done that cause the receipts to dwindle until a business is eventually wrecked.

It is just as easy to do it today as it is to put it off until the last minute. It is far more pleasant and decidedly more satisfactory.

The world is full of physical and commercial wrecks. The man who is a physical has-been couldn't go to the doctor in time, and the fellow who is down at the heels financially depended upon a tomorrow that never comes.

Do it now.

The bond market is on the toboggan, and the uninitiated are unloading at a sacrifice.

That is what the initiated are looking for. They want bonds, but they want them at a low price.

A bond that is worth buying is worth holding until maturity. If it is not worth holding it should not be bought.

Certain people can only become rich by making other people poorer.

Hold on to your bonds and don't be the goat.

The Unchanging Weather.

Traditional lore concerning weather conditions is being severely challenged, combated and even confounded by the expert meteorologists.

These declare that those who assert that the winters are neither so long nor so cold as they used to be and that the snowfall is lighter than of yore, are absolutely wrong.

Dependable records show that the weather in the United States has in the last century. If this is true of this part of the world, it must be true of the other parts. In accounting for some of the allegations sincerely put forth by the other side a Weather Bureau official says:

"Those who believe that the weather is milder nowadays forget that in their youth they lived in houses which were poorly heated, making the cold more noticeable. When they tell you that the snow was deeper they forget that their legs used to be shorter."

It might be added that the measuring instruments, too, were not so accurate as those of today, and that the observations were not so scientifically made. However, these hazy memories will continue during every mild winter to revive doubtful minus temperatures and supply arguments to prove that the world is gradually approaching its predicted end in fire and flame.

Against these minds the mute thermometer's column of mercury moves vertically in vain.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

YOUR FAVORITE FLOWER

The idea of saying it with flowers is being widely advertised. It has been said that a flower in your buttonhole proclaims your sentiments.

This business of making flowers say what you believe is capable of all sorts of developments. Everyone appreciates it—the florists most of all.

Thus:

If you are in favor of daylight saving, wear a morning glory.

If you are opposed to daylight saving, wear a four-o'clock.

If you think Germany should now be treated kindly, wear Dutchman's breeches.

If you think she ought to be punished more, wear a fleur-de-lis.

If you are in favor of matrimony wear orange blossoms.

If you are opposed to matrimony, wear bachelor's buttons.

If you believe in modesty, wear violets.

If you are in favor of kissing, wear a carnation.

If you are opposed to kissing, wear snapdragons.

If you are a pawnbroker, wear hollyhock.

If you are a detective, wear trailing arbutus.

If you don't care for expense, wear orchids.

Probably as a result of the better price received last year for certified seed stock, Maine potato growers this year have listed more than 2,300 acres for inspection by representatives of the State department of agriculture. Many of these growers will be disappointed, however, because they have started with stock of no particular merit. Over a series of years an average of 47 per cent of the entries passed the seed-certification requirements, but this year the percentage will probably be lower.

The mosaic disease has been raised. This year a field having as much as 5 per cent of mosaic disease is disqualified for producing certified seed. The best stock grown now is that from strains imported from the Canadian Provinces within the last few years.

Mr. Arthur Conan Doyle says that a spirit patted him on the head. Is it possible that it patted him hard enough to affect his reasoning power?

Reflect upon your present blessings, of which every man has many, not on your past misfortunes, of which all men have some.—Dickens.

WHOLESOME DESSERTS.

A dessert which may be given the children with freedom is baked apples in various ways; the following will be found a little different from the usual manner of serving them:

Individual Baked Apples.—Use the small glass baking dishes. Add apples in quarters and remove all the core. Set the apples in cups to resemble a whole apple. Fill the center with pieces of figs, dates or raisins. Add to each cup one tablespoonful of water. Bake until tender. The skin is not removed from the apple. Serve hot or cold with cream and sugar.

Ginger Cream.—Soak three-fourths of a teaspoonful of gelatin in one tablespoonful of cold water. Make a custard of one egg, one tablespoonful of sugar, six tablespoonfuls of milk, a pinch of salt, beating all with an egg beater. Cook over water until the spoon is coated, then add one tablespoonful of minced Canton ginger and two tablespoonfuls of sirup; add the gelatin to the hot custard and when thick stir in one-half cupful of whipped cream. Pour into molds and chill.

Lemon Crumb Pie.—Grate the rind and take the juice of a lemon. Mix two tablespoonfuls of butter with five tablespoonfuls of sugar. Stir the sugar mixture into three-quarters of a pint of hot milk, and add the yolks of three eggs, well beaten, and the lemon juice and rind. Line a pie plate with an inch layer of buttered crumbs and pour in the mixture. Cover when baked and firm with a meringue made from the whites. Brown in the oven and serve cold.

Nut Mince Pie.—Mix together in the order given the following ingredients: One-half cupful of chopped walnut meats, one-half cupful of seeded raisins, one cupful of chopped apples, one-half cupful of dark corn sirup, one-fourth of a cupful of cider vinegar, one-fourth of a cupful each of fruit juice of any kind of canned fruit, molasses, one-half teaspoonful each of allspice and cloves and one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and salt. Add enough crushed crackers to make of the right consistency and fill a lined plate with the mixture. This makes a large pie.

There are those who cannot look upon the right of nature as a right without seeing the bare skeleton behind; but they must learn to look longer, and they will see that the branches are already covered with next year's buds.—J. Arthur Thompson.

WHOLESOME GOOD THINGS.

For an emergency dessert, if you have a few cream puff shells at hand or near enough to purchase on short notice, is cream puffs shells filled with vanilla ice cream and served with a hot chocolate sauce.

If chocolate is very nice, and a few nuts may be added if one wishes to have a very dainty dish.

A sauce to serve over plain vanilla ice cream, making it something out of the ordinary is:

College Sauce.—Take three-fourths of a cupful of cream, one-fourth cupful of water, one-fourth cupful of seeded raisins, chopped. Boil together for five minutes, remove from the fire and add one-fourth of a teaspoonful of almond flavoring.

Apple Turnovers.—Make apple sauce according to taste, seasoning with lemon and a dash of cinnamon, adding a small lump of butter. Cook the sauce until very thick. Place a spoonful of this sauce on a square of pastry, pinching the corners together after wetting them. Bake in a hot oven until the pastry is well done. Serve with cream and sugar, either hot or cold.

Pecan and Pineapple Cake.—Cream together one cupful of butter and two cupfuls of sugar, add two cupfuls of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, alternately with one-half cupful of milk, adding a pinch of salt. When all the ingredients are well mixed, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of six eggs.

Bake in two layers. For the filling put two cupfuls of shelled pecans through a meat chopper and mix with one cupful of shredded pineapple. Stir with the unbeaten whites of two eggs enough powdered sugar to make a thick paste and mix with the nuts and pineapple. Use as filling and for the icing on top of the cake, decorating with halves of the nut meats arranged in a border while the icing is still soft.

ALPAPA SHOULD HAVE PLACE ON MORE FARMS.

Lexington, Ky.—Despite the fact that alfalfa has a limited distribution in Kentucky, there is a place for the crop on many farms of the State, not as a major field crop but as a crop for a small area of good land, crop specialists at the College of Agriculture say. It is a legume best suited to rich soils that contain plenty of lime but most farms have from two to five acres that could be prepared rather easily for growing it.

Fall seeding is more satisfactory in Kentucky in view of the fact that spring seedings are troubled with weeds and grasses.

Only two counties in Kentucky, Pendleton and Campbell, have a large area of alfalfa, these two growing half the acreage found in the State or nearly 28,000 acres, according to the 1920 census. The five leading alfalfa counties grow nearly four-fifths of all that is found in the State. These facts emphasize the limited distribution of the crop.

Sweet clover and limestone prepare the way for the successful growing of alfalfa. Both Pendleton and Campbell counties have limestone soils while sweet clover has been extensively grown in both of them, especially Pendleton. Much of it grew wild at first, these plants seeding and spreading over a larger area each year. The sweet clover inoculated the soil and thus prepared it for alfalfa.

There is no hay that is superior to that made from good alfalfa, the specialists claim. It is an excellent feed for stimulating the milk and butterfat production of dairy cows and also makes a good feed for growing stock or for animals that are being put into good condition for showing.

Since three or four crops can be put in a season from good land, a few acres will furnish a considerable supply of feed. Any farmer who times his soil heavily and seeds alfalfa on a few acres of his best land can expect good results from the crop. Good drainage, stable manure, phosphate fertilizers and careful preparation of the seed bed also increase the chances for a good stand.

PUREBRED RAMS SCARCE ON FARMS OF KENTUCKY.

Lexington.—Approximately 80 per cent of the sheep flocks in Kentucky are headed by grade or cross rams, according to L. J. Horlacher, in charge of sheep work at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. This condition exists despite the fact that the experience of successful sheep raisers and the results of experiments at the station have shown that purebred rams return 25 to 40 per cent more profit than do grade or scrub rams, he added.

"In view of these facts, the owners of many flocks in the State can materially increase their profits by taking steps now to obtain purebred rams for the coming breeding season. Such a ram should be active, strong, vigorous and marked with bold features. The greatest amount of service can be obtained from rams that are from one to three years old. Animals of this age being able to head a flock of 35 ewes under ordinary conditions. Ram lambs should not be used except under exceptional conditions, in which case one lamb should be used for every eight or ten ewes in the flock. Rams that make good flock headers are symmetrical and evenly developed, are covered with deep, firm flesh, have a dense fleece and stand squarely on straight, strong and short legs.

"The most popular breeds of sheep in Kentucky are the Southdown and Hampshire although a purebred ram of any breed is much better than a scrub. Markets do not criticize white faced lambs to the extent that they did in former years so that rams of the white faced breeds, such as the Cheviot and the Dorset, can be used with profit. Indications are that good purebred rams will be scarce this year with the result that early buying should be advisable."

LABOR ON THE BASIC ESSENTIALS.

A labor trouble like the coal strike or such a possible event as a railroad strike, brings up the question of the relation to the community of the people who work on the basic essentials of life.

There are some kind of service which the public demands be continuous and uninterrupted. If the soldiers in the army or the nurses in a hospital went on strike, the public would feel that its rights had been outraged, and it would secure a different set of people to do those kinds of work.

There are a few basic essentials like coal mining and railroading that are so essential to the health, safety and existence of the community that these services should be continuous. Those who wish to reserve the right to strike ought to be able to do the same without endangering the safety of the community. The public will demand that this principle be recognized in these pending difficulties.

Senator Pepper, of Pennsylvania, is evidently a rank, unsophisticated beginner in politics. His report shows that he costed more money for his campaign fund than he spent.

Why is it that a bill which will pay money to the people can be sidetracked in Congress for bills which only take money from the people? The tariff is a tax on the people; the American people pay it, and to private corporations at that; yet the biggest tariff tax ever laid on Americans is now being prepared. The so-called "merchant marine measure" is only a subsidy attempt—taking the people for money to hand out to men who cannot operate ships profitably. Ship operation ought to pay, as steel manufacture ought to; the American people should not be taxed by subsidies or tariffs to make up deficits. We need legislation to start something that will pay dividends to the people, not take more money away from them.—Dearborn Independent.

An extensive art fraud was made known recently when experts discovered many bogus antiquities in the Li Hung-Chang collection, purchased by a Swedish syndicate in 1919 for more than $250,000, from the son of Li Hung-Chang, deceased. According to the story published in Stockholm, Li Hung-Chang's son used a few pieces of his father's art treasures as the nucleus of a large collection which he purchased in Chinese shops for almost nothing and advertised as Li Hung-Chang's own collection of a lifetime. The Swedish syndicate bought the lot upon supposedly expert advice.

Hot bread is often thought to cause indigestion, but the U. S. Department of Agriculture says that when it does so it is because it lacks some of the characteristics of good bread, not because it is hot. Large or thick biscuits, whether raised with yeast, baking powder, or soda, are likely, if cooked only a short time, to be soggy on the inside, and this, when it happens, is the objection to them, rather than the fact that they are served hot.

The clang of the fire gong roused the chief of the Corvallis, Ore., fire department, who was coming out from under the ether following an operation. Doctors, attendants and nurses in the hospital failed to hold him and, half dazed, he jumped in his car, dashed up the street and arrived at the fire in time to direct operations.

When the bleached kernels of peanuts from which the shells have been removed are used in making oil, the press cake on the ground into meal and used with wheat, corn, and similar starchy flours to make very palatable and nutritious cakes, gems, and hot breads, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Americans from many states paid tribute recently to Pocahontas, the Indian maiden who saved from death famine and utter confusion the first struggling colony of white men in this nation, when they attended the unveiling ceremonies on the historic ground of Jamestown Island, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hall, of near Commissary, entertained last Saturday and Sunday, Mrs. Ella Wagner, of Shelbyville, Ind., Mrs. James, of Covington, and Mr. Oscar Arrasmith, of Warsaw. They left Monday to spend the Fourth with Mr. Arrasmith at Warsaw.

The brewery that made Milwaukee famous is now turning out chocolates by the ton and helping the candy industry to maintain its position of fifth place in the industries benefited by prohibition.

You can't expect the city girls to join the canning and preserving movement, as it would take them away from their bridge game.

Each harvest season approximately 200,000,000 pounds of binder twine is used in binding the small grain crops of the United States.

Twenty-nine States are now co-operating with the United States Department of agriculture in estimating crops and live stock.

Fifteen per cent of all cloth manufactured in Germany is made of sweepings, rags, clippings and cotton waste.

GINGHAM AND ORGANDY

There is a dainty, little girlish charm about this unusual frock made of gingham and trimmed with organdy. It shows the genius of an expert handling familiar materials. Organdy makes the narrow, plaited frills that adorn the skirt and finish the neck and sleeves. Narrow bands of it slip under slides of gingham on the bodice and tie at each side.

MONEY AND MATTERS.

Industrial stability has been more nearly attained in the past thirty days than at any time since the beginning of the World War. Some industries have shown moderate gains, in others conditions have altered but little and in a few lines a seasonal dulness has occurred. The unfavorable factors in the situation are the continued deadlock in the coal strike and in the textile mills of New England and threats of strikes by those classes of railroad labor affected by recent decisions of the United States Railroad Labor Board.

Iron and steel output for May showed further gains, and the unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel Corporation have increased. Automobile production during May established new high records. The rubber manufacturing industry is sharing in the activity in automobile manufacturing. Conditions in the hide market are not yet satisfactory but stocks are not large and abattoirs and tanneries feel reasonably sure that prices of hides and skins will not go lower. Stocks of leather are heavy but the market is becoming more active for all classes. In the shoe industry there is evidence of a slowly improving demand which is being felt not only in the Middle West but in New England, where heretofore the industry has been especially depressed.

In the textile and related industries, the foremost problem is whether the higher prices resulting from rising costs of raw materials can be passed on to the consumer. The wool manufacture is operating nearly at capacity. The cotton textile industry in the South is active but strike conditions continue to prevail in New England. There is evidence of a slightly improved demand for broad silks but taking the country as a whole, this division of the silk industry is probably at little more than 50 per cent of capacity.

The cement, lumber and brick industries have met with some difficulty in satisfying demand because of the large volume of building and construction under way throughout the country. The distribution of agriculture has been uneven. It is to be fairly active, although the industry is still affected by the curtailed purchasing power of the farmer. The June estimate is for a wheat crop somewhat larger than the average of the five preceding years. This offers promise of an improvement in conditions in those areas where wheat is the leading crop. Large yields of oats, barley and rye and a heavy hay crop are also forecast and pastures are excellent. Weather conditions for corn and cotton have not been satisfactory thus far, and both are late.

Conditions in the retail dry goods trade vary considerably in different parts of the country. In some of the strike areas, business has fallen off heavily. As yet the improved outlook in agriculture is not reflected in any marked increase in buying, agricultural betterment thus far being primarily one of sentiment. On the other hand, a definite improvement is reported in retail trade in those cities where unemployment is being reduced and payrolls increased. Wholesale distribution in many lines was not satisfactory during May, but is now beginning to improve.

GENERAL LIVING EXPENSES.

It has long since been found out that expense plays a great part in the general success and happiness of mankind.

It has been said that a Chinaman can live upon five cents per day, that it takes a dollar a day to keep an American. The Chinaman can exist anywhere and live up money. The household expenses of the American people are too great. The average youth spending money that should go into the saving fund.

General living expenses can be cut down in almost every home and the members of the family be much better off.

Plain living and dressing shows good sense and brings a reward that will be enjoyed in life.

HOW LONDON LOCATED.

(London Sentinel.)

The Kentucky Legislature, by an act approved Dec. 1, 1825, established Laurel county, and having a county a "County Seat" was needed and there were three contenders. Levi Jackson, whose farm was the present site of the town near Fariston, contended that he had the most beautiful site for a town; Mr. Pittman contended that "the forks of the road" a place of rest for travelers going to and from Cincinnati and Louisville, now Pittsburg, was the logical point on this account; while Jarvis Jackson made a hard fight for the seat of government to be placed on his land and won out by giving to the county the public square and building the first court house, jail and clerk's office, and thus the business of the county is transacted where it is.

Dr. T. P. Caldwell remembers hearing Mr. Jackson, who was his stepfather, tell on many occasions about the big fight or contest that was staged by the three interested parties, and how in commemoration of this fight the town was named "London" after the biggest city of the world. He does not know whether the name was given by Jarvis Jackson in winning the victory, or by his opponents to make light of the location selected.

MAKE IT FIFTY-FIFTY.

A well known labor leader advocates the elimination of strikes and strong arm tactics in the settlement of disputes with employers. He remarks, justly that the public is tired of them, and that when an organization gets in Dutch with the people it is in a bad way.

The laborer is worthy of a just hire—no more, and no less.

The brain that directs is worthy of a just compensation—no more, and no less.

Neither side has a right to assume a "dog-in-the-manger" attitude, nor have they the right to rob the buying public to fatten themselves. The only effective remedy for this condition of affairs lies in the hands of congress and the government.

There are too many swollen incomes in this country. This condition is made possible by combinations in restraint of trade and by profiteering in the form of extravagant price boosting.

These matters should be regulated by law, and the penalty for violations should not be in the form of fines. The guilty should be sent to jail.

And in order that punishment may be swift and sure, the public official who fails to prosecute should himself be sent to jail for shirking his sworn duty.

These may seem like harsh measures, but they are the only ones that will prevail.

Labor leaders will continue to order strikes as long as employers continue to gouge the public and put all of the spoils in their own pocket.

Eliminate gouging and strike a fifty-fifty basis of settlement and strikes will be a thing of the past.

Hail Insurance Rates Reduced on Tobacco

With the recent reductions of hail storm insurance rates on growing tobacco, in the face of the enormous losses to growers within the last four or five years, every grower can afford to protect himself to the limit and, with safety, go into the business of producing a crop that requires so much money, time and labor, as does tobacco, that should be insured against loss by hail storms.

Now that so many growers have gone into an organization for a more economical, business-like way of handling their crops, and the insurance companies have so lowered rates on hail insurance, there is no reason in the world for any grower to neglect the protection of his crop by ample insurance.

Better see your insurance agent right away and have him protect your crop, which is likely to be destroyed any day by a hail storm. Policies become effective noon, July 10th.

HARD-SURFACE ROADS SHOULD BE AT LEAST 18 FEET WIDE.

A minimum width of 18 feet for hard-surface roads is recommended by the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. The maximum width of truck body generally permitted is 8 feet, and 5 1/2 feet is the ordinary clearance width of automobiles. At an average speed of 30 miles an hour it is unreasonable to expect the driver of an automobile to drive with the wheels closer than 1 1/4 feet to the edge of the pavement, says the bureau. For trucks at an average speed of 15 miles an hour, this distance should not be less than 1 1/2 feet on account of the great width of the rear wheel. Three feet seems to be a minimum safe clearance between bodies. Inasmuch as a certain amount of truck traffic is to be expected on all main country roads, the minimum width of surface should be 18 feet to provide these clearances when an automobile meets a truck.
Where the frequency with which trucks pass each other becomes a big factor, as in the neighborhood of large cities, the minimum width of pavement should be 20 feet to provide a clearance of 3 1/2 feet and a safe distance of wheels from edges of pavement.
Claimed that bobbed hair will produce many bald heads, but the girls feel that they should worry about what happens after they get possible point." Has that any reference to the 400 per cent tax on razors?

THEY FINALLY WENT CRAZY
ABOUT THEIR EDITOR

Here's a story published in an exchange which shows how greatly the people of a community in Kansas appreciated their editor: "The appreciation of the work of a Kansas editor for their community a bunch of citizens recently presented him with a bouquet. On the same occasion a quartet from a local church sang a few sweet songs, and a minister made a little talk. After the minister's talk six husky men carried the popular editor from the house and placed him tenderly in a motor car. The plumed sedan, and the whole town formed a parade behind the editor's expensive car. After the parade the appreciative crowd returned to their homes serene in the thought of having provided one bright day in the life of their local news purveyor, even if they did wait until he was dead to do it."—The Fourth Estate.

After the lodge closed a lunch was served. The ceremonies were enjoyed by all who attended, as the work was put on in fine form.

BASE BALL.

The Walton ball tossers arrived at Hebron on schedule time last Saturday, and some of the wise ones, after looking them over predicted that Hebron was up against it. But not so. After handing them one in the first inning the Hebron boys tightened up and didn't allow any more until the fourth when a muffle fly, a three bagger and two singles netted two more runs, and they got one over in the seventh on three base hit and a sacrifice fly. The home team netted three runs in the second on two errors and two singles, and put another one over in the sixth on three singles and a sacrifice fly, and with the score four to four in the eighth they proceeded to renew the game by nicking Farrell for a single, three bagger and a single, putting two runs over, when Glenn came to the rescue and retired the last two in order. Off Walton 4 runs and 6 hits in 9 innings. Off Farrell 6 runs and 10 hits in 7 1-3 innings; off of Glenn 3 hits and no runs in 2-3 of an inning, and which put by Walton 6; by Farrell 10; base on balls 6; Walton 1. These teams will play again next Saturday at Walton.

The Acad aggregation defeated the "Old Stiffs" at Burlington Saturday afternoon by a score of 9 to 8. The Acad boys had to play their very best to keep the "Old Stiffs" from taking home their bacon. By taking in too much territory the "Stiffs" lost their first game, but had "Pap" Brady, who was on the mound for the "Old Stiffs" been given the proper support, the score would have been quite different.

In one of the best games that has been played in the Down The River League Taylorsport shut the strong Middletown team out 1 to 0 last Sunday at Middletown. Sandford, the foxy old twirler for Taylorsport and Zimmer, who is one of the best catchers in the county, were the battery. This is the first game that Middletown has lost this season. Two base hits were made by Sandford, Goodridge, Metzger and Averbek. Sandford struck out 9; Moak 18. Next Sunday Addyston will play Taylorsport at Taylorsport.

The only run was scored by Taylorsport in the sixth by Goodridge, who doubled and Zimmer scored Goodridge on a two bagger. Garnett saved the game for Taylorsport by a sensational catch of a long fly in the ninth, and the game ended with the third man being put out in the ninth at home plate. The game was exciting from start to finish.

Albert Pettit, Herbert Kirkpatrick, Lloyd Weaver, Newton Sullivan, Jr., and Russell Smith witnessed the games of ball at Redland field Sunday between the Reds and St. Louis.

Bellevue defeated Petersburg by a score of 7 to 4 Saturday.

TAYLORSPORT TOOK TWO

Manager Zimmer and his Taylorsport boys can say to Manager Berkshire and his "All Stars" you are now "All Beens" as both of the games played on the Fourth were captured by the boys from the river town. About 800 people saw the morning game, and at least 700 were on the ground when the umpire called play ball for the afternoon game. As usual some of the decisions made by the umpire did not satisfy the spectators.

MORNING GAME

Taylorsport took the lead in the first inning by two runs which were presented to them by the All Stars, and from that time until Morehead caught Berkshire's liner in the 9th, they maintained a comfortable lead and won by a score of 10 to 7. Black made 4 of the All-Stars go by the strike out route, while Brady struck out 13 hits were made off Brady and 15 hits off Black.

AFTERNOON GAME

Taylorsport took this game by a score of 7 to 6. The All Stars should have won this game but for an error that permitted two runs to score, and a number of people who were near the foul line say that McWehy's long hit was fair by several feet. McWehy made the circuit and Clore scored on the hit. Sandford struck out 6, Berkshire 2, Finn 8. Hits off Sandford 14, off Berkshire 9, off Finn 6 in four innings.

The 5th inning of Taylorsport boys was not up to their standard during the afternoon game caused by two of their men having to leave, the fielders were permitting balls to drop that should have been easy catches for everyone who saw these games got their money's worth.

Black hit the longest drive of the morning, a long drive to the right field fence, and good for the circuit. Kelly of Burlington, also made a hit good for four bases. Three base hits were made by Goodridge, A. Sprague, Black, Woods, McWehy, K. Berkshire and R. Brady.

Mrs. E. A. Stott and Miss Agnesa Carver, of Petersburg, spent the 4th with Mr. and Mrs. John Botte.

Calvert Kirkpatrick and family, of Bromley, and Alfred A. Bibe, wife and daughter of Cincinnati, were guests of Mrs. Lavina Kirkpatrick and family on the Fourth.

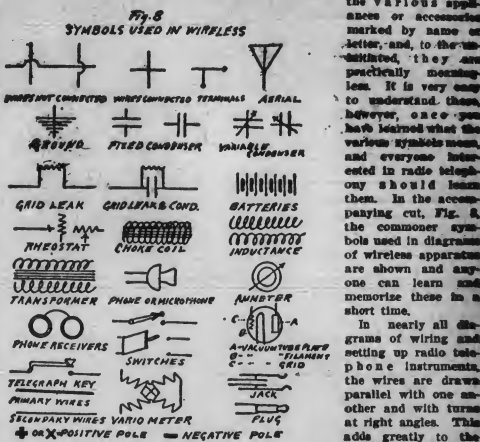

David Williamson and wife, and Martin Williamson, of the Waterloo neighborhood, spent the Fourth with friend Williamson and family.

V. READING DIAGRAM

Most people who have not made a study of radio telephony or other branches of electricity are puzzled when they look at the diagrams for wiring that are supplied in many books, magazines or catalogues. These seldom have the various appliances or accessories marked by name or letter, and, to the uninitiated, they are practically meaningless. It is very easy to understand them, however, once you have learned what the various symbols mean, and everyone interested in radio telephony should learn them. In the accompanying diagram, the common symbols used in diagrams of wireless apparatus are shown and anyone can learn and memorize these in a short time.

grams, but in actual practice it is a great advantage not to run the wires parallel or with the turns at right angles. For this reason, in the majority of the figures I have given, the wires are shown at angles.

Care of Phone.

Once every so often give the telephone a thorough washing in alcohol. Take off the mouthpiece and pour alcohol through the little holes into a saucer. Wash the receiver with a cloth wet with alcohol. Do not wipe the parts dry, but let the alcohol evaporate. Alcohol is one of the most effective antiseptics known.

Dwindling Race.

The population of the Islands of the Marquesas group is dwindling very perceptibly. Thirty years ago the total was 80,000, whereas today it is but 2,500. By some it is claimed that the race commenced to decline as soon as the missionaries taught the natives to wear clothes. Tuberculosis, which had been unknown before at once commenced its ravages.

The Fan Long in Use.

Fans have been in use since the time of Sennecherib, as a bas-relief in the British museum represents the monarch surrounded by female figures carrying feather fans. Fans are also seen in plates of the ruins of Persia and of Egyptian sculptures.

The first Chinese fan handle, a hole for feathers, found in a 17 centuries before Christ, may be seen in a museum at Hualai, Cairo. Fans were the symbol of sacred emblems and rulers in the First United States Congress. The first United States coin issued in 1793. The Congress featured upon Congress the portrait of a man and a woman. A mint was established at Philadelphia in 1792, and the following year coins were issued.

LEGION NOTES

Boston, Mass.—Altho their fair city is a long way from the native haunts of alligators, the residents of Ware, Mass., stoutly maintain that they have seen a huge "gator" in a swamp nearby. American Legion men are making a search through the swamp land.

New York City.—Both Democratic and Republican Representatives in Congress from New York have joined in the investigation of charges made by the Staten Island American Legion that eleven world war veterans were buried "practically in a public dump" in Whitlock, Staten Island.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Remembering how they shined up camps during Army days with brushes and buckets of whitewash, the American Legionnaires at Osgood, Indiana, whitewashed all the shade trees and hitching posts in the little city, thereby starting a movement which resulted in making Osgood one of the cleanest and most sanitary towns in the country.

Omaha, Neb.—The first thing Charles Ogle, wounded world war veteran, who had been in a plaster cast in an Omaha, Neb., hospital for many weeks, did when the cast was removed was to dictate a letter to the American Legion Auxiliary, thanking the organization for the kind treatment of its members during his confinement.

Washington, D. C.—Of the 7,088 postmasters appointed by President Harding since March 21, 1921, 900 served in some branch of the military service during the war, according to an announcement of the American Legion.

Seattle, Wash.—Rumors that state prison labor is being employed to compete with private industrial concerns has caused an investigation by the Seattle, Wash., American Legion.

Gillette, Wyo.—Any information concerning Government homesteads in Wyoming will be furnished to members of the American Legion running through J. W. Dillman, Box 295, Gillette, Wyo., an ex-soldier who has taken a claim himself. Relinquishments may be had from $150 to $400 and time spent in service counts.

Omaha, Neb.—In an effort to regain the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, which he lost last winter, Joe Stecher, the Nebraska grappler will meet Charlie Hanson in Omaha, Nebraska, July 4th. The match is being staged by the Douglas County Post of the American Legion at Omaha.

Charleston, W. Va.—Plans are being made to entertain more than 20,000 former members of the Eightieth (Blue Ridge) Division of the American Expeditionary Force at the third annual reunion and convention at Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 2-4.

Evansville, Ind.—The cause of stripes and wounds on the back of Vernie Pierce, a shell-shocked world war veteran of Evansville, Ind., is being investigated by the American Legion to determine whether these were inflicted while Pierce was a patient in a hospital for the insane.

Chicago, Ill.—More evidence that world war veterans have the "never-say-die" spirit was shown when Leonard T. Paul of Grinnell College, Iowa, with a leg badly maimed by shrapnel wounds broke the 100 and 220 yard dash in an intercollegiate track meet held in Chicago. Many days of strenuous training with his comrades of the American Legion put Paul in trim for the event. His strides with his left leg is four inches longer than with his right.

Detroit, Mich.—In order that news boys as well as the more fortunate sons of the well-to-do may enjoy the advantages of membership in the Boy Scout organization, a movement has been started by the Detroit Legion to make it possible for lads who earn their livelihood on the street to become full-fledged Scouts.

The plan as set forth by Doctor Frank B. Broderick, the Legion's chief welfare officer, provides that posts of the service men's organization in each city and town organize a newsboys into Scout troops, buy them their uniforms and furnish them with all necessary equipment. The movement will not be limited to only newsboys but will include all boys who are anxious to join the Boy Scouts but because of a lack of money can not join the organization.

We believe that this is a real "organization movement," said Broderick, who is fostering the plan in Michigan. "Many newsboys and lads who are employed in truck companies are the sort of fellows who offer a very fertile field for the teaching of American citizenship. We propose that the members of each locality take as a part of their citizenship, most of the newsboys and lads who are active in the business of the city. We expect to see them in the ranks of the Scouts."

The Federal Government has been liberal in the provisions of its legislation in favor of those among its fighting personnel who were disabled during the World War. The 1922 Legislature, realizing that many eligible Kentuckians had failed to prove their claims, have personally visited more than half of the counties in Kentucky, where in every instance they have found many meritorious cases and so state that strenuous efforts are needed if the state will be successful in getting disabled Kentuckians to file claims before August 9th, 1922, when the Statute of limitations takes effect under Sections 306 of the Sweet Bill.

Jackson Morris, Emmet O'Neal, and Henry J. Stites, who with Mrs. Margaret L. Duncan, are the members of the Board, have personally visited more than half of the counties in Kentucky, where in every instance they have found many meritorious cases and so state that strenuous efforts are needed if the state will be successful in getting disabled Kentuckians to file claims before August 9th, 1922, when the Statute of limitations takes effect under Sections 306 of the Sweet Bill.

In a last mighty effort, the American Legion is putting on a CLEAN UP drive, commencing June 30 and running through July 11th, and in its intensity rivaling the Liberty and Victory Loan Drives of war days. Plans were perfected in a series of division conferences held in Bowling Green, Winchester, Ashland, Covington, Princeton, Shelbyville, and Danville. Each American Legion Post sent its service officer and campaign chairman to the nearest division conference, which were also attended by officials of the United States Veterans' Bureau who explained the procedure, forms and evidence required by the Government in establishing claims.

Persons disabled during the world war must file claims for compensation prior to the limitation period which expires August 9th, 1922, as otherwise they will have waived their right under Federal Legislation.

PRESIDENTS AS HORSEMEN

While President Harding's favorite outdoor pastime is golf he is fond of horseback riding and can be seen almost every Sunday morning on the back of his fine horse Harbell, which recently won a blue ribbon in a strong class at the National Capital Horse Show.

Washington with its splendid park system has a special appeal for the equestrian. Access to most desirable galloping country may be had by crossing the Potomac into Virginia. For those who want to hunt the region around the Plains and Warrenton affords ample opportunities for indulgence in a sport which is becoming more and more popular wherever thoroughbred and half-bred horses are available as hunters. Because of the more widespread interest in the horse world Washington than existed before the Potomac Park system was developed. In making riding popular the Remount Service of the army has exerted a helpful influence.

Many Presidents of the United States have been fine horsemen. Washington, despite his weight, was a fearless rider to hounds, and Andrew Jackson trained his own horses and could have ridden them in their races as skillfully as any professional horseman.

Grant was at home in the saddle also. He was an expert reinsman as well and loved to drive a fast team. Arthur always had several fine carriage teams and Grover Cleveland was fond of a high-stepping pair of carriage horses. Roosevelt's fancy ran to the Western type and he had a quick, sure-footed kind that he had known in the range days when he was winning back his health.

Woodrow Wilson was not a horseman when he was elected President, but under the influence of his physician, Rear Admiral Grayson, he took up horseback riding and was seen in Potomac Park frequently on the halfbred horse Decoy by Octagon. Thus in taking to the saddle President Harding is merely following tradition. While golf is a good game, he will find the horse a pleasant relief when he is pulling his drives and foustling his approaches.

Mr. Busch says the government is working at the prohibition law. Well, that's better than looking at it.

ing rapidly, that very soon the bungalow was built stronger and came to resemble more the home and less the whim. Bungalows are now built of brick and frame, equipped with heating plants for the cold climates, and always open fireplaces. In the warm climates a gas heater is often added to take off the chill of cool evenings.

But without doubt the attraction of the bungalow lies in its adaptability to variety in design. Each one is different and a whole street of bungalows can be free from any taint of monotony. The design offers the owner individuality which is the goal which most of us seek. And it is cozy, indefinitely and undeniably so.

Cosiness springs from compactness and arrangement. A glance at the photograph shows here will serve to give that impression. This building is small with an artistically treated exterior of frame on concrete foundation—the walls do not have to be solid, footings being used in many sections. A wide chimney provides the draft for an equally wide fireplace in the living room. This chimney is covered with stucco.

In place of the usual porch, this dwelling has a terrace extending across the front paved with brick on end. A glass-paned door opens the way into the living room, no space being wasted on preliminary vestibules or plans. It is not at all elaborate, being of the familiar, practical and economical square or box-type, as it is often called, frame exterior set on a firm concrete foundation with high cellar for heating plant and storage room. A farmhouse without plenty of room for a large laundry, vegetable store room and modern heating plant, is not worth while and certainly not practical.

Across the entire front extends a wide, open porch, an ideal recreation place for the family in the warm weather and cool evenings. In the summer it can be screened in to keep out pests and dirt.

The front door opens into a small vestibule in which there is a clothes closet for outdoor clothes, umbrellas, etc. The reception hall opens into the large living room, 13 by 16 feet 6 inches, arranged in the manner in which modern buildings are, with fireplace and side wall bookcases. Windows in front and side provide plenty of light. It is also important to note in these plans that all electrical fixtures and outlets are indicated.

From the living room, one enters the dining room through a door opening rather wide and plain. In dining room provision is made for a central lighting fixture over the table, and smaller wall fixtures around the room. This room gets light from a triple side window. Crossing over, we find the door to the kitchen, a small, compact room of modern design and arrangement.

Lexington, Ky.—The 'Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association late Saturday afternoon took the first step to enforce its marketing agreement and contract with its members when it served papers in a suit against Garrett Watts, a wealthy Fayette county farmer, alleging that he violated his contract. It is charged that he failed to deliver to it under that contract more than 70,000 pounds of tobacco and that he delivered only 3,550 pounds to the association. Damages in the sum of $3,500 and attorneys' fees of $1,000 additional are asked, both damages and fees being provided for by the contract itself.

A FRIEND.

A friend is a person who's for you always, under any circumstances. He never investigates you.

When charges are made against you, he does not ask proof—he asks the accuser to clear out.

He likes you just as you are. He does not want to change you.

Whatever kind of coat you are wearing suits him. Whether you have on a dress suit or a blue shirt with no collar, he thinks it's all right.

He likes your moods and enjoys your pessimism. He likes your success, and your failure endears you to him the more.

He is better than a lover, in that he never is jealous.

He is the one being with whom you may feel safe; with him you can utter your heart, its badness or its goodness. You don't have to be careful.

There are many faithful wives and husbands; there are few faithful friends. Friendship is the most admirable, amazing and rare article among human beings.

Anybody can stand by you when you are right; a friend sticks when you are wrong.

The highest known form of friendship is that of a dog for his master. You are in luck if you can find one man or woman on earth having that kind of affection for and fidelity to you.

Like the shade of a great tree in noontime heat is a friend.

Like the home port, with your country's flag flying, after a long journey is a friend.

He is an impregnable citadel of refuge in the strife of existence.

It is he who keeps alive your faith in human nature and makes you believe the universe is good.

He is the antidote for despair, the elixir of hope, the tonic of depression, the medicine to cure suicide.

When you are vigorous and spirited you like to have your pleasures with him; when you are in trouble you want to tell him; when you are dying you want him near.

To him you give without reluctance and borrow without embarrassment.

If you live seventy-five years and find one true friend, you are to be numbered with the fortunate.

PEANUT OIL MANUFACTURED.

The manufacture of peanut oil has been stimulated a great deal in recent years because of the ravages of the cotton boll weevil in reducing cotton growing in certain sections. Peanuts are grown in place of cotton. Before 1914 very little of the oil was made; only 450,000 pounds being produced in 1912, but by 1918 the quantity turned out by crushers in this country was about 50,000,000 pounds. At the same time imports increased from 7,000,000 to 27,400,000 pounds.

LOADING SEASON OPENS FOR MILLIONS OF HENS

Lexington, Ky.—More than 8,000,000 hens will stop laying during July and August after which they will be worthless as egg producers until the following spring, according to estimates made by poultrymen at the College of Agriculture. The State has about 10,000,000 hens, one-third of which stop laying early each summer and become loafers, according to results if culling campaigns which are conducted each year by the colleges.

As a rule, the hens which stop laying at this time of the year are the early molters and certain characteristics which they show make it easy for the farmer or the poultryman to distinguish them from the layers and cull them from the flock. Characteristics which are important in culling are outlined and described in detail in Circular No. 101 which is being distributed free by the college to farmers interested in culling their flocks of low producing hens.

Culling out these hens saves feed and waste feed for the good hens, eliminates poor hens so that they will not be used as breeders and makes more room for laying hens and pullets, the poultrymen say. Culling at this time of the year has an added advantage in that cull hens will lay later prices now than they will later in the season.

What a Whale Weighs.

Have you any idea of the size of the common Greenland whale? Nilsson, the zoologist, estimates the full-grown animal to average 100 tons, or 224,000 pounds. That is to say, a whale weighs as much as about 80 elephants or 400 bears. Of course, some run larger than this. There are tales among old whalers of whales 110 feet long, and weighing at least 150 tons. But such are not seen these days. A 70-foot whale is a big one now. Still it may give some idea of what whales are occasionally killed when we mention that a ton of oil has been extracted from the tongue alone of a single whale.

RECORD BROKEN

Nine Hundred and Twenty-five Mums Added, With 2,000 Acres of Leaf-Tobacco Spoken in Ohio Wisconsin Tobacco Pool Goes Over.

Lexington, Ky.—All previous records were broken for the signing of the new contracts by the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association the past week, since the close of the signing campaign last November 15, when it was announced Saturday that 925 contracts had been received, representing about 2,000 acres of tobacco. These include 294 signed last week in West Virginia and the eastern Ohio counties, but do not include those signed this week in that territory, which probably will be in excess of the number signed the previous week. Twenty contracts signed in Madison county the previous week also are included.

Of the 925 contracts reported Madison reported 70, Hardin 63, Adair 50, Nelson 27, Pendleton 28, Menifee 30, Lewis 44, Adams county, Ohio, 21, Clermont county, Ohio 21, Brown county, Ohio 33. The remainder were from practically all the counties in the Burley District.

INFERIOR SIRE RETARD*DAIRY HERD IMPROVEMENT.

Lexington, Ky.—With only one purebred sire for every 370 dairy cows in the State, material improvement of Kentucky's milk producing cattle will remain an impossibility until more pure bred males are introduced, according to a new circular, "The Cooperative Bull Association in Kentucky," which has just come off the press at the College of Agriculture.

According to the publication, a cooperative sire association is an organization of dairy farmers, and others who own dairy cows, formed for the purpose of cooperative ownership, use and exchange of outstanding sires of the dairy breeds. The typical association is composed of from 15 to 50 farmers who own from three to five bulls jointly.

Six advantages of such associations are outlined in the circular which was prepared by F. M. Prewitz, a member of the College dairy department.

1. The formation of such associations in all parts of Kentucky will make it possible to breed every cow in the State, to a purebred sire.
2. It makes the use of fewer and better bulls possible.
3. Farmers realize a quick return on their investment, the value of the offspring in the first generation being increased from 30 to 80 per cent.

4. An opportunity is offered for line breeding.
5. Community breeding is encouraged.

6. Farmers have an opportunity to get together in community meetings to discuss matters of mutual interest.

The circular also outlines the steps in the organization of cooperative sire associations and contains a model of a recommended constitution and set of by-laws. It may be obtained free by writing the Experiment Station at Lexington for Circular No. 122.

SECURING DESIRABLE RESIDENTS.

Efforts are reported from some country towns to maintain a high standard of community life, by offering inducements to desirable young men. The people will get together, if a farm or country store comes on the market and picks out some promising young fellow whom they would like to have settle in that location.

Those who have money will assure that young man, that he will take hold of that proposition, they will see that he gets the capital he needs to carry it on. In that way such towns have retained many bright fellows who otherwise would have gone away. The prosperity of the whole community is advanced by securing a high class of residents and business men.

APPOINTED POSTMASTER.

Postmaster Hickman passed the examination held at Covington, some time ago, and he will be appointed permanent postmaster at Burlington. Mr. Hickman was notified that he passed a very creditable examination.

NEW CIRCULAR POINTS OUT NEEDS OF KENTUCKY SOILS.

Lexington, Ky.—Practically all soils in Kentucky outside the 35 counties constituting the bluegrass region are acid and naturally deficient in phosphorus, according to a new circular entitled, "Phosphorus and Limestone for Kentucky Soils," which has just come off the press at the College of Agriculture here. More than half the soils within the bluegrass region respond profitably to phosphate treatment while more than half the soils in the same district would respond to limestone treatment when legumes, especially sweet clover and alfalfa are grown, the publication states.

Results from soil experiment fields being conducted in various parts of the State, by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station are given in the new publication to point out the need for limestone and phosphate on the various types of soil.

On both the Mayfield and Lone Oak fields, acid phosphate and rock phosphate when used with limestone have produced large increases in yields, especially on the Mayfield field where the yield of corn has been increased one-third, that of soybean hay and wheat doubled and that of clover "hay" more than doubled. Both these fields represent the predominating upland soils of the Purchase.

On the Fariston field, which represents the soils of the eastern coal field, acid and rock phosphate, when all crops are considered, have considerably more than doubled the yields. Either of these phosphates has returned practically $3.00 for every dollar invested. On the Greenville field, which represents the soils of the western coal field, limestone and acid phosphate have produced more than a 50 per cent increase in the corn yield and more than doubled the yield of soybean hay, wheat and clover.

Results equally as striking have been obtained on the Russellville experiment field, which represents 5,000 square miles of soil derived from St. Louis limestone and on the Berea field which represents thousands of acres of poorly drained land adjacent to the knobs, according to the circular. It is No. 123 and may be obtained free by writing the Experiment Station at Lexington.

THE GOVERNMENT AND STRIKES.

The big industrial conflicts of the present day have become so threatening and destructive that the federal government is looked to by the people for firm and decisive action in the most serious of these disturbances.

These disputes affect the life of the people so closely that the government must interfere in a determined way or the results will be terribly disastrous.

The coal strike that has already persisted for too long and the disputes over railroad wages which may result in a far reaching attempt to tie up railroad operation, constitute two of the biggest problems the federal government has as yet no right to interfere in an ordinary industrial dispute, if factories are closed by strikes, the government can do but little under present law except to offer its services as a conciliator and mediator.

But strikes or threats of strikes in the fuel transportation industries are a far more serious affair. They endanger the entire industrial and business system of the nation, and may result in throwing millions of people out of employment.

The people have come to feel that the workers and the corporations that supply transportation and fuel are under a special obligation to render continuous service. Strikes should be possible in those industries. Workers who desire to retain the right to quit work in a body should enter some kind of employment where such action would not paralyze the life of the nation.

Capitalists and workers who are serving the public in these most vital industries should be required to submit their disputes to impartial arbitration and to abide by the decisions thereby rendered.

The government should insist that the railroads and mines be kept going. If the corporations will not submit to arbitration, the government should operate their properties until they are willing to arbitrate. If the employees will not arbitrate their demands another set of men should be found who will agree to do so. The public has a right to have continuous service in industries of this vital class.

NEW CIRCULAR ON TOMATOES IS READY FOR DISTRIBUTION

Lexington, Ky.—A new circular designed as a handbook for farm boys and girls of the State who are raising tomatoes as their junior agricultural club project has just come off the press at the College of Agriculture and is ready for free distribution to interested persons. It was written by A. J. Olney, a member of the college horticultural department, and contains a detailed discussion of such things as the growing of plants, hot bed preparation, care of seedlings, soil preparation, field planting and culture along with a number of others of special interest to tomato growers.

SUMMER ALFALFA SEEDING BEST DONE AUGUST 10 TO 20.

Lexington, Ky.—Under favorable moisture conditions, the summer seeding of alfalfa is best done in Kentucky from August 10 to 20, according to Geo. Roberts, head of the agronomy department of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. When seeded at this time of the year, the crop usually follows wheat, oats rye, early potatoes or any other crop that comes off early. Farmers who expect to seed alfalfa this summer should prepare the ground for it as early as possible, Mr. Roberts says.

"The ground should be broken six or seven inches deep and worked down to a well pulverized, firm condition. It usually is a good plan to precede the breaking by disking. At this time of the year it is also usually advisable to drag or harrow each day's working in order to pulverize the clods before they dry out. The soil should be harrowed after rains in order to conserve moisture. It also is desirable to harrow whenever young weeds or grasses appear since alfalfa does not thrive in their presence.

"If the ground is to be limed it is a good plan to put the material in as soon as the ground is broken so that subsequent cultivation will help distribute it through the soil. Unless the soil is known to be naturally supplied with lime, this material should be applied at the rate of three or four tons of ground limestone an acre or one-half this amount of burned lime.

In all parts of the State outside of the central bluegrass region it is desirable to apply from four to five hundred pounds of acid phosphate an acre. This may be done any time after the limestone is applied and previous to seeding and should be harrowed into the soil.

"Just before seeding, it is a good practice to harrow and roll the ground. The seed should not be covered any deeper than is necessary to get it in contact with moist soil and in no case deeper than one and one-half inches. If it turns dry after seeding, rolling may help. The subsurface type of roller is best for this purpose.

True Detective Stories*THE DEVONSHIRE DIAMONDS

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

HAD Lady Alberta Devon not yielded to temptation at the last moment and stepped out of her boudoir to secure her sister's opinion upon the effect of her latest Parisian creation it is quite possible that Inspector John Sweeney of Scotland Yard would not have had the opportunity of proving his detective genius in a peculiarly striking manner.

Lady Alberta was absent from her room for less than ten minutes; but during that time occurred an event which, for several hours, threatened to disrupt several of the highest social circles in England.

It was the night of the Devon ball, held in the big old-fashioned house in the center of the Devon estate. As was only to be expected, the list of guests read like a section from Burke's Peerage—a fact which made Inspector Sweeney's work distinctly more difficult when the loss of the famous necklace of Devonshire was reported to Scotland Yard.

Early in the evening Lady Alberta had dismissed her maid with the statement that she would complete her toilette herself, but just as she was about to put on her necklace—an heirloom which had greatly increased in value because of its historic connections—she thought it would be well to secure an unbiased opinion as to the effect of her gown, which had just arrived from Paris. When she returned from her sister's room a few minutes later she reached for the necklace, only to discover that it had vanished!

For a moment she had had it in her hands less than ten minutes before, she searched the room and then summoned her husband, whom she told of the mysterious loss.

"There is only one thing to do," declared his lordship, after verifying his wife's statement that the jewels were missing, "and that is to notify the police."

Inspector Sweeney reached the Devon house shortly after midnight, while the ball was still in progress, and secured the meager details of the case directly from her ladyship.

"Did you notice any one in the hall as you passed through on the way to your sister's room?" Sweeney asked.

"No one at all."

"How long has your maid been with you?"

"Less than two months—but she came well recommended."

Finally, in spite of protests, the operative from Scotland Yard gave orders that no one was to leave the grounds of the Devon estate without his permission, and, as the ball formed part of a week's festivities, it was possible to arrange this without mentioning the reason for the resort to the police. Armed with a list of those present, with their servants, Sweeney then repaired to Lady Devon's boudoir to commence active investigations.

His knowledge of London society was sufficient to inform him that at least three of the guests, despite their titles, might conceivably have been guilty of lifting the necklace if the opportunity had presented itself.

"The question is," mused Sweeney, "who could have known that Lady Devon would have been out of the room for just those few moments? She wasn't summoned by any message and it would therefore appear that some one was hiding in the hope that an opportunity would present itself. That would seem to eliminate the guests—but not the servants."

Working along this line, Sweeney made a careful examination of the toilet articles on the dressing table where the diamonds had been placed. After a thorough scrutiny of the perfume bottles, pieces of silver and other articles which were highly polished, the detective made his way downstairs and sent word to Lady Devon that he would like to speak to her for a moment.

"Your ladyship," he said, "will you kindly press the tips of your fingers lightly on this," and he held out one of the hand mirrors from the boudoir. "No," he added, "I'm not suspecting you of making away with your own diamonds—I merely wish to discover which finger-prints are yours."

"Then, a moment later, 'Thank you, I thought as much.'"

"Now," he continued, "I want you to instruct your butler—whom I understand has been with you for a number of years—to secure the prints of all the servants under your roof. Tell him to make any excuse for it that he wants to but I must secure a complete collection. Kindly have them to my room the first thing in the morning. Meanwhile, don't worry. If my instructions are rigidly carried out, your necklace should be discovered before nine o'clock."

But Sweeney underestimated by some two hours. It was eleven o'clock on the following morning before he received the complete set of finger-prints, and ten minutes later a pair of handcuffs was dangling from the wrists of William Sinclair, valet of one of the titled guests, and as it afterwards developed, a man with a lengthy prison record. The necklace was discovered stowed away in the false bottom of Sinclair's trunk.

As Sweeney started back toward London with his prisoner he cautioned him to be more careful in the future not to attempt a theft unless he wore gloves.

Little defects grow into big ones in time if not corrected.
 The correction of a small defect in its early stages costs but little.
 When left until it grows into serious proportions its correction runs into money.
 That is what makes the maintenance of a car so expensive to many people—neglecting the little things until they grow into big ones.
 The better—the safer—the more economical way is to see the garage man at the first warning of trouble.
 Today is always a good time to have it done.

Meaning of Red Sunset.

An approaching hurricane may affect the atmosphere and the rays of light passing through it for more than a thousand miles, says the Scientific American. When a true flame-colored sunset is seen during the hurricane season below the thirty-fifth parallel, even when there is no particular fall in pressure, it is wise to hurry to safety. This awe-inspiring phenomenon may precede the sea swell and upper cloud movements by from 24 to 48 hours, and may be the only timely warning of the dangerous tropical storm of small diameter.

Moors.

Glimmering chapel bells were still ringing; and then full, mellow flow of the back in the valley came soothing on the ear. It was a sweet substitute for the yet absent murmur of the summer foliage, which drowned that music, about the granite when the trees were in leaf. At Wuthering Heights it always sounded on quiet days following a great thaw or a season of steady rain.—Emily Bronte.

Representative Harry B. Hawes of Missouri, made one of the ablest speeches yet delivered on the tariff, and took as his particular text the tariff on hides and showed that while it would put sixteen millions revenue in the Treasury, it would cost the people, in the additional prices charged for articles made of leather, many hundreds of millions. He estimated that on shoes alone it would add an average of forty cents to each 330,000,000 pairs of $132,000,000. The shoe tax on the people of his State alone would amount to more than four millions per year. On the other hand, Mr. Hawes showed that the tariff on hides will bring next to nothing to the pocket of the farmer who produces the hide, but permits the packers to get a strangle hold on both the hide market and the tanning business. Then he quoted the American Farm Bureau Federation, as follows:

"Cattle hides are a by-product of the production of animals for meat or dairy purposes in the U. S. Animals are not produced for their hides alone, and the variation in the price of hides has little influence on the rate of cattle production."

"Most of the hides produced in the United States are sold by the producer on the animal, and not as hides but as a part of an animal, the price being largely determined by the value of the meat on the animal. The hides taken off by packers comprise, roughly, two thirds of the domestic supply, and are sold by cattle producers amounting to a very small part of the total."

"Since two-thirds of the domestic hides are taken off by packers, and they also control about one third of the tanning business, they are in a position to be a dominant factor in the hide and leather market. At any given time they have a large part of the stock of hides under their control and are in a position to sell or withhold them from the markets as they choose."

"Cattle production needs stimulation, but the increased return from 15 per cent on 6 1/2 per cent of the weight of the animal is so small as to be of no importance as a means of increasing cattle production."

"Therefore, we believe that hides and leather products should remain on the free list."

The Republican party has lost sympathetic contact with the business interests of the country. The demand for the disproportionate and haphazard scheme proposed by Mr. McCumber comes from himself and other Senators who expect to reap considerable political benefits, and not from the business interests of the country. Louis Seibold, political correspondent, New York Herald.

The foregoing statement by Mr. Seibold, one of the group of famous and sound political writers who report and comment upon national affairs, is worthy of serious and sober consideration of the business men of the country. There is no greater fallacy in politics than that business thrives under a Republican administration to a greater extent than it does under a Democratic administration. The worst thing that can happen to business is a financial or economic panic, and that has been no greater breeder of panics than Republican tariff laws. The great panics of 1873 and 1893 came when Republican tariff bills were the law of the land. The Republican panic in 1921-22 resulting from the economic breakdown of Europe, following the defeat of the peace treaty, was brought on by the Republican policy of opposition and sabotage. It is now proposed to extend and prolong this panic by a tariff law worse than those which were responsible for the preceding great panics.

Practically every big Republican newspaper in the country has opposed and denounced this pending tariff bill. The legitimate business interests of the country are opposed to it. Its effect upon business generally will be disastrous, and yet the reactionary Republican leadership persists in trying to fasten upon the country its policy of commercialization and economic absurdities in the interest of a few manufacturers.

The Democratic party, still holding fast to the doctrine of "equal rights to all and special privileges to none," is preeminently the party of honest and legitimate business and the foe of profiteering and predatory interests. Its attitude toward the business interests of the country is definitely set forth in a recent declaration by Cordell Hull, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Judge Hull said:

"The Democratic party welcomes into its ranks every class of persons and of business which desires only intelligent, equitable and fair treatment at the hands of the government. Democrats have shown by their recent record that they are friendly towards all individuals and legitimate businesses, big and little, so long as they do not seek some special advantages or favors from the government to which they are not entitled. The national democracy is not reactionary, but is keenly alive to existing conditions and to modernized, wholesome remedies for the social or economic evil of our national life. It alone has a clear grasp of all phases of our national life."

The business favored by the Republican party is crooked business, profiteering business, and business seeking special privileges and favors. The business represented by the Democrats is honest business, seeking no favors and opposing discriminations, asking only equal opportunity. Honest business may be little or big—it matters not how big it is honest and legitimate.

It is not time that honest and legitimate business, big and little, separate itself from the Republican party and ally itself with the Democratic party. It is not time that honest and legitimate business recall to mind the defeat by Republican partisanship of the great reconstruction programme offered by the Wilson administration in 1919 which would have solved practically all if the problems with which business is confronted today.

The correspondent of a great Republican newspaper declares that "the Republican party has lost sympathetic contact with the business interests of the country." Spontaneous interest with honest and legitimate business is ever present in the Democratic party. It is not time that honest and legitimate business should avail itself of it, thus serving its own interest and the interest of the nation?

THEIR DUTY AND OURS.

Our public officials owe a duty to us and we owe a duty to them. We send senators and congressmen to Washington to make laws for us. We elect a resident whose duty it is to see to a proper administration of those laws.

When a senator or a congressman goes to a capital he possesses a heavy idea of what his constituents desire. If he is newly elected his heart burns and throbs with a laudable ambition to accomplish wonderful things for "his people." He is determined to send home the bacon.

When he reaches Washington he finds that he is not half as big as he is when at home. In fact, the "leaders" promptly give him to understand that he is a very little potato in a mighty big basket.

He hears, also, that if he is a "good Indian" and votes as the leaders dictate he may be graciously permitted to send home a silver of bacon where he had hoped to send a slab.

He is duly impressed with the fact that big fish in congress require much feed, while the minnows must content themselves with the crumbs.

This is only the "educational" process he must undergo upon taking his seat. In most cases it is effective, and the leaders secure another follower and the constituents back at home lose a defender of their rights.

But in many cases the senator or congressman is not entirely to blame. The responsibility rests primarily upon the voters who send him forth to battle for them.

When we send an army out to fight we support that army to the utmost of our resources. Without such support its morale would be broken and defeat would be its portion.

We should do as much for our representatives in Washington, for they are fighting our battles of peace just as much as the army fights them in time of war.

A district should advise its representative as to what it needs. Then it should actively support that representative in his demands.

"Leaders" should be given plainly to understand that if they desire the future support of that district they can expect it only upon condition that the district receives its just proportion of the "bacon" that it so lavishly hands out.

When a district takes this attitude and follows it up its generally gets what it wants within reason. The leaders soon take alarm and cease their blandishments in their efforts to switch the senator or congressman away from his path of duty to his constituents.

Leaders talk—constituents vote—and both leaders and representative keep these facts in mind.

We should tell our representatives in Washington what we want, and then make our demands united and stronger than the influences opposed to us.

Even a "leader" can tell which way the wind blows when he watches a straw.

MANNERS AND BOYS.

The ill mannered boy invariably becomes an ill mannered man. An ill mannered man is not often successful in a business which requires that he come into daily contact with the buying public.

People who spend their own money want to receive courtesy as well as the value of that money. They do not care to pay for a grouch or a grunt.

School teachers are always endeavoring to improve the manners of their pupils, but they find it a difficult task where manners are not taught in the home.

These are every day facts—not theories or a sermon.

Soviet Russia has an army of 1,000,000 men, well armed, well equipped, well drilled, and efficiently officered, capable of taking the field upon a moment's notice.

How long will these men, trained for war, continue in the path of peace when the fumes of another war are in the air they breathe?

Any child can ask the question, but the wisest of men can not answer.

Don't be surprised if your husband never admits his faults. He can only see yours.

THE HELP THE FARMER REALLY NEEDS.

Bills in aid of agriculture are as plentiful in Congress as mosquitoes in damp weather, and quite as annoying. While all of them seek to improve the present cumbersome plan, which finances bankers rather than farmers, and others seek the replacement of the War Finance Board with another of like powers under a different designation, all have the same indirect method of reaching the beneficiary.

Most of the bills seek to reorganize the farm loan system by creating a second Federal Reserve System, and widening the scope to include not only the actual producers of crops and breeders of live stock, but all engaged in the marketing of agricultural production. Thus, warehouse receipts would suffice for collateral for loans, enabling trading agencies to turn over their capital more frequently.

Like the immense profits of the Federal Reserve System, these added profits in any of the proposed Farm Loan systems must be paid by producer and consumer; by producer in lower crop prices, and by consumer in enhanced retail prices. They are the goats. The schemes all seem to increase the opportunities for tolling the goat.

Agriculture has just two paths to permanent prosperity. The first must come gradually, the second is within reach in the near future.

Path No. 1 is to get out of debt and stay out.

Path No. 2 is to insist on the refunding of all marketing obligations of the government into non-interest (or a very low interest) bearing bonds carrying the circulation privilege, sell them to any organized bank without reserve and issue Treasury notes to the amount of bonds deposited.

The notes would be the only currency in circulation; the bank of issue would be under no obligation to ask a central bank to rediscount its collateral, and could not be squeezed at will by the Money Trust. The farmer would have his paper in hands acquainted with his circumstances.

From the date (Nov. 27, 1914) of the opening of the Federal Reserve banks for business until October 26, 1921, the aggregate capital stock of the 12 regional banks has increased from $18,050,000 to $103,007,000, the surplus fund from nothing ($18,000,000 being declared at the end of the first year) to $213,834,000. Total assets rose during the same period from $270,018,000 to $5,094,915,000.

It must be remembered that these profits, fabulous as they seem, are not complete, since the last dividend of last year had not been paid when the figures were compiled and the last addition to the surplus has not been announced. Also that during all the time the shareholder banks have been receiving cumulative interest at six per cent, while enormous salaries and extravagant building reservations had been approved, and $124,000,000 in round numbers had been awarded the U. S. Treasury.

The plan here suggested would save to the people this immense USURY charge, and what profit came to the system would be shared in by the people to the extent of the saving in interest of the refunded bonds.

Women's clubs are a good thing. We ought to have a live one in this town.

Women are the mothers of our race, and they exert an important influence upon the future of the race. Where women get together there is talk. Where there is talk there is argument, and argument brings out the good and the bad, the best and the poorest of every subject.

No person can attend a series of women's club meetings without being wiser and better for the experience. Some one has said something on some subject that has shed enlightenment and made clearer the path of duty.

Women may gossip—as do the men—but throughout it all there is a vein of seriousness which indicates deep thought and a careful analysis of the affairs of life.

A well governed woman's club aids this work. It diverts the feminine mind into channels which make for the betterment of community life.

We are never so full of pep but what we could stand a little more of the woman's supply would add to the supply.

Many parents complain that as their children grow older they cast off their obedience to parental law and lose their respect for parental authority.

But the child is not alone to be censured.

The parent who does not demand respect and obedience in the beginning will not receive it in the end.

Humoring and coddling does not produce either. Instead, it creates selfishness, ingratitude and ultimate indifference.

Impatience leads to nagging. Nagging leads to trouble. Trouble leads to the courts. The courts grant divorces. Divorces are entirely too common. Don't nag.

Some people get something for nothing and in the end pay more than it is worth.

No, the lid is not off in Mexico. There ain't no lid.

WAYS WITH AVOCADO

The avocado, or alligator pear, as it is commonly called, is the most delicious of foods, but is not yet grown in such quantities as to make them inexpensive. In southern California, where they are beginning to grow, in season of plenty they can be bought for twenty to thirty cents apiece, but in the east and central states they reach a price which the ordinary pocketbook holder feels prohibitive. Having proved that this choice food can be produced economically in a wide area, we have premises of enjoying them at a more reasonable price.

The avocado belongs to the laurel family and is a native of semi-tropical America, whence it has spread to all other tropical countries. The tree is an ornamental with its large leathery leaves of spicy taste and odor, and under favorable circumstances attains a height sixty to eighty feet. It bears prolifically. The fruit varies in shape from round to pear shape, is green and purple in color, weighs often four to five pounds, but the average is much less. The fruit contains a single large seed around which is the thick, buttery flesh of yellowish green color and a delightful flavor. Some varieties have a very thin skin, others a thick, hard shell. These last handle best in shipping.

The dietitians tell us that the avocado is almost in a class by itself, as it has a greater mineral content than any of the fruits and contains 50 per cent of carbohydrates, while its fat content is nearly 80 per cent. The only fruit comparable to it is the olive, which has less oil and is as we know a processed fruit. Most of the calories, the 28 varieties average 984 calories to the pound, more than twice the maximum calories per pound of fresh fruits. Its fuel value corresponds to about 75 per cent of that of cereals and is nearly twice that for average of meat, according to Professor Jaffa.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

Now is the time when the fresh mushroom is abroad in the land and the delicious vegetable adds much to our menu.

Mushrooms on Toast.—Peel the caps and remove the stems from one-quarter of a pound of fresh mushrooms. Brush the wire of a hot broiler with olive oil. Place the mushrooms on the broiler gill side down, hold the gill side over the fire or if a gas broiler under the flame for three minutes, turn the broiler, put a piece of butter in each cap and cook on the other side for three minutes. Arrange on slices of toast well buttered.

Asparagus Soup.—Wash a bunch of asparagus, putting the tough portions into the kettle and cooking them for half an hour, then remove before adding the tender parts, add one-half cupful of rice and cook all until tender. Cook the tender tips in a well seasoned broth adding the liquid in which the tough portions were cooked. Serve well seasoned, passing grated cheese with the soup, which should be very thick.

Potato Cakes.—Take two cupfuls of mashed potato, one egg well beaten, and two tablespoonsful of milk. Mix all together and add salt and pepper to season. Add a little flour and form into ten balls. Pin around each a strip of bacon, using a toothpick for a skewer. Set in a hot oven or under a broiler until the bacon is brown and crisp. Serve at once.

Lamb Pigeons.—Cut four slices from the narrow end of a leg of yearling lamb, remove the bone and pound the meat flat, spread with well seasoned forcemeat and minced pork with scraped onion, minced bread and mushrooms mixed with cream crumbs, seasoning with such other seasonings as desired. Roll each cutlet and tie firmly with a string. Spread with butter or other sweet fat, dredge with flour seasoned with salt and pepper and place on a rack in a baking pan, in a hot oven. Have the oven very hot for the first ten minutes, then lower the heat, pour over them a pint of water, and baste with the water and drippings every ten minutes.

There are two grade crossings in Boone county and two overhead bridges that will have to be replaced in order to reduce grades and curves. The Dixie Highway will be reconstructed through Grant and Scott counties with concrete and other approved road material within the next two years is the plan of the State Department.

EQUAL TO ALL DEMANDS

When your thoughts turn to spring wraps and you are distracted in trying to choose between the practicability of a coat and the graceful smartness of a cape, remember that it is easy to make a compromise. Some one has foreseen your difficulty in the choice of a wrap for all-round wear and solved it for you. The cape-coat is here in several delightful variations, one of them shown in the illustration. Wool jersey or any of the soft, lightweight wool coatings, make wraps of this kind. Their capes are lined with crepe or satin, usually in a quiet contrasting color. The model pictured is equal to all weather emergencies. It is fastened with two large buttons and they make, with buttonholes, a smart decorative feature on the cape portion.

TO MEMBERS OF THE SEWING CIRCLE.

Here is some more information about the pending Republican tariff bill. The facts are taken from an address by Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio:

Cotton Fabrics.

Under the Democratic Underwood-Simmons law the average duty is 22.5 per cent; under the pending Republican bill, 40 per cent. This includes all fabrics such as ginghams, calicos, organdies and similar materials, used exclusively for women and children.

Cotton Hosiery.

Under the Underwood-Simmons law 30 per cent; under the pending Republican bill, 68 per cent. If the latter becomes effective it will be no longer possible to buy children's cotton hose for 25 cents.

Cotton Corsets.

Under the Underwood-Simmons law 30 per cent; under the pending Republican bill, 64 per cent.

Silks.

Under the Underwood-Simmons law 60 per cent; under the pending Republican bill, 90 per cent. On silk pongees the proposed rates average as high as 230 per cent. On Japanese Habuti silks (China silk or wash silk) the proposed rates are practically double the rates of the Underwood-Simmons law.

Laces.

Under the Underwood-Simmons law 60 per cent; under the pending Republican bill, 90 per cent.

Leather Gloves.

Under the Underwood-Simmons law 14 per cent; under the pending Republican bill 37 1/2 per cent. Under the proposed rate it will be impossible to import ladies' kid gloves. On a sixteen button kid glove the proposed rate amounts to 83 cents per pair. Under the Underwood-Simmons law 41 cents.

Cotton Gloves.

Under the Underwood-Simmons law 35 per cent; under the pending Republican bill over 100 per cent. On a sixteen-inch button glove costing $4 per dozen the duty under the Underwood-Simmons law would be $1.40 per dozen; under the pending Republican bill $3 per dozen for gloves up to eleven inches long and 10 cents extra for every inch over eleven inches.

Wool Fabrics.

Under the Underwood-Simmons law 35 per cent; under the pending Republican bill, 74 per cent. The proposed rate is designed to exclude the importation of a good class of woolen cloth.

Buttons.

Under the Underwood-Simmons law 35 per cent; under the pending Republican bill, 68 per cent. Remember the increased percentage is the minimum increase you will have to pay.

It is estimated that under the pending Republican bill the women of the United States will pay $1,000,000,000 more for clothing than they pay now under the Democratic Underwood-Simmons law.

The pending Tariff bill is one of the issues between the Democratic and Republican party. It is a direct issue with women. The Democratic party is opposed to it. Where do you stand?

CUCUMBER GROWERS

Cucumber growers in Florida, South Carolina, and North Carolina are vouching much interest in the permissive standards for cucumbers recommended by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. A number of marketing associations have adopted the grades and are labeling packages with the grade name. Federal inspection at destination is also being made.

Striking Development in Federal-State Campaign for Live Stock Improvement.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Noteworthy progress during the last three months in the federal-state campaign for live-stock improvement is reported by the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. The most striking development in the increasing tendency for purebred-sire users to acquire purebred female stock as well. In the period of January 1 to March 31 of this year, 970 persons filed with the department signed enrollment blanks, indorsed by county agents, showing the use of purebred sires exclusively for all classes of live stock kept. This number is an increase of 254 over the previous three months and is nearly three times as many as for the same period in 1921.

Although the department has stressed chiefly the use of purebred sires, records of the "Better Sires, Better Stock" campaign show a gradual rise in the proportion of purebred female animals, including cattle, horses, swine, sheep, goats and poultry. The proportion of purebreds to the total of female animals kept now exceeds 85 per cent. A decline in the proportion of scrub females in herds headed by purebred sires accompanied the rise in purebreds.

The greatest activity during the quarter was in Ohio where 532 persons were enrolled—more than half of the total. Nebraska came second with 185 enrollments, Washington third with 126 and Kentucky fourth with 124. A new state, Michigan, entered the campaign actively. Virginia has been the premier state since the beginning of the campaign from the standpoint of persons participating. Nebraska occupies first place in number of animals being bred to purebred sires. Ohio, which at the beginning of the year occupied third place, is now second and is fast approaching the leader. The returns from Green county, Ohio, show a unique result. There were 130 persons enrolled. The live stock owned totaled 17,229 and among these there was but one scrub, a sow. There was an abundance, however, of grades and crossbreeds. Indicating widespread use of purebred sires in the county. Among the ten counties in the United States highest in number of purebred-sire enrollments four are in Ohio. One of them, Hardin county, is second only to Pulaski county, Virginia.

The most active counties during the three months' period were Hancock and Green counties, Ohio, Kittitas county, Washington, Oldham county, Kentucky, Dodge county, Nebraska, and Hardin county, Ohio. Comments received by the department from live-stock users show an increasing appreciation of the value of purebreds. Numerous disposals of grade sires to be replaced by purebreds are reported.

GOOD TREATMENT PAYS BEST

Most Profitable Beef Animal is One That Has Capacity to Eat and Produce Meat.

W. H. Peters, professor of animal husbandry at University farm, emphasizes the fact that the most profitable beef animal is the one that has the capacity to eat and manufacture into beef the greatest amount of feed, and not the one that can subsist on the least and poorest ration.

"There are thousands of two and three-year-old beef cattle that can eat plenty of feed," says Mr. Peters, "but many of them are not able to manufacture much beef out of it, largely because their growth was stunted, their vitality weakened, and their beefy conformation lost through lack of proper and sufficient feed when they were calves."

"Present high prices for cattle and feed," says Mr. Peters, "make it more clear than ever before that there are two ways of securing a profit from beef cattle: through the production of a good, well-grown beef type of animal, and by keeping down the cost of production to the minimum consistent with full development."

BASE BALL.

The Addyston team came over Sunday to take Taylorport's scalp, but fair readers they whipped them to a pulp. It was a treat to see the way Taylorport played Sunday, their hitting and fielding was perfect. Black pitched the game for Taylorport and made Addyston look like a bunch of bush-leagueers. He allowed only one hit during the game and only twice did a matter—second base. Clayton Roberts played third base for Taylorport and he sure is a peppy player. Score 2 to 0. Struck out by Black 9; by York 6; Hits off Black 1; off York 6. Next Sunday Taylorport will journey to Delhi.

Florence ball club has been reorganized and is under the management of Ben Luck. They defeated Erlanger Sunday afternoon by the score 6 to 5. The features of the game were the running catch pulled off by Laws and the pitching of Glenn, considering he had pitched 8 innings for Walton against Hebrin Saturday afternoon. Florence plays Walton at Florence Saturday afternoon. Everybody come.

The Hebron team journeyed to Walton Saturday and were defeated by the strong Walton team 12 to 9, in a game that owing to the sloping outfield, that caused the fielders to misjudge several fly balls, proved to be more of a slugfests match than a pitchers battle.

Batteries for Hebron—Walton, Huey and Graves, for Walton—Glenn, Farrell and Kuhn, runs off Walton 8, in 3 innings, off Huey 4 in 1 innings, off Glenn 9 in 8 innings, off Farrell 0 in one inning. Hits off Walton 5; off Huey 8; off Glenn 9; off Farrell 1. Base on balls off Walton 2; off Huey 2; off Glenn 6; Hit batesman by Huey 2; by Glenn 1. Struck out by Walton 4; by Huey 6; by Glenn 4; by Farrell 1. The Bellevue team will play at Hebrin next Saturday. This ought to be a good game as these teams are pretty well matched.

There will be a game of ball Saturday afternoon at Burlington park. The "Old Stiffs" will play Houston's aggregation of Idlewild neighborhood. Come out and help the old timers win. Houston will twirl for his team and Brady for the "Old Stiffs."

TWENTY-FIRST BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION.

DECREASE IN DEATH RATE

Louisville, Ky.—In six of the eight largest cities in Kentucky the death rate in 1921 was lower than in 1920, according to figures compiled by the American Child Hygiene Association, and made public here by the State Board of Health.

The six cities in which there was a reduction in the death rate are Covington, where the rate fell from 15.2 to 12.8; Lexington from 22.8 to 20.6; Louisville, 15.2 to 13.6; Newport, 1.8 to 9.0; Owensboro, 21.0 to 17.3; and Paducah, 15.8 to 15.7. The two cities that had a higher death rate in 1921 than in 1920 were Ashland, where the rate rose from 13.1 to 16.1, and Henderson, with a rise from 14.5 to 15.1.

All these cities with the exception of Newport show a percentage improvement in the death rate for the twelve year period since 1910. The percentage are: Ashland, 6.3; Covington, 7.2; Henderson, 9.8; Lexington, 15.8; Louisville, 4.9; Owensboro, 8.8; and Paducah 8.7. The death rate in Newport in 1922 was 9.3 higher than in 1910.

In all of these cities with the exception of Ashland, where no figures were available until 1920, there also was a reduction in infant mortality between 1921 and 1922. In Covington the infant mortality rate fell from 190 average for the four year period to 57 in 1922; in Henderson, from 101 to 98; in Lexington, from 113 to 68; in Louisville from 99 to 76; in Newport, from 99 to 87; in Owensboro, from 129 to 68; and in Paducah from 168 to 72.

STARS OF THE SUMMER NIGHT.
A romantic old song by the above title will be familiar to many persons. It has expressed the feeling of many young people who used to sit out under the starlight, alone or in company with their sweethearts, and dream of love and ambition, and all the enigmas that look good to youth. There used to be a lot of astrology study, some of it with a sentimental background, yet most of it representing a wholesome interest in the heavenly fragment. It is an elevating and uplifting diversion. The people who sit out in the summer night tracing the various constellations, must have their minds enlarged by the sense of the vastness of the universe, and the marvellous power of the force that created it and keeps it going.

There is a quieting influence in those silent and wheeling stars that has softened many rough places. They suggest that there are forces underneath us capable of upholding all our life, and that we fret too much with our own petty affairs.

MANY FACTORS AFFECTING COST OF HOMEMADE BREAD.

Tests in the experimental kitchen of the United States Department of Agriculture show that the quality of flour used, the retail price paid for it, the method of sifting, whether in small quantities or by the barrel, the bread formula used, the kind and price of fuel, the sort of oven used, and the number of loaves made at one time are all factors affecting the final cost of the homemade loaf of bread.

In case of a batch of five loaves for which materials were bought in small quantities and which were baked in an unheated gas oven when the cost of fuel was found to cost 7 1/2 cents. The recipe called for shortening, sugar, and compressed yeast. Milk was not used in the formula tested and would have increased the cost of the bread.

A batch of eight loaves was made by a more economical formula, and all materials, though bought at retail prices, were purchased to better advantage. "Strong" flour, which gives a high bread yield was selected and it was bought by the barrel, as the farm woman would be likely to buy it. Dried yeast was used, shortening was omitted, and the baking was done in a kitchen range. Under these conditions the cost of one pound loaf was found to be only 4 1/2 cents. The details and figures obtained in these tests are available upon application to the department.

Work of currying and rolling the Florence plan is progressing slowly.

HORNWORMS START ANNUAL RAID ON TOBACCO PLANTS

Lexington—Tobacco growers are facing the annual task of ridding their plants of hornworms, recognized as the worst insect pest of the crop in Kentucky, according to H. H. Jewett, entomologist at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

The adults, or moths, appear from the first week in June to about the middle of August, while the maximum number of worms are apparent in the field about August 15, he said.

The worms are structurally that tobacco could not be grown successfully without the use of control measures for them be added.

Hand worming cannot be relied upon to keep tobacco free from the worms even with the most careful examination of each plant while Paris Green, which formerly was used quite extensively to kill the pests, is giving way to arsenate of lead. The latter adheres to the plants longer than does Paris Green and therefore is more effective while it rarely injures the plants even when an excessive amount is used. This material has an added advantage in that it can be used during periods of unsettled or rainy weather.

The arsenate of lead is applied to the tobacco by means of a dust gun. The old style guns are being replaced by those with fans 10 inches or more in diameter and having special devices for preventing clogging at the outlet. Where it is necessary to use an old style gun, the arsenate should be mixed with an equal bulk of sifted wood ashes. The dusting should be done when there is no breeze, either in the morning when the dew is on the plants or in the evening. An active operator can dust several acres in a day.

Under average conditions from three to five pounds of the arsenate an acre is sufficient for one dusting. At least two dustings should be made while a third is sometimes necessary. Where it is necessary to apply the poison as a spray, because of the lack of dusting apparatus, from three to five pounds of the arsenate should be used to 100 gallons of water.

Brands of arsenate of lead containing at least 30 per cent arsenic acid, of which not more than one per cent is free or water soluble, should be used.

BIRTHS AND DEATHS TO BE LISTED CORRECTLY.

Accurate registration of births and deaths in Kentucky is expected to be made even more complete by the amendment to the Vital Statistics Law which became effective July 1, according to J. F. Blackberry, Registrar of Vital Statistics of the State Board of Health.

Under the amendment 1,400 local registrars either will be reappointed or will be appointed for the first time. The main change effected is that where heretofore the State board's Registrar of Vital Statistics has appointed all local registrars, in the future they will be appointed by County Health Officers from three nominees named by the State official. This procedure is expected to insure each locality's having a local registrar who will interest himself in his duties and perform them efficiently.

At the present time, according to Mr. Blackberry, between 90 and 93 per cent of the births and deaths in the State are registered. It is hoped that in the future these figures will be raised to as high as 95 per cent.

There is an increased demand for certified copies of birth certificates to be used in connection with the Soldier Compensation Law. Mr. Blackberry said. Certified death certificates also are being required by more and more insurance companies, he likewise explained.

"There also is an increasing need of certified birth certificates for school purposes," Mr. Blackberry declared. Several adjacent states now are requiring them of all children who have moved in from other states before they are permitted to enter school, and the day is coming when children everywhere, both before they enter school and when they desire to leave school to take employment, are going to be required to exhibit copies of certified birth certificates.

The Michigan Summer Camp of the Y. M. C. A. offers to the young men of Cincinnati and surrounding territory an opportunity to spend a delightful and inexpensive vacation on the shores of Lake Huron. The camp is ten miles from East Tawas, Michigan. The beach at Tawas Camp is of clean, white sand, sloping out into the lake as smoothly as a floor, so that there is no danger of sinkholes or whirlpools to catch the unwary bather. All swimming is done under the inspection of expert life guards.

Motor-boating, sail-boating and rowing are provided for the camp. The fishing is splendid, and the young men enjoy themselves with baseball, tennis, tramping through the woods, and all sorts of other outdoor sports.

The cost of two weeks at the camp, including board fare, meals, etc., is only $51.00.

The camp opens July 22nd, and closes August 19. For further information prospective campers are requested to write Mr. Schultz at Central Y. M. C. A., Canal and Central Park.

VI. TOOLS AND SUPPLIES REQUIRED

To give an entire or complete list of the various tools and supplies required for making, setting up and using wireless telephones is practically impossible. In the first place, some people can work advantageously with fewer tools than others; some people are naturally "handy" or inventive and can make uses for odds and ends which would appear worthless to others; some people use economies in tools and supplies, etc.—and spend an unlimited amount, while still others prefer to purchase most of their appliances ready-made and merely put them together or set them up.

For these reasons, the tools and supplies listed below are only those which will prove most necessary and as their quality, size and number will depend largely upon the work to be done and one's pocketbook, no prices or estimates of their cost have been given.

TOOLS	SUPPLIES
One large screwdriver.	Wire nails.
One broad-awl set of awls, screwdrivers, etc., or small and medium sized screwdrivers.	Wood screws (flat head), smooth-ed steel or brass.
One gimlet.	Wood screws (round head), smooth-ed steel or brass.
One back saw frame and saw.	Washers for round-head screws.
Panel or cross-cut saw.	Small brass bolts and nuts, assorted.
Mitre-saw and mitre-box.	Emery paper.
Chisels and gouges.	Wire of various sizes (see directions), copper, plain or bare.
Three-cornered file.	Same insulated (see directions), stiff cardboard.
Round or rat-tail file.	Paraffine wax.
Flat file.	Good glue.
Sandpaper.	Sealing wax.
Smoothing or block-plane.	White shellac.
Small bench (iron) vise.	Fiber board or bakelite.
Bit-stock with bits and augers.	Hard rubber knobs.
Breast or hand, geared drill with twist drills.	Flexible insulated wire cord.
Flat-nosed pliers.	Forked insulated wire cord.
Round-nosed pliers.	Porcelain insulators.
Cutting pliers (flat-nosed and cutting pliers combined may be used).	Tin foil.
Soldering iron, solder and flux.	Binding posts.
Tack hammer.	Terminals.
Claw hammer.	Varnished cambric tubing.
Carpenter's square.	Strong twine or string.
Tape, yard stick or rule.	Sheet brass or brass strips (see directions).
Set of small screw-driver and dies.	Sheet copper.
Compasses or dividers.	Adhesive tape.

The last is one of the most useful articles one can have. It is useful in wrapping joints of wires; in covering wires as an insulator; in attaching wires where they cannot be soldered; in making temporary joints or connections in covering coils or holding the wires on coils in place; in holding parts of cases or boxes together while they are being glued or nailed; to cover a cut in your finger, as well as for a thousand and one other purposes. But do not use the cheap, weak grades of tape sold in ten-cent stores and by many bicycle and automobile accessory dealers. Use a good, strong, rubber-covered tape such as Tiro, for while it costs more it is worth many times as much more. These cheap tapes dry up, lose their stickiness upon exposure to air; the thin rubber, if any, soon disappears and leaves only the fabric which is not an insulator; they have no tensile strength, whereas high-grade tapes are exceedingly strong, they are coated heavily with rubber, they never dry up and they retain their tenacity for a long time.

Varnished cambric tubing, known also as "Spaghetti," is the best material for covering joints in wires and should be used whenever possible.

Finally, let me advise you never to throw away anything which you have on hand in the way of electrical supplies, wires, screws, nails, etc. One never knows when such things may come in handy and may be put to some good and useful purpose, thus saving time and money.

LEGION NOTES

Indianapolis, Ind.—Wanted: the best recipe in America for making cookies.

Any woman who has a cooking recipe which is by way of being a family heirloom; if her cookies have a fair such as no other cookies ever had; if her cookies will banish all earthly woe, relieve sorrow and pain—she is asked to send her recipe to the national headquarters of the American Legion Auxiliary, Indianapolis, Ind.

These cookie recipes are wanted for use in thousands of cities and towns where the Auxiliary women are going to start baking cookies for the 27,000 service men now in hospitals. Mrs. W. H. Cudworth, chairman of the Legion Auxiliary national welfare and hospital committee, has called on all members of the organization to aid in the establishment of "cookie jars" in hospitals. A jury of sick and disabled soldiers in the nation's hospitals will decide which cookies are best.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—A decided step toward the promotion of the amiable relations between the forces of organized labor and world war service men was taken when the delegates to the national convention of the American Federation of Labor applauded the address of Hanford MacNider, national commander of the Legion, who spoke by invitation before the convention on "The Legion and Labor."

Commander MacNider expressed the hope that the American Legion, composed of the defenders of American ideals and American democracy would never get into politics. He said, however, that the Legion and the American Federation of Labor should stand together "pledging themselves to the task of keeping America as the members of both organizations worked and fought that it should be American."

"Both of us have as common enemies those who would destroy the lawful integrity of the nation," the commander declared.

That organized labor, which furnished the Government almost 700,000 men and women during the world war, has every reason to be interested in the welfare and activities of the service men's organization—the American Legion, was pointed out by George L. Berry, vice commander of the Legion and president of the International Peasants' Union.

"We propose that the Legion and the Federation join hands in a great campaign for Americanism," Mr. Berry said. "The bringing of Mr. MacNider here today, I believe, will cement the relationship between the two organizations so firmly together that misunderstanding, many of which have occurred in the past, will be eliminated in the future and we shall all work henceforth for greater union which will result in better things for all America."

The national essay contest of the American Legion which will award $1500 in cash prizes to boys and girls has been extended until October 6th upon the urgent request of state and county superintendents and commissioners of education throughout the United States.

The new date will allow all children of the United States and its possessions to participate after the schools open in September, giving the teacher an opportunity to present the subject "How the American Legion can Best Serve the Nation."

Meanwhile, scores of letters have been received by Mr. Garland W. Powell, assistant national director, at national headquarters of the American Legion in Indianapolis, from state school officials telling of unanimous cooperation. In nearly every state, educational officials are urging that boys and girls be interested in writing this essay as a vacation activity. A circular to county superintendents issued by Mrs. Josephine Corliss Preston, superintendent of public instruction, Olympia, Washington, emphasizing the vacation advantage of the contest, is one of many.

Porto Rico and the Canal Zone particularly felt the need of extending the time for the essay, letters having been received from Commissioner of Education Juan B. Huyle, of Porto Rico, and Superintendent of Schools A. R. Lang, of the Canal Zone.

The cash prizes, divided into $750 for the first, $500 for the second, and $250 for the third, are to be used toward scholarships in colleges designated by the winners. In each state there will be a first prize silver medal for the best essay in that state and a bronze medal for the second best. Other prizes to be announced later will be awarded.

All girls and boys between the ages of 12 and 18 inclusive are eligible to enter the contest, regardless of whether they are school attendants. The essay must not be more than 500 words in length. Age of writer will be given due consideration.

The essay must be received at a place designated by the county superintendent of schools not later than midnight of October 6, 1922. The winning essays of the county will be forwarded to the state department. American Legion chairman of the American Legion not later than midnight of October 6, 1922. The business reply is forwarded to the state department.

A SCANDALOUS SITUATION.

It is a sad commentary on our Federal Government that there are in Kentucky 4,600 disabled service men who are receiving no compensation or vocational training. These men, suffering from wounds received on the battlefield or languishing with diseases contracted while wearing their country's uniform, deserve the most assiduous attention.

It is at once a nation's highest privilege and its gravest duty to care for those whose health is impaired in the defense of its honor. Yet 4,600 Kentucky men are getting neglect instead of attention, indifference instead of devotion.

That such a situation exists cannot be excused by the plea of lack of time. The war ended three and a half years ago and demobilization was largely accomplished three years ago. Nor cannot it be excused for lack of funds. Millions upon millions have been appropriated for the relief of ex-service men, sums which a few decades ago would have defrayed the entire cost of the Federal Government. Only disorderly administration and inefficiency can account for the monstrous neglect of men who, had they died, would have been acclaimed heroes.

Even now it is a State organization, the Kentucky Disabled Ex-Servicemen's Board—which is striving to remedy the Federal neglect by conducting a clean-up campaign to obtain justice for these men. In cooperation with the American Legion, it begins next Friday a ten-day drive into all parts of the State to acquaint the wounded and the diseased with their rights under the law and to urge the filing of claims before it is too late. August 9 is the final date under the Sweet law for this purpose.

In its high and noble work the Kentucky Board should have the enthusiastic sympathy and support of every citizen. Many of the men who should now be receiving compensation or vocational training are, unfortunately, unschooled. They are bewildered by the complicated windings of red tape which are the prelude to concrete assistance. Rather than attempt to understand or penetrate the maze, they have done without governmental assistance, although many of them are in straits. Others whose claims have been filed have had no action on them. Or their payments have suddenly been discontinued without explanation. Discouraged and disgusted, they have preferred to rely upon themselves rather than engage in a letter-writing duel with far-off officials.

The Kentucky Board will try to ferret out these cases, and, by its knowledge and diligence, see that checks are forthcoming. It has already made a deep investigation of its subject and has enlisted the aid of many ex-service men in unearthing cases of injustice. Anyone who knows of an injured or ridged service man who is the victim of governmental neglect should communicate the information to Henry J. Stites, secretary of the board, in Louisville.

Let us hope that the ten-day drive, by reaching all uncompensated men, will prevent the scandalous situation which, but for the State's activities, seemed destined to be a scar on America's record.—C. J.

All ex-service men who are entitled to these benefits should write B. H. Riley, Burlington, in regard to their cases. He will push your claim.

One of the first essentials in any movement for rural progress is to secure first class country schools. A good rural school can be made the means of transforming country life. It will send out young people who are able to cope with the difficulties of their surroundings, and who see the possibilities in country life, and who are full of ambition to take hold of rural industries and make a success of them.

Good schools attract new residents, they discourage people from moving away to larger communities. If you can put good schools into a town, the future of that community and its prosperous growth are almost certainly assured.

ARTISTIC AND COMFORTABLE

Completeness of the Arrangement of This Home-Makes It Popular for Small Family—Reduces Work to Minimum.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF CHARGE on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1227 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

"All the rooms on one floor."
That has been and will continue to be one of the powerful appeals of the bungalow which had its inception on the Pacific coast. There are no stairs to climb up and come down. And in this age of efficiency, this arrangement has influence. It means more time for the housewife to devote to outside activities, it means less using up of energy.

Originally the bungalow was a frail sort of structure designed for real warm climates, a more or less artificial and ornamental shelter without any of the substantial comforts or sentimental features of the true home. But the idea spread with such astounding reception, that the living room, we find, is a large "cozy" room, 10 feet 9 inches by 15 feet provided with an emergency wall bed in case the capacity of the two other sleeping rooms is taxed to the limit. Two small wall bookcases have been built in on each side of the fireplace.

An informal casing connects living room with dining room, which is a bright room, 13 by 13 feet. It has a built-in sideboard or buffet, and light from a double window on the side. A door from the dining room opens into a small hall which leads to the two bedrooms, 11 by 13 feet each. Both of these bedrooms are beautifully situated with regard to light and ventilation, each of them has windows on two sides permitting cross drafts during the night. A bathroom also opens off this hall. Each bedroom has ample clothes closet space.

A door in the rear of the dining room opens into a delightful small kitchen less than 10 feet square, equipped with range, sink and built-in cupboards and shelves. Off to one side is a small pantry with built-in work table, shelving and a broom closet. The outer door of this lobby opens out to the rear porch where the ice man can deliver his ice without entering the house. This is an important convenience for every household providing both protection and cleanliness. Stairs to the cellar originate in the rear entry.

A house of this size does not require a complicated heating plant, in many cases the fireplace being sufficient. In a cold climate, however, a pipeless furnace will be found quite economical and satisfactory. If a heating plant is not needed only part of the cellar is excavated. The house is 35 feet wide and 42 feet long.

This design can be successfully executed in brick, stucco over frame or ing rapidly, that very soon the bungalow was built stronger and came to resemble more the home and less the whim. Bungalows are now built of brick and frame, equipped with heating plants for the cold climates, and always open fireplaces. In the warm climates a gas heater is often added to take off the chill of cool evenings.

But without doubt the attraction of the bungalow lies in its adaptability to variety in design. Each one is different and a whole street of bungalows can be free from any taint of monotony. The design offers the owner individuality which is the goal which most of us seek. And it is cozy, indefinitely and undeniably so.

Cosiness springs from compactness and arrangement. A glance at the photograph shown here will serve to give that impression. This building is small with an artistically treated exterior of frame on concrete foundation—the walls do not have to be solid, footings being used in many sections. A wide chimney provides the draft for an equally wide fireplace in the living room. This chimney is covered with stucco.

In place of the usual porch, this dwelling has a terrace extending across the front paved with brick on end. A glass-paned door opens the way into the living room, no space being wasted on unnecessary vestibule.

stucco over metal lath. The cost will depend upon the location, prices varying in different parts of the country. But regardless of the materials used, the design will always be one that will please not only the owner but the casual passer-by.

"A MAN'S HOUSE IS HIS CASTLE"

RESTRICTION OF IMMIGRATION SHOULD GO HAND IN HAND WITH AMERICANIZATION.

Washington.—Theodore G. Risley, solicitor general of the Department of Labor, says: "Immigration laws of the United States, limiting the influx of foreign-born persons to this country, are justified when it is considered that it is the duty of the government to protect American ideals and safeguard its citizens."

"The United States government has the same right to close the gates of Ellis Island to undesirable aliens as the head of a family has to reject his home. But it is essential that the small quota of immigrants admitted under the strict laws administered by the immigration authorities be welcomed wholeheartedly by the American public," he said.

"Immigrants who pass the tests at Ellis Island are worthy of the friendship and advice of their American neighbors. It is the solemn duty of every American citizen who loves his country, and who cherishes the principles for which George Washington fought to see to it that the foreign-born residents are assisted in their struggle to understand the meaning of good citizenship. By so doing we will be safeguarding our economic institutions and insuring the spread of patriotism."

Mr. Risley's words find a responsive echo in the hearts of many government authorities in the Capital City, who believe it necessary that the country realize that no immigration law, no matter how strict, can do for the nation what must be done in the assimilation of those who come to these shores. Immigrants who pass at Ellis Island and who remain here must become either an asset or a liability to the nation, which depends upon whether they become good Americans or persist in remaining foreigners living in a, to them, foreign land. This is a question which can only be solved by educational methods and a hearty cooperation on the part of all who come in contact with the new arrivals to these shores, to the end that they be made to feel welcome and at home, in proportion as they assimilate and apply the doctrines of true Americanism.

EPIDEMIC OF RABIES.

The County Judge has received the following letter from the State Board of Health:

N. E. Riddell, County Judge, Burlington, Ky.

Dear Sir: Acting upon the authority conferred upon it by law, the State Board of Health calls your attention to a widespread epidemic of rabies in almost every section of the State. Men, women and children have been bitten by mad dogs and large live stock has been similarly infected and destroyed.

In order to prevent a widespread epidemic of this very dangerous disease, this Board requests you to immediately issue such instructions to your subordinates as will cause them to destroy, as painlessly as possible, all stray dogs found running at large in any part of your jurisdiction. There are now more than sixty individuals taking the treatment for bites from rabid animals at the office of this Board in Louisville and more than twice as many other persons are being treated by their physicians at home. This is why the necessary expense and burden to our people and prompt action in ridding every section of the State of stray dogs will immediately reduce the danger.

All dogs should be considered stray dogs which are at large unmuzzled for the next sixty days after publication of this notice in local paper. Given under our hands and the seal of the Board at Louisville this July 14, 1922.

L. L. McWhorter, President.
A. T. McCormack, Secretary.

THE WORK HABIT.

A large part, probably the big majority of successful men, were born and bred in the country. What is the reason? It can hardly be schooling, as country schools are not usually better than those of the city.

The reason is that country boys learn the work habit early in life and acquire the custom of perseverance. Around the farm or village home there are always chores to do, and they are expected to perform them. They get interested in the farm animals or the village tasks, and work becomes a natural habit at an early age. They acquire skill and judgment, and they perform their tasks better than city boys. Hence they get promoted earlier and go ahead faster.

Up to this time Jack Dempsey had not met his master—but it is now announced that he will soon be married.

WOMEN AS FARMERS.

Farming is becoming a popular occupation for women. The last census shows that 267,558 women are operating farms, and altogether they cultivate the vast territory of 25,798,400 acres.

Many of these women were bred in cities and large towns. They find farming a healthful and pleasant occupation. This is one more reason why the girls of Boone County should think favorably of country life. They have open to them an occupation that women are finding desirable. If women can come out from the cities and earn a living by it, surely the girls born and bred in the country can make themselves very comfortable. Any strong and intelligent young woman can find it a satisfactory career.

WASHINGTON COMMENT.

The President of the United States has just made this solemn statement, which must find a responsive echo in every true American heart:

"The foremost thought in the Constitution is the right to freedom and the pursuit of happiness. Men must be free to achieve. Liberty is gone in America when any man is denied by anybody the right to work and live by that work. It does not matter who denies."

Ku Klux Klan men who first whip and then run out of town those who do not please them; the murderers of Herrin, Ill.; the capitalists who grind wages below living possibilities; and the unions who forbid others to work in the places they vacate on strike should all take this statement of Warren G. Harding's under most careful consideration.

Louis James, nationally known aviator, swung from one plane to another by means of a rope ladder. In some way the two planes did not separate promptly enough; his ladder swung him against the propeller of the machine from which he had jumped, and he was literally cut to pieces, in midair.

Madame Georges Breyer, French woman, chartering a shipplane for a hurried trip from a vacation resort to Naples, found nature faster than the machine, and bore a son 6,000 feet in the air. Both she and the boy were safely landed, and later she purchased the machine which had thus become immortal as the first to give life.

Flying is in its swaddling clothes. We do not but begin to know what we have as yet to learn about the conquest of the air. But long before births in airplanes are as common as births on steamers or trains, civic consciousness will have awakened to the enormity of permitting anyone to man a machine and risk their lives in needless "stunts" for the thrilling of gaping sightseers.

Representative Upshaw of Georgia is backing a bill in Congress, the purpose of which is to extend financial aid to relatives of victims of the Knickerbocker Theater disaster. Representative Upshaw's niece was one of the victims and one of the heroines of the tragedy.

With most sincere respect for the grief which all who had relatives and friends in this surpassing horror have suffered, it seems wise to point out that there is no more reason for the United States Treasury to come to the relief of the survivors of this tragedy than to help those who were bereaved in the Iroquois Theater disaster in Chicago or the General Slocum holocaust in New York. On the theory that the U. S. might have prevented the Knickerbocker disaster by a better, larger or more adequate building department in the city government of Washington, D. C., the unthinking may find some support for this proposed measure. But why not say that the United States should have a theater inspection service which is nation wide. And even if it had such a service, why consider any theater failure calls for government funds for survivors? We have an Interstate Commerce Commission with an accident investigation department, but we don't pay damages to relatives of railroad disaster victims. We have a steamboat inspection service, but no relative of the General Slocum victims received a cent from the Treasury.

The United States is not an insurance company. It pays pensions, rightly, to its own servants; it aids rightly, its own soldiers and sailors; but that it should relieve distress of the relatives of the victims of non-governmental tragedies is hardly a defensible proposal.

MUST PAY $401.14.

Boone County Will Have to Pay For Registration Printing.

An interesting aftermath of the proving of the general registration act invalid by the Court of Appeals is the paying to three printing companies in Louisville the cost of registration books for the counties thru out the state.

The Circuit Court of Boone at its meeting in next month will be presented with a bill of $401.14 by County Clerk M. E. Rogers, sent her by the Standard Printing Co., Louisville, for the printing of 34 books and blank forms used when the Boone voters registered. The books were already in the hands of County officials before the act was proved unconstitutional.

The contract for the printing of the registration books was let to three printing companies in Louisville for nearly $90,000 each and the expense for printing and binding was to be charged to the counties.

A day of reckoning is coming and the average citizen will demand more than a lot of unfilled promises and a package of garden seed; the public is getting tired of sending men to our State legislature for 60 days each two years and have them waste all but two weeks of the time and pass a lot of laws that will not stand the acid test, such as the registration law, at the expense of the taxpayers. The people are tiring of the present day politician and their extravagance.

A GOOD WOMAN GONE

Mrs. Joanna Kite, 71, Passes Away at Her Home Near Waterloo.

Mrs. Joanna Kite, 71, widow of the late J. W. Kite, died at her home at Waterloo, last Saturday morning, July 15th, from a stroke of paralysis received two days before her death.

She was a daughter of Leonard and Margaret Cline, was born at Sanders, Ky., June 9th, 1851; she was married to Jas. W. Kite August 4th, 1870, to this union three children were born, J. L. Kite, of Burlington, W. G. Kite, of Waterloo, and one daughter, Margaret, who died in infancy. Her husband preceded her to the grave ten years ago.

She was a member of the Christian church, having united with the church at Bellevue forty-six years ago. She retained her faith in Jesus as her Savior until death. Mrs. Kite lived a christian life and was a true wife and indulgent mother. She was always patient and pleasant, bearing her sufferings bravely, and never failing to turn every dark cloud inside out that its silver lining might brighten the way for her friends. Truly a good woman has gone to receive her reward.

After a short funeral service at the residence, conducted by Rev. R. H. Carter, the remains were brought to Burlington, followed by a large concourse of relatives and friends, and laid to rest in Odd-Fellows' cemetery by the side of loved ones gone before.

THIS IS THE TRUTH

Things may not be the best; they may not even be good, and yet we may like them because we are used to them, which is not a very good excuse for their existence. And so, if it takes an outsider to wake us up with a well-aimed criticism, we can not afford to be finicky about his remarks. Kindly or otherwise, his hints may be useful. Let's ask our neighbors what they think of our town and why they think. We ought to get some valuable suggestions and an open mind is never a fault.

REMEMBER THIS.

People who write things which they would like to see printed in a newspaper, should bear in mind that what they write as their personal opinion should be gathered by them, and when they write stuff that is not to attach their names to, it should never be printed. Remember the rules of all decent newspapers and you will never have occasion to put on the shoe. This is the rule which we give in all kindness. Never ask a newspaper to do anything you are ashamed to do yourself.

PAYS FOR BAD ROADS.

The farmer actually pays a premium for bad roads. He pays in the time expended in getting to town and in the wear and tear on his vehicles. Contrary to some people's opinion good roads are not for the benefit of the motor tourist. On the contrary, they are his greatest blessing.

BIGGER AND BETTER

The North Kentucky Fair this year will be held at Florence August 20th to Sept. 2nd, and promises, if preparations count for anything, to be bigger and better than ever.

AUTOMOBILE ETIQUETTE

Most people feel ashamed to show ignorance of the manners of good society. They laugh at the uncouth ways of uncultivated persons. Yet many of these same finished people who know all the niceties of social intercourse, seem to forget all their manners when they get behind the steering wheel of an automobile.

If they come to a street corner and see people waiting to pass, they insist on going ahead full speed and make the pedestrians wait. The man who is scrupulous about going thru a door last at a reception, may arrogantly insist on his right-of-way on the streets, and frequently claim it when it does not belong to him.

If these folks could see how their conduct makes them look more boorish than the rustic who eats with his knife, they would study automobile etiquette.

WOMEN AS AUTOMOBILE DRIVERS.

The Automobile magazine reports that information received from a number of court magistrates in various parts of the country indicates that women are more careful as automobile drivers than men.

Thousands of cases coming before the courts daily for violations of the traffic rules, only about one per cent are women.

This will be a surprise to many. It has been claimed that women would be more careless than men, and that the highways would be strewn with wrecks caused by their heedlessness as soon as many of them became drivers.

It has always been said that women are more conscientious than men. Perhaps when they get out on the road they not merely are just as fearful of accidents, but they may feel a keener obligation to regard the rights of others. There is something morally wrong as well as arrogant in the way many men drivers, like great roaring bullies, will ram-page over the roads without regard to the rights of other parties.

ROMANCE OF ADVERTISING

Advertising may seem to many people a mere business, subject dealing with such things as accounts and prices and merchandise. And yet there is a big element of romance in it.

Any experience has elements of romance, when it represents the struggle of hard working people to achieve difficult aims. The business man's climb to success is a toilsome and sometimes dangerous path. It is a journey along which many have quit discouraged, many have gone down to defeat.

The ambitious business fellow starts on this path of thorns and barriers with many fears but with high hopes. He is leading the life of adventure just as much as if he was shooting wild game in the heart of Africa. If by reason of the commercial method which we call advertising he is able to trample down the thorns in his pathway, to overcome barriers, to cross the chasms of trade his story is no mere prose affair, but one of imagination and achievement, and advertising is the romantic element that has made his victory over obstacles.

The best cream to whip is good, rich cream, from 4 to 6 hours old, say the United States Department of Agriculture. It should contain at least 30 per cent butter fat to produce ideal results, and be kept very cold. Pasteurization tends to lower the whipping quality of the cream, and homogenization is very harmful to it. Combined they practically destroy the value of cream for whipping.

MUST HAVE A MIRROR

Drivers Must Be Able to See Cars Approaching From Rear.

Every motor truck owned and operated in Kentucky must have a mirror or reflector attached so that the driver can see the road behind him, according to a law which has become effective, passed by the 1922 session of the General Assembly.

The statute states that "each commercial motor vehicle of more than one half ton capacity, operated upon the public highways or streets of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, shall be equipped with a mirror or reflector attached to and at all times located and adjusted upon such vehicle as to give the operator a clear, reflected view of the highway directly to the rear in a line parallel to the side of the body of the vehicle and so as to enable the operator of such vehicle to see and observe machines and vehicles approaching from the rear and desiring to pass."

Failure to comply with the statute is punishable by a fine of not to exceed $100 for each day the car operates without a mirror. The same penalty is provided for dealers selling cars without mirrors.

WILL FILE SUIT.

A suit will be filed to test the validity of the law passed at the last session of the Legislature by the provisions of which a new commission of Public Roads was created, with General Seibert, of Bowling Green, as chairman. The law to be tested is known as the Simmons bill, as it was introduced by Senator R. C. Simmons of Covington. The way and manner in which the affairs of the State road commission are being conducted is not satisfactory to a number of the counties, the charge is being made that partisan politics is playing a very important part in the conduct of the business of that department.

The Road Commission is supposed to be a non-partisan body, the work done by that body should not have a political bearing but, when the Governor leaves his office, spends the day with the commission, advocating projects presented by certain county citizens, and very much like the state road department is in politics, and that their machinery works for the benefit of the dominant political party. The members of the commission named by the Legislature are men of the highest type and would see that for every dollar spent on the roads in Kentucky, her citizens would receive the value. General Seibert has successfully managed other undertakings that required more executive ability than road construction. The people of Kentucky can feel assured that with a man of his ability at the head of her road department all will be well, as no better selection could be made.

DENATURING PROFANITY

A well-meaning reformer would eliminate our vigorous and popular profanity and substitute therefor "words of sweetness."

We doubt if ever this can be done. There are too many difficulties in the way. No one denies that profanity is coarse, vulgar and wicked, but it would require more time than is required in the discussion of a tariff measure, word of practice and the cultivation of an exceptional state of grace before one could find himself honestly saying, "Sweet bunch of daisies" instead of "darnit" when he hits his thumb with a hammer.

Still, we suppose, it might be done. But if a fellow means "dammit" when he says "salvation," what is the moral gain?

There is the rub. How are we to express our feelings in terms that are foreign to the impulse which prompts us to say the "right" thing.

The man who inadvertently sits down on a freshly painted bench, and thereby impresses upon his trousers a ghastly smudge, isn't going to feel like saying, "Now I lay me down to sleep." Involuntarily, and quite naturally, he is certain to say something normally fitting to the occasion. If he said anything else the Recording Angel wouldn't be deceived in the least.

It is all quite too bad, but most mere mortals are built that way, so to speak.

A cuss word is naughty, or wicked, and, perhaps, for that reason lends an emphasis to expression that generally is conceded to insure a degree of satisfaction in emergency not otherwise to be attained.

But, of course, profanity is all wrong, "words of sweetness" along with the unvarnished variety included unless they express preferably what they imply as words of sweetness.

POOR MAN'S CROP RUINED

The dry, hot weather has ruined the poor man's crop—blackberries. There are an abundance of berries, but they have burned up and it is a big job to find enough good ones to make a pie.

A WEEK'S NEWS.

One of the big attractions at this exposition to open the Tri-State Fair and Fall Festival on October 21st, 1922.

One of the big attractions at this great exposition will be the tractor show, which will rival anything of the kind in recent years. This show will be given on the immense open lot just at the west end of the big exposition hall and will be divided into booths handsomely decorated.

It will give farmers an opportunity to see the various makes and styles of tractors all together. It will doubtless impress them with the magnitude and importance of the use of the tractor on the farm.

It is being well advertised and should attract thousands of farmers from the great Ohio Valley. Many of the leading manufacturers have already made application for space.

A point which counts much for economy, whether living at home, or at restaurants is a rather funny one, you may say. I have not heard it mentioned often. People usually laugh about it, but it is very true, nevertheless. That is that most people—not just the average person—but most people, do not chew their food sufficiently to get the full nutrient value from it. If food were chewed three or four times as long as it usually is, we would not eat more than half as much of it as we do. Think of cutting your meat bill in two in the middle! And feeling better for it!

Federal-aid projects totaling 622 miles in length were completed and 541 miles went under construction during May, bringing the total under construction to nearly 15,000 miles and the mileage in completed projects to 17,038, according to reports of the Bureau of Public Roads, U. S. Department of Agriculture. These figures indicate that the Federal-aid system grew at a rate of more than 20 miles per day on each working day of the month. Allotments of funds to definite projects amounted to $7,828,000 during the month.

George Gould, whose marriage in Paris last week to Mrs. Alice Sinclair, an actress, loses an estate of between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 as a result of this second marriage. This estate, including the Gould town house at Fifth Ave., and Sixty Seventh Street and another residence on East Sixty-fourth Street, New York, was bequeathed to Mr. Gould by his first wife, "during his life and until he remarries."

Miss Bernice Grant of Burlington, Kentucky, who is a Freshman in Georgetown College, was one of the six members of her class to make the Honor Roll for the second semester this year. To do the feat she had to make a grade of B or more on all his work and must not fall below B in any one subject. Miss Grant made a grade of A on over half of her work.

Jno. L. Goodman, of Louisville, was in Burlington, Tuesday of last week. Mr. Goodman represents the Standard Printing Co., of Louisville, who furnished the record books for the county offices. He was a candidate for Clerk of the Court of Appeals at the last State election, but was defeated with the others on the Democratic ticket.

The death in the Soldiers' Home at Hampton, Va., one day last week, of Captain William H. Sweeney, better known as "Roaring Bill," moves one of the most picturesque political figures ever in the State of Kentucky.

Stocks of beef in cold storage on June 1, 1922, were but little over half those in storage last year and only slightly more than one-third the five year average stock, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

It is perhaps significant that the farming business, which is suffering more than any other from the depressed conditions of 1921, is the business which makes the least use of advertising. The business that advertises does not feel hard times much.

Some people never hand in an item of news for publication, but if we happen to miss an item in which they are interested they are sure to hand us a north pole star that would freeze the liver of a polar bear.

R. H. Stephens, wife and son Ben, and his brother, Will Stephens, of Carlton precinct, were in Burlington, last Thursday enroute home from Erlaner where they had been visiting relatives.

The stomach regulates the constitution of the blood and is the foundation of good health or disease. Keep in good shape by taking Tangle. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

It is well to rise to the occasion, but not to go up in the air.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C.—The attempt on the part of a group of shipping magnates to get away with the people's three billion dollar steel fleet is not meeting with enthusiasm. A number of Republican Congressmen have heard from home and are going to have a vote against the bill, no matter how indignant the President may become. The bill is not helped, nor is the tottering administration aided by the fact that Laaker of the Shipping Board, has permitted the ships to sell wheat to passengers with fully equipped bars, union bartenders, mirrors, fancy bottles and all of the old time trimmings. It is now up to Harding to decide whether it shall continue. It seems to take him some time to decide a very simple question. It is not a question as to whether or not we should have passed a prohibition law; it is a question whether the Government is willing to set the example of doing a thing which it prosecutes as a criminal act when committed by an individual. If the President sets this example, then all people lose all respect for all law and the reign of law is at an end.

Glimpses of President Harding and the Cabinet from "Behind the Mirrors."

The glimpses of our great men which the author of "The Mirrors of Washington" gives us in his new book "Behind the Mirrors," are quite as interesting and in some cases quite as enlightening as those in the first named work. From "Behind the Mirrors" take a peek at President Harding and his cabinet:

President Harding—"Feebler than Taft."

Secretary of State Hughes—"Mr. Hughes' mind is distinctly inferior to Mr. Harding's which is one reason why he never became President and Mr. Harding did."

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon—"The shyest and most awkward man who ever rose to power."

Secretary of War Weeks—"Near-er akin mentally to the President than any other member of the Cabinet but with more industry and more capacity for details than his chief."

Secretary of the Navy Denig—"Has a big heart and more enthusiasm than he has self-command, judgment and intelligence."

Secretary of the Interior Fall—"He has the frontiersman's impatience. From his kind, lynch law springs."

Attorney General Daugherty—"In physique, burly, thick-necked, his eyes are unsteady, his face alternately oval and minatory—I should say he bluffed effectively—rough in personality. His view of the world being highly personal, his instinctive idea of office is that it is, too, a personal, something to be used, always within the law, to aid friends and to punish enemies."

Secretary of Commerce Hoover—"The practical utility of his mind, is conditioned upon the minds of Mr. Harding, Mr. Weeks and Mr. Daugherty."

Secretary of Labor Davis—"A professional glad-hand man."

KICKED BY HORSE.

T. P. Stephens, who resides about a mile from town on the Florence pike, was kicked in the stomach by a horse, one day last week, and seriously injured.

A. B. Renaker and family will leave Monday, July 25th, and motor to Golden Pond, Trigg county, Ky., to visit Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Furnish.

F. H. Rouse purchased of B. B. Hume one of the late model Essex autos.

HOPE FOR THE FARM HAND

I want a man to do work on my farm. I don't give dancing lessons, I have no piano, I can't serve plank three times a day. I do give three square meals, a real bed, fair wages. If any man who knows a cow from a talking machine, can hear an alarm clock, get up at five o'clock, wants the job, I will agree not to treat him like one of the family, but a darn sight better. Apply at the Steve Wiggins place, Intervale road.—Home (Kan.) Recorder.

JULY CROP REPORT

Estimates placing Kentucky's 1922 total acreage of tobacco of all types at approximately 558,000 acres as compared to 385,000 acres last year (or 45 per cent increase) and the Kentucky wheat crop at 7,553,000 bushels compared to a prospect June 1 for 8,544,000 bushels and 6,340,000 bushels produced last year, are the features of the July crop report for Kentucky, issued by the United States Department of Agriculture in co-operation with State Commissioner W. C. Hanna. This is a decrease of 1,091,000 bushels from the June 1 prospects for the Kentucky wheat crop due chiefly to poor filling of heads, even though the acreage was 2 1/2 per cent more than in 1921. This month's estimate of the acreage and condition of corn in Kentucky indicates a crop of about 94,378,000 bushels compared to 82,150,000 bushels produced last year.

A full normal production of tobacco this fall from the 558,000 bushels which farmers' reports indicate has been set, would produce about $20,502,000 pounds, as compared to $25,710,000 pounds for the last five years.

Oats are estimated at only 5,420,000 bushels compared to 5,567,000 bushels last year. Oats in many parts of the state were severely damaged by rust and some were so short they had to be mowed or pastured.

Hay has been a good crop in most counties, though short in some places due to local drouths, and much clover cutdown heavily before being cut.

Fruit is very irregular, but generally a good crop.

Mrs. Emily N. Soward, aged 75 years, after a lingering illness, passed away Thursday at the home of her nephew, Chas. A. Fulton in Florence. Funeral services were conducted Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock by Rev. Tomlin, after which the remains were taken by Undertaker Philip Tulliferro to Covington to be forwarded to Maysville, Ky., for interment.

This part of the county was visited by a splendid rain Monday night. It began raining about midnight and kept up until day break. This was the best shower this section of the county has had since the latter part of May, and water was getting scarce.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Rouse had as their guests last Sunday, her mother and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Wright of Walton, her brother, Cleveland Hedges and wife, of Texas, and Fleming Hedges, of Chicago. The brothers remained over until Wednesday.

Walton Dempsey, of the Dempsey Motor Car Co., of Erlanger, delivered to Wilford Rouse, Monday afternoon, a new five passenger Chevrolet touring car.

County Tax Commissioner J. S. Cason will be at the Florence Bank next Saturday, July 22nd, and will assess any one who will call at the bank.

The Katydids have made their appearance and according to the old time prognostication, we will have frost in six weeks.

The Stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hewett, Tuesday morning and left with them a 10 pound boy.

E. E. Foster and niece, Olive, of Jacksonville, Florida, are visiting relatives and friends in the county.

Walton Dempsey and wife, of Erlanger, spent Monday evening with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Riddell.

Mrs. Sarah Carpenter was tendered a surprise Saturday evening by her children, relatives and many friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Carpenter. It was the seventy-third anniversary of her birthday. Everyone enjoyed a delightful evening and left at a late hour wishing the dear old lady many more such happy occasions.

Death has again visited our neighborhood and called to rest our neighbor and friend Mr. William Summitt. He leaves a devoted wife and one son Charles and many friends. The remains were in charge of Mr. John Allison and were taken to Hillsborough, Ky., where funeral services were held there at Mr. Summitt's old home. The community extends to the family their sympathy in their bereavement.

Mr. and Mrs. Eli Carpenter mother and sister Miss Alda, entertained Saturday evening at their home with a shower in honor of their niece and nephew Mr. and Mrs. Otis Readnow, of Bracht. The evening was ideal and about seventy-five friends and relatives responded to invitations. The young couple received many handsome and useful presents. Bro. Baker read a chapter and offered prayer and all joined in music and songs. The host and hostess served ice cream cakes and lemonade. The guests left at the wee hour of the morning with best wishes to the happy couple and their noble host and hostess.

Miss Sudie Penn, of Springfield, Ky., is the guest of her brother, Mr. Geo. Penn and family.

Jesse Kirkpatrick, who has been quite sick for the past two weeks, is able to be around.

Dr. Paul G. Randall and family, of Louisville, are visiting friends and relatives in Boone county.

Rev. Tomlin filled his appointments at the Methodist church last Sunday morning and evening.

Miss Louise Walton, of Saylor Park, Ohio, is the guest of her grandmother, Mrs. Fannie Cropper.

Miss Mary Susan Renaker, of Dry Ridge, Grant county, is the guest of relatives and friends in Burlington.

W. R. Rogers and sisters, Misses Sallie and Elizabeth, spent Saturday night and Sunday with relatives in Walton.

W. C. Weaver and wife from down on Gunpowder creek, spent last Sunday with their son, Lloyd Weaver and wife.

Miss Katherine Beerman, of Lexington, spent the first of the week with her sister, Mrs. Fred Morris, on the East Bend road.

Mrs. James L. Riley, of Ludlow, returned to her home Monday after spending a few days with her brother, Geo. C. Kreylich and family.

Ben Jacob and family and Sim Jacob, of New Alca, Ind., spent the week-end with Ray Botts and family, of Locust Grove neighborhood.

A revenue man was in this part of the county last week getting names of auto owners who are hauling passengers without a license. It is said that he secured quite a number of names.

Marriage licenses were issued last week as follows:

Nelson Crawford, 21, and Bernice Hill, 18, both of Mt. Crest.

Jno. Powers, 29 and Ruth Jenkins, 20, both of Verona.

Miss Dorothy McMullen entertained twenty-five or thirty of her young friends last Saturday afternoon in honor of her twelfth birthday. Light refreshments were served. All left wishing her many more happy birthdays.

City Commissioner Rodney Russell and wife, Ralph Russell and wife, Fred Ferguson and wife, O. C. Boldrey and wife, Joe Thornton and Fred Finkley, all of Covington, spent last Sunday with W. B. Hall and family of Commissary neighborhood.

B. W. Campbell and H. B. Riddle, of Cincinnati, spent a few hours in Burlington, last Sunday morning meeting with their old friends and viewing the scenes of their boyhood days. They enjoy a trip to the old town and their friends, few of whom are left, enjoy meeting them.

Miss Edna Gordon is visiting relatives at Eminence, Ky., having accompanied her grandmother, Mrs. McKensie, home. Miss Mary Gordon is visiting Miss Hazel Grow at Grand Rapids, Michigan. Miss Grow was one of the teachers at the Boone County High School last winter.

Harry Hartke, of Erlanger, and J. W. Scott, of Florence, motored to Gallatin, Carroll and Shelby counties last week looking for registered Jersey. They inspected the herds of Mr. W. Daniel, of Warsaw, and P. B. Gaines at Carrollton. Mr. Scott is the pioneer Jersey breeder of Boone county.

The Ohio County News, published at Rising Sun, Ind., in its issue of July 13, says:

"Dr. L. C. Cowen, whose health has not been good for some time, is improved to the extent that he is able to drive out in his car quite frequently—pleasing news to his hundreds of good friends."

Bellevue Masonic Lodge conferred the Master Mason degree on Wallace Green, last Friday night. A number of visiting brothers were present and assisted in the work, which was conferred in excellent style. After the work a lunch was served. Bellevue lodge has initiated a number of members within the past few months.

500 MORE JOIN POOL

FORTY-FOUR CONTRACTS COME FROM MADISON COUNTY AND 225 FROM WEST VIRGINIA AND EASTERN OHIO TERRITORY—NECESSARY PLANTS TO BE PROVIDED, SAYS BARKER.

Lexington, Ky.—More than 500 members were added the past week by the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative Association, with reports not in from a number of counties in which it is known workers have applications for membership. The 500 reported include 225 from the Huntington and Eastern Ohio territory of Clifton Rodes and these include some signed in the Ohio counties during the visit of Director of Warehouses Ralph M. Barker to that district.

Director Barker said that receiving plants would be established where needed in the West Virginia and Eastern Ohio territory, that a house had been purchased at West Hamlin, Va., and a lot at St. Albans, in that state, upon which a house will be built. He said that arrangements were being made for a redryer and storage plant at Huntington and that the establishment of houses at Gallipolis, Ohio, and Hurricane, W. Va., was being considered. Plans were being held in obedience to await the decision of interested parties.

RECIPE FOR SUCCESS.

Ernest P. Trigg in the American Magazine gives a very good recipe for success:

"Anyone who can jump in and fill a hole in an emergency, he says 'may be sure of gaining attention. If he has prepared himself before hand so that he can fill the hole well, he will arouse interest. If he continues looking about him and makes himself ready to fill bigger holes as they occur, he will soon inspire a real desire for his services."

"Almost anyone can do what he is paid to do. That kind of accomplishment is common. But let somebody in an office or in an organization of any kind, handle two jobs instead of one, or tackle a task that others have shied away from, and it won't be long before someone in authority will begin to take notice."

Mr. Trigg lays his success to the fact that when he was a $5.00 a week office boy he informed his employer that he was worth more money. His employer promptly informed him that he was paying him for what he did and not for what he thought he could do.

That is the great trouble with the present day employees. They expect to get more money in their pay envelopes before they show any reason for advancement. "Give me money," they say, "and I'll give you the work." But since it is the employer's money he naturally feels quite the reverse about the matter.

HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Machine Struck Telephone Pole and Overturned.

A serious accident occurred on the Dixie Highway last Saturday evening, near Mr. Joe Barker's residence. As Charles Miller and Mr. George Powers, of Walton, were returning from the city, a wheel on their auto came off, causing the machine to run into a telephone pole, throwing both of the occupants out and knocking them unconscious. When assistance arrived Miller was found under the overturned machine, by M. D. Jacobs, of Cincinnati, and Chas. Chipman, of Erlanger. Miller was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital, where it was found he was suffering from a broken collar bone and numerous bruises and cuts. Powers was escaped with a few bruises was taken to his home in Walton. From last reports both men were improving. Miller claims that his machine struck a deep hole in the road and overturned.

A TOAST TO WATER.

"Mr. Toastmaster, Ladies and Gentlemen: You have asked me to respond to the toast, 'Water,' the purest and best of all things that God created. I want to say to you that I have seen it glisten in tiny tear drops on the sleeping lids of infants. I have seen it trickle down the blushing cheeks of youth, and go in rushing torrents down the wrinkled cheeks of age. I have seen it in tiny dew-drops like polished diamonds when the morning sun burst in resplendent glory over the eastern hills. I have seen it in the rushing stream rippling over pebbly bottoms; in the river rushing over precipitous falls in its mad race to join the mighty ocean, on whose broad bosom floats the battle fleets of all nations and the commerce of the world—but, ladies and gentlemen, I want to say to you now that as a beverage it's a damned failure."

So far we have had a very delightful summer. There has been no very hot days and the nights have been pleasant. Still the weather has been warm enough for the crops but a little deficient in moisture in some places. Crops have done well and with a favorable season from now on would average pretty well.

SOME OF THE VIEWS OF OUR FATHERS ON ONE OF OUR BIGGEST PUBLIC UTILITY INDUSTRIES TODAY.

The following were some of the arguments printed in a New England paper in 1816 against gas illumination of city streets. They represented the best and most serious thought at that time.

(1) A theological objection. Artificial illumination is an attempt to interfere with the divine plan of the world which had pre-ordained that it should be dark during night time.

(2) A medical objection. Emanations of illuminating gas are injurious. Lighted streets will incline people to remain late out of doors, thus leading to increase of ailments by colds.

(3) A moral objection. The fear of darkness will vanish and drunkenness and depravity increase.

(4) Police objection. Horses will be frightened and thieves emboldened.

(5) Objection from the people. If streets are illuminated every night, such constant illumination will rob festive occasions of their charm.

COUNTY ASSESSOR'S FIGURES AID EXTENSION-WORK PLANS

In making county and community programs of demonstrations and other extension activities for the year, extension agents in Oklahoma report to the United States Department of Agriculture that the use of county census and assessor's figures as a basis for determining the county's major agricultural problems is proving very successful. A meeting of the men and women from each community is called each year by the county agricultural agent for the purpose of making a program for the year's extension work.

In these meetings it has been found that these figures are of great service in showing agricultural conditions of the county in a concise and comprehensive way. In one instance it was found that about 51 per cent of the county's agricultural land was farmed by tenants. Discussion brought out the fact that the Federal farm loan was practically unknown in the county and plans were made to conduct a campaign to bring the benefits of the loan to the attention of the communities as a possible means of securing a greater percentage of farm ownership.

Figures showing that more acres in the county were being planted to wheat than any other started a discussion which indicated there was difference of opinion as to the best variety for the locality; it was therefore decided that demonstration plots of the best liked varieties of this crop be grown in eight sections of the county. In a similar way all the figures covering the agricultural activities of the county are studied in these program-making meetings, and as a result a program is made which is based on what statistics have shown to be the most urgent needs of the communities and in which general interest throughout the county is felt.

WHAT IS HE WORTH?

"What is he worth?" is a question often spoken between men, when some money or wealthy individual life has come to an ending.

Personal appearance, place of residence, special traits are seldom mentioned, but the talk is all of his estates, his bank and other stocks and his bonds and mortgages.

Far better would it be were it known that after we have finished the earthly course we should be valued for what we did for our city, its schools, its hospitals, its poor, blind and afflicted people.

We ought to be worth something to our nation and the city where we reside.—John Wanamaker.

True Detective Stories*THE FINAL DETAIL

THE annals of crime disclose a surprisingly large percentage of cases in which the criminal, having spent months or even years in building up the superstructure of his scheme, makes a fatal blunder in connection with some apparently unimportant detail—a blunder which wrecks his entire plan and brings his operations to the attention of the authorities.

For example, the chances were more than a thousand to one that William Brockway, counterfeiter, being desirous of securing a proof of a plate on which he was working, would select a printer who was not a personal friend of a prominent detective. But chance, who often plays a leading role even in true detective stories, directed him to a man who knew A. L. Drummond, of the United States Secret Service, well enough to call him by his first name.

"This man came into my place yesterday afternoon," reported the printer, "and wanted some proofs pulled off a plate which he had with him. I took one look at the plate and told him to come back today—said my machinery was out of order. He didn't leave the plate, but he didn't have to. I saw what it was—the figure $1,000, surrounded by a lot of scroll work."

"If he returns today," directed Drummond, "pull his proofs for him and hold one of them for me. A couple of my men will be outside your shop, so signal them and they will follow your customer."

The plan worked according to schedule and, shortly after receiving a proof of the mysterious plate, Drummond got word from his operatives that they had trailed the suspect to a house on Greenwich street. In addition, one of the government agents had recognized him as William F. Brockway known to be the most expert counterfeiter in the country and the man who had achieved fame by manufacturing $100,000 worth of bonds which the Treasury department had accepted as genuine—only to reverse its opinion some weeks later.

Drummond accordingly made a report of the entire matter to Washington, and forwarded a proof of the plate which Brockway had in his possession. To his amazement, the treasury officials stated that the figures and the scroll did not form a part of any government currency or bond issue and that, as federal funds could not be used except in the search for counterfeiters of money or government bonds, Drummond could not be permitted to handle the case.

Accordingly, all the data was turned over to the New York police, and Brockway dropped out of sight for nearly a year, until he was passed on from Washington that the master counterfeiter was working on some coup which would be the biggest of his career.

Drummond knew where to find Brockway, but the secret service men had to work under a handicap, because the ex-convict appeared to have an uncanny way of knowing just when he was being followed. Then he would slip and twist and turn and lose himself, no matter how many men were trailing him.

As a last resort Drummond enlisted the services of his son, a boy of ten, whom he sent to the elevated station at Twenty-eighth and Sixth avenue, with instruction to play around there until he received a signal from two of the operatives. Brockway, not dreaming that the secret service had begun to use children as detectives, was unsuspecting and the boy followed him until he entered the St. James hotel, at the corner of Twenty-sixth and Broadway. With that much of the trail already blazed, it was easy to pick up the rest and within a few days Drummond was notified that the counterfeiter divided his time between the St. James and a house on Lexington avenue. His associates were two men of about his own age, then whom Drummond recognized as Lewis Martin and Nathan Foster, both of them prominent in all branches of the work connected with the manufacture and passing of counterfeit money.

But even then Chief Brookes of the secret service, declined to allow Drummond to handle the case officially, because all the indications pointed to a plot to counterfeit railroad bonds, rather than United States currency. It was only when Inspector Byrnes of the New York police force, asked permission to use Drummond as a private agent that Washington permitted him to continue with the case.

Using the proof of the "$1,000 scroll" as a foundation, Drummond searched through all the prominent bond issues listed on Wall Street until he found the counterpart—the central portion of the bonds of the Central Pacific railroad. Armed with this information, which was essential to the securing of a definite and specific warrant, Drummond raided the house on Lexington avenue and Martin's room at the St. James hotel. There, in addition to dies, seals and tracing paper, he found fifty-seven counterfeit plates of the Central Pacific bonds, all of which were so perfectly executed that one of the officers of the company said he would not have had the least hesitation of cashing the coupons.

Brockway had slipped up on only one detail, the choice of a printer to pull the proofs, but this slip cost him five years in the penitentiary.

AS THE EDITOR SEES IT

One man says: "Times are not good, but they will be better some day, and in the meantime I will just do the best I can and be thankful that I can do that much when the world is topsy-turvy."

Another man says: "Times are awful. It's a struggle to keep soul and body together. Everything is up in the air and I don't know what we are coming to."

Two sides of human nature—the optimistic and the pessimistic. One man is enjoying life, making the most of his part toward making the world happier and leading it out of the chaos into which it has been plunged.

The other, his vision obscured by the darkness cast by his own shadow, sees only clouds where the sun is beginning to shine. Nothing satisfies him, because he expects miracles in a day when they do not exist. Nothing pleases him, because he is unable even to please himself. He is just here, can't help it, and he wouldn't if he could.

Each of us is one or the other, or in between and don't know which way to turn.

Think well before speaking—look twice before you turn.

No railroad company would ever dream of employing an engineer who had been found drunk at the throttle. He would be discharged instantly and would find difficulty in finding employment on that or any other road.

Our courts and civil authorities, however, show less business acumen than do our corporations.

A drunken man at the wheel of an automobile can terrorize pedestrians and other motorists and kill and maim and get off with a nominal fine or no punishment at all, depending upon his political or financial draw and the shrewdness of his attorney.

Such a condition of affairs is totally without reason or justice.

A man found at the wheel of a car while intoxicated should be deprived of his right to drive for all future time. If he kills or maims while in that condition he should go to the gallows or to the penitentiary, regardless of who or what he is.

Until we have drastic laws covering such cases, and those laws are relentlessly enforced, our highway will continue to be a menace instead of a public benefit.

It is worth while to watch the performances of young men who have completed their education and are just starting on their business careers.

You will note that some go quietly to work, continue faithfully at their tasks, and are often surprised when it is time to knock off for the day.

Others don't start until the last stroke of the clock and quit at the first.

One class of these youngsters will get along in the world and rise as they go.

The others will never set the world afire. They won't even create a smudge.

Some of our esteemed foreign governments are strongly and religiously of the opinion that the United States should go to the financial rescue of Germany.

But it is not a new thought, or suggestion.

Having squeezed the last ounce of blood from their vanquished antagonists, they now pine because there is no more blood to be squeezed.

They would have us to shovel the gold into the top of the German hopper while they deftly extract it from the bottom.

A beautiful scheme, but unfortunately we are blind deaf and dumb, and can't see hear or say yes.

Give the old joker a shave before treating it out again.

HOG RAISERS SHOULD PLOW

UP BARN LOTS EACH YEAR

Hog raisers may accomplish two desirable results by plowing up the barn lots at least once a year, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

In the first place, hogs need good succulent pasture as much of the time as possible, and in the second place they need protection against internal parasites, such as roundworms, the eggs of which remain in the soil.

Turning over the soil in the lots helps to get rid of the pests and the crop of forage makes it a profitable operation. In addition to providing cheap protein feed, pasture crops aid as a laxative and require the hogs to take a certain amount of exercise which is necessary to breeding animals and growing pigs.

Rye is probably the best crop to use for fall, winter, and spring pasture for hogs. Throughout the corn belt it may be sown from August 20 to about October 1, depending on the latitude. In warmer climates the crop may be put in at various times up to as late as December. By putting in successive plantings from 2 to 4 weeks apart it is possible to have fresh pasture all the time.

Seeding for pasture should be much heavier than for a grain crop, from 3 to 4 bushels per acre on a good soil. Pasturing can probably begin six weeks after seeding, and may continue, if the rye is not covered with snow, until the following April.

Dollars alone do not constitute wealth, although most people make that the first object in life.

WHY NOT, ANYWAY

It frequently happens that one person gives of his blood to another in order to save the life of a person who is hovering on the borderland of another world.

That is considered praiseworthy. Recently a very rich man, seeking a renewal of his youth, submitted to the new method of transplantation of glands in an effort to restore his vigor.

That was deemed foolish. The daily press of his city seized upon the opportunity to create a sensation, jumped to the conclusion that the transplanted gland was taken from another person for a consideration, and heralded the operation broadcast. The rich man will bring suits for libel.

Foolish editors. Billing millionaires. Instead of leaving their readers to a higher plane of citizenship thru the publication of news and comment of material value, many editors seem to have an eye single to the sensational side of life, thereby hoping to increase the circulations of their papers.

Instead of ignoring the articles in a dignified manner and allowing the subject to die out amidst newer and fresher sensations, some men of great wealth imagine that they can muzzle the press of an entire city simply add fuel to the fire, and furnish food for lucifer.

If a man wants to renew his youth and has the money to pay for it, that is his business, and only a meddling press will go beyond a legitimate statement of fact.

One day all humanity will be prolonging life as a result of such achievements in the realm of medical and surgical science, and we will neither laugh nor jeer.

Even sensation loving editors may be submitting to the operation as a means of escaping the devil to the last possible day.

Who knows, anyway?

AT THE BRINK.

There comes a time in the life of every man when he pauses upon the brink.

He is face to face with the crucial moment of his career, when another step forward may mean riches, or wealth that is stained by the odium of deliberate and intentional wrong.

If he takes the forward step his fate is sealed. He may repent of his act and make restitution, but the memory can not be eradicated from the minds of his generation.

If he retraces his steps and sets a different course he may not achieve the riches that are all but within his grasp. But he retains honor, which wealth can not buy; respect, which integrity alone will command; and contentment, which is the heritage of a clear conscience.

The friend of today whom you admire and welcome to your home did not respond to the stained blandishments of a glittering future. He chose the path of honor.

The man whom you shun, the one to whom your door is ever closed, took the forward step.

Time and repentance may cleanse his soul, but an eternity can not clear his name.

This and That.

Gov. Small says that "everything is all right" in the Illinois coal fields. Doesn't he mean that everything is all right?

The loss, suffered by the New York subway company as a result of its underground fire will probably be included in its overhead expenses.

A newspaper correspondent in Ireland says that only about 1 per cent of the people in Ireland are Republicans. Sounds like a political census of Texas.

Mexican authorities have just expelled a Russian agitator from the country. They must be ultra-unde sirable when they get too bad for Mexico.

The new tariff bill places a heavy duty on foreign nuts entering this country. That will be hard on Prof. Einstein and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle if they contemplate return trips.

Those New York burglars who hid their loot in a lion's cage probably got their idea from the old story of Booty and the Beast.

A New York stamp collector is suing for the return of $65,000 he paid for a counterfeit postage stamp. But doesn't anybody who would pay $65,000 for a stamp deserve to lose it?

Those Turkish harem attendants who have struck on account of overwork probably want an eight-hour day.

A Washington writer says that William Jennings Bryan is declining. Declining what?

Mr. LaFollette says a Republican defeat in 1924 is sure if the present tariff bill is passed. Maybe that's a clever clue to tempt the Democratic congressmen to vote for it.

A visitor in Dublin says that the rebellion is a laughing in disguise. Residents of Dublin probably consider the disguise perfect.

The government could probably pay off the national debt if Mr. Lasker could arrange to send some of his liquor selling ships on an island voyage.

FIRST HUNGARIAN PARTRIDGES IMPORTED SINCE BEFORE WAR.

Imports of Hungarian partridges have been resumed this spring for the first time since before the World War, reports the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. Two shipments have entered at the port of New York—one of more than 1,000 birds for the game commission of Montana and the other of 200 birds, for New York. Recent reports show that the Hungarian partridge has become well established in certain parts of the Northwest, and that it is fairly abundant in several counties in eastern Washington. For several years prior to the war large numbers of these birds were imported, but later the shipments diminished on account of high prices and the lack of success in establishing the birds in many places where they were liberated.

Should allow for future traffic in building roads.

In building a road liberal allowance should be made for future increase in traffic, says the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. A traffic count conducted by the bureau in cooperation with Tennessee officials, on a number of roads in Davidson County, in which Nashville is located, shows surprising facts when compared with a similar count in 1916. During this period automobile registrations have doubled while the number of motor vehicles on the road is five times as great as in 1916. In 1916 horse-drawn and motor vehicles traffic were almost equal in volume. In 1921 horse drawn traffic had decreased only slightly in volume and constituted 16 per cent of the traffic, motor vehicles constituting 84 per cent.

Observations in this and other counties lead to the conclusion that volume of traffic may increase in much greater proportion than the number of motor vehicles and will also depend to a large degree on the condition of improvement of the road and on the economic conditions in the adjacent territory.

Federal market services have nation-wide scope.

During the current fiscal year the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture has had field men stationed in approximately 130 cities and towns, conducting various lines of service and regulatory work in marketing.

Market news reports on fruits and vegetables have been issued from 14 permanent offices and from 33 temporary field stations. Live stock and meat reports were issued from nine permanent offices, dairy and poultry products reports from seven offices, and cotton reports from five offices.

Food products inspectors have been maintained at 32 of the important central markets of the United States and inspections of fruits and vegetables have been made at more than 100 points designated by the Secretary of Agriculture. Buter inspectors have been maintained at 5 of the important butter markets of the country, and a cheese inspector has been stationed at Fond du Lac, Wis., which is the center of one of the most important cheese producing sections in the country.

For the enforcement of the United States grain standards act, branch offices have been maintained in 36 cities. There are six branch offices for the enforcement of the cotton futures act, and eight branch offices in connection with the administration of the United States warehouse act.

The bureau also conducted investigational and extension work in 30 States in cooperation with various State marketing agencies.

Poor seed beds lower average wheat yields.

Lexington, Ky.—The 10-year average yield of wheat in Kentucky is only 12 bushels an acre, crop specialists say. Such low yields seldom are profitable and in many cases do not even pay the labor cost of producing the crop. Poor soils, fungus diseases and insects have been given as some of the main causes for the low yields.

In addition to these causes, poorly prepared seed beds contribute toward cutting down the amount of grain that is harvested, according to R. E. Stephenson, agronomy specialist at the College of Agriculture. A portion of the Kentucky wheat crop is seeded on corn ground, part of it after tobacco, cowpeas, and soybeans and a part of it after wheat, oats or clover, in which case the land must be broken and prepared before seeding.

When land is broken for wheat, the plowing should be done early in the season. This gives time for the soil to settle and become firm, this point being especially important since wheat does not thrive in a fresh prepared, loose seed bed. Where wheat follows oats, the plowing should be done immediately after the oats crop is removed. As soon as it has been plowed, the soil should be harrowed and worked down to a firm bed.

Some folks would be more hopeful for the future of the United States if they had less trouble in getting their customary refreshments.

"Name is what you have taken. Character is what you give. When to this truth you wake You then begin to live."

A FEW WORTH WHILE CONFECTIONS

The best never-fail fudge, the recipe for which has been given before many times, is the following:

Chocolate—Nut Fudge—Take two cups of granulated sugar, one-half cup of milk, one-third cup of corn syrup, two tablespoons of butter and one square of chocolate. Boil to the soft ball stage, flavor with vanilla, let stand until partly cool, then stir until creamy. Pour into a greased pan and mark off into squares or drop by spoonfuls on a buttered plate. Let stand until desired.

Ginger Fudge—Take one-half tablespoon of butter, one cup of milk, and two cups of sugar, boil to the soft ball stage, set in cold water and when cool, beat until creamy. Add one-fourth of a pound of diced crystallized ginger and one-half cup of shredded coconut. Cut in squares.

Coconut Cream—Cook together one cup of sugar, one cup of milk, and one-half cup of butter and one-half cup of milk, to the soft ball stage. Add one-third of a cup of shredded coconut and figs, cut in bits. Add one-half teaspoonful of vanilla for flavoring. Stir until creamy, drop by spoonfuls on waxed paper. This makes twenty pieces.

California Grilled Almonds—Take one cup of sugar, two tablespoons of orange, two tablespoons of lemon juice. Blanch the almonds and dry thoroughly. Boil the sugar and fruit juices until the syrup forms a thread. Add the almonds and cook until the syrup turns yellow. Remove instantly and stir until it sugars. Cool; separate the almonds.

Sierra Turkish Delight—Take two cups of apricot pulp, one and one-half pounds of powdered sugar, one teaspoonful of cornstarch, three teaspoonfuls of lemon juice. Cook the apricots, sugar, starch and juice; cool and pour on to a powdered sugar board. Cut in squares when cool. Almond flavoring may be used. To prepare the pulp, stew and strain dried apricots.

Hamburg steak seasoned and made into a flat cake, then broiled, makes an entirely different entree from the usual way of serving it. If gas is used—grease the broiler and place under flame.

Peanut Butter Luncheon Toast—Melt two tablespoons of butter in a saucepan and add two tablespoons of flour; add one-half teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of pepper. When cooked, add one and one-half cups of milk, stirring constantly, then add a beef cube. Stir over a slow fire until the cube is dissolved and the sauce thick. Have hot bread ready, spread each piece generously with peanut butter and arrange on a platter. Pour the hot sauce over them, and on top of each place of toast place two slices of hot crisp bacon. Serve at once.

Apple Bread—Mix and sift four cups of flour, two tablespoons of baking powder; add one-fourth of a cup of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt; mix well and stir in two cups of apple pulp, place in pans and bake in a hot oven one-half hour.

Lemon Potato Pie—Peel and grate one medium-sized potato, pour over it one cup of milk and water. Cook five minutes, stirring constantly. Reserve two egg whites for a meringue; beat one whole egg and the yolks of two; add one cup of sugar, a pinch of salt, the grated rind and juice of a lemon; stir into the potato mixture and cook until thick; add and fill a preheated, baked crust. Cover with a meringue and brown in a moderate oven.

Lima Beans en Casserole—Boil one and one-half cups of lima beans overnight in water to cover, then in the morning cook until soft. Cook one-fourth of a pound of bacon until well seared; add two medium-sized onions sliced; cook until soft. In a greased casserole place a layer of beans sprinkled with onions, and small pieces of bacon; add salt sparingly and a little pepper; repeat until all are used. Over this put a cupful of milk and bake a half-hour.

STOMACH WORMS CAUSE DEATH OF MANY SHEEP.

Lexington, Ky.—Stomach worms this summer are causing heavy losses in many Kentucky sheep flocks, according to inquiries as to the best methods of treatment which are being received at the College of Agriculture from farmers in different sections of the State. One farmer has reported the loss of a dozen lambs while another who wished to know what to do for the trouble stated that he not only had lost lambs but also ewes.

Although rotation of pastures is a preventive measure, drenching with copper sulphate, commonly known as bluestone, must be resorted to after the animals become infested with the worms, according to L. J. Horscher, in charge of sheep work at the college. One-fourth of a pound of the pulverized material is dissolved in a pint of boiling water and enough water added to make three gallons. This is sufficient to drench 100 animals, each mature sheep being given three and one-half ounces or seven level teaspoonfuls. Lambs receive half this amount. It is necessary to keep the sheep off feed for 12 hours before drenching and care also should be taken not to strangle them while the drench is being given.

Rotation of pastures has proved its value as a preventive measure in trials conducted on the Kentucky Agriculture Experiment Station farm. Whenever possible lambs and ewes are changed to fresh pastures every two weeks from the first of June until lambs are marketed. It has been found that if the pastures are kept in good condition, the infestation will not be as serious as it is if the grass is kept cropped short.

Rape, oats, clover and vetch all make excellent crops for alternating with permanent bluegrass pasture. Lambs which are kept free from worms by preventative measures will be ready for market much earlier than those which are troubled with them.

NEW POULTRY BOOKLET IS READY FOR FARMERS

Lexington, Ky.—"Helpful Hints for Poultrymen" is the title of the latest publication from the College of Agriculture, the new booklet now being ready for free distribution to interested farmers and poultrymen. It answers the question, "Which is the best breed of chickens?" and it then gives a detailed discussion of such things as selecting layers, the feeding for eggs, culling, management hints, artificial brooding, fattening, housing, and poultry pests and diseases. The booklet, which also contains a list of reference bulletins and circulars, may be obtained free by writing the Experiment Station at Lexington.

New Orleans—Hundreds of marksmen from all parts of the country will participate in the first American Legion national championship rifle meet which will be held during the Legion national convention in New Orleans next October.

Teams chosen from all Legion state departments will compete at ranges of 200, 300 and 500 yards, while a match open to all individual entries will be fired on the 600-yard course. Department teams will be composed of four firing members, one alternate and a team captain. The winning department team will receive a loving cup which will be retained until the next annual rifle meet to be held in conjunction with the 1928 Legion convention. Members of this year's Christmas are to receive pay years or more. It will also be a charter members, making the happy to the family.

IMPORTANT WORM DISCOVERY

Zoologists Find That Carbon Tetrachloride is Effective in Destroying Parasites.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The toll exacted from the livestock industry by internal parasites such as worms is enormous, and because of this drain on the herds and flocks the zoologists of the United States Department of Agriculture keep up an unflagging search for chemicals and treatments that may be used to combat these organisms. Recently they have discovered that a certain chemical once used in medicine as an anesthetic and now used variously as a fire extinguisher, cloth cleaner, insecticide, and solvent for fats and gums, is very effective as a destroyer and expeller of intestinal worms. The name of this chemical is carbon tetrachloride.

The effectiveness of this chemical against certain round worms has been announced by the department, but what may be the most beneficial use has just been brought out by tests on animals infested with hookworms. In the case of sheep the minimum effective dose has not yet been determined, but all the doses used, from 12 cubic centimeters to 48, in each case given in two ounces of castor oil, removed all stomach worms and all hookworms. It has been equally effective for hookworm disease in man, and has been used with success against some of the various kinds of worms that infest the digestive tract of pigs.

The fact that a species of hookworm also affects man makes this discovery of the efficacy of this chemical against hookworms in various animals of interest to medical men as well as to veterinarians and livestock growers. Medical men are now trying it out at several places as a possible cure for hookworm disease in man, and it gives promise of success. As a result of the work so far completed, scientists in the bureau of animal industry consider that this drug will prove of special value in the removal of the various kinds of blood-sucking worms in domestic animals.

FEED FOR FATTENING STEERS

Corn and Corn Silage With Cottonseed Meal and Alfalfa Favored at Iowa College.

That corn and corn silage, supplemented with cottonseed meal, alfalfa hay and salt make the best ration for fattening steers was shown to Iowa farmers recently. Steers fed this ration made substantial gains in experiments at Iowa State college and although they were ordinary steers they made $13 per head. This indicates that the feeding business, properly handled and where good-quality steers are started with, will pay the farmer a profit.

Other roughages, such as clover hay, corn stover and mixed timothy and clover hays were experimented with. The red clover ration made a good showing but the other roughages lost money.

Cottonseed meal was used to an advantage in these experiments and made a fine balancer for the ration. In speaking of the use of this protein feed for steers the animal husbandry men say that during the last 12 years it has been used in experiments at the rate of three pounds to 1,000 pounds of steer. It was fed for a period of one to six months with corn silage and good results were obtained. Cottonseed meal, however, as a hog feed has caused some doubt as to its value due to toxic qualities but the Iowa station has found that when fed in rations where cottonseed meal is used at the rate of one part to four parts of ration no harm has resulted.

OBSTACLE IN RAISING SWINE

Round Worm is One of Greatest Causes of Loss—Many Remedies, but Prevention is Best.

One of the greatest obstacles encountered in hog production is the parasites which are found where we have been raised for a number of years. Probably the round worm is the most numerous and the most insidious. There are a few worm roundings but the best is prevention.

VALUE OF GOOD ORCHARD METHODS SHOWN IN TEST

Bardtown, Ky.—What proper orchard cultivation and spraying will do toward the production of perfect apples is being pointed out to farmers in this section by a demonstration conducted by the Nazareth Academy, near here, in cooperation with the College of Agriculture at Lexington and County Agent C. L. Hill. The academy will harvest an estimated crop of 2,000 bushels of apples at 75 per cent of which will be perfect as the result of spraying and cultivation practices which were carried out in the demonstration, Mr. Hill says.

FARM POULTRY EXHIBIT WILL BE MADE AT FAIR

Lexington, Ky.—Plans already are well under way for the poultry standardization exhibit, which will be made by county poultry associations for the third consecutive year at the coming Kentucky State Fair, according to J. R. Smyth, poultry extension specialist of the College of Agriculture, who will have charge of the event. At least 20 of the counties that have adopted a standard breed of poultry are expected to enter birds in the exhibit which has been entered into one of the largest farm poultry exhibits in the country, he said.

Each county exhibit will be made up of 32 birds, these being divided into two pens of aged birds, two pens of young birds and three entries each in the cock, cockerel, hen and pullet classes. Entries will compete individually and as county exhibits. A number of cash and special prizes for the year will be offered again as has been the case for the last two years.

As a part of the poultry standardization campaign which has been carried on over the State for a number of years by the college extension division, the standardization exhibit at the fair has experienced a rapid development. Eight counties were represented when the event first took place two years ago while last year 15 county poultry associations sent representative birds from the flocks of their members. The exhibit has been designed to stimulate interest in purebred poultry and at the same time afford the farmer an opportunity to exhibit his best birds.

Mr. and Mrs. John King had for week-end guests her sister and husband of Cincinnati.

Mrs. Will Arnold spent Tuesday in Cincinnati, going to a specialist to have her arm treated.

Prof. Vesley sold his farm (the Mulberry place) to Mr. John Pruett for a long price last week.

Mrs. Susie Adams has returned home from a few days visit with Mrs. Chas. Whitson, of Walton.

The many friends of Mrs. Lou Thompson regret to hear of her being confined to her home with stomach trouble.

Mrs. Cora Stephens of the Dixie Highway, sold her beautiful bungalow last week to Mr. Will Tabling, of Covington.

Rev. J. Garber and family will leave the first of August for a week's stay with their people in West Virginia.

Mrs. Arthur Kraus and son, and Mrs. Mattie Hoover, spent Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Rose Tessler and family, of Rosedale.

Miss Ella May Kenney has returned to her home after a delightful visit with her aunt, Anna Kenney of Denver, and attended the Chautauque at Walton.

Miss Kathryn Kelly, of Burlington, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Lucas and attended the Baptist Sunday school picnic Saturday at the Zoo.

A happy reunion was held at the home of Cy Boyce on the Dixie Highway Sunday, it being the 83rd birthday of Mrs. Boyce's father. A nice dinner was spread at the noon hour and quite a number of relatives and friends enjoyed the day.

The Death Angel visited our community Thursday and took from our midst a lovely woman, Mrs. Emily Seward, of Shelby Street. She was formerly of Mayville, Ky., but the past two years has made her home with Mrs. Sallie Fulton and son Chas. She had been ill some time of heart trouble, and last winter while spending the winter in Saylor Park, she fell into a cellar, but was thought to be seriously hurt. All that loving hands could do was done until death relieved her of her suffering.

She was a faithful member of the M. E. church of Mayville and a lovely woman. She leaves two sisters, Mrs. Carrie Carpenter, of Union Pike, and Mrs. John Applegate, of Mayville. The burial offerings were beautiful. Funeral took place Saturday at 10 o'clock at the home of Chas. Fulton. Rev. W. Mitchell preached a very appropriate funeral sermon, after which the remains were shipped to Mayville, Ky. The bereaved ones have the sympathy of the entire community in their loss.

Mr. Bauer, of Dixie Highway, had for her guest the past two weeks, his sister, Mrs. Mary Grothans, of Covington.

Our community was again saddened on Thursday evening when the Death Angel visited the home of Mrs. Matt Rouse and claimed her young daughter, Mrs. Joe Gormley (nee Oms House), who was just in the bloom of life, being 20 years of age. She leaves a husband and a baby daughter. It was hard to believe her up but we are comforted to know that God knows best. She had a kind word and loving smile for everybody. She was a member of the Lutheran church. She leaves to her mother, husband, daughter and two brothers and a host of relatives and friends.

Dearest Oma how we miss you. Since from earth you passed away, and our hearts are aching sorely, as we think of you today.

But when life's race is over, and our time has come to go, we will meet in Heaven above, in God's home we longed for so.

The funeral took place at Hopewell Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the presence of the largest congregation that was ever known to be gathered at the church. Philip Taliaferro, of Erlanger, had charge of the funeral.

A shower was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Betz at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Houston, on Friday night, June 28, 1922.

The presents presented were as follows: Aluminum perculator Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Martin.

Aluminum kettle, Mr. and Mrs. C. Smith.

BETTE RRURAL SCHOOLS

While fine equipment helps make a good school, the principal thing is to secure the right kind of teachers.

If you get that kind of teacher into even a primitive building with almost no facilities she will yet arouse enthusiasm and her children will learn.

A teacher with the genuine gift of inspiring enthusiasm may not have had much experience and she may be quite young. But she has a certain magnetism of personality, a warmth of attraction, that arouses pupils.

She makes them want to work. Their better natures and their dawning intelligences are stirred by her ardor.

Teachers of that type can usually be had, if sufficient pains are taken in examining applicants and making selections.

In many places teachers are selected on the basis of written recommendations alone, with little personal inquiry about them, and results often prove disappointing.

As respects selection of teachers for Boone county it can be said that local candidates, our own home girls, should be employed where possible.

Yet the work is too vital to our community life, to give such positions to any who are not qualified for them. In looking up applicants from other places, it is worth while to investigate their record very carefully. Not merely should their recommendations be examined, but if possible the authorities should talk with people who know them personally, and can tell what they have accomplished in the past.

A little money spent in traveling or telephoning to thoroughly investigate the qualifications of applicants, has often saved serious disappointment. A teacher who inspires the young people is a prize worth having, and teaching of that kind is the first means by which a community can secure high class schools.

BASE BALL.

Manager Ryle, determined not to lose three out of four games, came to Hebron Saturday with a team that was not only strong on defensive, but a veritable wrecking crew, when it came to offensive work. Huey, who was in the best of form, allowing a run in the first inning on two singles and two wild pitches, and a tired first three men up had hit a two bagger, home run and three base hit. Walton retired the visitors without a hit for three innings, when they got busy and drove him to the woods, putting over five runs with two triples a two bagger, single and two bases on balls. Hosman was sent to the rescue and retired them in the sixth and seventh without a hit, but not wanting to show partiality, they scored a run off him in the eighth on two singles and a two base hit, and three more in the ninth on two doubles, an error and a three bagger, Finn, who was in the box for the visitors allowed a single in the fifth when the home team scored two runs on four errors and a single, and was touched up for a three base hit with a base on balls and an error netted three more runs. Run-Hebron 5; Bellevue 13. Hits—Hebron 4, Bellevue 15; Struck out by Huey 1, by Walton 3, by Finn 8. Bases on balls on Walton, 2, off Finn 2.

The Petersburg team will play at Hebron next Saturday.

The game between Taylorsport and Delhi last Sunday was not played in the league on account of the umpire failing to show up, but was decided to play a game as a large crowd had turned out to witness it. Each team selected a man and the game went along nicely until the eighth inning when a decision made at first by Delhi's umpire was not to the liking of that team and they left the ground, which forfeits the game to Taylorsport 9 to 0. Black pitched a good game but the handling of the ball by Taylorsport on the infield was not up to standard. Next Sunday Cleves will play at Taylorsport.

The Idlewild "Colts" hooked up with the Burlington Vets on the latter's ground last Saturday and a real interesting game resulted. The score was 7 to 2 in favor of Burlington. Hubert Brady, in the box for Burlington, allowed Houston's team only three hits and struck out 12. Houston struck out 5 of the "Vets". Houston pitched a splendid brand of ball for the first six innings, but weakened toward the end, allowing Burlington to score 4 runs in the eighth. The "Vets" will meet the strong Union team for the second time this year on the Burlington grounds Saturday, July 22nd, 2 p. m. sharp.

BATTERIES

Brady and Conner for Burlington. Black and Garrison for Union.

A highly heralded ball team hailing from Petersburg, Ky., journeyed to this city last Sunday and received a severe drubbing at the hands of the local Colts. The final score being, Petersburg 6, Colts 14.

The local management is not to be blamed for booking this game with the Kentucky team for the team came highly recommended and previous to Sunday's game had not been defeated in a Sunday contest this season.—Rising Sun, Ind., Recorder.

GUNPOWDER

Mrs. R. E. Tanner is numbered among the sick.

P. J. Allen and wife, of Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, spent last Sunday with this writer and wife.

We had a letter from B. N. Tanner, of Fayette, Mo., a few days since in which he states he is enjoying better health than he has for several years, and contemplates a visit to his children in Oklahoma and Texas in the near future.

Mrs. Oma Gormley, (nee Rouse) died at her home in Erlanger, on Thursday last week after a lingering illness of several months with that much dreaded disease consumption. The remains were taken to Hopeful last Saturday, and after a very impressive funeral service conducted by Rev. Runyan, of Latonia, and Rev. Royer, the remains were interred in Hopeful cemetery in the presence of a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends.

WHAT HEAT ACCOMPLISHES.

Many people feel that hot weather is a kind of enemy to the human race, a season which brings misery without alleviation. And yet if it were not for hot weather, the country could never be fed. The corn-crop in particular, America's greatest staple needs a lot of sizzling heat. If we have a cool summer, our corn languishes, and the most fundamental food for man and the domestic animals is found lacking.

Heat, if reasonably tempered yin moisture, has a wonderful effect to bring out the fertility of the earth. Tropical climates always produce the most luxuriant vegetation. Impenetrable thickets grow there that would not be possible under the less stimulating influences of cooler climates. The hot weather of summer is the basis of our prosperity, and if anything were to make the climate of the United States cooler we should pay for it in a declining food supply.

KENTUCKY FARMERS PLAN TO USE MORE FERTILIZER

Lexington, Ky.—Reports being received at the College of Agriculture from county agricultural agents in various parts of the State indicate that Kentucky farmers this year will use fertilizers, particularly limestone and acid phosphate, more extensively than they have in the past few years. This is seen by soil specialists at the college as a marked step toward soil improvement in view of the fact that limestone and acid phosphate, when used on the State's soil experiment field, repeatedly have demonstrated their ability to increase crop yields on practically all types of soil found in Kentucky.

Grayson county farmers have made arrangements to use at least 1,600 tons of limestone this fall, more than 90 per cent of which will be used in connection with acid phosphate. Applications will be made at the rate of two tons of limestone and 300 pounds of phosphate an acre. It is expected that at least 500 acres will be limed in the county.

In Henderson county, farmers have made arrangements to pool their orders for stone in order to increase its use in the county, according to County Agent D. W. Martin, while 400 tons of stone already have been crushed in Lincoln county and plans made for the crusher to work in four other communities during the summer and fall. C. B. Elston, county agent says.

VII. AERIALS AND HOW TO INSTALL THEM

One of the greatest advantages of wireless telephone receivers is that an elaborate or expensive aerial is not required. Although good sets with vacuum bulb detectors may be used indoors, or even with a bare leaded or wire springs as an aerial, yet an outside aerial will always give better results. As I have already mentioned, a single wire will do as well as several, the main thing being to get the aerial long and high in order to catch waves which are not interrupted or interfered with by surrounding buildings, steel bridges, electric wires and similar objects. Next, or rather most important, is to have the aerial and lead-in thoroughly insulated from all surrounding objects, for even wood, when damp, is an excellent conductor. The best material for an amateur aerial for receiving is a stranded phosphor bronze or copper wire, about No. 14, although solid copper wire, copper-covered steel wire or even insulated copper wire will serve every purpose. For insulators, use porcelain cleats. These may be used both where the lead-in is attached to walls or other objects, and where the aerial wire is attached to the supports or guys. The accompanying figures, No. 9 and No. 10, illustrate aerials installed, the first showing the wire attached to a chimney or similar structure and to a wall; the other, an aerial which is designed for a tin or slate roof and which obviates making holes for attachment. Where the with "spaghetti" tubing. For the best results, be sure to run your lead-in from the end of aerial towards the station—which you most frequently wish to hear or towards the most distant station which you desire to pick up. Very often, this will make a vast difference in results, especially with a small receiving set. Care in following directions will insure good results.

LEGION NOTES

housed, stung paper into the room and then touched a match to it. He wanted to destroy the bureau's records, he said. He is being held for mental examination.

Washington, D. C.—For the first time since the United States declared war, the flag of the German Republic was displayed from the German Embassy at Washington, July 4th.

Omaha, Neb.—Forty Nebraska world war veterans, decorated by the American and allied governments for extraordinary heroism, will be guests of honor at the convention of the state American Legion posts to be held in York, Nebraska September 18 to 20th.

St. Paul, Minn.—Disabled world war veterans who have taken up homesteads on a 3,500 acre tract of land in Minnesota have refused to accept the Government's suggestion that the various plots be named for the great battles of the world war. "Our wounds and ailments are sufficient to remind us of our experiences," they say.

New York City—Under a modification of the New York Veterans' Relief Act, dependents of disabled ex-service men in hospitals are eligible to $15 a month benefit if the veteran is being maintained in the hospital by the Government.

New Orleans, La.—Several thousand Iowa Legionnaires will come to the national American Legion convention next October in five special trains, according to a representative of the Iowa department, who visited New Orleans to make arrangements for parking fifty-seven Pullman cars in which the Iowans will live while in the Southern city.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Former service men in Pennsylvania have received $40,000 in claims from the Government during the last month through the efforts of the Pennsylvania American Legion.

New York City—A special board of inquiry has proclaimed Julian N. Stahschmidt a hero. He was killed when he tried to stop a runaway tank during the American Legion's Memorial Day parade in New York. A medal in recognition of his valor has been presented to his mother.

Philadelphia, Pa.—A hero of the world war, five times wounded at Chateau Thierry, but without wound and with no prospect of Government compensation to which he was entitled, Daniel Webster of Philadelphia, Pa., committed suicide and would have been buried in a potter's field had not the American Legion given him a decent burial.

Philadelphia, Pa.—An orphan's home for children of world war veterans will be built by the Pennsylvania American Legion. A survey is now being made to ascertain the number of children for whom accommodations should be made.

New Orleans—President Harding, General Pershing and Major Gen. John A. Lejeune, commandant of the United States Marine corps, are expected as distinguished guests at the American Legion national convention in New Orleans next October.

Definite acceptance of an invitation to attend the convention has been received from General Lejeune, while President Harding and General Pershing have expressed the hope that official business will not prevent their attendance at the Legion gathering.

The military career of the Marine corps leader embraces service in the Spanish-American and World wars as well as the Philippine Insurrection and the capture of Vera Cruz. He obtained greatest recognition as commander of the Fourth brigade of marines of the Second division, serving in the Marbache sector, the battles of St. Mihiel, Blanc Mont ridge, Meuse-Argonne, march to the Rhine and the occupation of the Coblenz bridgehead.

Phoenix, Ariz.—The "Kid Corporal," John Shoemaker, of Phoenix, Arizona, has passed over another milestone. This time the kid who enlisted in the army at the age of 14 and served months with the A. E. F., has received a presidential appointment to West Point. A school boy who to the world war started, Shoemaker, somehow evaded the sharp questionings of a recruiting officer and enlisted as a member of a machine gun company, 54th Infantry, and was with the outfit two years. His home was in New Jersey before the war. His West Point appointment followed a campaign by the Phoenix American Legion and Major Charles Decatur Jones, under whom Shoemaker took special courses in military tactics.

Indianapolis, Ind.—"President Pierce" will carry 200 members of the American Legion and the Legion Auxiliary to France, sailing from New York, August 8th. The party of former service men, their wives, sisters and mothers will tour France, England and Belgium, returning September 8th, via Montreal. A few receptions and public affairs have been arranged in the chief cities of the world but these will not be any of the features with the personal business of any member of the organization. Information concerning the tour has been obtained from the American Legion and the Legion Auxiliary.

STATE NEWS.

Whitley county paid into the state road fund $6,804.15 in automobile license fees in 1921.

The state treasurer reported total receipts of $1,176,460.41 from automobile license fees for the fiscal year 1920-21.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company employs 6,768 section hands and track laborers, of whom 3,297 are employed in the state of Kentucky.

Railroad taxes on tangible property paid into the state treasury in the fiscal year 1920-21 totaled $804,445.91 according to the annual report of the state treasurer. Franchise taxes paid by the railroads totaled $416,184.26.

Warren county farm land sold for an average of $85 an acre in 1920 as compared with $110 in 1920. The minimum was $30 an acre in 1921 and the maximum $240 as compared with a minimum of $40 and a maximum of $320 in 1920.

The sheriff of Jefferson county during the year ending June 30th, 1921, received fees totaling $139,386 and spent $73,371.42, the remainder going into the state treasury. The sheriff of this county is the only one in the state on a salary, he having been placed on a $5,000 salary years ago.

Revenue from motor vehicles in the state for this year will pass the $2,000,000 mark within the next few days, according to a statement given out today by the state auditor's mobile department. The total receipts to July 1 were $1,952,422.57. This includes licenses for 114,307 passenger cars, 14,793 trucks, 841 motor cycles, 7,115 chauceurs, 788 dealers. In addition to that, 685 free licenses have been issued to the state and the various cities and counties.

Moths have invaded the State Capitol and destroyed 1,219 Kentucky reports, valued at $1,830, and 50 copies of the acts of the Legislature, valued at $49.50, according to a report on the Kentucky State Library made by State Inspector and Examiner Henry E. James and filed with Governor Edwin P. Morrow. The books destroyed or damaged are stored in the basement of the Capitol where 20,775 other Kentucky reports are stored.

The sale value of the books stored would be around $40,000 and the replacement value at $2.20 per volume, would amount to $45,707.23. In view of this Inspector James recommended that the books damaged or destroyed be disposed of immediately.

Life termers in the penitentiaries sentenced after January 1, 1922, will have to serve 12 full months before being eligible for parole under new rules governing paroles adopted by the State Board of Charities and Corrections. The rule will apply alike to prisoners convicted of capital offenses or as habitual criminals.

Washington county, Kentucky paid $12,225.47 in automobile license fees into the State road fund during the fiscal year 1920-21.

Thirteen building and loan associations of Kentucky increased their capital stock, and one new association was formed during the past year, according to the report of the State banking commissioner, James P. Lewis, recently made public. On June 30, past assets of such companies in the State totaled $40,092,343.55, the report declared.

Albany, N. Y.—Only 2,500 of the 5,000 war veterans believed to be eligible for aid have applied for it under the recently passed New York law which sets aside $1,000,000 for disabled unemployed veterans. The state authorities have asked the American Legion to bring the act to the attention of its members in order that as many needy men as possible may benefit.

WHERE THE HENS LAY ALL WINTER

Colony Poultry House Will Keep Flock Productive:

MORE EGGS FROM WARM HOME

Design Illustrated Here Will Keep Out the Wind, and at Same Time Permit Plenty of Fresh Air and Light.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1237 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Owners of poultry flocks may gain some worth while ideas about flock housing and management from the professionals who are about the only ones who succeed in making poultry pay a profit. To the average person who owns chickens they are a source of pleasure and fresh eggs, with but little actual knowledge of whether or not they are an asset or a liability.

In the first place, it is a pretty well recognized fact that a flock of less than 100 birds cannot be made to pay their feed bills and have anything left for the labor of caring for them. Next, the average poultry owner pays little attention to the house the flock occupies in winter—any old building that has four walls and a roof is looked upon as sufficient. The wind and snow sweep through the cracks in the poultry house and the feed the birds consume is used up to keep them from freezing rather than to produce eggs. And this, too, when everyone knows that the time when eggs are worth gathering is the time when the hens, or a majority of them, are not laying.

The common, everyday hen of the American farm and backyard flocks are natives of tropical countries. True, she has been acclimated to the colder northern climate, but to do her best work she must be kept warm and comfortable in winter. That's why successful poultrymen pay a great deal of attention to the house for the flock in winter, and farm building architects have designed houses that will keep out the winds, and at the same time permit a supply of fresh air and plenty of light.

For convenience in handling good-size flocks, there has come into general use what is known as a colony poultry house. Almost invariably these houses are 20 feet wide and as long as the space requires. This size is gauged by providing four square feet of floor space for each bird. The colony house shown in the accompanying illustration is 20 feet wide and 64 feet long, giving a total of 1,280 square feet of floor space, or sufficient for 320 birds.

As will be seen by the floor plan of the house the interior is divided into four sections, each 16 feet by 20 feet. In each of these sections 80 birds are kept, although doors permit the owner to throw the whole of the interior together. But, as success with poultry requires that the young pullets that are just beginning to lay should be kept separate from the older hens, or breeding stock, few poultrymen allow the whole flock to run together.

This house is what is known as a saw-tooth roof type. It is of frame construction, set on a concrete foundation. The open, or saw-tooth roof, kept separate from the water run and the warmth it provides. The front of the lower half of the building is open to provide good ventilation, but inside are buries curtains that are lowered at night and on extremely cold days. In the upright section of the roof are large windows. These allow light to get to the back part of the interior. Flow the nests and roosts are arranged is shown on the plan.

There is a great deal more to insure success with a flock of poultry than a house of course. This includes food, water, and other important factors.

with every care the poultryman may take, he will have little success in bringing on layers during the cold months unless a proper house is provided.

Experiments by poultry specialists at the state agricultural colleges with artificial lighting to promote egg production during the short days have been most interesting. It now has been proven that artificial lights, principally electric, that are turned on early in the morning, will double winter egg production, providing, of course, the hens do not utilize all their feed to promote warmth. After the hens have gone to roost at night, their morning feed is scattered in the litter. Then when the lights are turned on, usually about 4 a. m., they get off the perch, are forced to take exercise to get their breakfast and are kept in an active, healthy condition, and produce a comparatively large number of eggs.

Handling a flock of poultry is interesting work and can be made very profitable now that poultry products are high and feed costs low. With the proper sort of a house and careful feeding and handling, the owner will find their flock a cash-producing asset.

HAD CRUDE IDEA OF WORLD

In the Thirteenth Century People Had Very Simple Notions Concerning Geographical Facts.

Geography in the Thirteenth century was a very simple affair, which could be completely mastered by a schoolboy with a few minutes' study. The most reliable map pictured a little flat world of three continents—Europe, Asia and Africa. On its face appeared the various kinds of creatures, human, animal and semi-human, which were believed to inhabit the remote regions of the earth. The holy city of Jerusalem is placed in the exact center, and at the extreme east is the Garden of Paradise, represented by an apple tree, Adam and Eve and the serpent.

The earth itself is bounded on the four quarters by the "jumping-off place." In the southern part of Africa appears the figure of a strange man whose face appears to be on his chest. Elsewhere are griffins, unicorns and several creatures which completely defy classification. This map is interesting to contrast with that studied in ancient China, which represented the known world as resting on the back of a cow. Some of the old Chinese declared that, after an earthquake they had found some of the cow's hairs in the fissures of the earth.

Chestnuts.

An old writer says that horse-chestnuts are so called because "people in the East countries do with the fruit thereof cure their horses of the cough, shortness of breath, and such-like disorders." It is always a temptation to seek, for an ingenious explanation when there is a simple one at hand, but the fact is that the horse-chestnut has no connection whatever with the horse. The word "horse," as used not only in horse-chestnut, but also in horse-leugh, horse-play, horse-radish, and horse-mint, is the same word as "goose," the common name of the rough, prickly shrub of our commons. The horse-chestnut deserves its prefix doubly, for when enclosed in its burr it is a prickly thing to handle, and its kernel is cold and unpleasant to the taste. Similarly, the horse-radish is a pungent tuber and the horse-mint a pungent mint. Horse-play is a rough, uncouth play, and a horse-leugh is a vulgar, boisterous guffaw.

And It Is Called Food.

A Malayan diet includes, besides any amount of canned foods, an occasional fresh piece of tough goat meat or beef, oranges, always eaten green, bananas of all flavors and sizes, limes, and an unusual fruit called durian, which is described as a huge, green, round, spiky fruit which smells worse than a combination of limburger cheese, the mephitis (odd notorious musklike mammal) and a garbage can sewage plant, and tastes like a blend of strawberries, onions, chocolate cream, rotten eggs, and cheese. Whether you like it depends on some few thousand other fruits and an occasional fresh fish—Chaland Fish Dealer.

IS U. S. TO FACE LABOR SHORTAGE?OPTIMISM IN DEPARTMENT OF LABOR SHOWS UNEMPLOYMENT
MENT DECREASING.

According to figures of the Department of Labor, the U. S. may shortly face a labor shortage, its unemployment problem completely solved.

Director General Jones of the Employment Service declared the "country is steadily but surely turning its face toward a period of industrial prosperity in which it is possible that the labor supply will not equal the demand." Optimism, he believes, pervades every industry in every part of the country.

Economists of the Nation's Capital find a note of caution to those to whom any optimistic statement is taken at its face value rather than for its real meaning. They point out that a labor shortage does not necessarily mean that every man in the country has a job, but that there are jobs enough if every man without a job could get to it. No country, at any time in history, has ever succeeded in effecting such perfect distribution of labor that all jobs were always filled without their being any jobs or men left over. Thus at the present time there are States with too many farm hands and States with a crying need for farm hands. There are industries with a powerful demand for skilled laborers which cannot be found and trades with skilled laborers who can not find work. It is fundamental and country-wide conditions which the Department of Labor considers, and in summarizing the decrease in unemployment and the coming labor shortage in certain lines, it shows only a national aspect of grave questions. Local conditions may contradict national ones in certain places without prejudice to the accuracy of the statistics as a whole.

With practically every industry in the country taking on more men, and with Wall Street and the banking interests registering optimism, it is not difficult to read into predictions of labor shortage a comforting assurance of a coming solid and normal prosperity. Such at least, is the mature judgment of impartial Government experts.

THE REGISTRATION LAW

The opinion rendered by the Court of Appeals of Kentucky holding that the registration law passed by the last Legislature was unconstitutional sets aside a law that was intended for the purification of the ballot in Kentucky. The court on technical grounds reversed the decision that nullified the present law. The registration law was unpopular in the rural districts because it required each citizen to register before he had the right to vote. A citizen was required to register only once unless he changed his residence when he was required to have his registration changed to his new precinct or voting place. The principal objection to this law came from the members of the party now in power in Kentucky and their objection to the law was not that it was a bad law, but that the law would prevent the wholesale voting of repeaters in Louisville, where the polling places have been changed in a number of places which the officers are all of one political faith. The law would also prevent the voting of large numbers of irresponsible people along the border line of the state. The law was intended to prevent frauds in elections and the Republican party machinery in Louisville could not, under that law, use the repeater successfully. While the law may have put some of us to inconvenience, yet we should not complain, but should do all in our power that will insure a free and fair election in Kentucky, one in which each and every citizen shall have the right to cast his or her vote as desired, and one in which the repeater is unknown. Every citizen of Kentucky should stand for fair elections and see that those who are guilty of violating any of our election laws are punished to the extreme penalty.

THE COUNTRY DOCTOR.

"The country districts are apparently being drained of doctors," was the remark made by the president of the American Medical Association at its recent convention. Complaints come from many country towns that they find difficulty in inducing physicians to settle there.

Young physicians should realize that conditions for the country doctor have been greatly improved by the use of automobiles and improvement of the roads. He can now cover a much wider territory than formerly and get over the ground quickly. He will get acquainted easily, and will probably be earning a good income sooner than if he went into some city, and in addition his expenses will be far less.

The people who persist in buying on credit must be sorry they have not done so.

THE COLD STUFF HABIT.

Things get pretty thick around the soda fountain and ice cream stands at this time of year, and the American people are consuming mountains of ice cream and cakes of icy delight. It must give a certain relief to the sweltering crowd would not make such a rush for this stuff. Some people overindulge their stomachs with these sweetened confections and get so dependent on this form of relief that they must have it every few hours.

People with weak stomachs need to look out that they do not overload themselves with sugar. But the soft drinks are so much better than the hard stuff that used to be consumed with equal freedom, that on the whole it is a helpful habit. Many people are thereby reconciled to that other vice they would consider the horrors of prohibition. No man ever went home and beat his wife or smashed the furniture, as the result of taking a little too much ice cream soda.

REAL PLEASURE IN WORK

We hear a lot of people complaining about overwork and in many cases it is quite true. Some people do overwork. But in the majority of cases it is not overwork that kills people, it is all the foolish things that they pile on top of work. People need to be able to get a great deal of pleasure out of their work and they were not compelled to seek all their pleasure on the outside. But now people consider work an affliction, a necessary evil, something to be gotten out of the way as soon as possible so that the fun can begin. Young people in the city particularly, go through their days work anyway to get through and every night finds them searching the highways and byways in search of "a good time." Then every morning they are so worn out they can scarcely get to their work. If they could only be convinced that real pleasure is to be found in work they would not have to seek so far afield for their enjoyment.

BETTER RURAL SCHOOLS.

Too often it happens that bright and capable teachers use a country school merely as a stepping stone to something else, and go on to city schools after a year or so in the rural community. It sometimes happens that a teacher will quit a school in the middle of a school year, leaving the school board to supply her place in a hurry.

The city schools can pay higher salaries. Yet it will cost one much more to live in cities. And many rural communities keep capable teachers for years, as a result of the wholehearted way in which they welcome these people to their social life.

If a teacher fails to find any comfort here open to her, if she has to change around from one congenial boarding place to another, if she is held aloof from social life, she feels no attachment to that community. She will quit just as quick as she can.

But if the leading families take her into their households and the people of the town welcome her to social doings, she is going to make of strong friendship. If a chance comes to earn more money in a city, she may take the view that her expenses will be enough greater to offset the advance, and that anyway she can never enjoy the comradeship that she has in her present position.

When a girl is thoroughly making good in the schools of a community, when she is arousing indifferent children from their lethargy, and stirring the fires of ambition in their previously sluggish hearts, she should be a prized possession and one of the greatest assets that that town has. The utmost efforts should be made to retain her services. Every thing that attributes of friendship and appreciation can do, should be offered to induce her to remain in the work that she performs with such splendid results.

COAL SHORTAGE FELT

The coal shortage is beginning to be felt in many quarters and with the summer season nearly half gone the idle ness at the mines with further extension of trouble on the railroads, is becoming a very serious problem, and if there is no settlement of the trouble soon, there will be many empty coal bins the coming winter.

O. H. PATE, DEAD.

O. H. Pate, a well known farmer and stock dealer of Ohio county, Indiana, died at his home on the Aurora road, one day last week. Mr. Pate had many friends on this side of the river who will be sorry to hear of his death.

DAMAGING TOBACCO.

Wildfire, rust and leaf spot, which caused as much damage to tobacco in 1922 as was reported as having attacked fields of growing tobacco in a number of counties, including a number of the leading burley producing counties.

OLD FASHIONED COUNTRY FAIR.

The management of the North Kentucky Fair to be held at Florence, August 30, 31, and Sept. 1 and 2, will attempt to put on a real old country fair, catering to the interests of the farming communities and those people generally. The fair is going to be a real live one in the way of live stock shows, which include hogs, sheep and poultry will be open to the world and the increase in premiums will certainly please those who have animals and are inclined to show them to the patrons of the fair. The fruit and garden exhibits are expected to be much larger than usual.

There are especially large every farmer residing in this community to exhibit in at least one department, for by so doing you will have a personal interest in the success of an organization established wholly for your benefit.

The women's department will be especially attractive this year. The demonstrations of farm implements will have good place on the grounds and will be of great interest to all owners of mechanical labor savers. Tractors, lawns, and small, utility, and similar machines have already engaged space.

Help us to make the fair a success. The organization desires every citizen of the county to assist in any way possible toward making the fair a substantial success.

Bring your family to the fair and have them spend a pleasant and profitable time viewing the many new and instructive exhibits.

Send for premium list. Get your neighbors interested. Be sparing something for exhibition. For lists and other information write to Hubert Conner, Secretary, Burlington, Ky.

WASHINGTON COMMENT.

"This is a free country. The majority rules here!" A proud American boasts this, which we are all fond of making, to our foreign friends.

Is it a free country? Does the majority rule? Many a patriotic and home-loving citizen is asking himself these questions. Is it a case of majority rule when the well-organized, sane, and business industry can jeopardize the entire Nation? Is it a free country when a man who says, "I want the job a striker doesn't want," must pay the penalty with his life if he dares take it? Is it a free country, or a majority rule Government, when any "bloc" in House or Senate can dictate legislation in the interests of any part of a hundred millions as opposed to the interests of the whole? Is it a free country when any religious bias attempts to interfere with the schools of the Nation?

War breeds hate, hate breeds fanaticism, fanaticism breeds intolerance, intolerance breeds oppression, oppression breeds Bolshevism, fear. We have had the war, and experienced the hate and the fanaticism. But we, the American people, with the love of freedom and independence, which is the priceless heritage given us by our traditions, our history, and our love of what we truly thing of as the road to the end; we do not have to absorb the intolerance, or experience the oppression, anarchy, Bolshevism, fear.

The way is clear; we have but to apply to these our present problems that ideal for which our forefathers fought, which Washington put in practical operation, which Lincoln upheld. We have but to remember that before we are railroad men, farmers, strikers, strike breakers, legislators belonging to a bloc, members of any special group, or upholders of any special faith, we are first of all, good Americans.

While we all remember that, this will be a land where the majority rules. When we forget it, and only when we forget it, can this cease to be a free country.

SHORT CUTS TO SUCCESS

Life contains many roads to achievement and some are long and some are short. The old fashioned business man travelled by a difficult road to his success. He planted himself in one spot, until after many years his name and place of business became familiar in the public mind. But that is a terribly slow way to success for these times.

Advertising furnishes the means by which a man can win success in a short time. If he will but keep his business before the public for a moderate length of time, telling them frankly and fully about his goods, what he has to sell and at what prices he is going to be as well and favorably known in a few years as the old timer who spent a life time sitting in his office waiting for the public to come in.

When the interpreting man does in a few years what it took the old time peddler to accomplish, it means by which he achieved his triumph has elements of romance.

THE WAR DEBTS.

It is rather disheartening at first thought, to read of the heavy mortgage placed on the world by the war debts. Realists will say that this burden can't be carried. They show, for instance, that where before the war, the debts of Europe amounted to only 6 per cent of the wealth, now they amount up to the staggering total of 66 per cent. This country is not so bad, yet our debts amount to at least 10 per cent of the national wealth.

But the greatest resource in any nation, is not the existing wealth. It is human labor. That is not mortgaged, its just as free as before. The war. Its productive power, if hauled right, ought to be greater because the war stimulated human initiative.

If a man has a 65 per cent mortgage on his property, that does not mean that his situation need be bad. If he still has his working power, he can earn enough to pay interest and go ahead. So it will be with the world now struggling with debts.

They are indeed heavy, but not too heavy to be borne successfully, if the different elements in each nation will only co-operate.

"MANY MOONS AGO"

In the Dearborn Independent of July 22, published at Dearborn, Michigan, there appeared a fine halftone picture of the ferry boat Boone No. 5, at Constance, Ky. And from an article, "On Early Customs on the Ohio River," by Harry E. Barnett, we clip the following:

"Constance, Kentucky, is a tiny village, whose site is said to have been the point of departure of the last mastodon from the Ohio Valley. 'Many moons ago,' as the story came from the Indians to the steamboatmen, 'ere the white man came, and while the hunting was yet good, the elk, the buffalo and the deer, went along the river of springs to drink the smelling water,' which are Big Bone Springs, located a short distance from the river in Boone County, Kentucky, so named because of their medicinal waters, and the number of mastodon bones unearthed there in comparatively recent years.

But many and mighty mammoths also came from afar to drink, and as the days went on they killed or frightened away the elk, the buffalo and the deer, so that the Indians could no longer hunt. An appeal was made to the Great Spirit. When he undertook to drive the mammoths away, they defied him. Then the Great Spirit was angry at the mammoths, and he came down from the sky, and from a hill he hurled thunderbolts among the great animals within the valley.

"Mad with terror they tore through the pathways of the valley, and the deer and buffalo that remained fled to the forests, but the Great Spirit's thunderbolts were more terrible and more destructive to the mammoths than they were to the game. All save one was killed before they could rush from the valley. A great bull, father of the herd, had only his long tusks broken off by the lightning. He was old and creaked and he fled screaming across the hills, sweeping trees out of his path as an Indian would a bit of grass, until he came to the great river. There he paused only long enough to gather himself for a great bound; then, leaping, he cleared the wide river, and tore through the forests to the Great Lakes, and across them into the cold Northeast. There he disappeared and was seen no more; and there he lives to this day, his tusks gone, but still terrible."

BE PROMPT.

No man can expect to succeed who is not prompt in meeting every emergency. If you make a promise be prompt to fulfill it. Don't make a promise unless you can be prompt. If you agree to meet a person at a certain time, be promptly on hand. Don't run away from a debt. Be prompt to meet your creditor but prompt to explain your reason for being unable to meet your obligation. Promptness is the keynote to establishing confidence. Be prompt in all things. That established, a man has a fair start to a final success.

LECTURE ENJOYED.

Dr. H. C. Wayman lectured at the Baptist church Wednesday night, July 19th, his subject being "My Trip To Palestine." The lecture was heard by a large crowd and was enjoyed by all. Dr. Wayman's lecture showed that he is well informed in Biblical history and his word picture of Palestine was a gem. It is seldom that our people have the opportunity to hear a man of the attainments of Dr. Wayman.

KENTUCKIANS AT COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

Fifty Kentucky educational leaders, in a recent meeting presided over by McHenry Rhoads, Lexington, reorganized the Kentucky-Columbia Club for the Summer Session at Columbia University. Every section of the state was represented, even the thirty students attending Columbia received no notice of the meeting. In all probability a hundred and fifty Kentuckians are at the University.

Supt. J. W. Bradner, formerly of the Ashland and now of the Middleboro public schools, was elected President of the State Club. Other officers named were: Vice-Presidents Alma Hurst, Ashland, L. J. Sindler, Lexington, and Miss Martha Randall, Burlington, Secretary Miss Marian Curry, Louisville, and Treasurer, Supt. H. L. Jones, Fulton. The vice-presidents were named chairman of the "Stunt" Publicity, and Social Committees respectively.

The Stunt Committee is by far the most important committee, responsibility for all social and athletic events consider the winning of the "stunt" prize the big achievement of the summer session. The competition takes place before the four thousand members of the Southern Club and added thousands of other interested students and faculty members. Last year Kentucky won the "runner-up" and robbed the winners of a unanimous decision with its presentation "Feuds a la Carte." The Stunt Committee promises to win the vote of an additional judge and possibly twofold them on Southern Club night this year.

The Southern Club is the oldest, largest and far and away the most popular organization at Columbia. It offers the feature program of the Summer Session and always has. The Kentucky Club wants to capture the feature event on that program. Incidentally, a Kentuckian, Miss Florence McMurtry, of Georgetown, heads the major organization, while Supt. Lee Kirkpatrick is an ex-president. The Kentucky Club attracts seventy-five Kentuckians to its banquet each year. The committee aims to improve on this record and may in addition extend its activities into other fields of social effort. A number of Kentuckians attended the Southern dance, the first ever on the Southern Club program and as usual the first event in the summer session social calendar.

THE STRIKE.

The strike among the shops crafts of the railroad may extend to other allied trades, and while some violence has been reported, it does not compare with the outrage at Herrin, Illinois, where a number of men were killed, and wounded, can not be accounted for. The responsibility for this horror does not rest solely upon the rioters. In equal measure the guilt must be laid at the doors of the labor leaders. The massacre of the non-union men by the men whose places had been taken, has dealt unionism one of the deadliest blows it has suffered in this country. It would be difficult to estimate how greatly the Union miners have injured their cause by converting themselves from strikers into murderers and criminals. This affair will do more to kill union labor than all other arguments that could be brought against it. It is hard for one to understand by what right one man has for preventing another man to perform labor when he is satisfied with the amount he is receiving for his labor and his surroundings. The Union man may quit his job at any time he sees fit, but the employer can not discharge one who is a member of the union, unless for cause. When one attempts to force to prevent another from performing the labor that he refuses to do, he has so far exceeded his right that his action can only receive condemnation. Organization has been of great benefit to the laborer, but when they attempt to control the conducting of any business by dictation to the employer, they are the employ men only who are members of the organization, can not discharge any of them without cause, when they become dissatisfied with the working conditions and amount they are receiving and quit, and prevent others from taking their places, their action can not be endorsed by right thinking people. No one can be compelled to perform labor for another, and no one should be prevented from performing labor for another. Damage to person and property usually follows in the wake of a strike, but the Union men must and do disclaim any responsibility. It is reasonable to presume that this damage to property is done by the owners of the property! If the strike of the railroad employes is not settled in a short time every one of us will be affected.

Soon all the women will know how to operate automobiles, but there will be many who can't run sewing machines.

A WEEK'S NEWS.

Ed. Graham, wife and daughter of Greensburg, Indiana, spent last Thursday in Burlington. While here he had a stone put at the head of his father's grave, who was buried in the old cemetery just north of town thirty-eight years ago. They motored through and returned this evening via Cincinnati. He made this office a pleasant call and here left with a post-card bearing a picture of the court house with a Maple tree growing in the top of the tower. The origin of which is supposed to have resulted from winged maple seed having been carried there by wind or birds some 65 years ago. Its height is 15 feet and its trunk is 4 inches thick. This curiosity is unparalleled in the world.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hawes, of Covington, have the heartfelt sympathy of their many friends in this county, in the death of their twelve year old daughter, Laura, who died at Dr. Murphy's Hospital, Cincinnati, Wednesday night, July 19th, at 9 o'clock, where she was operated upon about two weeks ago for measles. The remains were brought to Burlington last Friday afternoon and laid to rest in the cemetery at that place in the presence of a large attendance of relatives and friends.

P. B. Akin and wife, who have been the guests of Mr. Akin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Akin, on Walpole creek, for the past two weeks, were in Burlington, Tuesday morning of last week enroute to their home at Winchester, Ky., where he is Superintendent of Schools. Mr. Akin is another Boone county boy who has made good in his profession as a school teacher.

John Feeley, of Bullittsville neighborhood, was in Burlington, last Friday, on business. Mr. Feeley said he made a trip thru Indiana one day last week, and found that part of the country suffering from the drought much worse than are the crops in this section, that the crops over there are about ruined.

Circuit Court Clerk R. E. Berkshire, was a caller at this office one day last week, and while here he was very much amused by an article he found in one of our files, printed in September, 1893, which read, "Mrs. B. H. Berkshire, of Petersburg, presented her husband with a fine baby boy on the 25th inst."

Mrs. Ryburn Williamson and accomplished daughter, Miss Jessie, of Fullerton, Cal., are visiting relatives in Boone county. Mrs. Williamson before her marriage was Miss Jessie Bailey, daughter of James Bailey, many years ago a resident of Gunpowder neighborhood.

John Birkle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Birkle, of the Bellevue place, who was one of the graduates at the Boone County High School in June, left one day the latter part of last week for Cincinnati, where he will take a business course at Miller's Business College.

A. B. Renaker wife and daughter, and Mrs. Laura Martin, left Monday morning for a week's visit with A. L. Furnish and family, of Golden Pond, Trigg county. They will make the trip in Mr. Renaker's auto.

Miss Bess Hall, who has a good position with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., Cincinnati, is spending a week's vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hall.

E. E. Foster and niece, Mrs. Watson, after a week's visit with relatives and friends in Burlington and vicinity, returned to their home at Jacksonville Fla., Sunday.

Mr. Kinsey, the poultry man of Hopeful neighborhood, was a visitor to Burlington, Friday morning. He and County Agent Sutton attended a big convention at Aurora, Indiana, that day.

The reckless men who spend Saturday afternoons cleaning up the back yard, might reflect that if they let it alone perhaps their wives would do it.

The people who would not be so much crossing the ocean, might turn their stomachs trying to ride over some of the pitchy roads of Kentucky.

Tanlac, the powerful, reconstructive tonic, is the ideal strengthener and body builder for old folks. For sale by W. L. Kirkpatrick, Burlington.

County Judge N. E. Riddell and County Atty. B. H. Riley spent last Friday in Walton, taking depositions.

Atty. S. W. Adams, of Covington, was transacting business in Burlington, last Friday.

Rev. O. M. Stone, of Lexington, was the guest of last week at the Gallop Inn.

PINCHED AGAIN.
(By Walt Mason.)

The saddest words of tongue or pen are these, "I've just been pinched again." In these fierce days when every man must have some sort of bus or van, when traffic laws are multiplied until we bust some open wide, no matter how we strive and strain to line up with the safe and sane, we hear the best and noblest men complaining, "We've been pinched again." The reckless drivers get away, to hog the road some other day; the speed fiends leave a trail of smoke, and think it's traffic law; but fat old bar's who cut a wart are handed justice by the quart; the village parson drives along, and happily makes a signal wrong, his mind intent on hymn and text—the speed cop tells him he is next. Some woman parks her Lizzie fine perhaps two inches out of line, and when she to her bus returns, white anger in her bosom burns. For she is tagged and must repair to court and dig up doubloons there. Some doctor, called to feed his pills to one who's perishing of chills, is stopped and dragged away to jail and fined all sorts of fancy ke; and while he in his dungeon lies, his chills and fever patient dies. And while the safe and sane are pinched, the delegates who should be lynched, the road hogs and the fiends of speed, get by with all their vice and greed.

HONESTY AND THEIR POLICY.

Oh for a man, whom the germ of politics has bitten, and who still will dare give expression to his real beliefs!

Look them all over from coast to coast. Congressmen, mayors, aldermen, governors, candidates, hopeful aspirants—and then try to name one whose utterance measures up to the standard of courage the country has the right to expect.

"I must not offend any man."

Such must be the motto, common to all who seek the favor of democratic government. A few there are, whose names have been linked with certain radical proposals, who attract the reasoning opposition of persons of contrary faith. And a few there are who, on original entrance into the field of political aspiration, come as clear-cut crusaders for the particular group whence their candidacy sprang.

But once started down the political track—how quickly radicalism feels the oil of tolerance! How soon are all men beloved! How rapidly do words and phrases melt unctuously into platitudes which can offend none and which roll melliflously off the tongue!

The outspoken man, whom the world admires for the freedom of his statement—how soon does his outspokenness get edited by his editors, his personalities get sheered of their personal references by his secretaries, his wild radicalisms become tame under the suave ministrations of his managers!

Nominate the wildest tiger of Bengal for Congress, and we are willing to wager he will be making speeches in a month, in which he is expressing his high regard for the English, the Irish, the Italian, the German, the Swede, the Hottentot; shouting his strong conviction of progressivism; and winding up with a peroration in which he pays tribute to Washington and Lincoln.—Dear-born Independent.

Our annual strike bill would feed the starving world for which we are collecting millions of dollars. It represents far less than one-half of what we should gain if we were to go on a just economic basis. Some people oppose the implications of "economic justice" because they think it will mean a decrease in wealth, a diminishing return, everybody doing with less in order that the poor may have a little more. That is most absurd. Economic justice would bring such an increase of wealth that the economic problem would practically disappear as a sore and change into an avenue of great progress. Our strike bill represents our fines and penalties before the Court of the Eternal Justice for not being fair and just. The measure of our economic injustice is the measure of our net loss.—Ford.

The Y. W. A. will meet at the home of Mrs. Grover Jarrell, Saturday, July 29th, at 2:30 p. m.

Beauty of face appeals to the eye, while beauty of soul enthalls the heart. No wonder we are heart and soul for the women.

Mrs. Lizzie Rita Ritter, beloved wife of Albert M. Ritter, passed away at her residence in Erlanger, last Wednesday, at the age of 53. Funeral services were conducted at the residence Thursday evening at 8 o'clock by Rev. Runyan, the remains being forwarded early Friday morning to Richmond, Ky., for interment. Mrs. Ritter is survived by her husband, one daughter, Mrs. Walker Turpin, three brothers and three sisters. She was a member of the First Christian church. Undertaker Philip Talliaferro had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Robert Utz and Henry Glone each shipped a truck load of fat hogs to market this week. They received satisfactory prices.

Postmaster R. C. Hickman and family spent last Sunday with relatives near the Kentucky coal fields.

FASTING.

"I humbled my soul with fasting," said the psalmist. William Rice, the preacher who has just died at Nada, Ky., after sixty-nine days without food, voluntarily starved himself to "prepare his body for heaven." Terence MacSwiney, who died two years ago in prison where he had been sent for political crimes, took no solid nourishment for seventy-one days.

To the person who rarely varies the three-meal a day programme, it seems incredible that anyone could go without food for ten weeks. Perhaps it would be impossible to rejuvenate physically one who had undergone such a prolonged fast. But fasts of ten, twenty, thirty and even forty days are well authenticated by the medical profession.

In no spirit of irreverence for the psalmist, it can be said that moderate fasting is good for the body as well as for the soul. It is interesting to note the close connection between the physical and spiritual significance of the old religious rite which has its roots in antiquity.

In renunciation of the pleasures of the table, a reward is found in the elimination of bodily poisons as well as in the increase of will power and in the tendency to think of higher and less mundane things. The physician, as well as the religious leader, can advocate the efficacy of fasting.

Every healthy body has a reserve supply of fat which nature stores up in anticipation of a "rainy day." This reserve is drawn upon in periods of fasting and serves to keep alive the body in the same manner as does food taken to the stomach in the ordinary way.

The prevention, if not the cure, of some diseases can be accomplished by permitting the fat reserve to do its work and by giving the stomach a well-earned respite from its daily grind. Likewise, the brain is made clearer and the spirit is refreshed by a moderate fast.

In the workaday world, an extended fast by one who has a daily occupation is out of the question. Labor without food would shortly use up all the reserve and, by secreting dangerous fatigue poisons, would make a fast productive of harm. Those who can lie quietly during a fast, however, get much benefit. And it would not hurt even the most vigorous worker to skip a meal or two occasionally in the interest of physical mental and spiritual well-being.—Courier Journal.

GOOD ROADS.

The good-roads question, while it is of the utmost importance to all, primarily concerns the farmer. The business of farming is essentially dependent on the condition of the roads. If whatever is not produced on the farm must be hauled to the farm, and many crops of the farm must be hauled away to the railroad stations and local markets.

When the farmer can use a motor truck to deliver his produce to market he saves time, thus being able to devote more time to his farm work with a resultant increase in crops. He can live farther away from the railroad or market, as a reduction in time is equivalent to a decrease of the distance. The reduction may be largely due to increased speed of hauling, to increased load, or to both.

In order to obtain the best results it is necessary to take a statewide view. What road would be of most benefit to the greatest number of people? That is the road which should be improved first.

What we really need is a system of improved roads that will accommodate everybody, and it is not to be expected that it will pass every one's door. The railroads render a wonderful service, but we cannot go out to our front gate and board a train. It is hoped that eventually all roads will be improved, but in the necessary to make a beginning and advance along logical lines.

We must not improve one road here, another a hundred miles away which in no way supplements the entire system. Before deciding upon improving any road we should first determine whether that road is an artery in our transportation system, or only a tributary vein. If we improve the secondary roads and allow the primary roads to deteriorate they will not be able to accommodate the traffic flowing to them from the tributary roads.

NOTICE.

The postal laws provide that if a letter or other writing is enclosed with a parcel post package the Postmaster must charge the letter or first class rate for the entire package, it is also a violation of the postal laws which may be dealt with by the Postmaster General. The law makes it the duty of the Postmaster to inspect all packages and if he finds first class matter, letters and other writing, he must not only report that fact to the Postmaster General, Postmaster Hickman has found in several packages letters, and he thinks they were put in the packages by persons who were ignorant of the law. If you want a letter to go with a package you can attach the letter to the outside of the package and put the correct postage on the letter and the package will be sent through the mails at the parcel post rate. The sender of all parcel post packages must write his name and address on the upper left hand corner of the package and if this is not done the package will be rejected.

STATE NEWS.

Frankfort, Ky.—Revenue received by the State from motor vehicle licenses, chauffeurs' badges, transfers, duplicate plates and automobile lists from December 2 to this week amounted to $2,068,769.20, according to figures compiled today by N. O. Gray, assistant State Tax Commissioner. This is an increase of approximately $200,000 over the revenue this time last year. Mr. Gray estimates that the total receipts for 1922 will reach $2,250,000.

Louisville, Ky.—The services of Dr. Marshall J. Thompson of Baltimore, have been loaned by the International Health Board to the State Board of Health to co-operate in conducting a series of surveys of counties which showed a high percentage of hookworm disease in the original survey made between 1910 and 1916.

These surveys are to be carried on during the summer and early fall. Counties to be visited include one in eastern, southeastern and western Kentucky. The survey of Laurel county already has been completed, and a preliminary report shows that the number of cases in that county has been reduced 60 per cent below 1914 figures.

Frankfort, Ky., July 21.—Unless vouchers and receipts are produced and entries satisfactorily explained, W. L. Threlkeld, special auditor of the Department of Education, in a report on the county schools of Knox county for the period from January 1, 1918, to July 30, 1919, advises that the County Board of Education should require E. B. Hemphill, former County Superintendent, to account for $10,977.17. Mr. Hemphill was superintendent under the old law, when the office was elective, and several months ago State Superintendent George Colvin revoked his certificate.

With The Paragraphs.

WHAT HE REALLY MEANT.

(Birmingham Age-Herald.)

A Kentucky man who fasted fifty-three days says he was shown the way to redemption. He probably means the cemetery.

EXPLAINING IT.

(Indianapolis News.)

That wild animal, "stripped and as big as a calf," reported at large in Kentucky, must have trailed a load of moonshine down from the moonshine territory.
